Noble Shriners and Their Ladies Receive Genuine Ovation Here.

Jolly Invaders Have Met Us and We Are Theirs. Capture Fair City of the Angels Without a Gun Fired or a Hand Lifted in Defense — Hundred Thousand Visitors Will Soon Be Here.

WEARERS of the red fez, the welcome invaders for whom Los Angeles has been preparing for weeks, dotted the streets of the city with their bright oriental colors yesterday. Twelve hundred Shriners, the advance guard of the mighty body of 8000 Nobles and 90,000 other visitors who will soon be here, arrived on ten special trains.

Los Angeles capitulated without firing a musket or lifting a hand. Instead, all citizens were willing to turn everything over to the happy army of peaceful conquest. Bands played lively tunes of greeting, the city was bedecked in its gayest colors, and into each Shriner's hand was placed,

Establishes Capital in Juarez.

Mexican Insurrectos Install Provisional Leader in Office.

Orozco's Suggestion of Chihuahua as a Base Remains to Be Heeded.

[BY DIRECT WIRE TO THE TIMES.]

EL PASO (Tex.) May 4.—[Exclusive Dispatch.] Emilio Vasquez Gomez has been proclaimed provisional President of Mexico by the rebel army. He assumed the duties of the office at noon today, and established himself in the Juarez customhouse, where, a year ago—May 10, 1911—Francisco I. Madero, present President of Mexico, set up his provisional capital, and from which he conducted the negotiations that led to the resignation of Gen. Porfirio Diaz as President of Mexico.

Gomez arrived silently and mysteriously from San Antonio, Friday evening, and after detention in the El Paso police station, for a time, he spent the night in a cheap roominghouse and slipped over to Juarez shortly before noon today. He was met at the bridge by a delegation of rebel officials and escorted to the customhouse, where it was given out that he was to be held a prisoner pending the receipt of information from Gen. Orozco. Shortly after noon, however, it was announced that Gomez had become the provisional President of Mexico and telegrams were exhibited from Gen. Orozco confirming the appointment. Then announcement was made that Gomez had come from San Antonio, in response to an invitation tendered him by Orozco on April 24, to establish his capital in Chihuahua State.

CABINET APPOINTMENTS.

Gomez at once announced the appointment of Col. Pascual Orozco, father of the rebel generalissimo, as acting Minister of War; Moreno Canton of Yucatan was named Minister of Foreign Affairs, after Francisco Pradillo of Juarez had refused the post.

Whether he will retain the provisional capital in Juarez, or remove it to Chihuahua, he is not certain, he said, although Gen. Orozco has invited him to come to Chihuahua and establish his capital there.

The establishing of the provisional capital in Juarez makes the fourth time that a Mexican President, or provisional President, has had his headquarters there. Benito Juarez made it his capital while rallying his army to repulse Maximilian; Porfirio Diaz made it his capital for two days in September, 1909; Francisco I. Madero, as provisional President of Mexico, established his capital there on May 10, 1911, and Emilio Vasquez Gomez established himself there as provisional President on May 4, 1912.

public at this time. He said they had been sent to the Judiciary Committee of the House for such information as it might desire to extract. It will rest with the House committee whether or not impeachment proceedings shall be begun.

The charges were made last February. The Department of Justice has made an inquiry, sending a representative to Pennsylvania, where the deals were supposed to have been made. Judge Archbald has not yet been heard in the matter, but probably will be called early to offer his explanations. Judge Archbald is from Pennsylvania, and was appointed to the Commerce Court by President Taft January 31, 1911. He is a Circuit judge and his tenure on the Commerce Court will be four years, after which he returns to the Third Circuit.

Lawlessness.

NEWSBOYS AND CITIZENS SLUGGED ON STREETS.

Chicago Strikers Beat Purchasers of Newspapers; Defy Injunctions.

Police Break Up Many Battles, but Violence Continues and Union Ruffians Attack Children and Intimidate Girls and Women Newsdealers — All Daily Papers Fighting and Getting Out Small Editions.

[BY DIRECT WIRE TO THE TIMES.]

CHICAGO, May 4.—[Exclusive Dispatch.] While injunctional orders were issued to prevent violence and interference with circulation of morning and afternoon newspapers, battles continued between newsboys and citizens, who were attempting to purchase papers from them, and professional sluggers.

The first injunction, to restrain members of the News Delivery and Mail Drivers' Union, Local No. 706, was issued shortly after midnight Thursday by Judge Richard E. Burke of the Superior Court. The injunction was asked for by the Tribune company in the name of all the daily newspapers.

The second injunction, issued early this afternoon, was asked by Attorney John S. Symes, representing the Daily News, and was directed specifically to the pressmen, stereotypers and similar unions, to enjoin them from interfering with the printing of the daily papers.

Despite the injunctions there was little cessation in the violence that had previously marked the strike against the members of the Publishers' Association. Incipient riots started at several loop corners, but all were promptly quelled by the police before any very serious results happened.

SLUGGERS ARRESTED.

Two arrests were made at the corner of South Fifth avenue and West Madison street, when several professional sluggers attempted to attack and beat a newsboy at that corner. The men arrested, who gave the names of Martin Silver and Emil Creddin, were taken into custody by the police just as they were about to kick Edward Cleary, a newsboy, whom they had struck to the ground.

Several bystanders suffered minor injuries in the excitement and scuffle that ensued, but no serious injuries were reported nor were any more arrests made at that time.

Peter Bartzen, Jr., son of Peter Bartzen, president of the County Board, was arrested after he had stubbornly refused to obey an order by a policeman to keep moving.

Having been warned that there was likely to be serious trouble at the corner of West Madison street and West Fifth avenue, Capt. Lavin has detailed nearly a hundred policemen permanently to that corner, and has also issued orders that two patrol wagons take up a permanent stand there.

Every corner in the loop district resembled a military post in a state of active siege. Police officers with drawn clubs were on every hand to keep crowds moving and to protect citizens who wished to buy newspapers.

PURCHASERS BEATEN UP.

"If we saw this on the vaudeville stage," said one man during the afternoon, "it would be funny. As soon as a man reaches to his pocket for a penny a policeman steps to his side to see that he is not molested while making his purchase. I saw one man protected by three policemen with drawn clubs while he spent a cent. But it isn't funny at all. I also saw one man who bought a paper slugged after he had left the corner and got into the middle of the block. Two men stood just ahead of me and jumped on him, hit him in the face and ran before the police could arrive to protect him."

Delivery wagons driving into the Daily News alley for their load of papers each had from two to four policemen on the seat with the driver or sitting in the wagon. The same prevails at the Hearst building and other distributing centers. Upon each delivery wagon is the injunction issued by Judge Burke.

Attempts were made during the day to intimidate women newspaper agents, who have stands in the stations of the elevated railroads. The police were called to several of the stations, but no arrests were made, the ruffians who had caused the trouble and attempted to frighten newsdealers having escaped. Mrs. Theresa Gonzales, newsdealer at the Fullerton-avenue of the Northwestern Elevated Railroad station, was threatened and the papers were pulled from her stand and thrown into the streets. No arrests were made.

ATTACK ON POLICE.

The most serious riot of the strike developed at 2 p.m., today, when three newsboys, sluggers, who attempted to maltreat a negro newsboy, who was selling papers at the corner of West Madison street and Fifth avenue, were seized by Lieut. Larkin and four policemen before they could wrest newspapers from him. One powerful slugger was seized by the lieutenant and Policeman Olson of the Central detail. He immediately struck the lieutenant in the face.

While the lieutenant and the slugger were rolling about in the street the latter tore himself loose and fled, bleeding and bruised, into an alley. His companions were captured.

While the policemen were fighting with the sluggers, a crowd closed in upon the bluecoats and unintentionally hindered the police. Several Italian newsboys were in this group and seeking to add bravado to the sluggers' deeds, shoved two other negro newsboys, who were selling papers. Policemen, however, soon put a damper on their ardor. Two of the Italians were promptly seized and placed in the patrol wagon. The negro boys then resumed the sale of their papers.

"It was a cowardly assault on the part of these men," said Lieut. Larkin. "I guess these sluggers and ruffians will realize that the police can easily handle them. If they keep on they will all land in jail. We'll protect every corner and the public."

VICTIMS TAKEN TO HOSPITALS.

Only a small proportion of the actual number of assaults made on newsboys were reported to the police. In almost every case where a boy attempted to sell copies of the afternoon editions he was set upon by a gang of thugs, who, not content with tearing his papers up, knocked him down and kicked him until he was rescued by the police. In several cases the boys were taken to hospitals in a serious condition.

Seven strikers caught one boy who was selling papers, carried him to the Madison-street bridge and were about to throw him into the river when a platoon of police arrived and saved the boy's life. Several arrests were made.

Henry Hessner, who has a stand at Madison street and Wabash avenue, was attacked by nine sluggers. One struck him on the head, knocking him senseless. Then the other eight kicked him as he lay helpless on the ground. Nearly every member of the dpartment is being held in reserve and Chief McSweeney declares that he will maintain order at any cost. Uniformed officers are to be sent out with every wagon carrying papers to trains or distribution agencies.

The police have received instructions to arrest every known thug found acting in a suspicious manner and the records of all prisoners will be looked up when they are taken to the stations, the police maintaining that the strikers have enlisted in their cause sluggers who are known to have prison rec[illegible]

High Tension.

IN SHADOW OF PERIL.

Crisis Impends In Flooded Area.

Hope Mingles With Despair in Region of the Lower Mississippi.

Tottering Levees Are Still Standing, but Real Danger Yet to Come.

Losing Heart at Prospect of Desolation, the Refugees Risk Their Lives.

[BY DIRECT WIRE TO THE TIMES.]

NEW ORLEANS, May 4.—[Exclusive Dispatch.] Hope mingled with despair throughout the Lower Mississippi Valley today and when nightfall found most of the weakened levees still standing there was a sigh of relief through Louisiana and Southern Mississippi. The temporary respite, however, gave small cause for real gladness as it is admitted that the real crisis is to come. Throughout the threatened region the day generally was sunshiny and this gave a distinct advantage to the wearied forces that tonight continued their desperate battle.

An unusual situation developed today and one which caused no little surprise until the reason was understood. The army engineers and State officials for almost the first time in the history of the river, actually welcomed alarming but false rumors of crevasses.

This attitude is due to the great difficulty in getting the people to leave threatened districts. Although warnings were sent out early yesterday at numerous places, especially in the vicinity of Mellville, many of the people refused to leave their homes, insisting that they stood to lose their all in case the dikes broke and that life no longer would be worth while. Throughout this area, force is being used, where persuasion fails, and the inhabitants are being compelled to seek higher ground and safety.

Sensational reports which flew thick and fast today did much to persuade the stubborn, although even now it is feared a sudden break at any one of a dozen points could but result in life loss.

REFUGEES LOSING SPIRIT.

The great numbers of refugees present a constantly increasing source of perplexity to the flood fighters. They insist upon crowding the levees, frequently exposing themselves to imminent danger of certain death by drowning. With them are great numbers of cattle and other livestock, and in sections the embankment presents pictures of veritable bedlam, with hysterical women and half crazed men impeding the work as strength-ening the earth walls. At one point alone, between Torras and Batchelor, it was estimated tonight that there are 1000 refugees and 10,000 head of cattle.

From nearly every section of the lower valley frantic appeals for boats are being sent out. Craft of every sort are pressed into service, but still there are thousands known to be marooned and beyond hope of immediate relief. West of Batchelor, in the settlement recently invaded by waters from the Torras break, a number of small craft were dispatched late today as a result of word brought by a farmer, who paddled in a canoe, that 500 men, women and children were huddled in the top of trees, in second floors of barns, and not a few upon hastily improvised rafts, almost all without food, to speak of no extra clothing.

He also stated that there was much suffering as a result of the hard rains for the past few days. In places effluvia of decaying animal carcasses is unbearable.

Another problem causing great concern is the attitude of many of the negroes. Wherever free government rations are available, the blacks, who mostly have little property to lose anyhow, are sitting down in comparative happiness and it is a matter of great difficulty to get them to work.

In marked contrast, however, are the efforts of the better classes of white citizens.

Wealthy planters and professional and business men are working at times up to their knees in mud, filling sacks, carrying timber and stopping only when exhaustion compels a halt. At some of the more threatened points, notably Baton Rouge and Morganza, workers of all classes have been on practically continuous duty for twenty-four hours.

WOMEN DISPLAY HEROISM.

At nearly every threatened town, business is at a standstill. New Roads, Melville and such places have not a handful of men in all their stores and offices put together. At such places the women have been playing a part of silent heroism and that has not been without its effect. Rich and poor alike, they have not hesitated to prepare food for the workers, regardless of the latter's social standing, and they have mitigated in every way possible the hardships of the toilers.

In the flooded sections, particularly the great "sugar bowl" area of southern Louisiana, the gravity of conditions is increasing steadily. Although the Torras break is now 1000 feet wide, the waters are not spreading over the basin that extends from Torras to the Gulf as rapidly as was expected, and plantations in the southern part of the menaced section still are dry. This has given opportunity to save most of the live stock in that region, although to the northward, particularly in Pointe Coupe Parish, the live stock losses alone will reach a startling figure. Even without more breaks, the sugar men have little hope, as they realize that, no matter how slowly the waters travel, the ultimate result to their chief crop will be destruction.

WATER ROARS THROUGH WIDENING CREVASSE.

[BY A. P. NIGHT WIRE TO THE TIMES.]

NEW ORLEANS, May 4.—Flood conditions in the lower Mississippi Valley continue today to grow worse. No one, not even those who have dealt with similar problems, will forecast the outcome of the passing of the greatest volume of water ever recorded in the stream. At New Orleans today the former record was broken by almost a foot.

The water at Torras, La., is pouring through a levee crevasse with an ever-widening gap, and another breach is threatened there. Reports from the inundated section north of New Roads are of a gloomy character. The flood water is traveling at a rapid rate towards the Atchafalaya River and is nearing the main line of the Texas and Pacific Railroad.

A telephone message from Lettsworth early today said the town was deep under water and hundreds of persons in the surrounding country are marooned in their homes, in cotton gin houses and on house tops.

Motor boats have been sent to Lettsworth for rescue work.

A special expedition arrived at Batchelor, ten miles south of Torras, last night with a large number of victims, who were on the the verge of starvation. Most of them were negro women and children.

Conditions at Baton Rouge are hourly growing more menacing. A force of 1000 men worked all night, aided by searchlights on steamboats, trying to prevent a break directly in front of that city.

Another large force was engaged in closing up the gaps in the protection embankment just south of Baton Rouge, where it is hoped to prevent the waters from finding their way to the rich lands in th Ponichartrain district in the event the effort to save the main levee is lost. Baton Rouge is built on a bluff and a crevasse there would not do serious damage except to the wholesale section.

Bayou Sara, where a break occurred yesterday, is today under water ten to twenty-five feet deep.

REPORTED BREAK IN DES GLAIZE LEVEE.

[BY A. P. NIGHT WIRE TO THE TIMES.]

MELVILLE (La.) May 4.—The ten-mile levee on the Bayou Des Glaize, in Ovoilles parish, broke this afternoon and water flooded Bordelonville, according to an unconfirmed report received at the office of the district levee board. The Texas and Pacific took another trainload of persons north, most of them from the endangered country south of here.

ACUTE SUFFERING IN LOUISIANA DISTRICT.

[BY A. P. NIGHT WIRE TO THE TIMES.]

VICKSBURG (Miss.) May 4.—There has been much suffering among the flood refugees of the Black River district in Louisiana. Reports say that of the hundreds of persons who have gone to the concentration camps at Harrisonburg, many were at the point of starvation and were almost naked.

Up to this time there has been comparatively little disorder in the construction camps, but last night there was a row in a white refugee camp here. Four white men got into a dispute with a passing negro, and he shot all four. Probably they will survive.

ARMY RELIEF FUND HAS BEEN EXHAUSTED.

[BY A. P. NIGHT WIRE TO THE TIMES.]

WASHINGTON, May 4.—The army has reached its limit in the distribution of relief to the Mississippi River flood sufferers, the entire appropriation for the Commissary Department having been used. Maj. Normoyle, in charge of the relief work, was instructed by the government to contract for no more supplies, as to do so would make him subject to prosecution under the law. Congress has been asked for an appropriation to reimburse the Commissary Department, and it is expected the present order of the War Department will have the effect of immediate action.

Conditions in the flooded regions of the lower Mississippi River are serious, according to reports today by Gen. Bixby, chief of engineers.

As a result of the Torras break, two parishes are certain to be flooded. The water was reported to be within two feet of the top of the levees in Plaquimine parish.

Gen. Bixby pointed out there was on redeeming feature about the situation, which was that it probably disposed of the dreaded June floods, as this year the Missouri flood came down earlier than usual. In Gen. Bixby's opinion there will be no June floods.

ASTOR LAID TO REST.

[BY A. P. NIGHT WIRE TO THE TIMES.]

NEW YORK, May 4.—Funeral services over the body of John Jacob Astor, victim of the Titanic disaster, were held today in the little Episcopal Church of the Messiah at Rhinecliff-on-the-Hudson. The Rev. Dr. Saunders, rector of the church, officiated, assisted by the Rev. Dr. W. T. Manning, rector of Trinity Church, New York. Mrs. Madeline Force-Astor, the young widow, relatives and friends of Col. Astor, residents of Rhinecliff and employees of Col. Astor at Rhinecliff and Newport also attended.

Mrs. Ava Willing Astor, Astor's first wife, did not go to Rhinecliff, but her young daughter, Muriel, arrived at Ferncliff, the Astor home, yesterday.

After the services the body of Col. Astor was brought here, where burial took place in Trinity Cemetery on Washington Heights. Mrs. Madeline Astor went to the grave with the other mourners.

Beatty, the seasoned aviator, tore through a tree, smashed two fences and landed in a small creek near Mariners' Harbor, Staten Island.

Both aviators were hurled out and bruised, but neither was injured seriously by their 400-foot plunge and violent stop.

GUGGENHEIM'S WILL.

Last Testament of a Victim of the Titanic Disaster Filed for Probate in New York.

[BY A. P. NIGHT WIRE TO THE TIMES.]

NEW YORK, May 4.—The will of Benjamin Guggenheim, who perished in the Titanic disaster, was filed today in the Surrogate's Court. The amount of property is not stated except as being more than $10,000. After disposing of more than $10,000 to various charities the will disposes of the residue—one-third to his widow, Mrs. Florence Guggenheim, and the other two-thirds equally divided among his children.

His widow and two brothers, Simon and William, are named as executors. The will was executed December 5, 1905.

BEST BY TEST.

The daily paper is the "market place of the world." Whether you be a merchant prince with a thousand clerks at your beck and call, or an humble backlotter with a sitting of eggs to sell, the newspaper is the market place to which you must come to cry your wares if you would dispose of them.

All persons are buyers or sellers either of some commodity or of their services, and as the newspaper is a part of the daily life of practically every man and woman, it follows that its columns afford the quickest and surest means of obtaining intelligent public consideration of any proposition.

Mere distribution of a newspaper, however, does not obtain for advertisers the desired results. It is the quality of circulation and the responsiveness of a paper's readers that make it valuable as a publicity agency.

That The Times has a "productive circulation," due to the fact that it is read more extensively and kept longer in the home than any other local newspaper, and that the use of its advertising space is the most direct and profitable way of reaching all the people all the time, is demonstrated by the extraordinary preference for it as a publicity medium by local business men and experienced advertisers. Year after year The Times publishes more advertising than any other newspaper in the world, and twice as many legitimate "Want Ads" as its nearest local contemporary.

If you have any doubts of the purchasing power of The Times circulation—of its influence with the buying classes in this splendid field—weigh the following figures:

WOMEN MARCH IN FLUTTER OF SUFFRAGE PENNANTS.

Fifteen Thousand of Them Keep Step in Uniformed Parade Along Manhattan's Arteries—Takes Column Two Hours to Pass Given Point—Leaders from All States and from Abroad Participate.

[BY DIRECT WIRE TO THE TIMES.]

NEW YORK, May 4.—[Exclusive Dispatch.] In a harlequin uniformed parade which unfolded its be-ribboned length along Fifth Avenue under a lilac-colored sky mottled with clouds as soft as white mull, woman suffrage marched today in the most significant demonstration ever attempted by it in this country. In numbers it approached, but probably did not surpass, an estimate of 15,000 made by its organizers. It took two hours to pass a given point.

It started on time and arrived in fair time, and kept much better step over its course from Washington Square to Fifty-seventh street and Seventh avenue than even the most sanguine of the skirted marshals expected.

Woman came forth today, true to her word when she promised to walk, in a flutter of determination. Yet she couldn't resist ignoring one of the final injunctions of Mrs. Harriet Stanton Blatch, "uniformity of dress was the dream of artists for us."

So the "artist's dream" of the enfranchised woman was not realized except perhaps in the use of yellow. It was tucked and tied into bonnets and costumes, but it didn't have enough uniformity of white back of it to make the planned color scheme convincing. There were those in the parade who had come all the way from the furthest boundaries of the nation to report on the dot and step forth when the marshals blew lustily on their little silver whistles. From California to Maine, and from Wisconsin to Louisiana, came standard-bearers of the cause to assemble under the six-starred flag of suffragism. Also from lands across the seas came allen but allied workers to make today's affair international in its scope.

So the surprised ones were the tens of thousands who occupied every vantage place on either side of Fifth avenue and gazed almost incredulously as the colorful phalanxes tripped past to patriotic tunes and ragtime marches, each soldieress obeying orders—"keep head erect, shoulders back, eyes to the front and no talking."

At 4:57 p.m. the side-saddle cavalry swung into place at the head of the parade. This cavalry was attired in black costumes with natty black straw helmets bearing green cockades, and it rode in admirable formation.

The California marchers, who had as their emblem a grizzly bear on a white background, were led by Mrs. Mary Gamage, the first woman who cast a vote after equal suffrage was granted in that State.

The inspiring demonstration was extended northward and continued until shortly before 7 p.m., when the rear guard of the marchers saluted at dusk under the shadows of Carnegie Hall. Then gleamed forth the yellow lanterns of the woman suffrage party whose members had been in favor of a night parade. Under their glow the regiments of women about-faced and marched back for a short distance of the course, speakers falling out of the ranks at block intervals to jump lightly on top of hand-carried stands from which they shouted the propaganda of "Votes for Women."

CALL GOMEZ.

Engineer Francisco R. Pradillo, a person of our absolute confidence, who comes to you with full and complete powers to invite you to take charge of the provisional Presidency of the republic, understanding that I make the offering as the chief of the revolution.

"I hope that you comprehend the powerful reason existing for the immediate declaration of our political leader, and, therefore, wish you to come to Juarez to have that position which you will have without any objection. Kindly come with Engineer Pradillo, special ambassador to you, who will bring you safe and sound to the national territory.

"Desiring to have the pleasure to see you very soon among us, I am sincerely your friend and wishing you all kinds of happiness.

A PROCLAMATION BY VASQUEZ GOMEZ.

[BY A. P. NIGHT WIRE TO THE TIMES.]

EL PASO (Tex.) May 4.—Emilio Vasquez Gomez, a Mexican lawyer, was ordered provisional President of Mexico today by proclamation of Pascual Orozco, now at the front with the rebel troops threatening the Federal base at Torreon. Juarez is now the provisional capital, but this probably will be shifted to Chihuahua.

Administration of the affairs of the States of Northern Mexico by Gen. Orozco and by Gonsalo Enrile, the rebel civil and special factotum in Chihuahua, will continue as usual, it is understood.

The inauguration of Gomez was accomplished with secrecy. It was determined upon, it is said, chiefly for the effect it might have upon the United States.

The rebels hope they now may succeed in having their belligerency recognized.

When Washington, a year ago, recognized Francisco I. Madero, the latter was in actual control of little else save the town of Juarez; Diaz held the rest of Mexico. At present the rebels control the States of Chihuahua, Sonora, Durango, most of Coahuila, and certain contingent territory. Their troops, outnumbering the Federals, have taken the offensive, and are moving south over the Chihuahua-Coahila border.

Of these accomplishments Emilio Vasquez Gomez was installed as concrete evidence. There was considerable opposition to him chiefly on account of his declination actively to enter the lists against Madero, but when he admitted recently he was willing to come out in the open, there was little difficulty in reconciling the opposition.

Senor Gomez accepted the provisional Presidency at the Juarez custom house at noon, just a year, lacking six days, after Francisco I. Madero went through a similar informal procedure on the same spot.

The Madero government agents detected Gomez's arrival last night and the Mexican Consul, Senor Llorente, protested to the local police and to L. E. Ross, chief of the secret agents of the Department of Justice here, that he should be arrested on the ground that he was aiding and abetting, on United States soil, revolt against a friendly power.

Gomez went to the police station last night, but it was found that no evidence existed against him. Mr. Ross declared that he had no authority to make an arrest. Thereupon Gomez repaired to an obscure hotel.

That he was not quite certain of the attitude of the United States authorities was shown today in the method which he used in getting into Juarez. He proceeded to the Rio Grande bridge, a mile west of the city proper. An automobile was waiting and he drove rapidly back to Juarez.

"I came to Juarez to assume the provisional Presidency of the United States of Mexico, with the object of establishing peace throughout the country, through the success of the revolution. In the capacity of provisional President of the republic, I wish to send a warm and sincere salutation to the whole world and I will act entirely in the best of my judgment and independently and wish to show my good will toward the Mexican people.

"I will at once take up my duties and for the present Juarez will be my headquarters and the provisional capital of Mexico. Later, I will go possibly to Chihuahua or, anyway, await developments, as we have not had time to formulate any plans for the future.

"At present, I am studying the men suitable as members of my cabinet, which will be appointed in a day or two, as soon as the men can be chosen. As none of the cabinet can be made known to the public, I will not have a provisional Vice-President."

OROZCO SAYS NAME USED WITHOUT RIGHT.

[BY A. P. NIGHT WIRE TO THE TIMES.]

JUAREZ (Mex.) May 4.—Copies of "El Monitor," a morning paper of Chihuahua, received here tonight, contain a statement from Pascual Orozco, the rebel commander-in-chief, stating that his name was being used without authorization in a plan to establish a provisional government. The name of Emilio Vasquez Gomez, who was named provisional President here today on the ostensible authority of telegrams signed "Pascual Orozco," was not mentioned in the story, but the generalissimo was quoted as stating that he had not authorized the establishment of a provisional government.

The matter in "El Monitor" was prepared yesterday. This paper has been opposed to Gomez.

The proclamation of Gomez as provisional President has every appearance of a coup d'etat. In the opinion of business men, it was decided upon as a last chance to revive waning support of Gomez.

There is no disposition to doubt the authenticity of the article in the Chihuahua newspaper, as it would scarcely dare to print a story of the kind without official inspiration.

In an interview tonight, Gomez, declared that his action was based upon an invitation from Orozco, but there are many who declare that the Vasquistas, without authorization made free use of the general's name for their own purposes.

AMERICAN SOLDIER SHOT ON THE BORDER.

[BY A. P. NIGHT WIRE TO THE TIMES.]

EL PASO (Tex.) May 4.—Col. E. Z. Steever, commanding the border guard, is investigating the shooting tonight of Private Baker, Co. C, Twenty-second Infantry.

Baker was brought to Ft. Bliss from his post, six miles down the river, with wounds in his right hand and right leg. He said he was fired upon from the Mexican side of the river.

The first shot, he said, missed him, but the next two inflicted his two wounds. He declared that he returned the fire, but did not know the result.

According to Col. Steever, Baker had been drinking, for which reason he received the story with reserve. The colonel tonight was not certain that Baker had told the truth, had been accidentally shot, or had shot himself. There were no witnesses.

GOES TO VIENNA.

DEPARTURE OF CRESPO.

[BY A. P. DAY WIRE TO THE TIMES.]

WASHINGTON, May 4.—Senor Martine y Crespo, the retiring Mexican Ambassador, sailed from New York today to resume his old position as Mexican Ambassador at Vienna. Before leaving Washington, Senor Crespo told officials he felt confident, from his own private advices as well as from the tenor of official communication, that the present rebellion in Mexico would be terminated probably within a month or certainly inside of two months. The people are tired of disorder and undoubtedly developing a strong feeling of patriotic pride in that country, he said, which leads them to desire its restoration to the high place it had formerly occupied among Latin-American nations.

Talks on Teeth

How to Be Better Looking

Ugly teeth will mar the most beautiful face.

Every one can have beautiful, natural looking teeth—teeth that will make attractive the plainest personality. Our ALVEOLAR METHOD OF DENTISTRY accomplishes this. It is not building up a row of false teeth upon a plate that is uncomfortable in the mouth, but it is the building into the jaw itself, with the aid of two or more natural teeth in each jaw, a new set of teeth as strong as the best natural ones, yet there is no boring or cutting or surgical operation in the whole process. It is practically painless.

OUR REX METHOD OF ALVEOLAR TEETH, AS PERFECTED BY DR. RANKINE, is the completed investigation of all that relates to scientific dentistry. When we began business some five years ago people doubted our ability to replace missing teeth, to make firm loose ones and sound decayed ones. We use no plates or ordinary bridge work, but a method of our own, which we control exclusively.

If you have had the misfortune to lose all of your teeth, we can supply you with plates that will be serviceable and comfortable.

Our Charges Are Reasonable.

We do not ask fancy prices for our work. Just a fair fee—a reasonable sum—just what anyone will gladly and willingly pay for high-grade work such as we invariably execute. Remember that you can always consult us free of charge regarding your teeth troubles, and there is no obligation incurred on your part in so doing.

DEAFNESS

Successfully Treated By the Simplest Method Yet Discovered.

Ninety-five per cent. of the cases of deafness brought to our attention are the result of chronic catarrh of the throat and middle ear. The air passages become clogged by catarrhal deposits, stopping the action of the vibratory bones. Until these deposits are removed relief is impossible. The inner ear can not be reached by probing or spraying; hence the inability of specialists to always effect a cure. Neither can ear drums cure deafness. But there is a scientific treatment for deafness and catarrh which is described every day by the use of Actina. The vapor generated in the Actina passes through the Eustachian tubes into the middle ear, removing the catarrhal obstructions, and loosens up the bones (hammer, anvil and stirrup) in the inner ear, making them responsive to the vibration of sound. Actina has also been very successful in relieving ringing noises in the head. We have known people afflicted with this distressing trouble for years to be entirely relieved by a few days' use. Actina has also been very successful in the treatment of hay fever, asthma, bronchitis, sore throat, weak lungs, colds, headache and other troubles that are directly or indirectly due to catarrh. Actina will be sent on trial, postpaid. Write us about your case. Our advice will be free, as well as a valuable book—Prof. Wilson's Treatise on Diseases. The work is guaranteed to look natural, feel natural, and for masticating purposes equal to Nature's own. Our Combination Plates used where one or more teeth remain in the mouth, are self-supporting and painless. Every facility for doing high-class dentistry is ours, and our prices are very reasonable. Each piece of work is guaranteed. Isn't that fair enough?

BOSTON MAID PLAYS PORTIA.

Practices Law in San Francisco Police Court.

Introduces the West to a New Philanthropy.

Her Aim to Help Women Accused of Crime.

[BY DIRECT WIRE TO THE TIMES.]

SAN FRANCISCO, May 4.—[Exclusive Dispatch.] Miss Dorothy Schunck, described as a young Bostonian of unusual attractiveness, is one of the first woman attorneys to practice law in the San Francisco Police Courts. This morning she appeared before Police Judge Shortall in her maiden case. Hereafter she will be seen frequently in the local courts in the Hall of Justice. At least she hopes so.

It is not to earn a livlihood that Miss Schunck has turned to the law here, but to lend aid to those of her sex who are in need. She believes that by representing in court young women accused of crime and seeing that they receive an impartial hearing, she will be pursuing humanitarian work that will prove well worth while.

Dressed in a tailormade gown and wearing a jaunty picture hat the woman attorney walked into the courtroom and announced that she was representing Ella Williams, a young woman accused of stealing clothing from a room mate. The case was continued until Monday.

Miss Schunck is a graduate of the Boston Union Law School, class of 1911, and is said to have forsaken fashionable society for her chosen field.

"In the East many young women who are admitted to practice law appear in the police courts to represent young women in trouble," said Miss Schunck. "They do not follow the work for financial gain, but consider it a benevolent work that will achieve great results. When I learned that no women were doing this here, I decided to emulate these eastern girls."

ROBBED AT HER HOTEL.

Decoyed From Her Room by Telephone Message, Prominent Englishwoman Loses Her Diamonds.

[BY A. P. NIGHT WIRE TO THE TIMES.]

SACRAMENTO, May 4.—Mrs. Charlotte L. Bolten, widow of a former member of the English Parliament, was robbed of $3000 worth of diamonds at a local hotel Thursday night, according to a report given out by the police today.

Mrs. Bolton was called on the telephone last Saturday night by a "Mrs. Williamson," who asked her to come down to the lobby of the hotel and receive some pictures. Mrs. Bolton could not leave her room then because of illness.

Last Wednesday Mrs. Bolton made her first appearances out of her room. She dined at the hotel in the evening. The next night a Mrs. Williamson called Mrs. Bolton on the telephone again and made the same request, saying it was imperative that she come down at once and get the photographs as she (Mrs. Williamson,) was about to depart for the East. Mrs. Bolton left her room and waited in the lobby for ten or fifteen minutes for "Mrs. Williamson," but the woman did not appear.

In the meantime her room was entered and looted.

MIMIC WAR IS ARRANGED.

Adjutant-General of California Issues Orders for National Guard to Take Part in Maneuvers.

[BY A. P. NIGHT WIRE TO THE TIMES.]

SACRAMENTO, May 4.—Orders were issued today by Adjt.-Gen. E. A. Forbes to the National Guard organizations to prepare for the annual maneuvers at San Francisco August 10 to 23, when the programme will be an attack on San Francisco from the land side. State infantrymen and United States army regulars will participate.

The maneuvers will be the most extensive ever attempted in California and if the present plans are not interrupted by real war maneuvers by an order to go into Mexico, 20,000 soldiers will take part in the game of mock war.

Last year the Bay City was attacked from the ocean, a fleet of war vessels endeavoring to get through the Golden Gate. The attack failed, the infantrymen of the guard and regular army "sinking" every ship.

Gen. Forbes has also issued orders for the California Naval Militia cruise. This cruise will be up the Coast to Portland, Or., in the Marblehead.

Against Mayor Mott, 2765; against Commissioner of Public Health and Safety Turner, 3791, and against Commissioner Baccus, 3624 petitions were filed. To call an election 3240 were necessary. HEARS SENATE WILL CONFIRM.

Gov. Sloane Likely to Land Federal Judgeship.

Opposition Based on Hatred of Political Fads.

But a Debate on the Appointment Is Sure.

[BY DIRECT WIRE TO THE TIMES.]

WASHINGTON, May 4.—[Exclusive Dispatch.] Despite vigorous protests in many quarters, it seems probable that the Senate will confirm former Gov. Sloane of Nevada, as United States judge for that district. Sloane has been accused of being a reactionary and he also has been charged with freeing a negro prisoner who had been convicted of assault on a woman. However, the sub-committee having the matter in charge reported to the Judiciary Committee in favor of confirming Sloane.

"I understand," said Senator Burton today, "that Gov. Sloane was also charged with being a member of a euchre club of which a man under indictment was also a member. The Governor and his wife discussed, I am told, whether or not they should attend a meeting of the club at which the accused man would be present and this matter has been brought before the committee."

It would seem manifest that this could hardly be considered the main reason why the appointment of Judge Sloane should not be confirmed. The chief reason, in the minds of many, as Senator Burton further pointed out, is that Sloane is said to be opposed to the initiative, referendum and recall. His State has declared for these, but Senator Burton pointed out that a Federal judge is not appointed to represent his State and his opinion on these questions would not weigh in his confirmation.

"The Senate," said Burton, today, "has not given much consideration to this appointment, but it is likely that it will do so early in the week when, I think, the appointment will be confirmed, although there is likely to be considerable debate over it."

Senator Borah says he does not consider Sloane's position in opposition to the recall of judges a good reason for rejecting him.

"I think that kind of recall would be a step backwards," said Borah.

GERMAN FLEET COMING.

PROGRAMME IS ANNOUNCED

[BY A. P. NIGHT WIRE TO THE TIMES.]

WASHINGTON, May 4.—The programme for the division of the German fleet, which is to visit the United States this summer to return the courtesy call made by the second division of the United States Atlantic fleet at Kiel last June, was announced today as follows:

The German division is scheduled to arrive May 30 at Cape Henry, Va., where it will stay until June 3.

On that date the visiting ships will proceed to Hampton Roads, remaining there until June 7. The squadron is due to reach New York June 9, and will anchor at that port until June 13.

WILL DEMAND FAIR PLAY.

UNCLE SAM WATCHES PANAMA.

[BY A. P. NIGHT WIRE TO THE TIMES.]

WASHINGTON, May 4.—The United States will see that there is a fair election in Panama this summer, as it did in 1908. Reports received here show that there has been plotting in a part of the republic near David, involving the loss of at least one life, and this disorder threatens to extend.

As both of the political parties appear to wish it, the State Department probably will call on the authorities of the canal zone to designate American officials to look after the registration of Panaman voters and, if necessary, to watch over elections.

UNBURDENS HIMSELF.

San Bernardino Octogenarian Weeps in Portland as He Relates the Story of His Brother's Doings.

[BY DIRECT WIRE TO THE TIMES.]

PORTLAND (Or.) May 4.—[Exclusive Dispatch.] Hector Gawley, 80 years old, of San Bernardino, Cal., relieved his conscience today before County Judge Cleeton of the secret he has carried twenty-five years to protect his half-brother, James E. Gawley, alias James E. McCauley, who is charged by his wife with deserting her in 1887.

"It was my duty," he said, "to tell all I know. I've carried this burden for twenty-five years and want to free my conscience before I die.

Gawley's words were uttered between spells of weeping as he sat on the witness chair. A recess had to be taken to allow him to recover.

Mrs. Mary Gawley came to Portland six weeks ago, having located her husband here, living with another woman.

In giving his testimony, Gawley said he knew the couple when they were married in 1873 in Detroit, Mich., knowing them to be a happy couple at that time. He related the sudden disappearance of Gawley from his wife, and later learned that he was in West Virginia, where he visited, and found him with another woman and vainly urged him to return to his wife.

"I did force him to send money to his wife," said Gawley. "I couldn't bring myself to expose him because he had committed bigamy in marrying the woman with whom I found him. I didn't want to see him sent to prison."

Finally James and his affinity came to Portland five years ago to escape the pursuing Mrs. Gawley. Recently the aged brother told Mrs. Gawley where her husband was and she at once came here and caused his arrest.

WEDDING FOLLOWS DIVORCE.

Portland Woman is Free but a Few Hours and Invites License Clerk to the Ceremony.

[BY DIRECT WIRE TO THE TIMES.]

PORTLAND (Or.) May 4.—[Exclusive Dispatch.] "Ring out the old love; ring in the new."

The trick was done in record time today by Mrs. Garnett G. Puzey, a comely matron of 25. Mrs. Puzey got a divorce by default from Lewis A. Puzey in Judge Kavanaugh's Court early this afternoon and before leaving the courthouse she obtained a license to marry Ralph C. McCoy. Mrs. Sadie Ireland, the witness who appeared for her in the divorce case, also was her witness before the marriage license clerk, swearing that there were no legal impediments to the marriage.

Mrs. Puzey invited Clerk Noonan to the wedding which was duly celebrated this evening.

McCoy, the bridegroom-elect, is also divorced, having obtained legal seperation from his former wife by a suit in Gilliam county, three months ago.

The six months restraint which the law was believed to impose upon divorced persons has been swept away by a recent decision of the Oregon Supreme Court, which has held that no time limit holds in case of divorces granted by default, after the non-appearance of the defendant.

SALT LAKE, May 4.—[By A. P. Day Wire.] On receipt of a message From the White Star line that her son, A. Hyter, one of the stewards on the Titanic, would be buried at Halifax, although she had asked that the body be sent here, Mrs. Lee Chamberlain telegraphed today that suit would be instituted if the body were not forwarded at once.

CLOUDBURST AND TORNADO.

[BY A. P. DAY WIRE TO THE TIMES.]

GREAT BEND (Kan.) May 4.—Although wire communication with some of the towns that were visited by tornadoes last night has not been restored, it is believed no one was killed or seriously injured. A cloudburst accompanied the storm at Albert, a hamlet of a hundred persons near here and the town is under water and the inhabitants are using rafts.

HAND CAR BLOWN OFF TRACK.

[BY A. P. DAY WIRE TO THE TIMES.]

HUTCHISON (Kan.) May 4.—A severe wind storm and cloudburst occurred last evening through the country between Great Bend and Dodge City. Reports from the storm-stricken district brought to Hutchinson by a Santa Fe train tonight tell of extensive damage at Larned. The Missouri Pacific depot and thirteen houses were destroyed. Several houses were demolished at Offerle. A Santa Fe hand-car manned by Mexican laborers was blown from the track near Kingsley and several of them badly injured. So far as can be learned here, nobody was killed.

SCORE INJURED.

[BY A. P. DAY WIRE TO THE TIMES.]

LARNED (Kan.) May 4.—A score of persons were injured, none seriously, and a dozen houses were destroyed by a tornado which passed east of here late yesterday.

POLICEMAN SHOOTS GIRL.

[BY A. P. DAY WIRE TO THE TIMES.]

INDIANAPOLIS, May 4.—In order to protect himself from a crowd of boys who stoned him, David O'Connor, a park policeman, fired his revolver today, the bullet striking Cora Griffiths, 8 years old. After the shooting a crowd of angry residents joined the boys and the life of the officer was being threatened when he was rescued by an emergency squad. O'Connor says he fired into the air, but the girl who was injured was playing in front of her home.

PRAISE FOR PLAYGROUND.

[BY A. P. DAY WIRE TO THE TIMES.]

CHICAGO, May 4.—The public playgrounds in the opinion of Miss Jane Addams, is the greatest agency so far brought forth for the improvement of the city boy. "One of the most notable results of the public playgrounds has been the decided decrease in the number of defendants brought before the juvenile courts," said Miss Addams, before the members of the Oak Park Parents' and Teachers' Association last night. "Boys now spend their leisure time in healthful exercise at the playgrounds, instead of getting into mischief in the streets as was the custom heretofore. Play has developed him into a more skillful and honorable youth than the boy brought up in the streets. Playgrounds have proved a great success and their success is invaluable for the good of the boy."

LOSES OLDEST CUFF LINKS.

[BY A. P. DAY WIRE TO THE TIMES.]

CHICAGO, May 4.—A pair of link cuff buttons, 511 years old and for seventeen generations handed down from father to son, were lost here last night by their owner, Charles J. Hill, a hotel detective. The buttons were made in the hills of Scotland by one of the first of the Hill family. They were brought to the United States before the Revolutionary War. At the time the links were made the manufacturer wrote on a piece of parchment that they should descend to the youngest son of his descendants. On this parchment, now so old that it can not be deciphered, was recorded the history of the buttons. Mr. Hill attended a nickel show and told the police he believed that he had accidentally pulled the buttons from his pocket with his purse. He came to Chicago from Kentucky.

Labor.

FRE'GHT MEN GO ON STRIKE.

Eight Thousand of Them Are Out in Chicago.

An Effort to Tie Up the City's Food Supply.

Police Working Overtime in Western Metropolis.

[BY DIRECT WIRE TO THE TIMES.]

CHICAGO, May 4.—[Exclusive Dispatch.] Without giving the public a moment's notice 8000 union freight handlers struck at noon today in an effort to tie up the city's food supply and force the railroads to grant their demands.

The vote was taken at a stormy meeting, which lasted practically all the night. The strike order was not promulgated until noon, pending a final demand by the union leaders upon the General Managers' Association. As Saturday afternoon is a sort of general holiday, and thousands of railroad employees are through with their work at noon, the strike was timed for the noon hour, and was thereby made more impressive, as the public was led to believe that the army of employees pouring out of the railway offices were all joining the strike.

The freight handlers are demanding half a day off on Saturdays with full pay, double time for working on Sundays and holidays, time and a half for all overtime and a minimum of 25 cents an hour, with the maximum as high as the managers will stand.

Men close to the situation say the freight handlers, when they made their original demand, really did not expect the managers to grant them any concession. They were greatly surprised, it is said, when they were offered half their demands, and immediately decided to press for everything in the original demands.

With the newspapers crippled by their strike and the police busy with that and the tugmen's strike, the time seemed most opportune to put the freight-handlers' strike into effect.

Unless it is speedily adjusted the strike will seriously handicap traffic in and out of the city. Food supplies are not abundant, and the roads are just beginning to get into shape after the unusually hard winter. The strike will thus throw everything into confusion again. The managers say they cannot grant the demands, and must fight the strike to a finish. The city has promised all the police protection necessary, but the entire force will be taxed to the utmost with three big strikes in progress.

It is probable that an attempt will be made Monday morning to force the teamsters to refuse to deliver freight of any kind to the railroad freight houses.

The strike, it was declared by union-labor leaders, will not be legalized, as the men struck without submitting the matter to the International Executive Board.

CHALLENGED BY TANNER.

Los Angeles Man Wants to Debate Fast Cure Treatment with British Vice-Consul in Tacoma.

[BY DIRECT WIRE TO THE TIMES.]

TACOMA (Wash.) May 4.—[Exclusive Dispatch. British Vice-Consult Lucian Agassiz has been challenged to joint debate on fast cure treatment by Dr. Henry Samuel Tanner of Los Angeles, said to be the founder of fasting therapeutics. The challenge is the result of the conviction of Dr. Lynda Burfield Hazzard for causing the death of Claire Williamson, an English heiress, while under starvation treatment at her Olala sanatorium. Dr. Tanner is staying at the residence of Mrs. Boyer on South Yakima avenue, Mrs. Boyer being the widow of the physician who attended Dr. Tanner during his forty-two-days' fast in Minneapolis. Consul Agassiz says he and Dorothea Williamson both believe in the benefits of fasing, but not as practiced by Dr. Hazzard on her patients. He has invited Dr. Tanner to dinner, during which they will determine if there be any vital differences in their belief.

CONVICTED OF SWINDLING.

Oil Promoter Found Guilty on Charge of Trading Valueless Stock for California Land.

[BY DIRECT WIRE TO THE TIMES.]

PORTLAND (Or.) May 4.—[Exclusive Dispatch.] Guilty of swindling an aged woman out of $47,000 worth of real estate in a Kern county, California oil company stock deal, is the verdict of the jury in the case against W. H. Whitaker, just completed.

Whitaker was indicted jointly with L. C. Hammer, J. C. Luker, H. C. Luker and C. F. A. Prek for securing the name of Emma A. Smith to a deed for a farm on the base line road in exchange for alleged worthless stock in the Lake Oil, Gas and Pipe Line Company, an alleged nebulous concern which the defendants were promoting. The stock was issued on the strength of location notices filed by Whitaker on land in the oil belt in California. The requisite amount of work to hold the filings was never done and the land was jumped. In the meantime, a prospectus, giving in glowing terms the supposed possibilities of the oil land, was issued and it was on the strength of this that Mrs. Smith was induced to part with her property. Whitaker's associates are still under indictment, but have demanded separate trials and have not as yet been brought before a jury.

GOES HOME; ENDS LIFE.

SAN JOSE, May 4.—[By A. P. Day Wire.] Charles Jacobus, a native of this city, aged 21, returned at 12 o'clock last night from San Francisco, where he went yesterday morning to re-enlist in the navy, and upon reaching his home on Colfax street he passed through to the back yard and shot himself with a pistol, dying instantly. He leaves his mother, two brothers and three sisters. No motive for the act is known.

Clergyman's Son Had Tuberculosis—Now Well

Consumption is a flattering disease and the sufferer is filled with bright hopes of improvement. Call it by its own dread name—and then—take Eckman's Alterative, because it is effective in Tuberculosis. No one need doubt it—there is plenty of evidence from live witness. "Gentlemen: Prior to February, 1903, I was suffering with La Grippe, which developed into Tuberculosis. My physician gave me one month to live. My father, who is a clergyman, heard of Eckman's Alterative and induced me to take it. The night sweats and chills disappeared, my cough became easier and gradually diminished. I am now in perfect health, back to 155 lbs. I feel certain that I owe my life to Eckman's Alterative."

(Signed) E. H. COWLES.

"Gentlemen: I cannot find words to express my appreciation of what your remedy has done for my son."

DONS ITS DRESS AS IF BY MAGIC

ANGEL CITY FAIR AS A FAIRY IN SHIMMERING COLOR.

In Transcendent Glow and Shriners Countermarch in Streets as Wonderful Decorations Blaze Forth Though in Paradise — Tens of Thousands Make Merry.

A slender nymph, holding in her hand the magic wand of "radiance and beauty," waved it over Los Angeles at 8 o'clock last night and transformed the city into the capital of "Fairyland."

Lights glowed and twinkled from thousands of Japanese lanterns swung in rows across all of the principal streets in the downtown district. Thousands of other lights beamed from street lamps, store windows and buildings.

The beautiful street decorations of brilliantly-dyed pampas grass, shrine symbols and pennons, flags and bunting, added to the general beauty of the tone and color of the decorative scheme.

Broadway and Spring street were turned into "lanes of wondering eyes." The sidewalks were crowded by masses of people whose admiration was made manifest by outbursts of approval. Here and there the crowds were splashed with color by the uniforms of the visiting Shriners. There were hundreds of Shriners, who, coming from cold, raw spots in the East, seized upon the opportunity to don natty, white, full-dress uniforms.

Forty thousand dollars has been spent on the street decorations of Los Angeles, and the fact that the money was well expended and that every dollar was used to beautify the natural beauties of the city, was attested as soon as the Japanese lanterns began to twinkle and glow.

The visiting Shriners were delighted with the holiday dress that Los Angeles had donned in their honor. Imperial Deputy Potentate Cunningham of Baltimore declared that the decorations were more than beautiful, that they were truly magnificent.

"Los Angeles is one of the fairest cities in the world and in this gala attire she looks like the capital of a reigning fairy queen," said Cunningham as he stood in front of the Alexandria and viewed the scene.

"Los Angeles is one of the fairest cities in the world and in this gala attire she looks like the capital of a reigning fairy queen," said Cunningham as he stood in front of the Alexandria and viewed the scene.

Others of the Shriners were equally delighted, but perhaps the most pleased were the women who have accompanied the delegations to Southern California.

"I have always heard Southern California referred to as the 'Garden Spot of the World,' and now I know that phrase is not too extravagant," exclaimed one woman.

It is estimated that at least 70,000 persons visited the downtown section to see the first street illumination of the Shrine festival. Bands were playing at many places and the city took on the air of a national holiday. The streets were filled with Shriners, their wives and sweethearts, and automobile loads of the visitors drove up and down the thoroughfares waving banners and cheering.

Shrine bands serenaded at a number of points. Several visited The Times editorial offices on Broadway and played lively airs, while the Shriners cheered and in other ways expressed their appreciation for The Times' special Shriners' edition of yesterday and of the completeness of its Shrine news.

WELCOME SHRINERS.

metaphorically speaking, the golden key to the gates and everything within. This golden key unlocks the strong boxes and treasure vaults of hospitality, entertainment and merry-making. To paraphrase Caesar—"They came; they saw; they conquered."

With this advance guard came notables from all parts of North America.

Among others was William J. Cunningham, Imperial Deputy Potentate, Baltimore, who will be the next Imperial Potentate.

Deputy Cunningham and eighty-five other Boumi Temple Nobles arrived at La Grande station at 2:30 p.m., and were royally welcomed by Al Malaikah's Legion of Honor, Past Imperial Potentate Hines and scores of Shriners and former Maryland residents.

It is almost a certainty that Cunningham will be elected to the post of Supreme Ruler of the A.A.O.N.M.S. at the Imperial Council session Wednesday. He was warmly greeted by a host of old and new friends when he arrived at the Alexandria, Imperial Council headquarters.

BETTER LATE THAN—

Nearly every special train bearing Shriners was late in arriving in Los Angeles Abou Ben Adhem temple's special was due at 9 a.m., but pulled in the Salt Lake station late in the afternoon. Nearly all of the other trains were from two to six hours behind schedule time.

When the first delegation arrived, India Temple of Oklahoma City, the visitors were met at the Arcade depot by the Al Malaikah Legion of Honor in natty new uniforms of drab and a band of sixty pieces. With the Oklahoma party was a patrol of twenty-seven members in drab suits and bright green fezes. They were loudly cheered as they marched in military formation out of the depot. The India special brought seventy Nobles and a number of ladies.

Not only on the special trains are the visitors coming, but by every regular train they are pouring into the city and today there will be a flood of Shriners and tourists dropped into the Angel City by forty special and scores of regular trains.

The steamship Harvard will unload 700 members of Islam Temple, San Francisco, at San Pedro, this morning at 8 o'clock. Islam will have the biggest representation here. A number of Nobles of Aloha Temple, Honolulu and a number of natives to take part in the allegorical and floral parade are coming on the Harvard.

The Imperial Potentates' special in two sections, comprising six temples, is scheduled to arrive at 10:30 o'clock this morning over the Salt Lake route. The Imperial Potentate will be met at the depot by the Legion of Honor, several hundreds members of Al Malaikah Temple and two bands. He will be escorted to his headquarters at the Alexandria.

STILL THEY COME.

All of the thirteen officers of the Imperial Council will be here by 8 o'clock tonight. Eleven of the Imperial officers will arrive today.

As fast as the Shriners arrived yesterday they were taken to Shrine headquarters in the Pacific Eectric Building, where they registered. Over five thousand Shriners, including many members of Al Malaikah, had registered at 9 o'clock last night.

Nearly every one of the 139 temples are represented on the great register. The seventy representatives who arrived yesterday were escorted to the Alexandria and registered. All of the 416 Imperial Council representatives will be here by tomorrow night.

At the Alexandria there has been erected a clearing house at which information is furnished concerning Shriner affairs. It presented a busy scene all day.

Prominent among the Shrine arrivals yesterday was Elias J. Jacoby, Murat Temple, Indianapolis, Imperial Second Ceremonial Master and law partner of former Vice-President Fairbanks. Noble Jacoby is president of the Prudential Casualty Insurance Company and is one of the most noted attorneys in the country.

William B. Melish, Syrian Temple, Cincinnati, Past Imperial Potentate of the Shrine and present Grand Commander Knights Templar, arrived late in the afternoon and went to the Alexandria. He is a representative.

BRINGING FAMILIES.

Mecca Temple, New York City, is due this afternoon at 2.35 o'clock over the Salt Lake route with 300 Nobles and their families. More than 300 Nobles of Medinah Temple, Chicago, are coming this afternoon at 5 o'clock over the Salt Lake. With Medinah is a patrol and band of fifty pieces.

Four representatives from Oriental Temple, Troy, N. Y., and three representatives from Cypress Temple, Albany, arrived late in the afternoon on the Santa Fe. They were met by the Legion of Honor and escorted to the Alexandria.

With members of Tripoli Temple, Milwaukee and Orak Temple, Hammond, Ind., swarming all over the engine and firing a rusty cannon from the cowcatcher as a salute announcing their coming, the Nobles in the party arrived at the Santa Fe Depot late in the afternoon.

As the big special pulled in several hundred Al Malaikah Shriners gave a mighty cheer and then Moore's band struck up a popular melody. The Legion of Honor escorted the visitors to the Arthur and Balboa hotels.

Past Imperial Potentate Harrison Dingman, Almas Temple, Washington, D. C., arrived yesterday afternoon with sixty Nobles from the capital and was conducted to the Imperial headquarters. Noble Dingman is a representative and one of the big men in Shrinedom.

THE PRINCELY ENTERTAINERS.

Expressions of appreciation of the welcoming spirit of the Los Angeles Nobles are heard on every side. Ejaculations of admiration for the brilliant street decorations and preparations for the entertainment are heard everywhere.

Sixty members of Moila Temple, St. Joseph, Mo., are to arrive this afternoon at 2 o'clock over the Santa Fe. The Missouri Nobles are bringing three real desert-bred camels and a "houn' dawg." Arrangements have been made to keep the camels in the fire station on Hill street. No arrangements have been made for the dawg.

Today is intended as a day of rest and recreation for the visitors. At 10 o'clock this morning 400 automobiles will leave Sixth and Olive streets loaded with Shriners and their ladies on a sightseeing trip through the residence districts.

Special services will be held at Temple Baptist Church at Fifth and Olive streets tonight. Rev. J. Whitcomb Brougher, pastor, a member of Al Malaikah Temple will deliver a Shrine sermon.

Many.

WEALTH AND BEAUTY JOIN HANDS IN SAN JACINTO

You have seen valleys, and heard of valleys, but unless you have seen our beautiful San Jacinto Valley you can have but little conception what a real valley is like. It is more than a "level strip of land between hills," it is eighteen thousand acres level as a floor, surrounded by beautiful mountains, and every acre under cultivation, beautiful ranches and orchards of every kind, fine alfalfa farms, great potato fields, in fact most everything that will grow in any country can be grown here to better advantage.

All we want now is a few more good neighborly settlers to join us in an expansion that we are proud to be able to make and doubly proud to know that the highest priced acre offered in the valley at this time would still be a bargain at twice the price asked. Heretofore we have had population enough, because of the scarcity of water, but conditions have changed since the great water discovery made recently. We now have more water than we have land, and not quite as many settlers as either, so come right along and bring your friends. You can't beat it for climate, water, fertility, beauty, or a place to accumulate a snug little fortune quick.

We have people with us who have traveled all over the world, and lived in this State for years, and are in a position to judge of the true condition as compared with other localities—they are here to stay. Now is the time to get in right. All we ask is a look. Every one should see the best there is to be had in any line before they decide. It aids the judgment in making comparison—we know if you will become interested enough to make comparison that the jig is up. When this is done, it only remains for us to co-operate with you and you with us in making San Jacinto Valley the most desirable home place on earth. Come over and see us, it won't cost you a cent after you get here, as we have a committee appointed with mach' es to show everybody around absolutely free. These machines are at your service every day in the week.

Look for another notice in this paper tomorrow. Send postal for photographs and further particulars. San Jacinto Board of Trade, San Jacinto, Cal.

To Get Fair Play.

UNITED STATES MAY BE UMPIRE.

Government Asked to Supervise Panama Election.

Candidates Want Us to See It Is Run Fairly.

Reports of Rioting Cause a Sensation in Country.

[BY A. P. DAY WIRE TO THE TIMES.]

PANAMA, May 4.—The United States government has been requested to intervene in the Presidential election in Panama to the extent of seeing that it is fairly conducted.

This fact was admitted yesterday by President Arosemena in an interview with the associated press. He said the directorate of the Union Patriotica, the name given a party composed of friends of President Arosemena, and Pedro A. Diaz, the official candidate for President, has asked for American intervention such as was accorded in elections of 1908.

The directors of the liberal and conservative parties also say they have requested the United States to see that the election is fair.

Reports of rioting at Dolega following an address by Dr Belisario Porras, another candidate for President, caused a great sensation throughout the country today. Passion runs so high that it is feared some slight incident may result in a conflagration.

Secretary of War Taft, in a letter dated May 12, 1908, and addressed to President Amidor, suggested that two years previously, when charges of fraud were made concerning the Congressional elections in Panama, it was not thought best to do more than urge fairness in the administration of the election laws of that republic. Secretary Taft was on the isthmus at the time and personally delivered the letter to President Amidor. It added that the Secretary had received specific charges of frauds in the impending Presidential election.

"It goes without saying," the letter continued, "that the United States will be most reluctant to intervene, but should the occasion arise, I do not see how it can be avoided."

With his letter to President Amidor, Secretary Taft enclosed a dispatch he had received from President Roosevelt as follows:

"You are authorized to say to President Amidor that the government of the United States will consider that any attempt at the election of a successor by fraudulent methods, constitutes a disturbance of public order which, under Panama's Constitution, requires intervention, and this government will not permit Panama to pass into the hands of any one so elected."

STUDYING LABOR QUESTION.

Japanese Government Considers Means of Settling Differences Between Employers and Employed.

[BY DIRECT WIRE TO THE TIMES.]

TOKIO, May 4.—[Exclusive Dispatch.] Prompted by the increasing frequency of strikes, the government undertook recently a special investigation of the subject. It is reported that the authorities have decided to embody in the new factory law an article providing that employers shall grant the employees besides wages a certain share of the dividends. This share, however, is to be retained in the hands of the employers to the credit of the employees and if the latter strike, is to be confiscated. The government hopes in this way to establish harmonious relations between capital and labor and to find the solution of an important social problem.

BERLIN ENDS FAMOUS TRIAL.

[BY A. P. DAY WIRE TO THE TIMES.]

BERLIN, May 4.—The trial begun on March 26 of the men charged with being responsible for the wood alcohol poisonings which occurred at Christmas among the inmates of the municipal night shelter for the homeless ended today. A druggist named Scharmach, who prepared the deadly spirits, was sentenced to five years' imprisonment. Two salesmen named Tastrow and Meyen were each given two months in jail. The indictment alleged violation of the pure food law.

PRESENTED TO THE KING.

TELL OF PANAMA-PACIFIC.

[BY A. P. DAY WIRE TO THE TIMES.]

LONDON, May 4.—The members of the Panama-Pacific Exposition Commission were presented to King George at Buckingham Palace today by the American Ambassador. The King inquired as to the plans of the exposition and scanned with interest the etchings and plans of the buildings.

His Majesty expressed the opinion that the California spirit which rebuilt the city after the great fire and earthquake of April, 1906, was sure to make the exposition a success.

The King chatted cordially with each member of the commission. Subsequently the commissioners were the guests of the Earl of Granard at luncheon.

RANCHMAN PLEADS GUILTY.

Acknowledges Criminal Charge and Sentence Will Be Pronounced Upon Him Tomorrow.

[BY A. P. DAY WIRE TO THE TIMES.]

STOCKTON, May 4.—Charles Williams, a ranch foreman employed in this county, pleaded guilty before Judge C. W. Norton this morning to the charge of attacking Mrs. Fannie Sweet, wife of a local merchant. Williams declared that he was intoxicated and expressed great sorrow for his act. The pronouncing of sentence was deferred until Monday.

An hour prior to the Superior Court proceedings, William was given a preliminary hearing in Justice Parker's court and while Mrs. Sweet was testifying, her husband made an attack upon the prisoner but was prevented from doing him any harm by Assistant District Attorney C. P. Rendon, who seized him.

Sweet was searched in court for weapons, but was not fined for contempt, the justice declaring that his act had been prompted by frenzy.

According to the testimony the attack occurred on April 14, when Mrs. Sweet was alone at her home with several small children on the outskirts of the city.

GOTHAM'S CONSUMPTION.

New York State Food Commission Presents Startling Figures on Eatables Required by City.

[BY A. P. DAY WIRE TO THE TIMES.]

NEW YORK, May 4.—Some startling figures as to the appetite of this city have been gathered by the marketing committee of the State food investigating commission here. It appears that each year New York consumes between 1,296,000,000 and 1,400,000,000 eggs, and that before now there have been put away in cold storage warehouses of the city no fewer than 319,800,000 eggs.

Each week the inhabitants of this city eat over 1,350,000 pounds of butter, and in the course of the year manage to make away with 72,000,000 pounds.

Last year the market for cheese was considered unusually poor, but in spite of that fact the amount consumed in the city was 30,000,000 pounds.

JAPANESE GETS A SEAT.

[BY A. P. DAY WIRE TO THE TIMES.]

NEW YORK, May 4.—A. Yamada, a buyer for the Japanese export trade, is the first Japanese ever elected to membership in the New York cotton exchange. There has been an increasing number of Japanese cotton buyers appearing in the cotton markets of the south in recent years, but until recently the Japanese merchants have never thought it worth while to obtain membership in the country's largest contract market.

Japan's cotton spinning industry has made rapid strides in the last few years and she is competing sharply in the markets of the far east with European and American manufacturers. Japan and China have so far this year taken 448,000 bales of American cotton, compared with 147,000 bales last year.

RUEF MAY GAIN POINT.

His Attorneys Will Use Decision in Endeavor to Secure Dismissal of Remaining Indictments.

[BY A. P. NIGHT WIRE TO THE TIMES.]

SAN FRANCISCO, May 4. —Judge William P. Lawlor of the Superior Court rendered a decision today in the case of Mrs. Anne Koehler, now serving a four-year term for bigamy in San Quentin prison, which, it is believed, may be taken as a legal precedent upon which attorneys for Abraham Ruef will base further proceedings to secure the dismissal of the indictments still pending against Ruef.

Judge Lawlor's ruling was, in effect, that, with the annulment of civil rights resultant from incarceration in the penitentiary, remaining indictments will not lie against an imprisoned person, unless they are forced to trial by the prosecuting authorities, and that the failure of the accused to take advantage of his legal rights in not demanding a trial cannot enter into the case.

Judge Dunne, before whom eighty-five remaining indictments against Ruef are still pending, has withheld a decision in the case for the reason, which he stated informally, that Ruef has not availed himself of his right of demanding a trial within sixty days.

Mrs. Koehler was brought to trial in October, 1910, on two charges, one of bigamy and another of inducting John Becker, an Alameda rancher, of $3639. She was sentenced to four years in the penitentiary on the bigamy charge, and the charge of obtaining money on false pretenses was left pending. Attorney Edward O'Day, representing Mrs. Koehler, moved the dismissal of the remaining indictment, in Judge Lawlor's court today. Asst. Dist-Atty. Berry agreed. Judge Lawlor then ruled that the failure to prosecute would exempt the accused from further proceedings. The case is regarded as practically analogus to the Ruef case.

Send for FREE Trial Package of TIZ Today

"Yes, TIZ Keeps Old Feet Always Young!"

"Your papa and mamma, your grandpa and your grandma all use TIZ, Harold. And you'll use it, too, when you get to be a man. Then your feet will never hurt, or get tired. That's why we all use TIZ."

Most of us get old, feet first. The bunions get stale, more wearisome and painful. Corns get harder and more stubborn as the feet become more tender. At a time when old people need their feet most, they can use them less—unless they use TIZ.

If you have never used TIZ before, your first use of it will bring back some of your girlhood days. TIZ will make your feet feel young, strong and vigorous. They'll never be tender, never chafe or ache, never get blistered or swollen, and your corns, bunions and callouses will be no more. Nothing will do it or can do it like TIZ. Don't experiment with other things; other people have done that for you and they are all now using TIZ. Don't accept any substitutes.

TIZ acts on a new principle—draws out all the poisonous exudations that make foot troubles.

TIZ, 25 cents a box, sold everywhere, and recommended by all drug stores, department and general stores. Write today to Walter Luther Dodge & Co., 1223 South Wabash Ave., Chicago, Ill., for a free trial package of TIZ by return mail, and enjoy the real foot relief you never felt before.

Self-Made Mann.

W. H. (usually styled "self-made") Mann of Muskegon, a little lumber town in Michigan, is passing out the most highly-prized visiting cards of any Shriner in Los Angeles. They are so highly-prized that he doesn't hand them around promiscuously. Only an occasional one is handed out. His card is backed by the United States government to the amount of $10 and will pass over any bar in Los Angeles for two quarts of extra dry. Mann happens to be president of the Lumberman's National Bank and signs all the big bank notes that go out of the house. He doesn't use a rubber stamp either, for he says, there is too much satisfaction in putting his name into actual cash. He brought a small bale of the bills along and among the first things he did on arrival as an advance guard for the Michigan delegation, was to purchase an automobile for the use of himself and friends during the week. He hasn't decided whether to give the machine away when he returns home or wear it out, so it will be fit only for the scrap heap while burning up the sands in this district. He is one of the directors of the Lumberman's Association of Michigan, and a high official in Saladin Temple.

Seymour, the Immense.

To see more Seymour at one time is practically impossible, for the reason that Chalmers J. Seymour, one of the numerous candidates cropping up for the position of outer guard, is about the largest Seymour of the species. He weighs only 331 pounds, stands 6 feet, 7inches, and comes within a few inches of topping the tallest Shriner in the world. There was no difficulty in finding him about the lobby of the Alexandria. His home is in Rockford, Ill., and his Shrine address is Gebala Temple.

Indianapolis Boss.

"Yep, he's the man that owns Mayer's jewelry store, Mayer's department store, the biggest wholesale drug store is director in so many banks that he can't remember all their names and also one of the principal stockholders in an insurance company of wide reputation. All these things and the man in question belongs to Indianapolis. And the man is Charles A. Mayer, the man with the perpetual wink and the Hawaiian hug. He is big as a bear and has the heart of a spendthrift according to his associates, but his spending ability is dwarfed by an earning capacity which has piled up a mere trifling three or four million. Mayer is of Murat Temple and is absolutely averse to being quoted as candidate for the office of Outer Guard. Ask him. Incidentally he play the role of millionaire valet to Elias J. Jacoby.

Indian Scout Here.

Years of service in the Indian service have prevented Harrison Dingman from appearing at but one gathering of Shriners in the thirty years since he has been a member, and that was five years ago in Los Angeles. Dingman is a Past Imperial Potentate and is past 80 years of age, one of the best war horses left in the ranks from all that his friends say about him as they strike him for ideas on scouting up an office in the Imperial Council. Washington is his home.

Prevents Justice.

Back in Jackson, Miss., all municipal affairs are suspended, at least those having to do with a corrective branch of the municipality. Circuit Judge Scott, Potentate of Wahaba Temple, was not satisfied in coming himself, but brought with him the Sheriff, the Prosecuting Attorney, foreman of the grand jury, City Clerk and one or two other city officials. "Guess I didn't put a deadlock on that town for about three weeks," he remarked to a friend. It is understood he endeavored to bring along the Jackson police force to march as a patrol in the parades, but at this citizens rebelled and threatened to call out the militia.

On a Fanning Bee.

"Irwin! Mr. Irwin!" yelled a leather-lunged page through the lobby of one of the hotels. Three Irwins answered, but they were not elected as the proper parties. Finally some friend suggested a visit to Washington Park and there, after half an hour, they located the right Mr. Irwin. He was figuring salaries of various players according to their merits, counting heads in the bleachers, and wondering when he could make baseball pay in Wheeling. W. W. Irwin, Chief Imperial Rabban and successor to Imperial Potentate-to-be Cunningham, is owner of the baseball club of the stogie city. He is figured one of the best baseball judges in the country, and having scads of coin, is supposed to have dropped more than $40,000 merely to give his home town what he considers a fair sample of the national game.

Can You Get This?

"Secundum allegati et probata," or words to that effect, were streaming from the lucid tongue of John Wellington ("Rufus Willingford") Boyle before a number of his Shrine brethren. He was expounding the doctrine of the ancients in regard to assertions hastily made. "What is alleged must be proven, and what is proven must be alleged," he affirmed, axiomatically, as he called a man down for stating that he was worth $10,000,000, when he in reality would only admit half that many. While studying law in the office of Roscoe Conkling of New York, he learned not only Latin and law, but also how to get money. He has bought and sold three or four street railways, notably that of Utica, and has never lost sleep, to say little of money. If he has, it hasn't reduced his weight any, his friends asseverate. He is a member of the Imperial Council and widely known.

Built Murat Temple.

The man who did most to put the magnificent temple on one of the finest corners in Indianapolis and made a few thousand dollars grow to more than half a million in a few months is the present Potentate of Murat Temple. He has held the office six years and hasn't offered to suggest less than six or eight years more. "See we have only had five Potentates in twenty years, and so the office sticks with the man," he said. His name is Elias J. Jacoby and in business affairs he ranks as president of the Prudential Casualty Company of Indianapolis. His friends say that he started building the temple with only $40,000 and before it was completed paid off the entire cost, $540,000. As a result the temple has grown to one of the largest and strongest in the United States, numbering nearly 4000 members. And Potentate Jacoby still wears a smile.

Crescent Publisher Here.

J. Harry Lewis, accompanied by his camera and seven or eleven scratch pads, arrived from St. Paul ahead of the delegation from that place, yesterday. He came in time to get acquainted with the city streets in order to find his way home nights, and also to be able to write them properly for the semi-official paper of the Seymour, one of the numerous candidates cropping up for the position of outer guard, is about the largest Seymour of the species. He weighs only 331 pounds, stands 6 feet, 7inches, and comes within a few inches of topping the tallest Shriner in the world. There was no difficulty in finding him about the lobby of the Alexandria. His home is in Rockford, Ill., and his Shrine address is Gebala Temple.

Indianapolis Boss.

"Yep, he's the man that owns Mayer's jewelry store, Mayer's department store, the biggest wholesale drug store; is director in so many banks that he can't remember all their names and also one of the principal stockholders in an insurance company of wide reputation. All these things and the man in question belongs to Indianapolis. And the man is Charles A. Mayer, the man with the perpetual wink and the Hawaiian hug. He is big as a bear and has the heart of a spendthrift according to his associates, but his spending ability is dwarfed by an earning capacity which has piled up a mere trifling three or four million. Mayer is of Murat Temple and is absolutely averse to being quoted as candidate for the office of Outer Guard. Ask him. Incidentally he play the role of millionaire valet to Elias J. Jacoby.

Indian Scout Here.

Years of service in the Indian service have prevented Harrison Dingman from appearing at but one gathering of Shriners in the thirty years since he has been a member, and that was five years ago in Los Angeles. Dingman is a Past Imprial Potentate and is past 80 years of age, one of the best war horses left in the ranks from all that his friends say about him as they strike him for ideas on scouting up an office in the Imperial Council. Washington is his home.

Prevents Justice.

Back in Jackson, Miss., all municipal affairs are suspended, at least those having to do with a corrective branch of the municipality. Circuit Judge Scott, Potentate of Wahaba Temple, was not satisfied in coming himself, but brought with him the Sheriff, the Prosecuting Attorney, foreman of the grand jury, City Clerk and one or two other city officials. "Guess I didn't put a deadlock on that town for about three weeks," he remarked to a friend. It is understood he endeavored to bring along the Jackson police force to march as a patrol in the parades, but at this citizens rebelled and threatened to call out the militia.

On a Fanning Bee.

"Irwin! Mr. Irwin!" yelled a leather-lunged page through the lobby of one of the hotels. Three Irwins answered, but they were not elected as the proper parties. Finally some friend suggested a visit to Washington Park and there, after half an hour, they located the right Mr. Irwin. He was figuring salaries of various players according to their merits, counting heads in the bleachers, and wondering when he could make baseball pay in Wheeling. W. W. Irwin, Chief Imperial Rabban and successor to Imperial Potentate-to-be Cunningham, is owner of the baseball club of the stogie city. He is figured one of the best baseball judges in the country, and having scads of coin, is supposed to have dropped more than $40,000 merely to give his home town what he considers a fair sample of the national game.

Can You Get This?

"Secundum allegati et probata," or words to that effect, were streaming from the lucid tongue of John Wellington ("Rufus Wallingford") Boyle before a number of his Shrine brethren. He was expounding the doctrine of the ancients in regard to assertions hastily made. "What is alleged must be proven, and what is proven must be alleged," he affirmed, axiomatically, as he called a man down for stating that he was worth $10,000,000, when he in reality would only admit half that many. While studying law in the office of Roscoe Conkling of New York, he learned not only Latin and law, but also how to get money. He has bought and sold three or four street railways, notably that of Utica, and has never lost sleep, to say little of money. If he has, it hasn't reduced his weight any, his friends asseverate. He is a member of the Imperial Council and widely known.

Built Murat Temple.

The man who did most to put the magnificent temple on one of the finest corners in Indianapolis and made a few thousand dollars grow to more than half a million in a few months is the present Potentate of Murat Temple. He has held the office six years and hasn't offered to suggest less than six or eight years more. "See we have only had five Potentates in twenty years, and so the office sticks with the man," he said. His name is Elias J. Jacoby and in business affairs he ranks as president of the Prudential Casualty Company of Indianapolis. His friends say that he started building the temple with only $40,000 and before it was completed paid off the entire cost, $540,000. As a result the temple has grown to one of the largest and strongest in the United States, numbering nearly 4000 members. And Potentate Jacoby still wears a smile.

Crescent Publisher Here.

J. Harry Lewis, accompanied by his camera and seven or eleven scratch pads, arrived from St. Paul ahead of the delegation from that place, yesterday. He came in time to get acquainted with the city streets in order to find his way home nights, and also to be able to write them properly for the semi-official paper of the Shriners, the Crescent. They say Lewis has peculiar ability with the pen. One month he will write an allegorical story pertaining to the work of the order. The following month he will interpret the allegory and the third month will explain the interpretation, so that in the course of events he is keeping up a regular serial magazine which he advertises as a short-story book. He is one of the very popular men of the order, and some of his friends are talking of offering a coupon good for a year's subscription to the Crescent to every delegate who can abstain from drinking water during the convention.

Another Outer Guard.

The Shrine jail should certainly be well protected if half the guards or men willing to be that are arriving are put to work. One of the recent candidates who arrived with his glad mitten on is J. T. Jones, potentate of India Temple, Oklahoma City, and one of the youngest Shrine officials of high rank on hand. Jones has the Kohinoor habit, wearing several large diamonds of perfect luster, and for that reason he is under special guard of friends all the time. He is just as popular when he leaves his gems at home on the mantlepiece or hands them to his baby son to play with. He is looked upon as a winner by a large delegation of Middle Western Shriners, who are doing tall boosting and insist that he shall some daye be one of the youngest Imperial Potentates ever elected—if they can put him there.

SERENADES "THE TIMES."

Murat Temple, With Band and Patrol, Tenders a Charming Serenade. Scimitar Instead of Baton.

The Times was paid an appreciated compliment last night when seventy-five Nobles of Murat Temple, Indianapolis, led by their band and crack Arab patrol in bright Oriental costume marched from the Alexandria to the editorial and news rooms and branch offices, Nos. 110½-118 South Broadway, and serenaded.

The band of sixteen members in glittering Arabic rainment, played several lively airs and wound up its short but harmonious programme with a familiar Shrine tune.

Noble Paul Kraus, one of the wealthiest business men in Indianapolis, led the musicians and wielded his scimitar with the grace and cleverness of a Sousa.

THE LAST ONE IN.

A special train bearing 100 Nobles from Midian and Mirza temples of Wichita and Pittsburg, Kan., pulled in the Salt Lake station at 11:30 o'clock last night, six hours behind time. The late comers were welcomed by the Al Malaikah Legion of Honor and escorted to their hotels.

THROW AWAY YOUR GLASSES

HOW TO SAVE THE EYES.

Simple Home Treatment Works Wonders—No Drugs—Natural Method.

FREE BOOK

Explains Everything; Being Given Without Charge to All.

At last the good news can be published. It is predicted that within a few years eyeglasses and spectacles will be so scarce that they will be regarded as curiosities.

Save Eyes, Get Rid of Glasses.

Dr. John L. Corish, an able New York physician of long experience, has come forward with the edict that eyeglasses must go. Intelligent people everywhere are indorsing him. The doctor says that the ancients never disfigured their facial beauty with goggles. They employed certain methods which have recently been brought to the light of modern science. Dr. Corish has written a marvelously interesting book which tells how strained and weak eyes may be benefited, in many cases instantly. There is an easy home treatment just as simple as it is effective, and it is fully explained in this wonderful book, which will be sent free to any one. A postal card will bring it to your very door. This book tells you why eyeglasses are needless and how they may be put aside for ever. When you have taken advantage of this information obtained in this book you may be able to throw your glasses away and should possess healthy, beautiful, soulfully expressive, magnetic eyes that indicate the true character and win confidence.

Bad Eyes Bring Bad Health.

Dr. Corish goes further. He asserts that eyestrain is the main cause of headache, nervousness, irritability, neurasthenia, brain fag, sleeplessness, stomach disorders, despondency and many other disorders. Leading oculists of the world confirm this and say that a vast amount of physical and mental misery is due to the influence of eyestrain upon the nerves and brain cells. When eyestrain is overcome these ailments usually disappear as if by magic.

Book Free to You.

The Okola Method, which is fully explained in Dr. Corish's marvelous book, is the method which is directed at making your eyes normal and saving them from the disfigurement of these needless, unpleasant glass windows. If you wear glasses or feel that you should be wearing them, or if you are troubled with headache in the forehead or nervousness when your eyes are tired, write today to Okola Laboratory, Dept. 526B, Rochester, N. THE GROWTH OF AN OAK.

Al Malaikah Temple in Twenty-four Years Expands From Forty Members to Over 3000.

Al Malaikah Temple of this city was organized February 28, 1888, with forty charter members. Col. Freeman G. Teed, secretary of the Jonathan Club, was elected Illustrious Potentate and served with distinction.

Col. Freeman G. Teed,
Al Malaikah's first potentate.

Of the forty charter members only seven are living in this city, many have passed away and several are in various parts of the country. The following Nobles living in Los Angeles are charter members of Al Malaikah: Dr. W. W. Murphy, Dr. H. S. Orme, S. S. Salisbury, Jacob Kuhrts, S. K. Lindley, Col. Freeman G. Teed and Capt. H. Z. Osborne, president of the Chamber of Commerce.

Al Malaikah Temple, in twenty-four years, has grown from forty to 3000 members, and is one of the largest Shrine temples in North America.

"I can hardly realize that Al Malaikah has over 3000 members," said Col. Teed last night, at Shrine headquarters in the Pacific Electric building. "We knew when we organized the temple that it would be a big one some day, but never imagined for a moment that it would reach the grand total of today."

THE COUNT FOR MUCKRAKERS.

Fra Elbertus, in Celebrated Twenty-two-Dollar Suit, Everlastingly Lambastes Yellow Journals.

Elbert Hubbard spoke on divers and sundry things in general and himself in particular at the Auditorium last evening. He was listened to and applauded by the members of the Los Angeles Ad Club and several others.

The East Aurora roarer modestly swayed before the footlights in his celebrated $22 hand-me-downs, and looked poetic and spoke in a strain pedantic. He unblushingly admitted that he writes advertising and literachure—as he calls the word.

There should be no muckrakers alive on the earth this morning. What he said about muckraking last night ought to have settled their hash for all time.

He paid particular respects to Lincoln Steffens and Ida M. Tarbell. He said Miss Tarbell is the greatest advertising medium the Standard Oil Company has ever had.

Here are some random Hubbardisms:

"The law isn't the law. The law is only the judge's opinion of the law."

"Judges are men; they know where their success lies—in interpreting public opinion. Therefore, I believe in the judiciary."

"The ultimate consumer is paying the $1,000,000 expended by the government in prosecuting the Standard Oil case."

"The papers I work for are not as rotten as they would be if I didn't write for them. I have a little jackscrew under the press and I am lifting it a little."

"I believe in the supervision of big business by business men and not by demagogues."

"When you kill animation you kill hope in the heart of the business man, the bread lines form and the hoarse furore of the multitude is heard."

"Tobacco is just as bad as it was before the tobacco trust was dissolved."

"Once I got $75,000 for an idea. I thought I had the world by the tail, but I found I was only the cracker on the end of the whip."

"Advertising is an economic necessity. It tells who you are, where you are and what you have to offer the world."

Once Again.

NAGLE BEATS OAKS HANDILY.

Makes Three Hits and Really Wins His Own Game.

Durbin Beaten Owing to Angels' Timely Hits.

Both Heitmuller and Dillon Bounced Out of Park.

BY GREY OLIVER.

Los Angeles, 5; Oakland, 4.

Walter Nagle came into his own yesterday. Pitching his first game this season, cracking the ball every time he went to bat, scoring two of the five runs his team made and backed up by perfect fielding, he beat the Oaks in the first game they have lost this week.

And he did the business like a real pitcher, too. The Oaks cracked him hard in the middle of the game for their four runs, but he improved under the slugging and got better the further he went. Once he settled himself after the sixth inning the Oaks just had to lose for he wouldn't let them make a run in the last three innings when one was all they needed to tie the score.

Heitmuller kicked over a decision on his out at second base in the third inning and Dillon was bounced for yelling at a Finney decision at third in the fourth inning. Dillon was so sore over the ruling that he made out a written protest and then after thinking this over five minutes withdrew the protest.

After Metzger was safe on Patterson's muff of his fly to center Lober forced Metz at second. Boles fouled out and then Nagle singled to left. Lober ran for third on this but on the threw in the ball hit Finney on the leg and kissed off to the grand stand. Lober kept on to the plate and Nagle got to third and Finney sent both of them back a base. This is what Dillon kicked at and he was canned out of the game for it. The ump called it a dead ball and he would doubtless be sustained by the authorities, although there is no rule covering a thrown ball that strikes an umpire.

Sharpe put in young Durbin for the Oaks and he pitched a very good game. All of the runs off him were earned, being knocked in by hard swats. There were two errors, but neither of these helped any runs.

Nagle opened the third with a scratch bouncing single to third and after Howard had fanned, got to third himself when Berger doubled to the left fence. Nagle scored when Heitmuller hit to right, and when Heitmuller tried to stretch his single into a double he was thrown out at second and yelled so loudly over the decision that he was chased into the clubhouse.

The Angels began the scoring in the third and the Oaks tied the score in the fourth, which Hoffman opened with a triple to center and scored on Coy's infield single. Hetling's grounder to Dillon put Coy on second and then Nagle weakened and walked Sharpe, Tiedmann and Durbin in succession, Durbin's pass forced in Coy with the second run.

In the sixth with two out Sharpe singled and Tiedemann and Durbin followed with doubles, which scored Sharpe and Tiedemann.

When the locals opened the last of the seventh inning they were two runs behind, but immediately sailed in and got them, and won the game. Boles and Nagle singled and Howard doubled, Boles scoring and Nagle going to third. He raced in on Berger's sacrifice fly and then Daley worked the squeeze, scoring Howard with what proved to be the winning run.

Coast Meet.

ELEVEN RECORDS GO BY THE BOARD AT BERKELEY.

Coast Conference Meet Proves to Be a Wonderful Affair—California Sweeps the Field—U.S.C. and Pomona Just Get on Score Sheet—Berkeley Cinder Team Best in Country Now.

[BY DIRECT WIRE TO THE TIMES.]

BERKELEY, May 4.—[Exclusive Dispatch.] Score: California, 62; Oregon, 23; Stanford, 17; Washington, 13½; Pomona, 3; U.S.C., 3; Nevada, 1; St. Ignatius, 1.

California's wonderful track men once more demonstrated their superiority this afternoon when they met the best athletes on the Coast and almost scored as many points as all their opponents combined. It was a fine day for a meet and eleven records went by the board. Five track marks were lowered, while all the field records were broken. All but the high jump and javelin throw of the field events were picked off by Coach Christie's phenoms.

The great features of the day's sport was the running of Walter McClure in the distances and Horine's performance in the high jump. McClure's individual score of ten points cinched second place for Oregon. McClure, Harry Wood and Torrance set a hot pace in the mile run, clipping off the first half in 2m. 10s., but when it came to the stretch the lengthy Oregonian stretched out and finished with a great spurt. Wood was right at his heels, while Huggins of Oregon came through and took third money. The time was 4m. 34⅕s and besides being a conference mark, breaks the Coast mark of 4m. 26s. held by Himrod of Pomona, with Earle Crabbe running in great form in the two-mile, there was little worry among California rooters. Each lap Crabbe was drawing away from his opponents and at the beginning of the last lap McClure of Oregon and Dodge of Stanford were fighting it out for second full forty yards behind.

At the crack of the pistol, when Crabbe started o nthe final sprint McClure started to pull up. When Crabbe rounded the turn into the stretch the speedy northerner was only ten yards behind. Both runners put up a wonderful finish, but McClure was not to be denied and just took the tape from Crabbe in the greatest two-mile contest ever seen on the Berkeley oval. The time of 9m. 55 1-5s is a record. These two performances by McClure mark him as the greatest distance man ever turned out on the Coast.

Swiggett showed distress a little after the first mile post was passed and although he was up with the leaders at the time he was forced to drop out.

George Horine and Beeson furnished the thrills in the high jump, the same as last year. After running in both the hurdle races Beeson managed to clear 6ft. 3in., but Horine got away with his jinx this time and leaped 6ft. 4 1-8in., thereby grabbing first place. Hill of California was third at 6ft. 3in.

Hodge of U.S.C. led out in the 400 and when the runners rounded the turn into the stretch he looked like a winner, but Gillett of Pomona had the stuff in this race and came through with a beautiful spurt and bettered last year's time.

Vitousek made a great drive in the stretch as did Bringham of Nevada, leaving Hodge fourth by a close margin.

The 100-yard dash was one of the most disappointing races of the day. Courtney of Washington took first in 10 2-5s., while Eddie Stanton, the Los Angeles boy, was second and Fay Wood third.

In the high hurdles Maclise tripped in the third flight, and was thrown on his face. Martin Hawkins ran true to form and took first, while Kelley of U.S.C. ran a nice race, taking second. In the low sticks Maclise and Beeson ran in their real form, leaving third place for Hawkins.

Barnes of Pomona had to yield first place in the pole vault to Vail of California. After the men had cleared the bar at twelve feet the standards were raised a couple of inches, and Vail alone was able to clear it. Miller of Stanford had to be satisfied with third.

Shattuck was right in the hammer throw, and got the ball out 164ft. 2in. In the hammer, as in the shot, the Blue and Gold athletes made a clean sweep of the points. There is not another college in the country that has the number of high-class weight men that are at California this year.

Rice's best heave with the sixteen-pound shot was 46ft. 4½in. The javelin is a new event to the California men, and the northerners had no trouble in taking all the points and establishing a record.

Fred Allen did 23ft. 4¾in. in the broad jump. Earle of U.S.C. jumped 21ft. 8in., but failed to qualify for the finals. No relay was held.

VERNON BUNGLES AND YET WINS.

[BY DIRECT WIRE TO THE TIMES.]

PORTLAND, May 4.—[Exclusive Dispatch.] Vernon booted the leather today all over the lot in the pinches and hit no harder than the Beavers yet walked off with the game 5 to 3 because the hits came on the heels of three costly walks by Pitcher J. Gilligan. This gives Vernon a majority of the series.

Both Gilligan and his portside opponent, Castleton, twirled good ball. Castleton walked two men but he settled to his work immediately thereafter and neither caused the scorer any labor. His seven singles were doled out through six innings and Gilligan's seven through four innings.

While the visiting southpaw had the better of die argument, it took the nine full frames to settle the result as the Beavers tied the score 3 to 3 in the eighth inning on Krueger's double into left and Hosp's second misplay at shortstop.

Gilligan opened the ninth by heaving four wide ones at at Brashear, and before the curtain had dropped, Vernon had crammed in two runs. Stinson sacrificed, sending Brashear to second, from whence he scored on Burrell's safety to left. Brown followed with a single, which Krueger juggled long enough to permit Burrell to scamper from first to home.

Vernon let us down with one run in the first on a walk to Bayless and a drive past Butler off Brashear, but in the second the Hogans dented the score-board for two more, which score went through to the ninth inning explosion. Once again a walk started the trouble, and with two out Burrell walked, stole second and scored on Brown's initial pinch hit. Castleton lobbed a hit into left field and Brown tallied.

Portland went along for four stanzas without a ripple and then grabbed two on a bunch of hits, boots and battery errors.

The locals tied the score in the eighth amid wild enthusiasm, on Krueger's double and Hosp's error, but there the run-getting spilled over.

Brown was the star slugger of the afternoon with two pinch hits for the Tigers.

The Perfect Laxative For Elderly People

Age has its attractions no less than youth in a more serene and quieter life. But it is this very life of rest without sufficient exercise that brings with it those disorders that arose from inactivity. Chief of these are a chronic, persistent constipation.

Most elderly people are troubled in this way, with accompanying symptoms of belching, drowsiness after eating, headaches and general lassitude. Frequently there is difficulty of digesting even light food. Much mental trouble ensues, as it is hard to find a suitable remedy. First of all the advice may be given that elderly people should not use salts, cathartic pills or powders, waters or any of the more violent purgatives. What they need, women as well as men, is a mild laxative tonic, one that is pleasant to take and yet acts without griping.

The remedy that fills all these requirements, and has in addition tonic properties that strengthen the stomach, liver and bowels, is Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin, which thousands of elderly people use, to the exclusion of all other remedies. They take it at regular intervals and in that way maintain general good health. You will do well to always have a bottle of it in the house. It is good for all the family.

Anyone wishing to make a trial of this remedy before buying it in the regular way of a druggist at fifty cents or one dollar a large bottle (family size) can have a sample bottle sent to the home free of charge by simply addressing Dr. W. B. Caldwell, 405 Washington St., Monticello, Ill. Your name and address on a postal card will do.

NO DYSFEPSIA OR STOMACH DISTRESS

Settles Your Out-of-Order Stomach and Ends All Indigestion in Five Minutes.

There would not be a case of Indigestion here if readers who are subject to Stomach trouble knew the tremendous anti-ferment and digestive virtue contained in Diapepsin. This harmless preparation will digest a heavy meal without the slightest fuss or discomfort, and relieve the sourest acid stomach in five minutes, besides overcoming all foul, nauseous odors from the breath.

Ask your pharmacist to show you the formula, plainly printed on each 50-cent case of Pape's Diapepsin, then you will readily understand why this promptly cures Indigestion and removes such symptoms as Heartburn, a feeling like a lump of lead in the stomach, Belching of Gas and Eructations of undigested food, water brash, nausea, headache, biliousness and many other bad symptoms; and, besides, you will not need laxatives to keep your stomach, liver and intestines clean and fresh.

If your Stomach is sour and full of gas, or your food doesn't digest, and your meals don't seem to fit, why not get a 50-cent case from your druggist and make life worth living? Absolute relief from Stomach misery and perfect digestion of anything you eat is sure to follow five minutes after, and, besides, one 50-cent case is sufficient to cure a whole family of such trouble.

Surely, a harmless, inexpensive preparation like Pape's Diapepsin, which will always, either at daytime or during night, relieve your stomach misery and digest your meals, is about as handy and valuable a thing as you could have in the house.

Political.

Has no Chance Now to Capture the Nomination.

Taft Managers Keep Up the Fight to Clinch It.

Object Is to Hold an Unbroken Alignment.

BY SUMNER CURTIS.

[BY DIRECT WIRE TO THE TIMES.]

WASHINGTON, May 4.—[Exclusive Dispatch.] Although they have eliminated Col. Roosevelt in their reviews of the delegate elections already held and in their analysis of State situations still pending, the Taft managers are preparing to put up harder fights than ever during the remaining part of the pre-convention campaign.

As the alignment stands today, Col. Roosevelt cannot win enough delegates among those still to be elected to capture the nomination at Chicago. The thing of far greater importance to the Taft forces than the numerical strength to be gained in future State contests, however, is to keep unbroken the alignment that exists. Allowance must be made for some defection from Taft in the South, although to the end effective means may be found for preventing violation of instructions. Nothing, however, will serve to give so much moral support to the continuance of the Taft majority that prevails on paper as a few more popular victories such as that won in Massachusetts.

A still further reason—or what may be called a variation of the reason just suggested—is to make the chief fight strength so formidable as to insure the nomination at Chicago as a two-ballot proposition. There are three avowed candidates now in the field and there is no telling what would happen if La Follette, with his small bunch of delegates, is able to use the situation when the balloting time arrives.

With many of the supporters of President Roosevelt, the underlying issue has been "anything to defeat Taft." The campaign in its evolution, as developed on the Taft side a corresponding determination that spells anything to defeat Roosevelt." This determination, as heretofore pointed out, has helped as much as anything to keep some of the powerful influences on the Taft side from swerving to a dark horse candidate. Their action has been predicated on the belief, amounting to a practical certainty, that an attempt to play any third-candidate game of strategy at this time would cause a break to Roosevelt and perhaps nominate him on the first ballot.

The logical dark horse proposition is entirely lacking, therefore, so far as the Taft leaders are concerned, but as a matter of the day's news and gossip the talk as to the possibility of a dark horse candidate cannot be ignored. Perhaps the most significant feature of the situation at this stage, when Taft appears to have such a lead that Roosevelt cannot hope to overtake him, is that certain active supporters of the colonel are saying: "It doesn't look as well as it might for Roosevelt, but Taft will not be renominated, anyhow."

This sort of talk means that if Roosevelt cannot be nominated—if it seems clearly that he is beaten before the national convention gets to work—the Roosevelt leaders will do their best to force a third candidate who can pull away Taft's support.

If President Taft wins the fight that is to be decided by the Maryland primary on Monday, he will greatly strengthen the courage of those already lined up for him. After that, there will be regarded as very important the primary fights in Ohio and New Jersey, with the hope that some help may come from the results in Minnesota and California in the interim.

Taft leaders here feel more confident over the result in Maryland than they did over that in Massachusetts.

POLITICS IN SPIRITLAND.

Spirit of Late Jerry Simpson Imparts Inside Information on Future Events to His Widow.

[BY A. P. DAY WIRE TO THE TIMES.]

TOPEKA (Kan.) May 4.—"Theodore Roosevelt will be the Republican nominee, Champ Clark the Democratic nominee for President this year and Champ Clark will be elected." That is the prophecy made today by Jerry Simpson, widow of the late Seventh District Congressman. Mrs. Simpson is a spiritualist and has had several recent talks with the spirit of her husband.

"I was at Wichita, only a short time ago, that I talked with Jerry about politics," Mrs. Simpson said today. "He said he took the same interest in politics that he always had taken. 'Who will be named by the Republicans?' I asked him.

"'Theodore Roosevelt,' he replied.

"'Who by the Democrats?'

"'Champ Clark.'

"'Who will be elected?'

"'Champ Clark. I am for him and he is elected.'"

PHOENIX (Ariz.) May 4.—The House of Representatives marked the close of its seventh week of business by passing eight bills, the most important of which was the measure creating a nine-hour day for women.

The Craig bill to allow witnesses in civil and criminal proceedings compensation of $1.50 per day was defeated.

Governor Hunt appointed A. A. Johns of Phoenix, E. F. Thompson, Kingman, Horace Drachman of Tucson, J. O'Neill, Phoenix, and J. S. Bisbee, as a commission to prepare and outline plans for an Arizona exhibit at the Panama-Pacific exposition.

PROMPTS HIS TEACHERS.

Superintendent of San Francisco Schools Urges Them to Visit Homes of Their Pupils.

[BY DIRECT WIRE TO THE TIMES.]

SAN FRANCISCO, May 4.—[Exclusive Dispatch.] Superintendent of Schools Roncovieri has found a method of bringing the teachers and pupils into closer relation. He proposes that teachers "visit around" the homes of pupils during the term and establish a "closer and firmer relation between home and school."

In a circular issued yesterday and patterned closely after Roncovieri's "Address to Fathers," recently promulgated, he says in part: "Parents can visit the school and teachers should visit them at least once during each term to get acquainted and to gain a sounder appreciation of the surrounding conditions that the children encounter outside of school hours.

"A kindly and sympathetic visit to the homes of indifferent and sometimes neglectful parents will give a teacher a realization of obstacles that interfere with a child and that must be overcome in such homes.

"In such cases the teachers must awaken the parents to the importance of education for their children. Such visits are to be paid to homes of pupils whose records are unsatisfactory, but to those whose work is satisfactory as well, for words of encouragement count for much in all cases."

TAKES ORDERS FROM PERKINS.

WHY ROOSEVELT SHIELDED THE HARVESTER TRUST.

President Taft Adds Another Chapter to the Showing Up of Meodore—A Fourteen-Hour Campaign in Maryland—Executive Will Spend Few Days in Ohio.

[BY A. P. NIGHT WIRE TO THE TIMES.]

BALTIMORE, May 4.—In the closing speech of a fourteen-hour campaign trip through Maryland, President Taft added a new chapter to the history of the Harvester trust here tonight. Speaking to an audience that filled the Lyric Theater, Mr. Taft declared that Roosevelt did prevent the prosecution of that "trust," after George W. Perkins, one of its directors, and now a Roosevelt supporter, had asked that the trust be not taken into court; intimated that Charles J. Bonaparte, Attorney-General under Mr. Roosevelt was "mistaken when he said that he (Mr. Taft,) was present at a Cabinet meeting, which decided against prosecution," and said the diary of Herbert Knox Smith, then and now head of the bureau of corporations, proved that at the time referred to, he was on a trip around the world.

Mr. Taft's exhibition of the Harvester trust muddle was only one of the many points on which he attacked Col. Roosevelt. He said his predecessors attitude toward the trusts showed clearly that he wished to perfect a benevolent "despotism" that would discriminate between the good and the bad trusts, pointed out how Mr. Roosevelt had changed from his attitude regarding his entrance into the Presidential race, to that of being an active campaigner for the nomination and insisted that Roosevelt was striving to make this campaign one in which the man who had little should be arrayed against him who had more. In concise form he listed the achievements of his administration and the charges which Roosevelt has made against it, declaring in his term in the White House there had been more progressive legislation enacted than in any previous President's term since the Civil War.

Mr. Taft's Baltimore speech came at the end of a day that took him over much of the central and southeastern part of Maryland. In all, he made seven speeches to crowds that were attentive and that cheered him frequently.

THE BACK ACTION OF MY POLICIES.

[BY A. P. NIGHT WIRE TO THE TIMES.]

ELKTON (Md.) May 4.—Speaking before several hundred persons here today, President Taft for the first time since he began answering Roosevelt's attacks strongly intimated that much of the support the colonel is receiving comes from the trusts and the "interests."

"Mr. Roosevelt says I am owned by the interests," said Mr. Taft. "What I attempted to do in my administration was to carry out Mr. Roosevelt's policies, and one of those policies I thought to be the prosecution of the trusts under the anti-trust law, and so I gave orders to the Attorney-General to prosecute every trust that he found violating the law. The only difference between me and Mr. Roosevelt is that I prosecuted the steel trust and I prosecuted the Harvester trust and he did not.

"Now I am not making any charges against Mr. Roosevelt because he did not prosecute. He changed his mind about the operation of the anti-trust law, and he thinks now that its operation is not good, and he criticises me because I prosecuted the Standard Oil Company and the American Tobacco trust through the supreme court and got decrees there. He says these decrees are not worth anything.

"George Perkins, a director of the Harvester trust and a director of the steel trust, says the prosecutions do not amount to anything. He may think so now, but when he wrote letters urging that no suit be brought against the Harvester trust he thought that prosecution might injure them.

"In Mr. Roosevelt's present attitude, suppose I had refused to prosecute the steel trust and that I had refused to prosecute the harvester trust; suppose that there came out a statement showing that Mr. Perkins had said:

"'If you prosecute us we will fight,' and subsequently they were not prosecuted; that after that suppose you found that Mr. Perkins had contributed largely to the campaign fund of myself, what do you think Mr. Roosevelt would have said to me?

"Would not he have come down on me with a thousand of brick and said: 'Here, now, you see he is controlled by the interests.'

"And yet, Mr. Roosevelt has the courage—I shall not call it anything else—has the courage after that chapter to charge me with being under the particular control of the interests."

Pillage of Jewish Quarter in Fez by Tribesmen.

Wireless Operators Put Up Most Gallant Fight.

All France Amazed by the Lack of Protection.

[BY DIRECT WIRE TO THE TIMES.]

PARIS, May 4.—[Exclusive Dispatch.] France's troubles in Morocco, which for a long time were regarded by many as of little importance and ignored by others, are now taking up much space in the leading newspapers. Energetic measures are being taken by the government to suppress the rebellion and re-enforcements are constantly being sent to the scene.

Details of the pillaging on the part of the tribes are gradually coming in. The number of Jews who took refuge in the grounds of the Sultan's palace in Fez during the pillage of their quarter was 10,000, and these, now homeless and destitute, are in urgent need of aid.

The pillage of the Jewish quarter was complete. It is estimated that one-third of the houses were wrecked and burned. Fifty-three bodies have been recovered and thirty-three Jews are under treatment in the French hospital.

The last dispatches give further details of the tragic end of the four wireless telegraph operators. The Moors attacked them at 1:30 in the afternoon. The operators took refuge in an upper room which they barricaded. They had only one revolver, but a good supply of cartridges. All the afternoon they fired through the window at their assailants, killing fifteen, but finally all the operators were severely wounded. Finding they could not be driven out, the Moors climbed on the roof and, making a hole in it, poured petroleum into the room and set fire to it.

Making their way into the house through the same aperture, they mortally wounded three of the operators, but it is supposed that M. Rebout, the fourth, shot all his assailants and then attempted to shoot himself. He was, at any rate, left for dead by the pillagers and when found by the French soldiers he was still alive, but expired shortly after being conveyed to a hospital.

Meanwhile, the French public is everywhere demanding to know why no precautions were taken against an eventual rising in Fez, seeing that symptoms of serious unrest have been continually reported during the past month.

Everyone is astounded to learn that Fez was almost completely denuded of French troops and that 1200 men who should have formed its garrison were encamped at a distance of four kilometers from the city.

The government is taking steps to establish responsibility for this state of affairs. M. Poncaire, the Premier, has instructed M. Regnault to make an inquiry at once into the immediate or remote causes of the recent events in Fez and to report as promptly as possible.

BOAT LOST; CREW SAVED.

Schooner Joseph Russ, Bound from Seattle for Bering Sea, Is Wrecked on Chirikof Island.

[BY A. P. NIGHT WIRE TO THE TIMES.]

SEATTLE (Wash.) May 4.—The cod-fishing schooner Joseph Russ, which sailed from Seattle April 7 for the Bering Sea cod banks, was wrecked on Chirikof Island, southwest of Kodiak, on April 26.

She carried thirty-five men, under Capt. Charles Foss, all of whom escaped.

The mail steamer Dora went from Kodiak to the scene of the wreck and took the men off Chirikof Island, which is uninhabited, and is notorious for its fog banks. She will take the men to Seward, Alaska.

The Joseph Russ was built at Eureka, Cal., in 1881, and was owned by the Robinson Fish Company of Anacortes, Wash. She was a wooden vessel of 247 gross tons.

The loss is estimated at $50,000.

WAPPENSTEIN STRIPES.

Former Chief of Police of Seattle Now Numbered With Those He Helped to Send to Prison.

[BY DIRECT WIRE TO THE TIMES.]

TACOMA, May 4.—[Exclusive Dispatch.] Garbed in convict clothes, Charles W. Wappenstein, formerly Chief of Police in Seattle, is today convict No. 6539 in the State penitentiary. He arrived in Walla Walla this morning and went through the usual formality, except that the shaving of his head was delayed until Monday.

It was a hard duty for Warden Reed to perform, as Wappenstein was first brought West by Reed when Reed was Chief of Police in Seattle. He got Wappenstein for his chief of detectives and they worked together for years.

Wappenstein is surrounded by men whom he was instrumental in sending to prison.

ANGELENO IN DISTRESS.

[BY DIRECT WIRE TO THE TIMES.]

TACOMA (Wash.) May 4.—[Exclusive Dispatch.] J. Wang, chief dog catcher, while wandering around Center-street gulch, near the dog pound this morning, found a man crouched in the bushes. He wore no shoes and lay so motionless Wang thought him dead. He rolled the man over and the latter opened his eyes, turning them on Wang in alarm. Wang asked him his trouble. The man said he was sick. Wang asked if he had a home to go to and was answered in the negative. The man refused to tell anything further about himself.

Wang sent him to the Central station in a police patrol. There he said he was Sam Belinsky of Los Angeles. His purse contained ninety-five dollars in gold and thirty cents in silver. One pocket contained a deed to Los Angeles property. The police are caring for Belinsky.

THE TITANIC INQUIRY.

NEW YORK, May 4.—[By A. P. Night Wire.] Fred Dauler, a clerk employed by the Western Union Telegraph Company, was examined today by Senator William Alden Smith, chairman of the Senate committee investigating the Titanic disaster. Mr. Dauler is the father of the young man who informed E. J. Dunn, a New York merchant, that news of the Titanic's sinking was received here early Monday morning, April 15. Mr. Dauler testified that he had told his son nothing whatever of any such alleged message.

SACRAMENTO ELECTION.

Another One Will Have to Be Held As None of the Candidates Got a Majority.

[BY DIRECT WIRE TO THE TIMES.]

SACRAMENTO, May 4.—That none of the thirty-five candidates for City Commissioner under the new charter adopted last October have been elected by a majority vote, and that a second election will have to be held at which the ten candidates who received the highest vote will have to be voted on, was indicated at 11 o'clock tonight by complete returns from forty-six out of sixty-five precincts. Following are the ten leaders: E. J. Carraghar, 3875; Mayor M. H. Beard, 3714; Robert Callahan, 3308; C. A. Bliss, 3172; J. A. Filcher, 2932; E. M. Wilder, 2847; Mrs. Luella Johnston, 2738; M. J. Burke, 2631; J. B. Hicks, 2151, and M. J. Spaulding, 1643.

FUGITIVE IS CAPTURED.

State Police of Nevada Are on the Trail of Two Other Well-Mounted Convicts.

[BY A. P. NIGHT WIRE TO THE TIMES.]

CARSON CITY (Nev.) May 4.—George Bales, one of the three prisoners who escaped this week from the State Penitentiary, was captured near Reno today, in a lumber yard, and returned to the penitentiary tonight, by the State police.

The capture of Webber and Lyle, the other two, is problematical. They are both well-mounted on stolen horses, and their trail leads toward the Oregon or Idaho line, into country where they are at home. State policemen, who have been tracking them, have returned to this city.

THE BLAIR ESTATE.

CARSON CITY (Nev.) May 4.—In a decision disposing of $10,000,000 or more, the Supreme Court of Nevada reversed today the decision of the District Court and sustained the title of the Blair estate, which had been questioned by B. A. Gamble.

Gamble maintained that when the estate was sold to the Silver Peak Mining Company he held an option on the property. The decision today gives the whole history of the mines, which had been in litigation for twenty years.

CHARGED WITH ROBBERY.

SAN FRANCISCO, May 4.—[By A. P. Night Wire.] Deputy United States Marshal Warner left here today for Thalheim, Stanislaus county, to bring back William Frolich and Henning Baumbaural, arrested on a charge of having robbed the postoffice of that town, April 15.

ANGELENO WINS APPOINTMENT.

PHILADELPHIA, May 4.—[Exclusive Dispatch.] Dr. Ezra S. Fish of Los Angeles, a senior of the medical school of the University of Pennsylvania, has already won a hospital appointment. NEWS REPORTS FROM CORRESPONDENTS OF THE TIMES.

Pasadena.

BUSCH BUYS MUCH PROPERTY.

Spends Quarter of Million for Los Angeles Dirt.

Other Big Realty Sales Are Reported Closed.

Hundreds Participate in May Day Festival.

PASADENA, May 5.—While Adolphus Busch, the millionaire brewer, was on his way East from Pasadena he purchased more than a quarter of a million dollars worth of property in Los Angeles. The actual figures were $256,000. Announcement of the deals was made yesterday by his agent, Ernest H. Lockwood of this city, who effected the sales.

The property that was bought consists of two pieces, one, with a frontage of fifty feet on the west side of Spring street, beginning 200 feet south of Eighth street, he purchased from the Hamburger Realty and Trust Company for a consideration of $141,500, cash.

The other, which was purchased from E. H. Rowley of Los Angeles, adjoins this property on the north. It, also, has a frontage of fifty feet. For it the brewer paid $144,000.

Lockwood did not hear of the opportunity to buy until after Busch had departed from Los Angeles. Accordingly he telegraphed him on board the train, directing the message to Albuquerque. It reached Busch at Hutchinson, Kan., and the following reply was made under date of April 20:

"I have so much confidence in your good judgment and at your urgent recommendation to purchase Spring-street lots, I consent to buy at price and terms mentioned in your telegram, and I hope that eventually this deal will be a source of pleasure and revenue."

Lockwood closed the deal and then wired recommending the purchase of the other lot. The reply to this telegram came from St. Louis. It ran:

"All right. Having said A, suppose I will have to say B, and do it at your very earnest solicitation. Close deal for adjoining fifty feet and make necessary deposit."

The piece of property that Busch now owns is 100 feet by 165 feet in dimensions, the 100 feet being the frontage on Spring street. It is opposite a new $1,000,000 building that is going up and within a block of the new First National Bank building. The property now has only nominal improvements.

"No definite plans for improvement of the property have been made as yet," said Lockwood last night, "but Mr. Busch improves everything he buys, and doubtless will do something that Los Angeles will be proud of."

Several other sales were reported, also by Lockwood, yesterday.

Charles D. Durand of this city purchased from the Fair Oaks Tract Company, 115 acres northeast of Pasadena. The property is on the west side of Santa Anita boulevard and extends from New York avenue to Washington street. In part payment the purchaser sold to the Fair Oaks Tract Company property with a frontage of 200 feet on Colorado street, near Madison avenue. The total consideration in the deal was $212,500.

Dr. Charles A. Davis of this city sold to Carl Conrad twenty acres on the west side of Santa Anita boulevard south of Washington street, for a consideration of $20,000.

Lockwood, himself, purchased from Mrs. M. L. Bowers a valuable piece of property at the southeast corner of Colorado street and Madison avenue, selling to Mrs. Bowers in part exchange property at the northwest corner of Bellfontaine stret and Pasadena avenue. The consideration was $25,000.

CHILDREN MAKE MERRY.

Carmelita Playground was the scene of much enjoyment yesterday. The second annual May festival proved to be more enjoyable than the first to the school children of the city, who thronged the grounds.

Over 300 children took part in the programme. There were both afternoon and evening celebrations.

Little Miss Marion Banbury, the queen of the May, was a queen, indeed, and ruled in dignified fashion over her several hundred subjects.

A large part of the programmes both afternoon and evening consisted of representations of the folk dances of different people. Brilliant costumes in keeping with the place and time represented were worn by the children.

Last night the grounds were handsomely decorated with electric lights and Japanese lanterns. Many of the children's parents also attended and the seating capacity, which was 3000, was taxed to the limit to accommodate the crowd.

CHANGE IS TALKED OF.

Plans for a change in the route of the Oak Knoll line of the Pacific Electric Railway Company between Pasadena and Los Angeles are being considered by officials of the company.

If the project is carried out the line, instead of proceeding to Los Angeles by the way of Oneonta Park, will branch off at La Senda on Garfield avenue and pass through South Pasadena and Alhambra, entering Los Angeles by way of the Covina line. But two miles of track would have to be built and surveyors have already been put to work.

ROSES ARE EXHIBITED.

The Rose Show, which opened yesterday at No. 19 West Colorado street, attracted large crowds both afternoon and evening. Over 200 contributors brought in roses during the day and some of them are the most perfect ever grown in the city.

The first prize in the amateur class went to Mrs. W. H. Dunn, the second to Mrs. W. H. Reed and the third to Mrs. E. D. Wyman.

D. W. Coolidge took first prize in the commercial class and Robert Pegg second.

COLLEGE WOMEN'S CLUB.

Annual Outdoor Meeting of the South Pasadena Organization Is Held—Japanese Tea Is Given.

SOUTH PASADENA, May 4.—The annual outdoor meeting of the College Women's Club was held today at the home of Miss Louise Gatch, Valley View Road and B street. The dramatic section presented a Japanese play, "The Flowers of Yeddo," a comedy, adapted from the French, in which Miss Maud Howell of Cumnock School of Los Angeles took the leading part, and others in the play were Mrs. Roger Sterrett, Miss Phillipson and Miss Dickey, also of Los Angeles. A may garden, where the refreshments were served, a beautiful day, congenial and interesting guests, moved for the great success of the afternoon. About 150 were present.

JAPANESE TEA.

The Women's Home Missionary Society of the Methodist Church gave a Japanese tea yesterday afternoon at the home of Mrs. I. L. Spencer, No. 1852 Monterey road. The home was dainty with Cecile Brunner roses and bamboo. Mrs. Baird, superintendent of the Japanese home in Los Angeles, was present, and spoke on the work of the same. She brought with her three little Japanese orphans, inmates of the home. Miss Brodbeck of Los Angeles rendered several whistling solos. This was followed by tea served on the side porch, which was screened in by bamboo, and Mrs. Harry Hunt and Mrs. L. Schermerhorn, in Japanese costumes serving at the tea urns. A silver offering was taken for the benefit of the home.

NEWS BRIEFS.

Strange customs of a strange land, the romance and pathos of the orientals and the story of darkest India, will be related as only a native of that country can, when Miss Eva Clarke addresses the congregation of the Christian Church tomorrow morning. She will be gowned in the rich costume of the high caste Hindu lady. Her life has been devoted to studying the social and religious conditions of her country and to the uplifting of the women of India.

The erection of a $20,000 business block on Mission street opposite the postoffice is to be started soon. The present occupants of the building on the lot will remove at once, so that the building can be demolished.

A serious accident was narrowly avoided this morning at the corner of Fair Oaks and Mission street, when the Chaffey grocery truck, weighing five tons, which was swinging from Fair Oaks into Mission street, collided head on with Witte's auto. The latter machine was put out of commission, the axle and front wheels being smashed. Two passengers about to board the South Pasadena car narrowly escaped being run over.

Long Beach Chamber of Commerce Protests.

Dumping Filth Into Sea a Menace to Resorts.

Two Big Touring Cars Collide in Early Dawn.

LONG BEACH, May 4.—The proposed plan of disposing of the garbage of Los Angeles by towing it out to sea has aroused considerable feeling in Long Beach because of the danger of the refuse drifting ashore on the beach, and the City Council will adopt a resolution of protest Monday night. The protest sent today to the Los Angeles Board of Public Works by the Chamber of Commerce is as follows:

"The Board of Public Works, Los Angeles:

"Gentlemen: We note that you are planning to dispose of your city garbage by taking it out to sea by way of your San Pedro harbor and then dumping it.

"No doubt you are familiar with the fact that such methods have been employed on the Atlantic Coast and have proven injurious to numerous beach resorts.

"The city of Long Beach prides itself on the cleanliness of its beach, and we feel sure that the city of Los Angeles would in no way do anything that would be detrimental to the interest of this city. Hence we take this opportunity of calling your attention to the fact that the Chamber of Commerce of Long Beach makes a protest at this time against such disposal of your garbage.

"Hoping you will find some other means of accomplishing the same results, we remain

TOURING CARS COLLIDE.

Two big touring cars, one containing five young people and the other three men, met in a head-on collision this morning before daylight fifteen miles out on the Los Angeles boulevard, and both machines were badly wrecked.

The young people escaped injury, but two of the men were injured. Charles Monroe, aged 17, with three girls and a boy chum, was coming home from Los Angeles and met a big Stearns car driven by F. M. Dudley.

Monroe says the men were asleep and allowed their machine to crash into his, although he was on the right side of the road. The front ends of both machines were completely wrecked, the wheels torn off, the axles broken and the springs twisted into a mass of junk. The Stearns car plunged off the roadway and plowed its nose in an adjoining field. Dudley was thrown forward on the steering wheel and had his mouth severely mashed, while Ted McDonald, one of his companions, had a finger broken. News of the wreck was telephoned to town and garage people went after both machines and towed them in.

NEWS BRIEFS.

The body of Charles C. Parish arrived here today from Bassano, Alberta, Can., where he died April 27 from injuries and shock received in an accident. Final details were completed today for the flight of Frank Shaffer and Lieut. John Rodgers to Catalina and return next Saturday. The aviators will leave Long Beach at 10 o'clock, fly to San Pedro and alight in the harbor there on their pontoons. Then, rising from the water, they will wing their way to Avalon. They expect to return in order to meet the steamer Cabrillo about half-way. Arrangements have been made with the wireless to keep in touch with the flight as far as possible.

Patrolman W. B. Murphy, appointed on the police force a week ago, today handed in his resignation. T. C. Rice was appointed to succeed him.

After three hours' deliberation the jury in the Hotel Virginia liquor case last night returned a verdict, acquitting Manager Carl Stanley, who was charged with allowing guests to be served with liquor in their rooms. This was the third trial, the first resulting in a hung jury and the second being dismissed because of an improper summoning of the jury.

Monday night the La Follette Club will hold a meeting at the Auditorium, which will be addressed by G. E. Smythe of San Diego, who will speak on "What Johnson Forgot."

WILL HAVE PUBLIC LIBRARY.

San Gabriel Citizens Are to Enjoy One of the Essentials of Civilization After a Long Wait.

SAN GABRIEL, May 4.—One of California's oldest and most cultured communities has at last taken steps to supply a long-felt need. Libraries are considered as necessary as grocery stores in most cities, but this town has been jogging along in a self-satisfied sort of way since it was founded without a library. This is the need which is to be supplied.

Mrs. A. C. McCormick, a public-spirited woman, has donated the use of a hall and tables, and cases for the books have been contributed by other citizens. Plans are under way to secure the books and the new institution will be thrown open to the public within a few weeks.

NO SMALLPOX IN WATTS.

Some Malicious Person Telephoned to the County Health Officer Depicting a Distressing Condition.

WATTS, May 4.—Considerable indignation is felt over the fact that someone telephoned to the county health officer in Los Angeles that smallpox had broken out and that the town of Watts was full of scarlet fever. The county health officer in turn 'phoned to City Clerk Alexander to see to it that all places where smallpox or scarlet fever prevailed be quarantined at once, or he would come down and quarantine the town.

Mayor Dodd tried to locate the places complained of, but failed to find any disease. City Marshal Braswell took a physician, and he, too, failed to find a single case of contagious disease in the city. The only explanation offered is that someone who has been disappointed in a political way is trying to "play even." As a result of the investigation it is learned that health conditions in Watts were never better, and it appears that the report was intended only to injure Watts.

FILE PETITION.

On Monday the recall petitions, directed against H. J. Perkins and H. J. Clever, City Trustees, will be filed with the City Clerk. In this case only 200 signers were necessary, but 300 signers have been secured. Many people have expressed themselves as ready to vote for the removal of these men, but who did not care to sign the petitions.

In view of the fact that the leading candidate of the faction to which these men belong received only 375 votes at the late election, it becomes a possibility that they will be voted out of office. The matter comes before the City Council Tuesday night, when the time for the election will be set.

THE DRINKING MAN NEEDS TREATMENT

The Neal Three-Day Treatment Takes Away the Craving for Drink.

The appetite, craving and necessity for alcoholic stimulants is the result of continuous poisoning of the body tissues with alcohol. Just so long as a trace of alcohol remains in the system there will be a demand for more. Drinking men should receive treatment for alcoholic poisoning and not for a diseased condition, for alcoholism is not a disease, but a poisoning.

The Neal treatment of rapid elimination and neutralization will stop craving and necessity for liquor in three days' time, without the use of painful, dangerous hypodermic injections.

The Los Angeles Neal Institute, 945 So. Olive St., is one of fifty-three Neal Institutes in the United States, Canada and Australia, which has successfully treated hundreds of men and women who were addicted to strong drink.

For full particulars call at the Los Angeles Institute, or, write or phone G. U. Neal, manager, for Dr. Neal's free book. Phone Broadway 4602; A4072.

LOS ANGELES MOTHERS SHOULD REMEMBER THIS ADVICE.

If your child is listless, drooping; isn't sleeping well, is restless, doesn't eat heartily or is cross, irritable, out of sorts with everybody, stomach sour, feverish, breath bad; has stomachache, diarrhoea, sore throat or is full of cold, it means the little one's stomach, liver and 30 feet of bowels are filled with poisons and clogged up waste and need a gentle, thorough cleansing at once.

Give a teaspoonful of Syrup of Figs, and in a few hours the foul, decaying constipated matter, undigested food and sour bile will gently move on and out of its little bowels without nausea, griping or weakness, and you will surely have a well and smiling child shortly.

With Syrup of Figs you are not drugging your children, being composed entirely of luscious figs, senna and aromatics it cannot be harmful, besides they dearly love its delicious taste.

HATFIELD IS MAKING MONEY.

Takes Tribute from San Jacinto Ranchers.

Must Deliver Another Inch to Fulfill Contract.

Fourth Annual Musical Festival Will Be Given.

(BY DIRECT WIRE TO THE TIMES.)

RIVERSIDE, May 4.—[Exclusive dispatch.] Rainmaker Hatfield promises the grain ranchers of the San Jacinto, Perris and Elsinore valleys one more good rain under the $4000 contract entered into when it looked as though all the seed that had been planted was likely to burn up.

Hatfield has been making collections on his contracts with the farmers, and they are happy to dig up. The rainmaker has only one more inch to deliver. The ranchers argue that who ever was responsible for starting the soaking that came with the Ides of March they can well afford to charge against their bumper crops the mite that goes to Hatfield.

WILL GO UP HIGHER.

H. I. Priestley, for a number of years teacher of Spanish in the Riverside High School, is said to have handed his resignation with the trustees of the Corona School District, in order to accept the position of assistant librarian in the Spanish library of the University of California. Mr. Priestley served in the government schools in the Philippines at the close of the Spanish-American war.

MUSICAL FESTIVAL.

The fourth musical festival of the Riverside Oratorio Society, held under the direction of E. D. Keck, in the First Methodist Church, yesterday afternoon and evening, was the most successful of the events of this character so far given in the city.

The chorus of 100 voices presented "Judas Maccabaeus," the brilliant Handelian oratorio, last evening, to an enthusiastic audience of music-lovers. The chorus was supported by a few of Los Angeles' leading soloists, including Mrs. Von Benson-Matthews, pianist; Gage W. Christopher, basso, and J. F. Dupuy, tenor. Mrs. J. S. Bright, Jr., of San Bernardino took contralto parts.

This evening oratorio offering was preceded by a concert, which was participated in by the oratorio soloists and the members of the chorus, who presented Mendelssohn's Forty-second Psalm.

Shamel, representing the Bureau of Plant Industry of the Department of Agriculture at Washington, and in charge of investigations pertaining to the citrus fruit industry. Mr. Norton will make his property one of the show places of the valley.

Milton Churchill of Buffalo, N. Y., has purchased the C. O. Sjoston property on Victoria avenue, near Van Buren street. This comprises ten acres of navels. The consideration was $15,000.

Woman Says Mexico Is a Comfortable Place and Inter- Talk Is Buncombe.

RIO, May 4.—That the of rebellion in Mexico are very exaggerated and many of them false is the statement of Benjamin H. Wood, formerly of who arrived in this city from ena in Triomphe, Mex., today. Wood says there is no appar- reason for American intervention that there is any sign of a sanguinary struggle across the border.

The Woods home is on the peninsula of Lower California, near La Paz and Magdalena Bay, in the very heart of what is supposed to be the storm belt. Mrs. Wood states that she and her neighbors would know nothing of the carnagiferous war raging in their midst were it not for the American newspapers which find their way to them.

According to Mrs. Wood, one newspaper received by them told of the chartering of a special vessel to convey panic-stricken folks to safety This she positively denies. The steamer in question, according to her, plied its regular course and not a single passenger was carried except in a routine way. Coming north on the same boats and trains with her, Mrs. Wood states that there was but one American family leaving Mexico and they were on their regular trip to California to spend the summer.

Mrs. Wood blames the false war stories upon Americans who have large holdings in the southern republic and would like to see Mexican annexation to the United States so that they may colonize their immense holdings with Americans.

PREPARING ANNUAL BARBECUE.

Stanton Residents Are Preparing for the Civic Celebration, Which Is to Surpass Previous Efforts.

STANTON, May 4.—A largely-attended meeting of the various committee appointed by the Chamber of Commerce to prepare for the annual barbecue and civic celebration was held at the City Hall last night.

The committee on the barbecue dinner reported to the effect that a much more elaborate menu would be served than is customary at such celebrations and many special products of California will be featured and demonstrated in connection with the regulation Spanish diner of barbecued meats and frijoles.

The committee on prizes has determined to offer a silver loving cup to be committed for one year to the care of the Chamber of Commerce from that city in Orange county from which the largest number of visitors come; other cups and prizes will be given for field-day sports, baseball games and other competitions between the pupils attending the following schools: Savannah, Magnolia, Cypress, Centralia, Alamitos, Westminster, Ocean View, Bolsa, Wintersburg and Orangethorpe. It is expected that all of these schools will declare Thursday, May 23, a holiday, and this celebration will be a great reunion picnic among the people of Western Orange county.

Free joy rides, dancing and other amusements will be provided. The Pacific Electric and Southern Pacific railroads will run special trains to accommodate the crowds.

H. P. Kempinsky opened his merchandise store today and had his place beautifully decorated with flowers. Souvenirs were given to all the ladies who attended. He presented to the people of the city one of the most up-to-date stores, with one of the best assorted stocks of goods, in Orange county.

The carpenters have completed work on the electric station and water works, and the pipe-fitters and painters will follow immediately. The company has installed two large tanks in a covered tower-house between thirty and forty feet high, and will use electric power for pumping purposes.

The residence of C. K. Cochran on Court street is now enclosed and will be one of the most charming homes in the townsite of Stanton.

JURY COULDN'T GET TOGETHER.

Damage Case Results in a Mistrial.

Voting Strength of County Largely Increased.

Will Dedicate New Catholic Church Sunday.

SAN BERNARDINO, May 4.—The jury in the Miller $50,000 damage suit against the Pacific Electric was discharged this morning by Judge Oster, failing to agree on a verdict.

The jury stood seven against the company and five for, on the first ballot taken at 3 o'clock yesterday afternoon, and not once in the twenty-two hours the jurors were locked up did the balloting change. One juror declared from the jury box this morning that he would stay until doomsday before he would vote to force a judgment against the company.

The case grows out of the death of George Miller, Jr., who was killed by a car at Harlem Springs last December. Contributory negligence was a main grounds for defense. The case will be retried Tuesday, July 23.

VOTING STRENGTH.

There are approximately 22,000 voters on the Great Register of this county. Of the new registration since January 1, the line-up is as follows: Total new registration, 16,411; men, 9746; women, 6665; party preferences, Republicans, 9904; Democrats, 2900; Socialists, 1274; Prohibitionists, 1124; decline to state, 1209. NEW CHURCH.

Sunday morning at 10:30 the new Catholic Church will be dedicated with appropriate services by Bishop Conaty, assisted by a number of prelates from all sections of Southern California. The building cost $24,000, and is beautified with figure windows costing $3000, and an altar, which is a magnificent piece of ecclesiastical furniture. During the afternoon a class of 160 children and adults will be confirmed.

ACCEPTED AT ANNAPOLIS.

Merritt B. Curtis received a dispatch today from Annapolis that he has passed his mental examinations for admission to the military school. A month hence he will go East to take the physical examination. Mr. Curtis, who is a son of Mr. and Mrs. I. H. Curtis of this city, was appointed several months ago, and since then has been engaged in training to meet the entrance requirements of the naval academy. He is a graduate of the San Bernardino High School.

ELECT OFFICERS.

The Civic Improvement Society has organized with the election E. E. Katz as president; Mrs. H. C. Devening, vice-president; Mrs. J. W. Bishop, secretary, and W. S. Boggs, treasurer. A campaign for a cleaner and more attractive city has already begun, assisted by the Mayor and city officials, generally. In all parts of town squads are cleaning up. The club has now a membership of 300, and expects to enroll every man, woman and child in the city.

WOULDN'T STICK.

William Kiefer, charged with furnishing a minor liquor to smuggle into the County Jail to Dr. A. W. McDavitt, dentist, was discharged from custody today, and the complaint dismissed. The hearing developed that all the evidence against the accused was the unsupported statement of the minor.

Santa Ana.

WILL DEDICATE NEW BUILDING.

HOUSE OF WORSHIP COMPLETED BY PRESBYTERIANS.

Exercises Will Be Held During May and Will Extend Over Several Days—Structure Cost Thirty-five Thousand Dollars and Is a Model of Convenience and Beauty.

SANTA ANA, May 4.—On Sunday, May 19, the new $35,000 United Presbyterian Church of Santa Ana, now practically completed, will be dedicated, and another fine edifice will be added to Santa Ana, a home of fine churches. The week commencing with May 19, will be a week of dedication and festivities for the congregation, thankful for having secured a place of worship of uncommon beauty and appointments.

The dedication sermon will be preached by Rev. T. H. McMichael, D.D., president of Monmouth College of Monmouth, Ill., one of the leading men of the denomination. Monday evening, May 20, will be given an organ recital by the church's new organist, C. Percival Garrett, who comes from Hamilton, Ont., and on the evening following will be given a reception and banquet in honor of past pastors and visiting former members of the church.

The faithful congregation of the United Presbyterian Church have waited long and worked long for the building that it is soon to occupy. The congregation was formed on December 26, 1876, at a meeting of a few men and women at the home of James McFadden. Among those present was Rev. D. S. McHenry, the church's first pastor. In 1878 the first church was built on property on East Fourth street, still owned by the church. In 1897 this church was added to, and that church has been the U.P. house of worship ever since.

The congregation is enterprising, and contains many of the prominent men of the community upon its roll. Soon after the present pastor, Rev. W. L. C. Samson, an earnest and able man, took charge of the work six years ago, the determination to have a new church home began to crystallize. A few months ago a new site was purchased at the corner of Sixth and Bush streets, and it was not long before plans were drawn for the new church.

The architect is H. M. Patterson of Los Angeles. The building is in the Grecian style inside and out. The church measures seventy by 115 feet. The auditorium measures sixty-eight by forty-six feet, and has a seating capacity of 450. Immense sliding doors open into a big Sunday-school-room, provided with a gallery. With this room, the seating capacity of the church is 1000, with every person in view of the speaker.

The church is provided with eleven classrooms for Sunday-school work.

The basement is thoroughly fitted up for socials and church suppers and banquets. The kitchen is a marvel of convenience. An excellent heating and ventilating plant has been installed.

One of the features of the church is the $5000 pipe-organ, the gift of Andrew Getty, vice-president of the First National Bank of Santa Ana. This organ is a Murray-Harris, made in Los Angeles.

Rev. Samson, the pastor, is popular in his congregation, an undiring worker and leader, and with the new church he and his congregation look for a new era of prosperity to begin.

ADDITION TO HOTEL.

San Jacinto Hostelry Is to Have Its Capacity Materially Increased by New Annex.

SAN JACINTO, May 4.—Carpenters are making headway on the $10,000 addition to the San Jacinto Hotel. The addition will give the hotel a frontage on Central avenue of about 300 feet and will increase the sleeping-rooms about thirty. It is planned to have the building completed by the first of July.

BUY LANDS.

G. R. Davis, who arrived last week from Redlands and purchased sixteen acres on Hewitt street, has already begun the construction of a dwelling on the property, which he will rush to completion at the earliest possible moment.

Oren B. Waite, secretary of the California Methodist Sunday-School Association, has purchased the Spaulding improved eleven-acre place on Hewitt street for $5500, together with a ten-acre alfalfa field adjoining the Spaulding property on the north, paying $350 an acre for the latter. Mr. Waite and family expect to remove to San Jacinto upon the close of the school year at Los Angeles.

Charles McGary has let the contract for a $4000 bungalow on his place on Seventh street. It will be a story-and-a-half, eight-room dwelling, modern in all particulars. Mr. McGary is establishing a model dairy ranch that, when his plans are completed, will be second to none in Southern California.

F. H. Smith this week purchased the R. S. Smith improved ranch on West Seventh street for $11,000 spot cash, and is now in possession. Mr. Smith, the seller, has accepted a position with the Cawston Ostrich Company and will act as manager of the San Jacinto farm.

NEWS BRIEFS.

O. C. Tripp left this week with a force of workmen for his 1100-acre cattle ranch in San Diego, near Warner ranch, where he will string several miles of barb wire fence.

The San Jacinto Register has been purchased this week by Chauncey M. Kline of Los Angeles, a practical newspaper man. Gustave Miller, who has been publishing the paper under a lease for the past two and one-half years, will remain with the paper as foreman.

On the first of the month the San Jacinto Resort Company purchased the Soboba Lithia Hot Springs from Mrs. J. T. Ritchey of Los Angeles. The consideration is $30,000—one-third cash, balance in one and two years. The new owners plan to expend large sums of money in exploiting these famous springs.

LOZIER 1913

Center Control

Center control logically follows left-hand drive and is sure to become standard on all American motor cars. Center control as adopted by Lozier for 1913 eliminates the one great objection to the popular fore-door body.

The first fore-door car built in America was the Lozier Lakewood, now in its fourth successful season. This innovation in design met with the instant approval of the public and fore-door bodies are now standard on all open cars, in spite of the fact that manufacturers have never been able to design a perfect fore-door body on a right-hand drive car, because of the position of the control levers.

The adoption of left-hand drive on the 1913 Lozier has made it possible to place the gear-shifting and emergency brake levers in the center of the car, in a position convenient to the driver and at the same time, entirely out of the way of occupants of both front seats. The bug-bear of the body designer has been eliminated.

The accompanying illustration will give you only a general idea of the beautiful Lozier fore-door bodies. You must see the car itself to appreciate its good looks; you must ride in it to realize how far it is ahead of other motor cars mechanically.

In the Type 72 1913 Lozier you get Left-Hand Drive, Center Control, Automatic-Level Oiling System, Double Magneto with Triple Ignition, a Six-cylinder Motor which develops more than 80 actual horse-power—and all the other features which have led men who have owned many makes of cars—"Men Who Know"—to call the Lozier the best car built in America.

It's really worth your while to investigate this remarkable car. See it at our salesrooms and arrange for a demonstration. 32-page catalog on request.

NEW GRAND ARMY POST.

Probably the Last Ever to Be Organized Comes Into Being to Honor the Late Admiral Evans.

One of the last Grand Army Posts that will probably ever be established in this country, was organized last evening in the Walker Theater building, under the direction of M. N. Myrick, commander of Godfrey Post, Pasadena. About thirty veterans of the fast-fading list of survivors of the Civil War were enrolled. Maj. J. Q. A. Walker was named the acting commander and told of the selection of the name which is the Admiral Robley D. Evans Post, No. 200.

Members of the other posts of the G.A.R., the Women's Relief Corps, Sons and Daughters of Veterans, and a number of out-of-town visitors were present at the mustering of the last post in the Department of California and Nevada.

Previous to his death Admiral Evans stated that he would feel highly honored should the post be named after him and in a letter to Maj. Walker suggested that his name be used in the exact form as adopted. This letter has been framed and will form a part of the decorative scheme of the new post rooms.

If You Want High Class Land
Buy This in San Diego County
In Tracts of Five, Ten, Twenty or More Acres.
Go out and see for yourself; the most Beautiful Country Residences in Southern California; $100 to $130 Per Acre.
Sandy loam, black soil, all under cultivation, under irrigation ditch and creek running water through the place, all the year around; present crops on alfalfa, fruit, grain, etc. What crop can't you raise on this land? Especially walnuts, alfalfa, celery, onions, potatoes, or any citrus fruit; absolutely frostless. What do you think about the price? I should ask not less than $400.00 per acre. Do you want me to do as the moneyed people, spend big money for advertising, and charge you more for the land? I am saving money for you. I do not want the newspapers to get the money. I want you to get the land cheap; this land is worth four times the amount I ask for it. No mortgage on the land; you pay one-fourth down or cash, balance 6 per cent. as long as you want. This is within two miles of good city; up-to-date churches, schools, etc., in San Pasqual Valley, one of the richest in all Southern California; electric car line close by, running from San Diego to Los Angeles; 14 miles from the ocean. I am not trying to sell you high, dry land; this is all level valley land; you will have no trouble to raise from $200 to $500 per acre on this soil in one year. I want you to realize that I am offering you the very best land, water and climate in this State. If you were to see this beautiful land, you would buy, I am sure. This is land that does not need any false advertising. Go and see it for yourself, you will find the grain high over your head, if you are not over six feet tall; 40 acres of this land, a year from now, will bring you $50,000.00. You reap the greatest benefit from this part of the country. Do not wait until the Panama Canal is completed, as you will then have to pay full value of property. Buy today; now is the time to buy!
$200 or More Down, the Rest 6 per cent.
If you want to buy a home for yourself, and want to buy right, see me. You will get a fair and square deal. You will buy and own land at your own price, not paper talk. Every man and woman who buys this land is a sales agent for it; every neighbor and friend will be glad to have some of it; it is the best land and water with climate in the State. The poorest man or woman has enough to buy some of this land, and if you don't, it is your own fault. Don't think, for a minute, that everything advertised in the newspapers, is a black horse. This land is advertised correctly, exactly as it is.

PLEASURE A BUSINESS THAT TAKES A WEEK.

That Shrine Programme's So Full that No Room Could Be Found for More Events, So Visitors Will Have Enough Time for Sleep—Great Variety of Entertainment and Pleasure Provided.

WITH every day of their visit filled to overflowing with varied attractions, parades, trips to the beaches and points of interest, interspersed with concerts, receptions and vaudeville, the Shriners will be busy this week. The programme arranged leaves only enough hours each night for repose. The rest of the time is devoted to sightseeing and amusements of every kind.

For the lover of nature there will be rides into the country and to the foot of the majestic mountains. For the Nobles from the Middle West there will be the ocean and its seaside joys. Theaters will be thronged with Shriners, and every Angeleno girl will smile at the gallant members of the Arab patrols and wave a greeting to the members of the Imperial Council in their impressive ceremonial robes.

The city is decorated, washed and adorned for the carnival. The hundreds of thousands of residents are prepared to enter into the spirit of the occasion and join with their guests in making merry. Santa Catalina will receive the Imperial Council members and their ladies. Pasadena will entertain within her beautiful confines. Venice, Santa Monica, Long Beach, and in fact, all of Southern California is bowing a welcome to the Shriners, as they pour into the city on every train, marching down the streets under a miles-long, multicolored, canopy of Japanese lanterns, waving flags and tossing banners.

NO ROOM FOR MORE.

Los Angeles at her best, with no chance of rain to spoil hats or expensive gowns, has all her attractions ranged in order. If more could have been crowded into the eight days' programme, Flint and his corps of aides would have provided it, but there is no room for more. As it is, the Nobles will do well to wear their easiest shoes as they are piloted to Pasadena's attractions, motored about this city's beautiful residence streets, given barbecues at a big western ranch, introduced to Father Neptune and meet pretty girls at receptions and other social functions.

A steamer ride to Catalina will delight the members of the Imperial Council. Lovers of an ancient Spanish barbecue will enjoy the feast prepared by Eddie Maier at his "El Selecto" ranch. To many the plucking of ostriches will prove a novelty and thousands will go into raptures over the beautiful drives and foothill scenery.

Vaudeville attractions, concerts, motor jaunts, individual picnics and a series of gorgeous parades and electric spectacles will be among the events that will crowd one upon the other with rapidity.

JOY OF PEACE.

The official Shrine programme unfolds its first round of enjoyment today, though it will be tempered with the peace of Sunday. With the arrival of Imperial Potentate Treat at the Salt Lake station this morning, the official head of the joyous throng will at once assume sway as king of the merrymakers and the thousands of visiting Noble and their ladies.

Residents of Los Angeles have donated hundreds of automobiles to the service of the visitors and tours will be made of the principal points of interest. The machines will leave from the Olive street side of Central Park, each under the guidance of a driver familiar with the best residence sections and show places of the city.

Many coming from sections where tough old winter has struggled with young spring to the green lawns, myriad flowers and beautiful foothills clothed with wild flowers will find the motor ride a charm. Those who came here five years ago will gasp with amazement at the new blocks, imposing buildings and solidified business district. The sweep of the environs with views of distant mountains and stray glimpse of the sea will charm and allure.

For those who feel like entering into the reverential spirit there will be a special service at Temple Baptist Church this evening. Selections on the pipe organ, hymns by the chorus choir and anthems sung by the soloists, together with an impresive sermon by Rev. Dr. Brougher will make the service a notable one.

WHERE POPPIES BLOOM.

Clad in brightest robes bestowed by nature and with gay decorations stretching over the business section, Pasadena will welcome the Nobles and their ladies tomorrow. The poppies are still spangling the foothills and the roses are at their best. There will be a short ride over the Pacific Electric line to the intersection of Fair Oaks avenue and Arlington drive. There waiting automobiles will care for all the visitors. A drive around the city, a visit to the noted Busch sunken gardens and a barbecue at Tournament Park, will make the occasion a pleasant one. Cawston Ostrich Farm will prove a source of delight especially to the women whose acquaintance with the big birds has heretofore been confined to plumes and willow tips.

The Pasadena trip does not form all of tomorrow's attractions. For those who love the tang of the salt waves and the bracing ride across the channel, the trip to Catalina will be a pleasant one. The vistors will be the officers of the Imperial Council and their wives. Special cars will leave at 8 o'clock from the Pacific Electric station conveying the passengers to the dock of the Catrillo.

The hotels will be the scene of receptions and reunions tomorrow evening. The Temples having headquarters at the various downtown hotels will vie with one another in extending a cordial greeting to their brother Nobles and ladies. Islam Temple of San Francisco plans a brilliant function at the Alexandria and the Hawaiians will give their welcome at the Lankershim.

Others who like good music and fetching vaudeville will find their way to the Auditorium on Fifth street, where bands and patrols will add variety to various headline acts, and so on down through the week.

SHALL HAVE JUSTICE, DECLARES MR. KNOX.

Secretary of State, Here Twenty Minutes, Makes Promise to Americans in Mexico and Will Meet a Delegation Upon His Return This Week—Will Speak in Los Angeles Next Thursday Evening.

SECRETARY OF STATE PHILANDER C. KNOX spent a busy twenty minutes in Los Angeles yesterday, but he absolutely and unqualifiedly refused to talk politics. Arriving at the Arcade station at 2:05 p.m., Mr. Knox shook hands with nearly a hundred persons, greeted a number of old friends, listened to a brief statement from the head of a delegation of Mexican refugees, talked to a dozen newspaper men, and left at 2:25 p.m., for Santa Barbara.

The first question that was fired at the Secretary of State was this:

What do you think of the spreading sentiment for President Taft?"

The Secretary's eyes crinkled as his face broke into a smile.

"I made a promise to myself when I left Washington that I would not talk politics on this trip," he replied. "I do not want to talk politics, either international or domestic."

"Then you have nothing to say regarding Col. Roosevelt or his efforts to capture a third term?" was inquired.

"Nothing," was the brief response.

However, the Secretary, despite his promise to himself, will talk politics—sound politics—in Los Angeles. He will give his views from the speaker's platform at the big Taft meeting, that will be held at No. 930 South Grand avenue, Thursday night. The Secretary of State was not at all reluctant about giving his consent to this plan. He will address a meeting of the board in San Francisco and will start for Los Angeles on the 9th, arriving at 7:30 in the evening. An automobile will await him at the train, and he will be hurried to the meeting place. This will be the first opportunity of the voters of Los Angeles to hear a member of the Cabinet speak upon campaign issues, and the Taft committee is already besieged at its headquarters in the Citizens' Bank building, for tickets. Secretary Knox's address is expected to be an exhaustive review of the issues with special reference to the desirability of renominating President Taft. It will be the closing meeting of the Taft campaign.

One little incident which occurred while the crowd of visitors were filing into the private car to shake Mr. Knox's hand, showed his decisive mind. Hugh B. Evans, a wealthy land and mine owner in Sinaloa, walked up to Secretary Knox, and, taking a charity tag from his coat lapel, attached it to Secretary Knox's buttonhole.

WAR, RAPINE, LOOT IS AIM.

Reason for Mobilization at San Diego Out.

Crew Encamped on ...erican Border.

Americans Across the Line Ready to Flee.

Gaunt anarchy in all its hideous nakedness has extended its infiltrations into the very vitals of the Mexican federation and lives of American citizens resident in the danger zone are hanging in the balance.

Such is the gist of news smuggled past the rigorous censorship over communications, which has been received in this city in the last two days.

While the contending factions have descended upon the rich pickings of the laguna district of central Mexico, it is asserted that a no less hungry horde of Socialistic ne'er-do-wells is encamped on the northern border of Lower California with the intention of entering the neighboring republic at the first intimation that the United States intends to restore order by the use of the mailed fist.

Leaders in the I.W.W. movement openly admit that the call for the clans of idleness to mobilize at San Diego is not for the purpose of fighting in the interest of "free speech," as many have been made to believe but rather as the initial step in a campaign of rapine and loot which these outcasts hope to inaugurate in Baja, California as soon as the Madero government shall have fallen.

The ultimate object of the I.W.W. invasion of the southern extremity of California is simply to establish a new republic based on Socialistic principles, according to the leaders of the unwashed bands flocking here from many parts of the United States.

A journey aggregating sixty miles made by a representative of The Times along the border showed the presence of three "armies" ready to enter Mexico.

While the presence of so-called vigilantes prevented the I.W.W.'s from acting with undue haste, several of the leaders admitted that one band of sixty is well supplied with arms and patiently waiting to enter the promised land as soon as the downfall of Madero shall have been assured by notice of intervention.

A SORRY CHOICE.

Americans living along the border below San Diego are preparing to leave, declaring their preference of falling into Mexican hands rather than into the hands of the law-defying element known to be camping on this side of the line.

Perhaps the most feared of the I.W.W. bosses now menacing Lower California, in the opinion of those familiar with the situation, is Peter Christensen, who at the head of a large force entered Sorento a few days ago with the announced intention of passing the international boundary as soon as a sufficient numer of recruits should have arrived to ensure success in the undertaking.

Despite the fact that Christensen is known by the police of Los Angeles to be a paroled convict, he was allowed to slip through the hands of the vigilantes and is now camped within striking distance of the town of Tia Juana.

Another force of "liberals" at a point just north of the northern extremity of the Guadalupe Mountains is under the command of Red Martin, said to be a former delegate of the I.W.W. and recently sent to Southern California to recruit adherents to the forces of anarchy, which he hopes to lead to victory on the other side of the line.

Detectives connected with the Los Angeles force have known for some time that arms were being smuggled into Southern California, but as the owners did not attempt to take them into Mexico nothing could be done to stop the importation.

A short distance to the east is another camp of I.W.W.'s consisting of the remnants of the force formerly under the command of G. Hawkins, who recently was taken prisoner by the San Diego authorities and now is being held on the charge of trying to wreck the City Jail. All of these soldiers appeared to be well supplied with food, but no arms were in sight when a reporter called at their camps.

While still harping on the alleged injustice meted out to them by the so-called vigilantes of San Diego, some of the more talkative members openly asserted that a new "republic" is the acme of their ambition.

Meanwhile, the Mexican authorities were cognizant of every move along the border and while the loyalty of the Mexican soldiers might be questioned the officers asserted they would fight against any body of I.W.W.'s that might attempt to cross the line on trouble bent.

Houses destroyed in the last revolution were pointed out as well as the few cannon possessed by the Madero troops, but the officers asserted that the minute that the United States shall declare its intention of crossing the frontier fighting will commence.

The finding of the body of a man supposed to be called "Latta," a few miles south of Tia Juana was also pointed out as evidence that the Mexicans will permit no spying by the invaders. The Mexican records show that the American committed suicide, but the officers smile knowingly when the case is alluded to.

BOTH SIDES READY.

Apparently both sides are ready for action the minute steps shall be taken to enforce intervention. All Americans living in Mexico are preparing to leave at the first sign of trouble. At the same time private advices slipped past the censors of the Madero regime assert the Americans resident in Mexico City have collected a defense fund amounting to $30,000, together with 1000 rifles and 250,000 rounds of ammunition, all of which has been segregated in a territory less than four blocks square around the American legation.

It is asserted that more than 750,000 cartridges were returned to this government when it became known that Mexican authorities had placed a duty of $30,000 on the importation of arms intended for the preservation of American lives.

By this measure American residents of the capital were able to obtain a reduction of duties to $14,000 but much bitterness was engendered because Madero did not order the arms imported free.

A telegram received here last night from Vera Cruz announces that 250 conductors and engineers formerly employed by the Mexican railroad, running from the capital to Vera Cruz, had succeeded in getting away with their families, but many of them were obliged to leave behind their personal effects.

During the week that American train operatives had been on strike on this short road, it is asserted seven locomotives were rendered useless.

Agents of the Sonora News Company telegraphed their store at Parral had been looted by rebels operating under Orozco and $30,000 worth of merchandise stolen.

All of the newspapers received from the interior of the unhappy country announce the appearance on the streets of "alcances" inflaming public opinion against Americans, and those stranded on Mexican soil are trying to leave the country before their lives are further jeopardized by the contending factions.

WATCHING EMMA.
AND SAN DIEGO'S READY.

The arrival in this city of Emma Goldman, the high priestess of anarchy, to counsel with the hobo I.W.W. gang at San Diego, brought a delegation of citizens from there yesterday to counsel with the United States District Attorney's office. At the head of the citizens who wanted to know what to do in case the woman goes to San Diego and begins to preach anarchy, was Chief of Detectives De La Cour, who is watching the undesirables in behalf of the San Diego Chamber of Commerce.

In the absence of Dist.-Atty. McCormick the men saw Assistant District Attorney Robinson, and the situation was fully and freely discussed. As a result of the conference, instructions were given them to see to it that every violator of the law is arrested, and that if the Goldman woman appears in San Diego to make trouble, a close watch should be kept upon her. In her case, the authorities will move slowly, because they recognize the fact that she is looking for the advertisement that might follow her arrest. She wants to pose as a "martyr to the cause," and she will be spared that opportunity if possible.

A programme agreed upon between the local officials in San Diego and the Federal authorities here will be carried out if I.W.W. infractions of the law conflict with the Federal statutes.

Spring in Yosemite Valley.

Most of the trails and the road to the Big Trees are open, the air is clear and bracing, and the whole valley invites you to come. Leave Los Angeles 9:40 p.m. daily. Standard sleepers; dining car service. The easy way—SOUTHERN PACIFIC.

AGED WOMAN FALLS.

Drops from Piazza to Pavement at Home, Fracturing Skull and Hip, and Death May Result.

While walking on an upper piazza Mrs. Maria A. Wattells, 85 years old, No. 627 West Fifteenth street, fell to the pavement below early yesterday morning and sustained injuries that may result in death. Dr. Prigge, 614 Pacific Electric building, was summoned to attend the patient, and found both the skull and hip fractured.

Owing to the woman's age she was treated at her home, and her condition is serious. Her friends believe she became dizzy.

MISSISSIPPI RELIEF.

All persons having articles of clothing for the relief of sufferers by the floods in the Mississippi Valley, are requested to send them promptly to the home of Mrs. E. Swickard, No. 215 West Fourteenth street, that they may be forwarded at the earliest possible moment to the devastated district.

HE'S FINED A HUNDRED.

Jim Hoy, a Chinaman arrested by Plainclothes Officers Watson and White on a charge of conducting a lottery joint at Main and Arcadia streets, was fined $100 in Police Judge Frederickson's court yesterday on the testimony presented by the police. His two companions, Ah Sam and Ah See who were found in the room at the time of the raid were discharged as there was no evidence to show that they wittingly were concerned in the sale of the tickets.

GRAND JURY'S WORK.

The county grand jury will meet again Tuesday to resume its investigation of alleged breach of contract in connection with the interior furnishings of the Hall of Records. It may also resume the inquiry into the present condition of steam vessels entering Los Angeles Harbor in the way of lifeboats, life preservers, rafts, wireless apparatus, collision bulkheads and other safety appliances. This inquiry will later be incorporated into a report which will be used at the next session of the State Legislature in getting more stringent State navigation laws passed.

Los Angeles (Loce Ahng-hayl-ais.)

Entered at the Postoffice as mail matter of Class II.

A REPTILE.
A man prominent in Socialist and labor circles at Seattle cursed the flag of the country that has nourished him. This country is his only by adoption and the suit for his denaturalization proves that in receiving him America warmed a snake in its bosom.

SOMETHING LOVELY.
The Rose Carnival at Santa Rosa must have been loveliness incarnate. The flowers there are nourished by days of caressing radiance and by nights of moonlight witchery, dewy stars and filmy sea mist. Santa Rosa is an exquisite strain in the perfect symphony of the melodious Southland.

THEY NEVER KNOCK.
The "sugar bowl" of America was full of water last week, with two rivers pouring their floods into the cane country of Louisiana. True to the home spirit, the newspapers down there may cautiously admit that the soil is a trifle moist, but as for floods, they know of only that one in which Noah seems to have been cast for the hero part.

MIGHTY LUCKY.
Chief Sebastian requests the aid of citizens in preventing crimes during Shrine week. This does not mean that citizens are asked to refrain from shooting up the town. It is only a suggestion that every man keep others from picking his pocket so that he can spend his coin himself in showing our visitors a good time. Los Angeles has entertained large throngs in the past and has always been fortunate in suffering the minimum of depredations at the hands of thieves.

THE RIGHT SORT.
Los Angeles society is never so happy as when it is doing things. It would rather work for weeks in the preparation of a clever entertainment than to sip tea under the spreading palms and upon the green lawn of some handsome home in a fashionable district. In the performance of "Jappyland" Thursday night, four hundred of the city's smart set were participants. A Four Hundred which can organize and accomplish something is an indication of a healthy state of society.

A VEXING PROBLEM.
The Methodists are facing an old and vexing question which we shall not try at this writing to settle for them. It is said that at their next general conference a recommendation will be made to limit pastorship to five years. This system was in vogue until about twelve years ago. Under its operation no one charge may retain the same pastor for a longer period than the specified time; a preacher may be sent to another church for a year, however and then be returned to his old congregation for another five years. The big churches do not want the little preachers and the big preachers do not want the little churches. A soaring sky pilot who has attained the rarified atmosphere of rich pulpits and large congregations does not care to become a circuit rider in the mountain districts where the paid salary for a year might not buy a well-tailored suit.

ARTISTIC BULLIES.
A pupil of a local music school is alleged to have been choked because she did not produce a high note properly. Quite without regard to the merits in this case, we are pleased to reflect that genius often takes advantage of its poetic license to make a proper ass of itself. The average music teacher of reputation, especially if he be foreign, as seems most often the case (and if he be not foreign, he usually apes it) raves and tears his hair when testing an inferior voice and imagines he is being frank when he is only being brutal. He has spasms of carefully trained anger to indicate his torture at the sound of a false note, but it is not his fine artistic soul which is suffering at all. He would make just as much show of his outraged musical ear and culture if his sensibilities were like the hide of a rhinoceros. The hysteria of these fellows is not temperament half as often as it is peacock pose and cigarettes.

GOOD ADVICE.
We have often heard preachers say that a minister who could make a living at nothing else is not fit to occupy the pulpit. Now comes Supt. Francis of the public schools with an application of this idea to the teacher. In his opinion every pedagogue ought to have some experience in the world outside of the classroom and he does not hesitate to say that this experience may be gained only by grappling with the problem of self-support for a time in some other line than teaching. The world is a great school and a man may not connect it at any point without receiving its instructions. Men are more richly and more practically informed by experience than by books. What a man has lived he knows for an incontrovertible fact, but that he reads is speculation and theory until it has been demonstrated by conduct. When Emile Zola was asked where he secured his education he replied, "In the streets of Paris." God forbid that we should educate all Los Angeles schoolteachers in the streets of Paris; but a year in one of the countless activities of local industry or commerce would certainly help any of them.

THE PEACE OF THE WORLD.
To promote the peace of the world by an alliance of five or seven of its greatest nations, which shall agree to submit all national differences to arbitration, and to use their armies and navies only to enforce such peace, is a project that has been advocated by the greatest statesmen of Europe and America. To destroy tens of thousands of human beings, to burn cities and lay waste fields, in order to determine questions of boundaries or secure commercial supremacy is a relic of the practices of ages gone and is out of harmony with the progressive civilization of the twentieth century.

The plan to secure a world-wide peace which was submitted in The Times of Thursday last may be faulty in some particulars, and some of its details may be impracticable, but its purpose is entitled to the commendation of every humane and broad-minded man.

The author of the "Dynamic Plan to Guarantee and Maintain Universal Peace with Honor" expressly says that "the plan would, of course, require revision, amplification and perfection through the concurrence of great international minds acting conjointly for the common purpose." He does not submit the plan for immediate action, but for the thoughtful consideration to which it is entitled and which it will receive.

It cannot be disposed of by calling it "the vaporings of egotism and the vacuities of senility" or by denouncing it as "a silly suggestion of unhappy origin" whose author was inspired by "a bombastic desire to exploit himself." It is a plan that must stand upon its own merits and not upon the merits or demerits of its author. In the discussion which it may evoke The Times will not find it necessary to descend into the cesspool of journalism in which the Express wallows, for it does not deem that any cause can be either promoted or discouraged by throwing dirt with a blackguard.

BEVERIDGE.
The people of Los Angeles will soon have the felicity of listening to ex-Senator Albert J. Beveridge, who went into the United States Senate from Indiana with very little opposition, and went out without any opposition at all. He comes to enlighten us on the necessity of sending a delegation to Chicago to participate with Illinois and Pennsylvania in the mortuary ceremonies which will attend upon the political demise and burial of Col. Roosevelt.

Possibly the ex-Senator may vary the monotony of his prepared harangue by telling us why he made an earnest fight to place lemons on the free list. The Senator was one of the leaders in the fight against the tariff on citrus fruits, and of course the fruit men and other people of Southern California will be delighted to have him instruct them on national policies.

TREAT THE NOBLES NOBLY.
A great line of caravans has trailed in a long line across the desert, and all will soon reach here, many coming in today and the last one to be here by Monday. It is said that the combined hosts will number not less than 40,000, and with the visitors who will come to see the show the population of the city will be increased by about 60,000 souls.

Nearly all these travelers crossing the burning sands seeking rest and refreshment in this oasis are Americans and, paradoxical as it may sound, they are all nobles. We who are to the manner born, or at least adopted to it, must show that there is nothing cheap in us. We must be as noble as our noble visitors.

These representatives of this high order of Masonry number among them the leading men of every community from which they come. Consider how it is in our own city. The Masonic order includes in its ranks the leading men in our industrial, financial, political and religious life. Go into the churches of the city and you will find deacons, trustees, vestrymen and even ministers who wear the Masonic emblems. So it is in the City Hall and the Courthouse, so it is with those who occupy the seats on the judicial benches, so in the banks, and big stores, in the great manufactories.

The Nobles of the Mystic Shrine number among their ranks men high in the Masonic Order all over America. They come to us from every nook and corner of the United States. They are intelligent men, with minds wide open and keenly observant. They will see us as we are, and as they see us so they will report us to their friends and neighbors all over the country, who will accept us on the report of these distinguished visitors.

Now we have a great country here, in all things well worthy the attention of these visitors. They have come far to see who we are and what we have. They will stay none too long to accomplish what is in their minds. The more they see of us the better they will like us, and the better will be their report of us.

Let the watchword be everywhere, on the streets and in the stores, on the cars and in the hotels, "Place for our noble visitors." Let us prove ourselves hosts who know how to entertain.

ARIZONA'S DEFI.
The Federal law authorized a California corporation doing business in Arizona, which shall be sued by an Arizonan in an Arizona court, to transfer the case to the United States court there. The Arizona Legislature has in effect repealed the act of Congress, or at least nullified its provisions. It has enacted a law providing that any corporation which shall, by transferring a case to the Federal Court, impugn the integrity of the State court, will thereby forfeit its right to do business or even to exist in Arizona. The Legislature has not gone so far as to inflict the death penalty upon any officer of a California corporation who may petition for a transfer of litigation to the Federal Court, but that may come later.

The act of the Arizona Legislature is of course a defiance of the Fourteenth Amendment to the Federal Constitution, and will be necessarily so adjudged by the Federal courts whenever the issue is raised. But what of that? Is the sun-kissed State to be fettered by the handcuffs of Federal power being placed upon her beautiful wrists, and to be restrained in her movements by the shackles of the Federal Constitution being locked around her sightly legs? Not on your life.

Thanks!

ROBERT BROWNING.
Tuesday, May 7, will be the one hundredth anniversary of Robert Browning's birth. In spite of the fact that the reputation of Browning has been sadly overshadowed by the sort of societies sometimes organized to study him, he is nevertheless a robust poet and philosopher who is not at all as obscure, perhaps, as those who read obscurity into his vigorous and beautiful lines. As a man he was most personable. He was not frail, but rugged. He had no flowing locks, but a tawny mane. His was not a pale, sensitive brow, but a bulging intelligence. He probably did not indulge in a Lord Fauntleroy flowing necktie, but he managed to write poetry and plenty of it in spite of this great neglect of an essential. Best of all, he was not even a philanderer, but was the faithful husband of one wife whom he cherished with such exquisite tenderness that the love story of Elizabeth Barrett and Robert Browning has become one of the idyls of the world. We do not always understand Browning, and we do not always agree with as much as we comprehend, but as a man he compelled admiration, and as a poet and thinker we know his large rhythm contains the heartbeat of fundamentals and a sort of wholesome challenge to the universe.

We would not be surprised if Browning ultimately ranked with certain immortals who are so unlikely to be exhausted by the common run of us that it is not necessary that a man profess to understand all of them in order to pass muster with the average. Nobody goes about forever raving of the mountains or spouting of the sea. It is generally conceded that the mountains have strength, that the sea has urge and that they are each severely in their place. Nobody arises to defend the works of Shakespeare, Victor Hugo's "Les Miserables" or Gibbon's "Rise and Decline of the Roman Empire." Neither does anybody pretend to sum up the consciousness that shines through any of these works through a few cheap epigrams which can be produced and recited like a phonograph record at every occasion. A man does not always feel like climbing a mountain or bathing in the sea, but he knows that they are always there with their inexhaustible power, and in the same way he knows that the intellectual and spiritual giants of the race are the oceans and mountains of humanity, and that their store of wisdom is never to be transcended. No man shall deny Browning such a place simply because he does not understand all he has written. How much of the ocean can men see at one time? Who tries to traverse every trail which threads each mountain range? If Browning should be placed among those of whom it is unnecessary to speak, his crown would have the splendor of the sun.

THE GREAT WHITE WAY.
It may not be generally known that by the waterways treaty recently negotiated between the United States and Great Britain the beauty and grandeur of Niagara Falls are safeguarded by restricting the amount of water that may be diverted for the extraction of electrical power.

Some years ago the New York Legislature enacted a law restricting the use of water on the American side to 15,600 cubic feet per second out of a total flow of 240,000 cubic feet. The law also contained a clause prohibiting importation of electricity from Canada in excess of 160,000 horse power. This preserved the Horseshoe Falls, which are in Canada, for there was no demand in the Dominion for electrical power except for export to the United States. The treaty now limits the diversion on both sides so that Niagara is permanently safe from destruction.

The State of New York is now projecting a "great white way" or paved public road from New York City by Albany to Buffalo, and thence back to Albany by the southern counties, passing through Corning, Elmira and Binghamton. This road will be illuminated at night by electric lights placed on poles forty-five feet high, of reinforced concrete, at distances of 300 feet apart. The current of electricity to light this "Great White Way" will be derived in part from Niagara and in part from the barge canals. The project is a grand one, is entirely feasible and the expense of carrying it out will not be great.

SOCIALISTS IN THE SADDLE.
It looks as if the Socialists were firmly in the saddle in Arizona. State Senator Worsley's constitutional amendment to authorize the State to engage in industrial pursuits has passed both houses and has gone to the Secretary of State. It does not require the signature of the Governor.

The statement of its author, who is the head of the Socialist party in Arizona, is that under its provisions the State can own and conduct trolley roads, open and work mines of copper, gold and silver; establish and run woolen mills, beet sugar factories, tan yards, canning establishments, creameries, iron works, breweries, distilleries, flouring mills, saw mills and any establishment for the making of anything that is eaten or worn. Senator Worsley's idea is said to be that the necessary capital to equip a manufacturing establishment shall be supplied from the State treasury; that the present going rate of wages shall be paid to the workers and the going prices be asked for the product of State industrial establishments, and, at the end of every quarter year, the profits shall be paid to the workers in addition to their wages.

It is doubtful if the amendment will be ratified by any of the voters except the Socialists and not by all of them, for the members of the trades unions will not be apt to consent to the establishment of industrial establishments in which the rule of the closed shop cannot be enforced.

If the amendment should be adopted by the voters it will prevent the development by private persons or corporations of industrial establishments in the sun-kissed State. Special privilege will keep away from a locality where the State has a special privilege that o'ertops any ever bestowed upon a private corporation. Big business will not joust against bigger business. Predatory wealth will not do any predating between the Grand Cañon of the Colorado and the Mexican line, and loathsome capitalism will gather up its shekels and skidoo from a locality where it will be forced to contribute to the public treasury by taxation and have its contributions used to build up a great rival in the State.

The labor unions will prevent the State from conducting a copper smelter or a beet sugar factory, and the possibility that the State may run industrial enterprises will keep private capital from embarking in them and Arizona will go in the direction of Hamlet's crab—backwards.

NOT A LA MODE.
Divorce proceedings are not generally started from high and lofty motives. The records of the divorce courts reveal a phase of human nature we would not as a rule care to advertise. It may be said of such proceedings, as a whole, that they are an unpleasant reminder of the immeasurable distance we have yet to travel before we can attain the ideals of perfect love, after which we are still groping dimly, in a twilight of perplexity. That the ideals are there, that they are possible, that they are sometimes reached, is a truth established in thousands of cases. Were it not so, marriage would indeed be the "splendid lie" of Schopenhauer's pessimistic philosophy.

Now to vary the monotony of selfishness that has marked divorces in the past, a well-known San Francisco lawyer and lecturer is starting a suit against his wife on the grounds that he loves her with a love far surpassing the love of women. Not from anger or resentment, he says, but because he believes it to be for her greater happiness, has he consented to undergo the misery of a divorce suit. Most men or women who rush to Reno do so for their own and not for their mate's supposed greater happiness. There are very few human beings who reach the pinnacle of self-denial, where they are willing to give up their most jealously guarded possession in order that their treasure may be made happy by a rival. The law of sexual selection is opposed to any multiplication of such cases.

How are you getting on with the job of whitening up your last summer's straw hat?

CONTEMPORARY COMMENT.

Taft's Self-Control.

[New York Herald:] William H. Taft is President of the United States. He is one of the best and sanest Presidents this country has ever had. No one ever accused him of breaking his word; no one ever charged him with doing a dishonorable act. No one ever indicted him for betraying a friend. He has never been branded as a coward, a bully or a traitor. His chief defects in the high office he holds have been excessive credulity, belief in friendships, and slavery to judicial temperament.

Mr. Taft is now the chief figure in the most dramatic, the most stupendous political situation this country has ever known during the preliminaries of a Presidential campaign. Mr. Roosevelt may consider, as usual, that he is the central figure, but he is not. He is merely the castigated.

The President has at last made a speech that will not merely be read through, it will be read through many times. The self-control shown by Mr. Taft in his Boston speech, the distress he feels in the shattering of one of his dearest ideals through the inexplicable conduct of Mr. Roosevelt, the high sense of duty which has impelled him to make the revelations which will surely shock some sections of the colonel's support, and the reserve force indicated in the argument—all stand out like a human document.

"The Meanest of Mean Lies."

[New York Evening Post:] The President, in uncovering the tortuous and dishonorable course which Mr. Roosevelt has pursued toward him, might have taken as a motto for his speech this extract from "American Ideals," written by Theodore Roosevelt:

"The worst offense that can be committed against the republic is the offense of the public man who betrays his trust, but second only to it comes the offense of the man who tries to persuade others that an honest and efficient public man is dishonest or unworthy. This is a wrong that can be committed in a great many different ways. Downright foul abuse may be, after all, less dangerous than incessant misstatements, sneers, and those half-truths that are the meanest lies."

The meanest of these mean lies are those which Roosevelt has told about Mr Taft's relations to Lorimer. Not only in Illinois, but again and again in his speeches throughout the country, he has pictured the President as in alliance with Lorimer, as wanting to have the government in the hands of such men as he, and all the rest of it. This was a wicked thing to do without any evidence to go upon, but how shall the act be characterized when Roosevelt had in his own hands all the time overwhelming evidence to the contrary of what he alleged? President Taft had written him personally that the testimony in the Lorimer case showed that his election to the Senate was attained by "a mess and mass of corruption," and that everything possible ought to be done to remove the taint from the Senate. With this full and indignant expression from Mr. Taft in his possession, Mr. Roosevelt had the indecency and moral shamelessness to harangue the crowd about Lorimer's being the kind of man Taft delighted to honor. Picking pockets is honorable compared with this.

An Unprecedent Episode.

[Springfield Republican:] It may be well to remind ourselves that never before in American history was there an occasion when a President found it necessary to reply in plain-spoken language to the unprincipled and vicious assaults of a predecessor in office upon his words, his deeds and his political character. The exalted moral station of an ex-President has been utterly sacrificed in a mad struggle for power, and, in simple but manly self-defense, the finishing blow to whatever statesmanlike dignity Theodore Roosevelt possessed had to be struck by his old and intimate personal friend and political ally, who in turn had succeeded to the highest office in the gift of the people.

Squarely Between the Eyes.

[Hartford Courant:] Theodore Roosevelt gets at last what was coming to him—gets it squarely between the eyes. He has forced the magnanimous, kindly President—who does not forget with ease old days and friendships—into plain speech. With great reluctance, grieving over the necessity, the President has told the country some things it was entitled to know. Assailed though he has been with poisoned weapons—steeped in venom—he would still have kept silence if he had had only himself to think of. But, as he explained to the Massachusetts folks yesterday, he had his party and the United States of America to think of, he was under a binding political obligation to the one and a binding patriotic obligation to the other.

It seems a fairly sure thing that the President's Massachusetts speeches of April 25, 1912, are going to make a difference both in the personal prospects of Col. Roosevelt and in the political history of the country.

Taft's Patience Exhausted.

[New York Tribune:] The Tribune has said repeatedly that the campaign against Mr. Taft was being based entirely on misrepresentations and irrelevancies. The President took pains last night to note the various phases of that campaign and to stamp them one and all as sins against fairness and better knowledge. We believe that the country will accept his straightforward statement as a complete answer to the insinuations of which, out of a sense of dignity and delicacy, he had hitherto hesitated to take notice. His patience is rightly exhausted, and his friends everywhere will welcome his determination to see to it that if there is to be a fight between himself and Col. Roosevelt it shall be a real fight and also a fair fight.

A Complete Answer.

[Philadelphia Inquirer:] The answer that President Taft gives to Mr. Roosevelt is complete. He accuses Roosevelt of garbling and studied misrepresentation, and proves it. He does not descend to the Roosevelt level of hurling the epithet of liar, but by quoting Roosevelt's own written words he makes Roosevelt proclaim Roosevelt to be such.

He Started It.

[Chicago Inter-Ocean:] "The campaign is a fight for principles, and the great newspapers of the country ought not to stoop to personalities," says Rev. Dr. Lyman Abbott, editor of the Outlook. How about his contributing editor?

This Ought to Start Something.

[New York Herald:] Representative Gardner says Mr. Roosevelt is an idol with feet of clay. Explains where all this campaign mud has been coming from.

ROBERT LOVE TAYLOR.
(In Memory of Our Bob of Tennessee.)

"He is gone," the mountains murmured
At the dawning of the day;
"He is gone," the river answered,
Flowing sadly on its way;
And the songster in the meadow
Heard the news, and drooped his head—
For he knew that in the northland
His interpreter lay dead.

He is gone; the people mourn him,
For his life was like a song,
And it touched the hearts of many
Who were weary in the throng;
And the sunlight of his language
Brightened many saddened eyes—
Just as starbeams kiss the shadows
When the long sweet daylight dies.

He is gone; the place that knew him
Never more shall see his face—
For the voice of music called him
Through the starry realms of space;
And his spirit, when the Reaper
Came to claim his mortal breath,
Sailed out singing into silence
On the snow-white wing of death.

MARRIAGE BOOM BUSTED.

Removal of Cappers Takes Business Away from Justices of the Peace, Who Are Much Relieved.

The four justices of the township courts are much pleased at the cessation in marriage ceremonies, which has been noticeable since two active "cappers" were ordered out of the building.

One of the justices said yesterday that the work of leaving the bench to perform a wedding ceremony has been irksome and that he is glad to learn that the alleged matrimonial bureau is closed.

Notices posted on the first and second floors of the Courthouse state the legal fee for performing wedding ceremonies.

SESSION IN NORTH.

The session of the United States District Court opening at Fresno tomorrow, will continue for two weeks. Judge Wellborn, accompanied by his secretary, Col. Marsh, United States Commissioners Van Dyke and Williams, Clerk Scott, Assistants United States District Attorneys Regan and Archbald, Stenographer Brett, Deputy United States Marshal Sittel and Clerk White, left for the North last night.

LAUDS PRIMARY SYSTEM.

Speaker at the City Club Gives Resume of Governmental Machinery for Selecting President.

Medill McCormick of the Chicago Tribune was to have addressed the City Club yesterday on "Progressivism, Municipal, State and National," but was delayed in his trip from San Francisco, and his place was taken by Lewis R. Works, who spoke on "The Presidential Primaries."

President Gibbon handled the gavel for the first time since his election, and, prior to the address by Works, thanked the club for the honor conferred upon him and said that the only reason he had not taken up his duties as president before was that he was away trying to do good work for the city. Gibbon gave a brief history of the endeavor to secure the appropriation for dredging the outer harbor and the work done by the City Council's committee in its visit to Washington. He stated that Engineer Goodrich has been appointed consulting engineer for the Board of Public Works of New York and that Los Angeles will have similar services of the man who is to direct the great works of the metropolis of America.

The address of Works covered a general resume of the plans for selecting the President, from Washington to Taft.

The speaker condemned the old convention system as the most colossal vehicle for evil in politics, declaring the President had an undue advantage in using the appointments of his administration, to effect his reelection. He cited that California, with its 214,000 Republican votes, sends but twenty-six delegates to the convention, whereas seven southern States, with practically the same combined Republican vote, send 162 delegates to the convention.

The Presidential primary system was highly commended. Its history, from its original operation in Oregon until the present time, when a number of States have adopted it, was outlined and it was commended as an extension of the direct primary system into national politics. Illustrations of its workings were given and the speaker gave practical instruction as to the use of the ballot at such primaries.

PHYSICIAN VINDICATED.

Certificate of Registration Is Mislaid and Coroner Fails at First to Find It.

Friends of Dr. H. L. Wells, the head physician of the Normal Life Company caused an investigation to be made yesterday regarding his status as a physician, with the result that the doctor was fully vindicated of the charges that he had not been registered in California as required by law.

Fred Williams, Deputy Coroner, announced that the certificate issued to the doctor had been misplaced, thus causing the Coroner's office to make an investigation regarding Dr. Wells's authority in signing a death certificate in the case of Mrs. Parkhurst, which was reported a few days ago.

"While the Coroner's office has no apology to make in the premises, we are glad to say that Dr. Wells is a registered physician and as such is allowed by law to sign death certificates," said Deputy Coroner Williams.

"The certificate had been mislaid and it was the duty of this office to investigate the standing of the physician before we allowed the funeral to proceed."

Reference to the degrees held by Dr. Wells shows that he has been a qualified physician for many years and it was only through error that his authority was called into question.

SAMPLE BALLOTS ALL OUT.

More Than Half a Million Mailed Through Agency Which Will Be Paid by the Supervisors.

The task of getting out sample ballots to all the voters in the county was ended yesterday and the agency which obtained the contract from the Supervisors will be paid. This work was entirely separate from the registration bureau, where some of the clerks will have to wait possibly until the next session of the Legislature before getting their pay for the full time employed.

The agency prepared 581,000 sample ballots for mailing and a force of 130 or more young men and women worked in day and night shifts. The company paid cash and will receive its compensation in the regular course from the Supervisors.

Mr. Francis was 66 years old. He was a man of rugged constitution, despite his years, and his final illness was of but short duration.

Public Service: City Hall, Courts.

SUMMARY OF THE DAY.

The license collector at the City Hall yesterday reported the receipt of $48,601, the total for licenses issued during the first three days of May.

The Harbor Advisory Board has approved the project of opening an eight-foot street, an extension of Canal street from Front street to the water front at Wilmington through the district to be raised by dredging, and the engineer was instructed yesterday to prepare plans for this project.

Members of the Public Service Board yesterday visited San Pedro to investigate the water system and consider plans for a new service for Terminal Island.

Alleging that its superintendent of transportation and bond representative went over to its rival, the Guaranty Pipe Line Company filed suit in the Superior Court yesterday against the Pacific Pipe Line Company, charging fraud, conspiracy and forcible entry, and demanding $238,-850.

CITY'S INCOME FROM LICENSES.

MONTHLY TOTAL OF ALMOST FIFTY THOUSAND DOLLARS.

Thirty-three Thousand Dollars Comes to City Hall from Liquor Sellers and Fifteen Thousand Comes from Other Sources—Councilman Calls for Stable Minds.

The payment of license fees to the city the first three days of May has brought into the treasury the total sum of $48,601. This represents the bulk of the licenses that will be issued for the month, although a few others will be paid for as the month progresses. After the 10th inst., a penalty attaches to all license fees that have not been paid, so the first three days of the month bring about the rush in this class of municipal business.

Two hundred and five retail liquor licenses have been issued, bringing in a payment of $30,500; there are twenty-eight No. 1 class restaurant licenses, bringing $2800; sixty-two No. 2 restaurant licenses, bringing $3100, and ninety-two wholesale liquor licenses, bringing $6900 to the city, making a total of $33,300 for license fees for the 387 places where liquors are sold.

The lists of other licenses issued reveal some interesting figures. It runs as follows: Amusement places, ninety-two, $2045; two stereopticon advertisers, $10; 180 billiard halls, $3183; ten bowling alleys, $133; five district messenger companies, $25; twenty-nine fortune tellers, $870; five house-cleaning companies, $25; eighteen hand-power cleaners, $18; eleven junk dealers, $55; 103 laundries, $615; twenty-two meat peddlers, $110; one merry-go-round, $10; twenty news stands, $20; nine shooting galleries, $90; thirty-three storage places, $99; one skating-rink, $20; seven scissors grinders, $14; three telephone companies, $103; two telegraph companies, $200; 748 vegetable wagons in the city, $3740; thirty-eight at San Pedro, $296; five at Wilmington, $34; three breweries, $300; eight hotel liquor establishments, $2000; five malt bottling works, $500; twenty social club liquor permits, $500; one wholesale drugstore, $75; thirty wineries, $300; this giving a total from these sources of $15,301.

COMPREHENSIVE PLANS.
FOR NEW LABOR BUREAU.

The special committee provided for by the Industrial Problems Committee of the City Council, and composed of Secretary Spalding of the Civil Service Commission, Rev. Dana Bartlett of the Bethlehem Institutional Work, Mrs. H. C. Nelles of No. 450 Western avenue, and Vernon McCullough, an attorney of this city, for the purpose of outlining a detailed plan and making estimates for the proposed municipal labor bureau, to be operated in connection with the Civil Service Commission, already have various plans in minds for making the bureau comprehensive in its work.

It is proposed to get in touch with all of the sources of demand for labor in Southern California, and outside points as thoroughly as possible, and to have weekly reports from these fields. Men will be shifted from one temporary field of labor to another, so that, for instance, Imperial Valley may be assured of an ample supply of men for the cantaloupe season, while Ventura county would get an ample supply for the apricots or the handling of other fruits. A constant effort will be made, if the bureau is established, to educate citizens of Los Angeles who have employment to give out, to use the services of this bureau, and every man placed will be given direct consideration as to his fitness for the job, so that there may be as much permanency in the position secured as possible.

One plan for temporary work for those who apply to the bureau and must have immediate relief is that of establishing a municipal wood-yard, where men can be employed until other jobs are found for them.

ANDREWS PROTESTS.
HE WANTS STABLE MINDS.

Councilman Andrews has a grievance against citizens of Los Angeles, who are not stable minded, but who sign petitions for street improvements, allow the City Council to proceed with the preliminary work, and then sign protests that stops the proceedings and costs the city money with no tangible results. Andrews made his grievance public at the last meeting of the Streets and Boulevards Committee of the City Council, when 1970 feet of frontage was withdrawn by people who had signed the original petition for the improvement of Gramercy place, between Sixteenth and Pico streets. The Councilman made some drastic remarks at this meeting on the proneness of citizens to sign any petition that was put in front of them, and then to reverse their actions when the next petition was presented.

STREET PLANS.
MADE FOR WILMINGTON.

Canal street in Wilmington as far south as Front street has been widened to eighty feet obtaining deeds from owners of abutting property, Special Counsel Hewitt advises the Harbor Advisory Board that as it is proposed to fill that part of Wilmington between Front street and the waterfront by means of material from dredging, a street of the same width should be extended from Front street to the water front, and the board has instructed the City Engineer to furnish the necessary plans.

CITY HALL BREVITIES.

Commissioner Martin Bekins of the Public Utilities Board left the city yesterday for a few days' sojourn in San Francisco. The fore part of this week Commissioner C. E. Warner will leave for a trip to the aqueduct work.

The Budget Committee has decided upon a $12,000 appropriation for the Playground Commission for the next fiscal year.

William Mabury, who styles himself an expert in oils and oil and water lands, has sent a protest to the City Council against the provisions of the proposed anti-faker ordinance. He asks that a provision be made whereby public hearings may be given the persons affected.

The paving of Shatto place, from Wilshire boulevard to Fifth street, with asphalt, has been approved by the Council Committee and will go before the Council on Tuesday for final action.

Of the twenty teams ordered by the city from the Metropolitan Construction Company Inspector Hansen reports only eight are satisfactory, and the company will be required to replace the others.

Members of the Public Service Board visited San Pedro yesterday to investigate the condition of the city's water service and the possibilities of making a new water connection for Terminal Island.

PIPE LINE COMPANY CHARGES HIGH TREASON.

Demands Damages Amounting to Nearly Quarter Million, Alleging Fraud Conspiracy and Forcible Entry—Says Rival Got Confidential Papers.

The threatened war between the Guaranty Pipe Line Company and the Pacific Pipe Line Company is seen in a suit filed yesterday by the former concern, which alleges fraud, conspiracy and forcible entry and asks judgment for $238,350. The complaint is a printed document of many pages and was filed by Attorneys Weaver and McKee.

It begins with the appointment of Thomas O. Turner as superintendent of transportation for the Guaranty company and the engagement of Thomas J. Hampton to market the Guaranty's stocks and bonds. Both men are named as defendants, together with Conrad, Hall & Co., Wilfred Hall, E. C. Powers, E. E. Billow, S. N. Clark, Frank H. Smith and A. M. Drake. Smith was the Guaranty's real estate appraiser.

It is declared Hampton was sent by the Guaranty company to England, where he succeeded in interesting Conrad, Hall & Co. in the Guaranty's proposition. Hall, Powers and Billows were sent here to inspect the right of way and the Guaranty's oil properties.

After an investigation, Conrad, Hall & Co. gave an option which was to become a permanent contract after they had approved the properties. They inspected the properties and, it is alleged, offered to purchase the Guaranty's bonds on certain conditions.

There was a hitch and then it is alleged that Turner and Hampton, without the knowledge and consent of the Guaranty company, entered into an agreement with Conrad, Hall & Co., which had for its object the destruction of the Guaranty's business so that its assets could be bought for less than they were worth.

The result of this alleged conpiracy was the organization of the Pacific Pipe Line Company as a business rival of the Guaranty. It began to acquire a right of way for a pipe line paralleling the Guaranty's from the Midway oil field in Kern county to Ventura and thence to Los Angeles and the harbor.

Turner and Hampton, it is alleged, went over to the opposition company, turning over to it all the information, data and plans of the Guaranty which they had accumulated while in the service of the latter, and which data has a value of $30,000 and is of peculiar pecuniary benefit to the Pacific.

Turner is charged, on information and belief, with having entered the office of the Guaranty in the Citizens' National Bank building at 1:30 o'clock on the morning of January 21 last, ransacking the office, desks and files, and taking papers and documents and confidential records. Turner, it is alleged, joined Hall, Powers and Billows in the street near the bank.

In the alleged war of annihilation, the defendants are charged with having circulated false statements, reports and rumors tending to injure their rivals.

DEFEATS HER PURPOSE.
DAUGHTERS SHARE IN ESTATE.

A string attached to a deed defeated the purpose of Sarah N. Ryan, according to a decision handed down by Judge Wilbur yesterday, which held that a deed to be good must be delivered absolutely. The value of the estate involved is $300,-000.

Mrs. Ryan deposited a deed with the Title Insurance and Trust Company, with instructions dated July 22, 1905, that it be executed to her daughters Mary N. and S. Maud Ryan, to be held, however, for six months. She attached this clause: "If I live, you will deliver the deed to me, if I die meantime, deliver it to my daughters."

The deed was extended to July 22, 1910, but in the interim Mrs. Ryan died and the deed was delivered to her daughters.

Suit was brought by James H. Ryan, a relative, against Mary N. Ryan and another suit was filed by S. G. Long and others against her to set aside the deed. The question involved was whether title was vested in the grantee in order that title shall pass.

The court held it is essential to the validity of a deed transferred in such circumstances that when it is placed in the hands of a third party it passes beyond the control of the grantor for all time.

The reservation in the instructions regarding the deed to be re-delivered to the grantor in case she survived a given period of time is such an exercise of dominion over the deed, the court held, as prevents it taking effect. Judgment was given for the plaintiff.

The deed has no effect and goes to the estate. Instead of acquiring the property outright, as Mrs. Ryan intended, the daughters will now have to share in the distribution of the estate.

OF UNSOUND MIND?
COURT ORDERS NEW TRIAL.

A retrial of the Pedgrift will case, the motion for which was granted by Judge Houser yesterday, promises another interesting fight to prove that James Pedgrift was of unsound mind when he drew his will, providing such an unusual condition that Mrs. Pedgrift only got $12,000 of the $62,-000 estate.

Annie Pedgrift, the widow, attacked the will on the ground of fraud and undue influence. Under its provisions she was to have everything over $50,000. The inventory showed the estate to be worth $62,000. This gave her $12,000 and a life interest in $50,000. After her death the $50,-000 was to be distributed among Pedgrift's relatives.

COMPANY NOT LIABLE.
ISSUE INVOLVES ASSESSMENT.

An interesting point was decided by Judge Wilbur yesterday in the suit of Fred W. Gross, Minnie M. Bloomfield, and Frederick Bloomfield against the Los Angeles Pacific, which involves the right of the railway to keep up the street assessment on land deeded to it by the plaintiffs for a right of way on Sunset boulevard.

The company set up in its brief that the deed from Gross does not require it to discharge the assessment upon Gross's land by reason of street improvement made by the city after January 5, 1904. The court so held, on the ground that the agreement between the parties related only to the grading and graveling of the street, which was actually done before the deed was delivered and did not refer to the future.

DIGS UP OLD ESTATE.
MANY DEFENDANTS NAMED.

A suit filed by John Lapique yesterday is believed to be a record-winner so far as the number of defendants named is concerned. The administrator of the Laurent Elchepara and Miguel Leonis estates and fifty-six other defendants, are set out at length in the complaint.

Leonis died September 20, 1888, and, according to the complaining, left an estate of $309,000. Under the will the widow, Marie Espirity Chvallo de Leonis is entitled to one-half and the homestead. Lapique claims the other half of the lands, which as enumerated are extensive.

COURTHOUSE NOTES.
BREVITIES MISCELLANEOUS.

DECREE REFUSED. The tie that binds Thomas G. Adams, head of the Yale English and classical school, to Kathleen Adams was not untied by Judge Monroe yesterday, the evidence not being sufficient to show that either was entitled to a decree. Adams will continue to pay his wife $60 a month for the support of herself and child, and Mrs. Adams is ordered to stay away from the school. A squad of boy pupils were on hand to testify for Adams, but they were not called.

NOTHING DOING: Emil Castellano went into the court of equity and asked to be excused from paying a mortgage on his property, pleading the statute of limitations. In denying his prayer yesterday, Judge Wilbur sustained the demurrer of the Maier and Zobelin Brewing Company, and held that, while Castellano asked for justice, unfortunately the court is unable to do justice in this matter. No opportunity is given to amend the complaint, and the costs of the suit must be paid by Castellano.

INCORPORATIONS. Western Hippodrome and Amusement Company; incorporators, Leon Kornfield, G. A. Hohenstein, Maurice Lerey, Joseph Epoteiu, Gerwin Lerey; capital stock, $250,000; subscribed, $5.

Pasadena Motor Car Company, incorporators, Ansel B. Case, Jay C. Cook, R. I. Robinson; capital stock, $30,000; subscribed, $30. Confectioners' and Bakers' Supply Company, incorporators, Fred W. Beau de Zart, Minnie W. Beau de Zart, Harry A. Miles, Adelbert L. Cron, Arthur C. Labrie; capital stock, $50,000; subscribed, $10,200.

TUFTS CASE RESTING.

Litigation in connection with the domestic and other troubles of Gorham Tufts, Jr., is in temporary abeyance. His attorney is preparing to go to Chicago to represent him in the reopening of the divorce suit in which the decree was obtained by misrepresentation, according to Mrs. Tufts, No. 1. Tufts is due to be tried in the Superior Court here the last of this month on a charge of misappropriating funds entrusted to him by his second wife. This case is likely to be continued as the Darrow trial will take precedence in Judge Hutton's court.

JUVENILE MURDER CASE.

Frank and Roy Yanes, who have confessed to murdering their father, George Yanes, near their home on the outskirts of Compton, will be heard before Judge Wilbur of the Juvenile Court. At first it was thought the lads, neither of whom is more than 15 years old, would be tried in one of the criminal departments, but on account of their youth it has been determined to have Judge Wilbur handle the matter.

IN THOMPSON'S BEHALF.

Attorney Paul Schenck left for San Francisco yesterday to argue a motion tomorrow before the United States Circuit Court of Appeal for the release of Fred H. Thompson, the convicted Los Angeles attorney to have his leg treated at a local hospital. It is alleged that Thompson's right limb is in bad shape and that amputation may be necessary. United States Dist.-Atty. McCormick, who is in San Francisco, on other matters, will appear in behalf of the government.

WON WITHOUT TRIAL.

The District Court of Appeal yesterday affirmed the decision of Judge Mahon of Kern county, in favor of the plaintiff in the action brought by C. L. Conner against H. A. Blodgett. It was a suit brought upon a promisory note which contained the agreement on the part of the defendant that he would pay in addition to the principal sum and interest, $500 for legal expenses and attorney fees. The Kern county court gave the plaintiff judgment for $300 without a trial of the cause. This is affirmed. The defendant claimed that it had not been shown that any attorney fees had been incurred.

Dynamite Hangover.

DARROW BRIBERY TRIAL TO CONSUME MONTHS.

PREPARATIONS for the trial of Clarence Darrow, indicted for alleged jury bribery in connection with the McNamara case, are about completed by the District Attorney. The attendance of Attorney John E. Harrington and Mrs. Ortie E. McManigal, both of Chicago, has been assured and Deputy District Attorney Keetch is now in Chicago securing some depositions to be introduced at the Darrow trial in lieu of having the persons come out here merely to give brief testimony. Keetch is also attending to the cross-examination of a number of character witnesses whose testimony concerning the integrity of Darrow will be presented in documentary form.

Much of the evidence introduced against Bert H. Franklin, confessed briber and Darrow's former chief detective, will be introduced by the State in the forthcoming trial, which will open on the 15th inst., the day after the Presidential preference primary. Franklin, who pleaded guilty to a charge similar to that preferred against Darrow, will be the star witness for the prosecution, for it will be his testimony that will form the connecting link between the McNamara talesmen who swear they were approached with corrupt intent by Franklin, and his employer.

The defense with its numerous attorneys has been active for the past few weeks and the various lawyers appear in a confident mood. Darrow will personally engage in his own defense and the prosecution concedes his ability both in interrogating prospective talesmen and the cross-examination of witnesses. He will also doubtless make one of the arguments prior to the case going to the jury.

According to conservative estimates the trial will consume two months, some of the lawyers believing that it will take three months. Judge Hutton, who is now presiding in one of the two criminal departments in the Hall of Justice, will hear the case. He has passed upon the preliminary motions and is conversant with the facts and issues.

Owing to the small size of the courtroom, it is not probable that many spectators will be admitted. As in the McNamara case, only those with passes issued by Sheriff Hammel or well-known attorneys will be permitted within the railing. Special arrangements will be made this week for the newspaper reporters. Besides the local men who will handle the trial, it is expected that there will be a horde of correspondents, news bureau representatives, artists and magazine writers in attendance.

I WAS A Heavy Drinker
Consumed Quart of Whisky Every 24 Hours.

VICTORY IN 3 DAYS

If you know anyone who drinks alcohol in any form, regularly or periodically, let me send my FREE book, "Confessions of an Alcohol Slave." I drank beer at first, then gradually developed into a drinker of strong liquors. When drinking heavily I wouldn't hesitate to pawn my coat or break a saloon window to get spirits. For long periods I would drink over a quart of whisky, rum or gin daily. And often some mixed drinks and beer additionally!

I damaged business, health and social opportunities, made family miserable, lost real friends and became an unworthy, unwelcome burden upon all except the saloonkeepers, who cheerfully took my money for the poison they gave me.

For 16 years I kept it up, and I was regarded as a hopeless case. Various cures did me no good. But now I have a joyous message for drinkers and

Mothers, Wives, Sisters

While drifting from bad to worse, as all slaves of Alcohol do, I unexpectedly found a true remedy. It saved my life. My health was quickly restored. I became and am a respectable man, enjoying every benefit of freedom from the accursed alcohol. I speedily and naturally lost all desire for drink. I took less and less. I began to prefer tea, coffee, buttermilk and other non-alcoholic liquids; the craving for liquor ceased. I could sleep perfectly, my stomach became well and I recovered from other ailments which I now know were due to my indulgence in strong drink.

WONDERFUL

It was done in 3 days! If I had relied upon will power or faith I would still be a drunkard, because an alcohol slave has no will power while drinking. I rejoiced so greatly at having found true relief that I decided to devote my life to removing the curse from others. My success has been marvelous, for I have a reliable, guaranteed Set of Remedies adapted for sending to any home, anywhere. My Remedies have saved legions of drinkers; the list includes very many persons notable in all walks of life, including those of brains and those of physical energy. I will send you testimonials by the hundreds, every one of which you can verify. Many were saved from the drink habit because they desired to get rid of it forever and others who did not have any will-power left, were rescued without their knowledge by loving wives, mothers, or friends. The after-effect of taking my Remedies give energy throughout the entire body, the mind, memory and will-power are wonderfully strengthened.

I tell about the secret in my book, which I send FREE to every person (or relative or friend) who takes alcohol in any form to excess. My one purpose in life is to save the drunkard. I rejoice in every victory; each victim has my sympathy. What I promise is absolutely guaranteed. My Remedies are for either steady or periodical drinkers. Think of it—a complete and delightful overcoming of drink habit between Friday night and Monday night—or any other 72 hours!

FOR MEN OR WOMEN, ANY AGE.

To relatives, friends, or employers I say—If you want to save a drinker in the quickest time and completely, with or without his knowledge and with absolute safety, read my book—changes despair to joy.

ABSOLUTELY FREE

I will send you my book, in plain wrapper, promptly, postpaid. It tells of my own career and the wonderful discovery, and gives valuable information. No other book like it. I especially appeal to those who have wasted money on treatments or remedies which had no lasting effect. Remember, it costs nothing and you will always be glad that you wrote. SULPHURRO!
Nature's Great Purifier
Adapted to the Human System

Californians Cured By SULPHURRO

San Francisco, Cal., April 20, 1912.
C. M. C. Stewart Sulphur Co., Seattle Wash.
Dear Sirs:—
It is with a feeling of great indebtedness that I write a few lines in praise of your wonderful Sulphurro.
I was three months in a hospital with inflammatory and muscular rheumatism and left to keep from starving and I was but a very little better in health.
I used everything known to doctors and druggists, but was never greatly benefited.
I saw your advertisement in the paper and decided to try it. After the first five days the swelling left me and the pains were less painful. At the end of ten days they were all gone and I have not felt any more of them to this day.
My wife suffered from stomach trouble and I told her to try Sulphurro and she did and is now nearly over all her trouble and I believe in another week she will be entirely cured.
We cannot say too much in praise of your wonderful medicine. We have told a good many friends of its power and they are also using it now.
We can truthfully recommend it to all sufferers of stomach trouble and rheumatism and invite them to call on us personally to satisfy themselves as to our statement.
Wishing you success in the future as in the past, we beg to remain, Yours indebtedly,
MR. AND MRS. S. L. THOMPSON,
Apartment 24, 2282 Mission St., San Francisco, Cal.

Sulphur is Dame Nature's great cleanser and purifier. Sulphurro is Sulphur compounded into liquid form. Sulphurro's curative properties are proving of wonderful power. Sulphurro cleanses the system and purifies it as no other agency has yet succeeded in doing.

For generations the beneficial properties of Sulphur have been known in a limited way. But taken in a powder, it coats the intestines and retards circulation rather than improving the system's activities.

Once in the blood, Sulphurro acts upon the impurities and harmful elements. The injurious germs cannot live, and the poisons are driven out of the body.

Sulphurro has cured thousands and thousands of persons upon the Pacific Coast, and to the Eastward, of a multitude of diseases traceable to impurities in the blood. This statement is attested by the hundreds of letters on file in Sulphurro's offices, and by the observations of Mr. Stewart, who for a year distributed it free to a multitude of people.

For best results, directions must be followed.

Send for 32-page booklet, mailed free on application. Read it carefully.

Sulphurro is on sale by all druggists in 50-cent and $1.00 bottles.

GETTING READY FOR PEACE DAY.

AMERICAN SOCIETY REQUESTS ITS OBSERVANCE.

Friday, May 17, One Day in Advance of the Last Hague Conference, Is Chosen—Tentative Programmes for the Schools and Available Sources of Material.

Preparations are under way for the observance of peace day in the public schools on Friday, May 17, under the patronage of the American Peace Society. It is not obligatory upon principals to observe the day, in commemeration of the meeting of the last Hague conference, which was on May 18, but they have the privilege of doing so. City Superintendent Francis makes the suggestion that the day offers excellent opportunity to teach important lessons.

During the past three or four years the Southern California Peace Society, with Robert C. Root as field secretary, has created much advanced sentiment upon the subject of universal peace, and every year a considerable number of the schools have observed the day in some form. For the convenience of such school principals as wish to make something of the occasion, the American Peace Society has prepared several tentative programmes suggesting how a local programme may be easily constructed. Others may be found in the teacher's manual, entitled "Patriotism and the New Internationalism." The works of Whittier, Longfellow, Lowell, Holmes, Bryant, Tennyson, Sumner, Channing and Emerson are suggested as furnishing a wide range of material for the purpose. The programmes outlined by the American Peace Society are as follows:

High schools—Brief account of the calling and work of the Hague conferences, by the principal or a teacher; singing, Holmes's "Angel of Peace, Thou Hast Wandered Too Long," by a quartette of high school pupils; oration, "The Progress of Arbitration, by a high school boy; recitation, Whittier's "Disarmament," by a high school girl; short address, "The Hague Court and Its Work," by one of the teachers; address, "Patriotism and the Love of Humanity," by a clergyman or other public man; "America," sung by the school.

Grammar schools — Singing of "America," by the school; recitation, Longfellow's "Arsenal at Springfield," by a school girl; talk, "The Second Hague Conference and Its Results," by the principal of the school; singing, Sears's "It Came Upon the Midnight Clear," by a chorus of pupils; reading or reciting, "The Story of the Erection of the Christ of the Andes on the Argentine-Chilean Boundary," by a school boy; brief address, "The Carnegie 'Palace of Peace' at The Hague," by a school girl; brief address, "Nations As Well As Individuals Should Be Friends," or "True and False Patriotism," by a lady teacher; singing, by the school.

No. 3—Instrumental solo; recitation, Lowell's "The Fatherland," Whittier's "A Christmas Carmen," Bryant's "The Battlefield," or Tennyson's "Locksley Hall;" oration, "What the United States Has Done for International Arbitration," by a high school pupil; address, "The Hague Court and What It Has Accomplished," by some prominent citizen; select reading, from Sumner's "True Grandeur of Nations," Baroness von Suttner's "Lay Down Your Arms," or some other well-known book; "Commerce and Peace," by some business man; "America," sung by the school.

No. 4— Singing, by the school; essay, "Arbitration As a Substitute for War," by a high school boy; essay, "The Inhumanity of War," by a high school girl; singing, by a quartette of male voices; address, "The Burdens of Great Armaments," by a teacher; short talk, "Recent Arbitration Treaties;" recitation, verses from Lowell's "Bigiow Papers," Tennyson's "The Golden Year," or Southey's "Battle of Blenheim;" solo, by some local singer; closing remarks, "The Heroisms of Common Life," by the principal or some prominent citizen.

SCHOOL MAY FESTIVAL.

The May festival held on Friday afternoon at the Fifty-fourth-avenue school was a pretentious and most delightful celebration. The large yard surrounding the school was enclosed in canvas and transformed into a real garden by palms, with elaborate decorations of greenery, wild mustard and acacia blossoms, while the hills in the distance made a magnificent background. To a large extent the regular school music and rhythmic work was utilised, and the simplicity and naturalness of the children added to the charm of the scene. All the grades, from kindergarten to the eighth, took part in the programme, to the delight of the large gathering of parents and friends of the school.

CAUGHT IN THE ACT.

Caught trying to force an entrance to the Hotel Darby, No. 234 West Adams street, John D. Higgins was arraigned before Justice Williams in the University Court yesterday morning on a charge of burglary, and was subsequently held in $2000 bail for examination next Thursday. Detective Browning, who made the arrest, gave testimony against the prisoner and said that there could be no doubt that he intended to commit burglary.

Drinks or Not?

PASADENA'S BURNING BUN.

Question Is, Wine or No Wine for Tourists.

Citizens' Association Has Something to Say.

Only Asking that Hotels Be Given Fair Show.

[Special Correspondence of The Times.]

PASADENA, May 5.—With the proposed charter amendment election, now less than three weeks off, the campaign over liquor legislation in Pasadena is warming up. Prohibitionists are coming in for censure at the hands of the Citizens' Association. This organization heads the forces on the other side.

According to the officers of the Citizens' Association, those who would have the city laws made so that not a drop of liquor could come into town are both injuring their own cause and blackening the name of Pasadena by striving to have the fight popularly named a wet and dry one, whereas the difference between the provisions of the two amendments to be voted on amounts to no such thing.

The amendment stripped of all legal verbiage, the more liberal element asks, as a single concession, that bona fide guests at hotels be permitted to have spirituous liquor served to them with meals. On the other hand, this proposed amendment restricts the delivery of liquor in the city to hotels, boarding-houses, restaurants and drug stores holding permits issued by the City Council, and at homes of residents of the city. It is contended that this restriction of delivery more than offsets the concession asked for in behalf of the tourists. By the terms of the amendment that is proposed penalties for violation of the law are increased from fifteen days' imprisonment to three months' imprisonment for a second offense and all ordinances that temperance advocates have put in force during the last twenty years are continued in force.

"That is why they cannot get a better campaign issue than, 'Did not a brewery attorney write Amendment Ten?'" said William F. Knight, president of the Citizens' Association, last night. As to the present status of the campaign he issued the following statement:

"After the expose of that baseless accusation they have been proven to be either poor, gullible mortals, who swallowed hook, bait and sinker and got caught, or it was a case of wilful misrepresentation.

"In either event their future statements will not receive much consideration here.

"Such tactics might carry an election in Timbuctoo, but any man who attempts to dictate the policy of Pasadena should first have lived here long enough to ascertain that this is an intelligent community.

"When we enlisted in this campaign we had hoped that, in as much as the issues were clearly defined, the campaign could be carried on along clean and educational lines. The prohibitionists seem to have been unfortunate in their authorized statements. It is strange that men who claim to be fighting for righteousness and morality should stoop to deceptions and insinuations.

"If, instead of pursuing cuttlefish tactics, and thereby beclouding the issue, they would stick to their subject, prohibition, the matter could be fought out intelligently. Their present methods are making hundreds of voters for the Citizens' Association's amendment.

"Pasadena has never been a prohibition city, but the dispensing of liquors has been handled so well here that we have had the reputation of having solved the problem better than any other city in the United States; so much so, in fact, that only a short while ago a notable temperance worker from outside visited this city in order to obtain facts and data that his home town might copy and adopt.

"Under practical temperance laws Pasadena has grown to be known as a city of churches and homes. We have the finest schools, and they are filled to overflowing with finest children and teachers in the country. In fact, under free delivery and liberal treatment of our hotel, boarding-house and restaurant guests we have attracted a phenominal number of the best people on earth in a short space of time.

"Do any of the above facts have any weight with our local prohibitionists? None whatever! They are willing to sacrifice it all for something that has never existed—prohibition; and make us a Portland, Maine, or a city in Kansas, where any one can get the vilest liquor above or below ground, night or day, winter or summer.

"There are some people so constituted that they can see no good in anything, only so long as they can have their own way, and, incidentally, get a little free advertising out of it.

"We have respect for a man who really believes there is such a thing as prohibition. All we ask of him is to be decent about it and tell the truth, and not try to induce old men and women to mortgage their franchises by getting them to sign cards pledging them to vote for prohibition on the false statement that the Citizens' Association amendment means open saloons. Pledges obtained in this way will not be kept and will prove a boomerang on election day.

"The Citizens' Association is unalterably opposed to the saloon, and the prohibitionists know it.

"One more observation.

"We literally spiked their guns when we inserted 'except minors' and let out 'serving in hotel rooms' although the former were fully protected by State laws and local ordinances, not repealed, and we thought it hoped that allowing a hotel guest the same privileges and liberty that we enjoy in our own homes might reduce t... which a... does not... grateful?... made m... befores... "We literally spiked their guns when we inserted 'except minors' and 'not serving in hotel rooms' although the former were fully provided by State laws and local ordinances not repealed, and we thought it hoped that allowing a hotel guest the same privileges and liberty that he enjoys in our own homes might reduce the so-called bottle system which always prevails where liberty does not exist. Are they happy or grateful? On the contrary they have made more noise over it since than before.

"It looks like a case of 'you'll be damned if you do, and you'll be damned if you don't.'"

THE PROHIBS.

The prohibitionists, who until the ordinance calling the election on the 24th inst. was finally passed by the City Council, united with the City Charter Revision Commission in asking that the election be deferred until fall, are now working with might and main to carry the no-liquor-at-all ordinance which was submitted by them almost at the last minute.

Since the fight opened the ministers have made the subject the text of sermons and several are to speak on prohibition from their pulpits again today. The ministers are divided on the question.

When they submitted their petition last fall the prohibitionists asked that the City Council amend the ordinance so as to make the law tighter, but at the same time not necessitate a change in the charter. Now that the issue has become one of charter amendment they are determined to succeed in making Pasadena an absolutely dry town.

From the first they have aimed their attacks against the serving of liquor at the hotels and restaurants and have opposed the delivery of liquor to residences by wagons. These features they hold to be the worst of present conditions.

The claim that tourists must be accorded the same privileges as those whose homes are in the city is met by them with arguments that unless absolute prohibition is made the law the legalized selling of liquor in the city will be abused and the same conditions obtain that they have been pointing out as indications that things have not been satisfactory in the past.

In a word, both sides are claiming a victory at the coming election, which in many ways will be one of the most important ever held in the city. Statements that hotel managers made at different times last winter to the effect that the business of the large hotels cannot successfully continue if an ordinance so strict as the prohibition ordinance is enacted are constantly referred to by both sides. Members of the Citizens' League and others who agree with them, say that if the prosperity of the city is to continue their charter amendment must be enacted, while the prohibitionists attach little importance to these utterances and maintain that Pasadena is essentially a residence city, a place of homes, churches and schools, and that the more effectively the traffic of liquor is prohibited the better off the city will be.

No Delay.

SWIFT JUSTICE FOR SLAYER.

INDIAN WHO KILLS AGENT TO BE QUICKLY TRIED.

Superintendent, While Dying, Begs Officer Not to Shoot His Man, but Redskin Flees Again and Is Then Seized—Mission Wards Have Several Complaints.

A complaint charging murder was filed yesterday against Ambrosio Apapas, the Mission Indian who fatally shot William H. Stanley, superintendent at the Soboba agency in Riverside county while attending a fence line discussion at Coahuilla reservation, Thursday afternoon. Apapas is in the Riverside County Jail and will be brought to Los Angeles tomorrow. The Federal grand jury will take the matter up for investigation on Tuesday morning.

Assistant United States Dist.-Atty. Robinson, who is in charge of the case, was a close personal friend of the dead superintendent, and received a letter sent by Stanley before the latter was shot in the back by Apapas. He said that the case would be pushed with the greatest speed, and that summary justice would be given Apapas if the testimony warranted such action.

Further details show that the Indian officer, Salzo, might have shot Apapas down but Stanley, as he lay, begged him not to shoot. The officer refrained from shooting until Apapas shot through the stomach, when he fired, the bullet striking Francisco Lubo in the knee. It is asserted that Lubo was assisting Apapas in the affray.

One of the bullets fired by Apapas grazed the face of Carl Stevens, a white teacher in the school, and another passed through the coat of the farming expert of the reservation, Mr. Peterson. The bullet that struck Stanley passed through his body and lodged in his breast-bone. He died early Friday morning.

It is asserted that Stanley had become very unpopular with the Indians because, it is alleged, he favored white men in the running of some of the boundary lines. The night before the shooting the red men held a war dance, and some of the government officers were invited to attend, but they did not do so fearing, it is said, some overt act on the part of the redskins.

It was also charged that the Indians were angry with Stanley because he was so strict in regarding to enforcing the law against selling liquor to the Indians and did not allow them to gamble on the occasion of the fiesta last summer.

The superintendent leaves a widow and two children, who reside in San Jacinto.

EAST SIDE LIBRARY SITE.

The Wednesday Morning Club of East Los Angeles has indorsed as a site for the proposed branch library the lot advocated by one of the factions, located at Workman street and Avenue Twenty-six. The opposition site is located at North Broadway and Griffin avenue and the battle waxeth warm. They seem to have a way of making things so "warm" over there that neither party gets what it is after, and a more unselfish spirit might appeal to those who want to please everybody, city officials say.

SECRETARY KNOX'S SPEECH NEXT THURSDAY EVENING.

The Ice Business

ITS HISTORY IN LOS ANGELES.

SHOWS LITTLE PROFIT.

Interesting statement by S. A. Bulfinch, Los Angeles Agent of the Union Ice Company.

At the present time the public are being solicited to invest in several proposed Ice Companies that are promising large and regular dividends from prices that are much lower than those at present being charged in Los Angeles.

In order that the public may know some of the history of the ice business in Los Angeles, I am giving the following statement:

"The ice business everywhere is the butt of good natured and ill natured remarks wherein an impression is given that the selling of frozen water by the pound is all profit. In no line of business do people possess so little information based on fact as in this.

"Probably no commodity is sold on this market today, except ice, as cheap as it was ten years ago. Every kind of expense in connection with every kind of business has radically increased during this period. Yet today in this city ice manufactured by the same plants and by the same method is sold cheaper than it was years ago.

"The late John Bryson, almost twenty years ago, built a plant and manufactured ice in this city—the business appearing an alluring one. In less than one season he learned that it meant throwing good money after bad. He dismantled his machine and went out of business. The prices then paid were nearly twice what they are today.

"The Citizens Ice Company, a local company, backed by solid men of this community, built the plant now owned by the National Ice Company. It sold all the ice the plant could make. Yet after running for two years was happy to dispose of its plant to the National Ice Company, a San Francisco corporation, as I have understood at less than 50 cents on the dollar.

"More recently the Vacuum Ice Company built a plant and after a season's operation closed up. I have been told it suffered practically a total loss.

"Only a year ago, the Arctic Ice Company, after little more than a year's struggle, discontinued business.

"The Merchants' Ice Company has been running for seven years, doing a large cold store and ice business. I am told it has paid but two dividends in all this time.

"The Los Angeles Ice and Cold Storage Company, I understand, did not pay a single dividend during fifteen years of its existence, notwithstanding its well known business management.

"The Union Ice Company, with branches all over this State, has never paid over a 6 per cent. dividend; and little of its dividend money came from Los Angeles.

"The National Ice and Cold Storage Company, doing business over the State, has paid dividends very irregularly.

SHALL HAVE JUSTICE.

geles, but we Americans in Mexico do not want charity, all we ask is justice," said Evans.

"You will get justice," said Secretary Knox.

At this juncture a representative of a newspaper stepped up and presented a list of typewritten questions.

"My paper would like to have you answer these questions," he said.

Again the Secretary of State smiled. He folded the questions up and put them in his pocket.

"I'll read them and see whether I will answer them or not," he said. "But we intend to state that the questions were submitted to you and——."

The questioner got no further.

"Your paper can state what it sees fit. I will read the questions and see whether they should be replied to or not," said the Secretary. His voice was very pleasant as he made the reply.

The questions had to do with the rumors that the Japanese are trying to establish a fishing colony along the coast of Mexico and the Secretary was asked if this colony would not be in violation of the Monroe Doctrine.

When Mr. Knox was asked if he cared to make any sort of a statement for the newspapers, he said that he did not know of anything he could say which would be of interest.

An old friend of the Secretary of State walked into the car and greeted him, and the Cabinet officer's face again broke into a smile.

"You don't look a day older than you did eleven years ago when we were both members of President McKinley's Cabinet," said the Secretary of State.

"You are fatter and look in the very best of health," replied the friend.

Then Maj. C. F. von Petersdorf, spokesman for the Mexican refugees, was introduced to Secretary Knox.

"We want you to hear the personal experiences of Americans who have suffered hardships and injustice in Mexico," said the major.

"I will be glad to receive your delegation when I return from San Francisco," he replied.

Former Senator Flint, who went with Secretary Knox's party to Santa Barbara, carried with him a number of documents telling of specific cases of the killing of Americans in Mexico, and of the robbery of the American Consulate at Tapia of money that had been entrusted to the Consul for safe keeping by Americans.

Accompanying Secretary Knox are Mrs. Knox, Gov. and Mrs. W. E. Clark of Alaska, Col. L. W. Strayer of Washington, and Maj. W. A. Mensch, who is acting as Secretary Knox's personal aide.

The Secretary of State will visit his brother, Dr. S. P. B. Knox of Santa Barbara until he has to go to San Francisco. The Secretary is a booster for Southern California, and was just on the point of purchasing a home in Santa Barbara when he was called to take a place in the McKinley Cabinet more than a decade ago.

GLIMPSES OF SAN FRANCISCO.

[Special Correspondence of The Times.]

SAN FRANCISCO, May 3.—It was only a fond delusion that we were hugging to our breasts, if it were possible for a delusion to be so embraced without offending the correct forms of speech. Anyway we were promised that the Congressional committee would not report adversely on the continuation of our mint. Now they have gone and done it and the only consolation we get is that San Francisco is sure to win on the floor of the House. If this proves also a delusion there will be some sad statesmen next election.

In refusing to dismiss the indictments against Abe Ruef the court insisted that the defendant had not pressed his right for immediate trial. In fact no one can blame Ruef for not wanting an immediate trial or any other kind. His attorneys admitted that he had not asked for a hearing.

With Ruef and George D. Collins both asking for freedom, this community faces a serious crisis. No one will answer for the consequences if both the gentlemen are turned loose on us at the same time. The objection to their release might be lessened if there was a condition attached to it that they live elsewhere. Many people wonder why they want to get out as long as they have the companionship of each other in jail.

It is a case now of sending joyous congratulations to Japan as the first nation to accept formally the invitation to participate in our exposition. Their display, according to cable advices, will be on a magnificent scale. We will have to forget the harsh things that have been said and done in the past and remember only the glad prospect of the future.

The result of the recall election in Berkeley showing, as it did, a favorable outcome for the incumbents, proves that the college intellectuals oppose innovations. It will be some time before the new elective fads will be tried again in the university town.

The authorities and the United Railroads are trying to agree on a plan for the use of the outer tracks to the ferry. Citizen E. P. E. Troy is against it. He said the corporation could not be trusted. Supervisor Vogelsang said to him: "You can hatch up in less time, Mr. Troy, more prospective litigation than any man I ever saw. It would be a crime to have a municipal road that would stop at Kearney street at the time of the fair. A settlement with the United Railways over the lower Market-street matter is the only solution."

Once more it is proved that San Francisco is a cosmopolitan city. Mayor Rolph crowned five little school girls as May-Day queens. Their names are Bernice Goldstone, Anna Swanstrom, Muriel Buckley, Madeline Hielscher and Katherine Hagelund. The festivities were quite successful and enough candy was eaten by the kids to keep the doctors busy for a month.

The daylight burglars we have acquired of late can beat the world in rapidity. Mrs. H. M. Smith of No. 61 Parker avenue stepped out of her house the other afternoon for ten minutes and when she returned she found it ransacked from top to bottom. Jewels, clothing and 5 cents in cash were gone. The artists who did it are certainly entitled to a world's record for speed.

There are many holdups in broad daylight on some of the principal corners of the city. And these holdups are sanctioned by law. The police traffic squad is enforcing the new ordinance and when the corner cop holds up his hand and blows a whistle traffic stops. It seems to work well and even motorists are obedient.

RECIPROCITY IS SURE TO COME.

COPPER MAGNATE TELLS HOW IT WILL BE ACCOMPLISHED.

Says Waving of Flag Defeated Measure Before—Must Not Confuse Undertaking by Trying to Accomplish Too Much at Once. Great Opportunities.

"Canadian reciprocity can never be accomplished in the manner in which it was attempted at the last elections," said A. P. Turner, president of the Canadian Copper Company of Ontario, at the Alexandria yesterday.

Turner is president of a branch of the International Nickel Company of New York. The mines of the company are located at Copper Cliff and Sudbury, Ont., where more than 30,000 acres of land and immense water power development are owned by the American corporation. Although designated a copper company, the mines produce a greater percentage of nickel.

"The big mistake on the part of our statesmen," continued Turner, "was an endeavor to force reciprocity on too many issues, and when the conservative party took its stand against being annexed by this country they appealed to the patriotic spirit of the majority of citizens.

"It was the waving of the flag that won the day. They merely pulled off the same political stunt that has been in existence in this country and has been much used by men of the style of Foraker of Ohio, or of one of the candidates for nomination at the present time, whose name I cannot mention, for fear of getting into political difficulties.

"The thing to do and the thing that will be done in the future regarding reciprocity will be the admission of a single measure at a time as the occasion demands. To do other than this means to antagonize the Canadians toward this country."

There is much development work being done in all lines of mining through Canada, Turner says.

"Many of the properties are owned by capitalists of the United States. There are numerous mining companies which are doing well, and they are shipping the unfinished product to this country, where it is made up.

"Canadian prosperity has never been better. There is more development going on there than ever before, and the working people are satisfied with conditions. American farmers are filling up the great land areas and bringing the middle and western country under cultivation. Much of this money comes back to the United States."

Turner came to Los Angeles in quest of a mild climate and rest. He has been living in Southern California for four months, practically in retirement, save for the company of his wife and two children and several friends. Within a week, he will leave in his private car for his Canadian home, much improved in health.

HER GRIEF UNFOUNDED?

Woman Receives Telepathic Message Son Is Dead in Mine Disaster, Commits Suicide.

Relying implicitly on telepathic messages, which announced the death of her son, Mrs. M. L. Martine, a widow, living alone at No. 1152 West Seventh street, committed suicide early yesterday morning by turning on the gas while the rest of the household was asleep.

According to friends of the unfortunate woman, she had been despondent for several days following the receipt of alleged occult communications from the great beyond, giving particulars of the death of a beloved son in Arizona in a mine disaster.

Efforts were made to convince the woman that her aerial communication had become tangled with more worldly affairs, but she apparently was inconsolable.

Other lodgers in the house aroused the neighborhood when the smell of gas became pronounced and the police were notified. By the side of the dead woman was a note, as follows: "Should anything happen to me notify Attorney Brown of the Coulter building."

The body was removed to Peck & Chase's morgue to await the action of the Coroner.

As far as can be ascertained by the police the report that Mrs. Martine had lost a son is untrue.

Bowed down by the weight of domestic affairs, Mrs. Stella Wooff, No. 1130 Central avenue, attempted suicide early yesterday morning by swallowing antiseptic tablets.

She was discovered, supposedly in her death agony, by Earl Harvey, who notified the police.

A letter addressed to "Papa," was written as follows: "Tell George to take good care of the boys and not to worry about me, as I will be better off. Tell all good-bye, Stella."

Prompt measures on the part of a physician resulted in her recovery from the state of coma into which she had fallen, and it is now believed she is in a fair way to live.

Mrs. Wooff refused to make any statement.

SEWER PROBLEM VEXES.

Pomona's Engineer Does Not Believe the Joint Action of Cities Will Settle the Matter.

POMONA, May 4.—City Engineer C. E. Bayley has been investigating lately the future sewer problem of this city, for it is quite evident from the present rapid rate at which Pomona is growing that it will only be a short time until the present sewer farm seven miles southwest of here in the Spadra hills will be inadequate to care for the additional sewage.

A general plan which might help the situation is being considered by Pasadena, South Pasadena and Alhambra which cities are suggesting that the Supervisors put in a main sewer line running down to the sea. Cities could then conduct their sewage from sewer laterals, into the main sewer pipe line of the county. Pomona might thus find an outlet for sewage, but Engineer Bayley does not think this plan will be successful for he does not believe a county artery would be feasible. Meanwhile the proposition is furnishing a problem which must be solved.

A SURPRISED PAGE.

Senator Cockrell Waited in Vain for the Apple He Sent the Messenger After.

[Baltimore Star: When Senator Cullom of Illinois filed, as required by law, his account of expenses incurred during his campaign for reelection to the Senate, it included one item of $11.50 for apples. Many of the Senators are wondering what Senator Cullom did with these apples and how they helped him in his campaign. A man from Illinois explained this expenditure to a group in Washington yesterday by saying Senator Cullom's managers bought the apples from the country stores in the State and distributed them among the politicians, who came to the stores during the evenings to discuss politics and the situation. Thus the Cullom men made adherents of two classes of voters—the storekeepers who sold the apples and the politicians who ate them.

Apples have appeared often in the Senate, for a number of Senators have been great apple-eaters. Two of the best-known apple-lovers have left the Senate. Joe Blackburn of Kentucky was a great eater of apples, and when asked why he did so, he replied: "Well, apples always keep me in good health, and I attribute my clear complexion and rosy cheeks entirely to my habit of apple-eating." Senator Cockrell of Missouri was constantly eating apples, and he used to sit at his desk in the front row on the Democratic side of the Senate and take an apple out of his pocket, pare and cut it, and then munch it while he sat and listened to the debates.

One day he found himself without one of his favorite fruit in his pocket and, calling a page to him, handed him 5 cents and said: "Here, take this 5 cents and go down into the restaurant and get an apple."

The page seemed surprised, but did as he was bid. The Senator sat in his seat and waited. Finally he got tired and started to look for the page. He found him at last sitting in the marble-room, eating the apple. The Senator took the boy to task and asked him why he did not bring the apple to him, as he sent for it. The boy replied: "Why, Senator, you told me to get an apple, and as you did not say it was for you, I thought it was for myself,' and he took another great bite of the apple, to the added disgust of the aged Senator from Missouri.

Of Interest to Women

Wrinkless Skin and Beautiful Form Easy to Acquire.

Women will be much interested in knowing what all beauty specialists now claim that a greaseless cold cream freely massaged into the skin will keep the lines out of the face. It is not necessary to buy the high priced ready made kinds as you can make the finest in your own home in a few minutes by mixing two ounces of powdered cerol with a pint of boiling water—stirring until thick and creamy. Nature did not intend women to be flat chested and it is not necessary that one should if she will use the famous Vaucaire treatment—to get it fresh and pure, make it up yourself—make a pint of sugar syrup and to this add one ounce of true gallol which you can get at any drug store. This will make enough for a month's treatment.

To keep the hands soft and white, apply freely, after washing, a simple lotion made by dissolving two ounces of amarol in a pint of boiling water.

To remove unsightly hairs, mix a little delol with enough water to make paste. Smear over hairs and after two or three minutes wash off and the hairs will be gone. Beware of imitations. Be sure to get the genuine delol—druggists charge 75c for an ounce bottle.

Oh how disappointed you are to see it.—Gray hairs take away that youthful appearance that you are so anxious to, and should keep,—for beauty and good looks depend so much upon natural colored, thick, glossy and healthy hair.

Every one is attracted to the woman with beautiful hair. Why not have it—get rid of the gray hairs—keep them out altogether by using

HAY'S HAIR HEALTH.

You'll be surprised how quickly it will restore those gray hairs to their natural color and how well it will keep them so.

It is not a dye but the most satisfactory and reliable restorer.

Riverside.

NOTABLE among the social festivities which have attended the ushering in of May was the annual May-Day festival at Fairmount Park, which was participated in by no less than 2000 little folks and their guardians. The ceremonies began with the arrival of the May queen, Miss Maude Whitaker, and her attendants, Miss Katherine Adkinson and Miss Elizabeth Trethaway, on prancing steeds caparisoned with roses. Clarence McKean, the red-capped buster, announced the coming of the queen and following in the wake of her majesty the ranks of tiny kindergartners variously costumed as fairies, flower girls, brownies and Indians. When the queen had been enthroned upon her flower-bedecked dais the little folks frolicked before her as entertainers. They wound the May pole. They gave exhibitions of Japanese and Indian dances; they formed a mimic band, giving a clever imitation upon horse shoes. Older girls gave a tambourine dance in Indian costume, and, in closing, twelve young ladies clad in white, and carrying huge bouquets, danced the May-pole dance. The joyous affair was in charge of the Queen Esther Circle and Standard Bearers of the First Methodist Church.

On the evening of May Day two of Riverside's most popular young people, Miss Fannie F. Sodestrom and Lee Roy Patton Simms, were united in marriage at the Calvary Presbyterian Church, in the presence of 700 relatives and friends. Between massive pillars of roses the bride in her shimmering pearl-bespangled gown, exchanged marriage vows with the husband of her choice. Surrounding her were the members of her bridal party; her maid-of-honor, Miss Ina Conger of Sac City, Iowa, her bridesmaids, Misses Fern Keane of Redlands, Marjorie Cunningham, Dorothy Cunningham, Mildred Waite, Leila Waite, Frances Seaton, Dorothy Wilbur and Norma Denson; her brother, Robert Sodestrom, who gave her away; and the officiating clergyman, Dr. W. A. Hunter; her flower girls, Frances Robiee and Mariana Evans; her little ring-bearer, Master Orrick Evans, and the ushers. The beautiful wedding music was played by Miss Eunice Ward. Following the ceremony a large reception was given at the home of the bride's mother, Mrs. Frances Taylor Sodestrom, on Orange street. Here, as at the church, the floral decorations were of surpassing loveliness. After congratulations had been said and the wedding collation served the young people left for a short honeymoon, which will be enjoyed by motor. Upon their return they will occupy the handsome new home which is in readiness for them at No. 807 Rubidoux drive.

Miss Ramey of Highland Park spent the week-end as the guest of her sister, Mrs. A. L. Ball.

Corona.

THE Woman's Improvement Club of Corona was entertained Tuesday by Mrs. Chas. A. Holloway.

The programme consisted of a review of the book "Marie-Claire" by Mrs. R. R. Root. A paper prepared by Mrs. W. M. Dean, on the subject of Olive Schreiner's "Woman and Labor" was read by Miss Lewis. "Three Dreams in a Desert" was read by Miss Stella Platt. David Graham Phillips' "Arraignment of the American Woman" was considered by Mrs. J. P. Key. Following this, light refreshments were served.

Mrs. W. E. Jukes and daughter Mrs. Jas. L. Stickle, who have been visiting Mrs. Jukes's daughter, Mrs. Geo. M. Blair for the past two months will return to their eastern homes the first of next week.

Mrs. George Sindecor has as her house guests, Mrs. Minna Lee and Mrs. Grace Riley of Kansas City.

Los Angeles High School.

It was mothers' day at the Los Angeles High School Friday afternoon. The innovation proved successful and enjoyable from all aspects. Hundreds of mothers gained a direct knowledge of the school and its teachers, and had nothing but praise for all they saw and heard. The visitors were welcomed in the assembly by Mr. Housh at 2 o'clock. Mr. Housh was followed by Dr. Lillian Ray of the physical training department. Dr. Ray told of the careful and systematic work that is being done in behalf of the physical welfare of the girls. Quaint folk-dances by some of the girls' classes from the gymnasium gave a practical demonstration of the pleasure and perfection with which the girls do their work. Music was furnished by the boys' glee club and the girls' club. Mrs. Susan Dorsey, vice-principal, concluded the programme with a brief account of her work in caring for the mental and moral welfare of the girls.

After the assembly meeting tea was served in the lunch house, following which the various departments of the school were visited.

The school had two tallyhos crowded with tag-sellers on Saturday. An aggressive army of L.A.H.S. boys were also busy selling tags at the Santa Monica road races.

Largely through the fine playing of Miss Corinne Stanton the L. A. High School won the county tennis championship last Thursday. Miss Stanton won the girls' singles, the doubles, with Kathryn Lennox as her partner, and the mixed doubles with Allyn Barber.

Girls from the gymnasium classes defeated the heretofore invincible Santa Ana indoor baseball team, by a narrow margin of one run.

Huntington Park was victorious in its final debate with L. A. High, winning by a margin of two and one-half points. Oral Gillette of the local team was awarded first place for her all-around good work.

Hollywood High.

The faculty gave a May Day party to the senior class on Friday night. The guests were received in the expression room, which was beautifully decorated with flowers and greenery, and Bierlicht's orchestra furnished the music.

A unique entertainment was provided for the guests. They were divided into groups under the names of flowers, and each group was instructed to enact an event in their school life. Much merriment accompanied the guessing by the other classes as to what the event was, and judges awarded prizes to the group which best carried out the event they wished to portray. In the music room a miniature flower parade was held, the guests making the floats, some of which were very ingenious and beautiful. After a promenade in the auditorium the guests marched over to the domestic and fine arts building, where supper was served, the tables being arranged in the form of an H, and after supper Dr. Snyder acted as toastmaster, the following responding: Margaret Kelsey, Leslie Somers and Henry Enders. A maypole dance followed, and everybody had a thoroughly delightful time.

Mr. Wirt's lecture last week was attended by a large majority of the students, who thoroughly enjoyed the gifted speaker's graphic description of the Far North.

FIRST GRAY HAIR SIGN OF AGE. EASY WAY TO PRESERVE COLOR.

A harmless remedy, made from common garden sage, quickly restores gray hair to natural color. The care of the hair, to prevent it from losing its color and luster, is just as important as to care for teeth to keep them from discoloring. Why spend money for cosmetics and creams to improve the complexion, and yet neglect your hair, when gray hair is even more conspicuous and suggestive of age than wrinkles or a poor complexion? Of the two, it is easier to preserve the natural color and beauty of the hair than it is to have a good complexion.

All that is necessary is the occasional use of Wyeth's Sage and Sulphur Hair Remedy, a preparation of common garden Sage and Sulphur, combined with other valuable remedies for dry, harsh, faded hair, dandruff, itching scalp and falling hair. After a few applications of this simple, harmless remedy, your hair will gradually be restored to its natural color, in a short time the dandruff will be removed, and your hair will no longer come out, but will start to grow as Nature intended it should.

Don't neglect your hair, for it goes further than anything else to make or mar your good looks. You can buy this remedy at any drug store for fifty cents a bottle, and your druggist will give your money back if you are not satisfied after using. Purchase a bottle today. You will never regret it when you realize the difference it will make in your appearance. Special agent, Sun Drug Company.

"GETS-IT" Will Get Any Corn, Sure!

Almost Like Magic. Guaranteed.

You'll Quit Everything Else for "GETS IT."

Any corn just loves to be cut and gouged, but it's mighty rough on you. Plasters and salves usually take away some of the toe with them, and leave the corn to flourish.

The new corn cure "GETS-IT" is perfectly harmless to the healthy flesh, but it does go for a corn, bunion, callous or wart right off the reel. The corn shrivels away from the healthy flesh and drops off.

You can apply "GETS-IT" in two seconds and it begins its work right off. Pretty soon you'll forget you ever had corns or bunions.

"GETS-IT" is sold at all druggists, at 25c a bottle, or sent on receipt of price by E. Lawrence & Co., Chicago.

Referring to the above record, Theodore Roosevelt said on September 27, 1910, at Rochester, N. Y., at the Republican State Convention:

"During the last eighteen months a long list of laws, embodying legislation most heartily to be commended as combining wisdom with progress, has been enacted by Congress and approved by President Taft."

This was before Roosevelt decided to become a candidate for a third term.

READ WHAT LEADING PROGRESSIVES SAY OF TAFT AND OF PRESENT POLITICAL CONDITIONS.

By Theodore Roosevelt:

"I do not believe there can be found in the whole country a man so well fitted to be President as William Howard Taft. He is not only absolutely fearless, absolutely disinterested and upright, but he has the widest acquaintance with the nation's needs, without and within, and the broadest sympathies with all our citizens.

"He would be as emphatically a President of the plain people as Lincoln, yet not Lincoln himself would be freer from the least taint of demagogy, the least tendency to arouse, to appeal to class hatred of any kind."

Dr. Harvey W. Wiley, pure food expert:

"President Taft is the one man who stood between me and destruction at Washington. When efforts were being made to assassinate me, Taft proved my only protector. He stood by me and I am grateful to him. I hope he will be re-elected President."

Hon. Walter L. Fisher, Secretary of the Interior, one of the founders of the progressive movement:

"President Taft has shown that he is more interested in curing evils than in denouncing them, in moving steadily and surely forward than in talking about the desirability of moving forward. He is a conservationist, who appreciates that conservation will be a useful and enduring policy, only to the extent that we make it a practical and constructive policy."

Rudolph Spreckles, who financed the graft prosecution for San Francisco:

"The people have been fighting these many years for political freedom and have endeavored to rid their political parties of boss rule, and I hold it to be wrong for the very men elected on that platform (meaning the present state political machine, which abandoned La Follette and "flopped" over to Roosevelt,) to now use the influence of their office along the old "stand-pat" lines by forcing the State officials, the employees and those seeking favor to form an organization or machine in order that they may dictate nominations, and control elections. Let there be an end to boss rule and let the people rule."

Dr. Chester Rowell, father of the Lincoln-Roosevelt League:

"Every man who stops to consider, will say that President Taft has made one of the best balanced and most conspicuous Presidents the country has ever had. For one thing, he has brought about a treaty of peace which means more than anything Roosevelt ever had to his credit. Roosevelt's erratic manner, ungovernable temper and unwillingness to acknowledge his many mistakes, are reasons why he is not suitable for the Presidency."

Rev. Robert J. Burdette:

"Taft is wise, patriotic and patient. Because he has a reverence for the law, which, in these days of political unrest, of contempt of law, of legislation by dynamite and recall by Winchesters, with virulent and sensational newspapers endeavoring to stir up strife between this country and friendly nations, and with the gates of the Pacific about to be opened to hundreds of thousands of immigrants, we need a cool head rather than a hot one in the Presidential office."

FINALLY.

William Howard Taft, more than any other man living today, stands as the advocate of government by regular and orderly process of law, unyieldingly opposed to the mob spirit and to the whole dangerous, destructive programme of the professional agitators.

The spirit of unrest and discontent which is being fomented throughout the length and breadth of the nation today by demagogues of high and low degree, is exactly the same spirit which attempted, a few months ago, to capture the city of Los Angeles.

Aside from California's debt of gratitude to her great benefactor, President Taft, it is unbelievable that the real Republicans of Los Angeles county will countenance for a moment the proposition of joining hands with the professional agitators and the present boss-ridden State political machine, which has nominated thirteen State office holders as candidates for delegate to the Republican National Convention, in an effort to discredit and defeat the titular head of our party, whose record of the past three years must stand as the test of our success or failure at the Presidential election in November.

We appeal to all loyal Republicans to vote for Taft at the primaries on May 14 to insure his renomination and re-election, and to assure the triumph of sane and rational government.

Respectfully submitted,

Los Angeles County Taft Committee.

TO THE SHRINERS—GREETING!

BY T. HOWARD WILSON.

From shrines remote, beyond the burning sands
Where once the Indian yawped his battle-cry,
Come caravans ornate with crescents bright
And scimitars agleam within the golden sun.
Here where Cumushquio the fairy dwells,
Beneath Gorgonio's towered battlements,
These mighty potentates, on yearly quest,
Arrive to greet the Mecca of their dreams.
The Orient comes to meet the Occident,
And we who live along the fabled sea,
Where sunset gardens glow, stretch welcome hands
And bid the gates swing wide with ample cheer.

Then let our banners wave on hall and home,
And let the wizard Kaph-too-oo-yoo pour
From magic jars his dew of ecstacy.
Full many moons have waned since last you came From Sunrise-Lakes where eastern Trues abide
To pitch your Arab tents in summer glades.
The perfumed breezes murmur, Too-kwai!—Come!
At night Cheech-wee-deh sings her sleeping-song;
From vale and hill the quail ch'um-nid-deh calls,
And little spirits living in the pools
Rise on the wind-blown foam and answer, come!

Great Spirit brooding o'er the East and West,
To whom the Trues are vassals far and near,
Guard well our tribesmen wand'ring from afar,
And in their wigwams keep their little ones.

Visitors and Newcomers to Los Angeles

Often Find the Change of Drinking Water Decidedly Detrimental; You Ought to Drink PURITAS.

To people who are accustomed to soft drinking water—or to water that has no alkali in it, the natural water supplies of Southern California are frequently very distasteful — to say nothing of their action in disarranging the functions of the body.

To you, who may not be aware of the precautions which most residents here take with regard to drinking water, we strongly recommend the constant use of PURITAS Distilled Water.

If you're staying for only a short while, you don't want to be inconvenienced by ill feelings during the time you spend in sight-seeing and visiting. If you expect to be a permanent resident, you surely want to have the best of everything—and in drinking water, it is PURITAS.

PURITAS is in no sense a medicinal water—it is not carbonated nor mineralized—you can't find a trace of mineral or vegetable matter in PURITAS. It is simply and solely the purest, soft, aerated, distilled water that can be scientifically produced.

PURITAS is first of all, thoroughly distilled; then, to put back into it the sparkle which distillation removes, it is carefully aerated with pure ozone; then scientifically bottled; and delivered to your home, your apartment, hotel or office, in five-gallon demijohns with filter for easy using.

A five-gallon demijohn costs but 40 cents, to any point within the old city boundary lines. To points beyond, the cost is a trifle more, owing to the longer haul.

And if you're outside of Los Angeles, and there isn't a dealer in your vicinity—they're in practically every town throughout Southern California—simply write or telephone us, and we will see that you receive a supply very promptly. To Absorb Freckles and Other Belmishes

Every spring I receive many letters from girls seeking some reliable recipe for removing freckles. Last year I advised many to try mercolized wax. Such favorable results were reported that this season I have recommended nothing else for the purpose. The wax seems to possess unusual properties which completely absorb every freckle, with no harmful effect. The complexion improves wonderfully, becoming as soft as a rose petal, and as delicately tinted.

Get an ounce of mercolized wax at any druggist, spread a thin layer of it over the entire face every night for awhile, washing this off in the morning. For rough, red skin, sallowness, blackheads, pimples, and all cutaneous blemishes, this treatment is superior to any that has ever come under my observation.

Springtime also brings wrinkles to many sensitive skins that are much exposed to winds and changing temperatures. Pour a half pint witch hazel into a basin, then an ounce of powdered saxolite, which quickly dissolves. Bathe the face in this; the effect on a wrinkled skin is remarkable. — Marie Demarest in Ladies' Favorite Magazine.

Heaven-Lit.

GENIUS AND MAUDE ADAMS.

THE LIGHT OF THE AMERICAN SPHINX-RIDDLE.

Freakishness of the Foremost and Most Successful Woman Star on the American Stage Has Been Cultivated for Very Practical and Resultful Ends.

BY JULIAN JOHNSON.

A sort of indeterminate small woman, sad of face, notwithstanding eyes that smile, will hold the center of the stage in Los Angeles during the coming week.

It is no new thing for her to hold the center of the stage.

She invariably holds the center of the stage wherever she goes; it occasions no surprise to her, nor to anyone else.

This woman is generally acclaimed "The woman's woman," the beloved of her own sex.

Yet this is true only in a degree.

Part of her sex hate her, cordially.

Other actresses.

For the woman is Maude Adams.

How are you going to account for the unprecedented, at present unequaled and may-never-be-surpassed success of Maude Adams, the Sphinx of the American theater.

I confess that I don't know.

Who does?

Only echo answers.

Maude Adams will celebrate her fortieth birthday this year; the attraction of early youth is no longer hers, though youth a certain degree, like that of her own Peter Pan, will always be with her.

To a certain extent, Maude Adams's phenomenal and maintained celebrity has been due to curiosity.

And the curiosity has come about because the public has been kept away from her, rather than having her pushed violently at them.

Maude Adams is not interviewable.

Newspaper men cannot see her, and, where they are sensible, they do not even ask to see her.

Society knows her not, and the pestiferous caller, who fees the hotel clerk and bribes the bell-hop, neither cometh or ringeth to annoy.

The business manager of Miss Adams's own company, though by no means barred, seldom discusses any of her affairs with her. She has a secretary to do that.

She shuns motors, and never goes abroad, except in a four-wheeler, drawn by a pair of very moderate animals.

She does not eat in a public dining-room on any occasion.

Neither at home, nor abroad does she entertain, or is she entertained.

When she is resting, in the summer, she goes to the far end of Long Island, miles away from other summerers, and there communes with nature and Maude Adams.

Married?

No.

The romancers have perpetually gotten up a cool, lofty sort of soul-teamship between her and Charles Frohman, but if that purely intellectual communion of kindred spirits ever has existed, the outside world has no positive proof.

On the stage she has a maid, whose duty it is to keep intruders away from her.

Is this art, accident, or freakishness.

A little of all three.

Maude Adams is very timid and retiring—that's the accident of it.

She is a woman hermit, born. There's your freakishness.

Frohman found these qualities, and has cultivated them to an extraordinary degree. There's your art.

Mark Twain first set down in literature the principal that a child from whom work is withheld, as a tempting pleasure, will soon want to work as though old Nick, himself, were after him. When Tom Sawyer wanted to go fishing he painted fence—whitewashing in such a delectable glow of inspirational art that all the young rough-necks in the neighborhood engaged in a free fight for the honor of decorating the premises in water and lime, while the artful Tom, afar, dug worms and sang silent and sarcastic music within his sly soul.

Mr. Frohman, who has been a very great manager, judging from the point of popular success, immediately saw that if Miss Adams's hermit-crab tendencies were cultivated to the nth power he would have an extraordinary freak on his hands in a short while who would be eliciting more attention than any combination genius of histrionism and literature who was able to syndicate beauty articles through half a dozen States.

So, through her own art, and because she was a Sphinx, Miss Adams has arisen to greatness.

Nowadays, with the advent of the Titheradges and the Taylors and rest of the tribe of youngsters in skirts, a lot of people are asking themselves:

"What is this Adams tradition that we have been falling for all these years?

"Is she, or is she not?

"Is this is the world-beating case of tinsel glitter and high-class palmistry—or not?"

I say a lot of people.

Mostly, I mean, professional people.

The great public—that thing to which the manager always snivellingly refers as "the dear public"—has never asked that question about Miss Adams.

They have always accepted her, with simple, childlike faith.

But the fact that these others have arisen, flourished, and ofttimes died away, while Maude Adams, like the brook, seems to go on forever, has caused the asking of the eternal question—why?

Genius is at the bottom of the well of riddles.

You can't decipher the face of genius, plumb it with a foot-rule, or compare it with anything that went before, or will be again.

Maude Adams is, and always will be, an original genius.

And the Lord knows there are very few geniuses in the world.

It was genius which glorified the great play of "Peter Pan."

It was genius which saved "What Every Woman Knows," after its first act a very dull play.

As for the manifestation of Maude Adams's genius in "Chantecler," Rostand's play, that we shall see this week.

The Week.

MAUDE ADAMS, "CHANTECLER."

ROSTAND'S GREAT DRAMA AT THE MASON OPERAHOUSE.

May Boley to Try Dressler's Biggest Stellar Role Today—Marjorie Rambeau in Revival of "Merely Mary Ann"—"Madame X" Continuance—Belasco—Mission Play.

The coming of Maude Adams is always counted a red-letter event by the actress' admirers. And that these admirers are numerous is obvious from the fact that Miss Adams is looked upon as the most popular actress this country has ever known. Just now Miss Adams is indulging in her ambition to do big things in the theater, things worth while, and when she makes her appearance at the Mason Operahouse tomorrow night it will be in Edmond Rostand's celebrated play, "Chantecler."

"Chantecler" opens with a prologue designed to create an atmosphere for the play, kindle the imagination of the audience and explain the absence of all human beings from the scenes. This prologue is recited by Miss Adams before the curtain ascends. Then the picture of the barnyard comes into view with its wistaria-covered house, dog kennel and general farming paraphernalia, all built on a large scale so as to dwarf the stature of the actors.

There are fowls of all kinds. The cat dozes on the wall and the dog is seen in the kennel. Then Chantecler, lordly and superb, struts upon the scene chanting the "Ode to the Sun," one of the poetic glories of the play. Chantecler is the egoist, the idealist burdened with a great mission in the world and filled with faith in the importance of his work. He believes it is his vocation to dispel the darkness of the night by causing the sun to rise each morning. There are some who are amused at his conceited pretentions.

Chantecler dominates kindly over his flock and sends his progeny of chicks about their business. But his contentment is ruffled when Patou, the dog—a symbol of the plain, honest philosopher—and the blackbird (a saucy, insincere, shallow time-server,) warn him that insidious influences are working against him. As he listens, a hen pheasant, pursued by a hunter, takes refuge in the yard. With her entrance into Chantecler's life begins the conflict which is to end with the disillusionment and the sad revelation of the humbler direction in which his services really lie.

In the hen pheasant, Rostand typifies woman in all her virtues and weaknesses, beautiful and high-minded, yet jealous of man's appointed tasks and covetous to monopolize his whole affectionized interests. Chantecler is attracted by the hen pheasant's charms.

The second act is a hillside overlooking a valley. A plot against the cock is being formed by the envious owls. They, reflecting that they cannot overthrow Chantecler alone, decide to enlist hired assassins, the game cocks summoned by the peacock, who hates the barnyard monarch. They will humble their victim at the guinea hen's reception on the morrow. But dawn is about to break and in one of the most brilliantly-imagined and most-eloquently-written passages in the play Chantecler raises his mighty clarion call and brings back the day.

The third act discloses the reception of the parvenu guinea hen, who is the snob, the tuft-hunter, the busybody of the fowls. The reception is held in a corner of the kitchen garden, made picturesque by huge vegetables. The guests arrive in all of the varieties of the feathered world.

Now comes one of the strokes of the drama. Chantecler makes no attempt to conceal his contempt for the gaudy game cocks. The insult is offered and the white pyle with the razor spurs challenges. In a moment the battle is on. Chantecler is beaten back. He is about to go down to defeat when an ominous shadow spreads over the throng.

It is the dreaded hawk. Instantly the feathered tribe dash to their natural protector. Their faith renews his strength and courage and when, with the passing of the hawk, the battle is resumed, he is victorious. He realizes that all of his friends except Patou wished to see him humbled. So he listens to the tempting of the pheasant and resolves to go out into that wider world from which she came.

This brings the play to the wild, beautiful forest scene of the final act. The monarch is now dominated by the pheasant, who will allow him only one song each morning. She taunts him that the nightingale's song is more beautiful than his, and ruefully he admits it. The hunter shoots the nightingale when lo! another rises to take its place. He begins to doubt his own omnipotence, and then the pheasant takes his head under her wing and keeps it there until the sun has appeared. And this time he has neglected to crow even once.

Disillusioned, crestfallen, he is now face to face with the tragedy of his life. Yet he will still be strong. If he cannot bring the light, he can at least perform the humbler mission of raising the sleeping world after the day, which is not of his making, shall have dawned.

Thus, the moral of the play. Find your right, place in the economy of life. Be faithful to your conception of duty, even though it be less important than in your inexperience you had at first believed. There are over seventy roles in the play.

—o—

Fischer's Lyceum.

Joy for the Shriners—May Boley is to play "Tillie's Nightmare" at the Fischer Lyceum palace of fun this coming week, beginning with today's matinee. That ought to be worth a barrel of zem-zem to every fez-top who crosses the burning sands to the oasis of Los Angeles.

For May Boley in "Tillie's Nightmare" ought to be a human scream of delight. No more fitting vehicle for the May Boley brand of fun could be doped out, and no one more suited to interpret the wonderfully funny Tillie could be found in a sweep of seven States.

"Pop" Fischer and Harry James certainly have struck their gait in capturing this great laugh-play, and in having May Boley to handle it, they have given fresh evidence of "Fischer luck." Miss Boley herself has taken the part to heart, and declares it the crowning achievement of one of those gladsome events that come once in a century.

The entire Follies company will surround May Boley in this great show, including that wonderful voice (Laura Oakley.) The vaudevillians, Frost & Snow, played by Reece Gardner and Jane Urban; Maud Blobbs, Tillie's favored sister, played by Texas Guinan; Sim Pettingill, who woos Tillie and becomes a famous merchant in his dreams; Herbert Cawthorne; Harvey Tinker, the inventor; Bob Lett, Smily Bragg, the drummer; Madison Smith and Mrs. Grouch, the shopper, interpreted by Claudia Rogers.

With the great chorus, the ponies for the wonderful store scene, the luminously humorous boarding-house table, and all the rest, this certainly is the prize package play.

To hear May Boley sing "Heaven Will Protect the Working-girl" will in itself drive the blues from any sand-burned Shriner or his mate; to listen to "Ting-a-ling" will delight the most camel-weary, and to watch and listen to "Just a Bit of Lingerie" will torment even a drinkless camel after his eight days of abstinence.

And these are only the high lights in the drama of delight; running through it like a pattern in a weaver's loom, is May Boley, the motif and the real standby of the fabric of fun. The production will be guaranteed to be the best ever, and the whole will mark the high tide in Fischer Follies. There will be the usual bargain matinee Wednesday, too.

Majestic.

For the second week of Miss Marjorie Rambeau's engagement at the Hamburger Majestic Theater, this popular young actress will, tonight, by popular demand, offer an elaborate presentation of her greatest success, "Merely Mary Ann."

Everyone who has ever seen Miss Rambeau in her wonderfully fine characterization of Mary Ann, the poor, uneducated, but thoroughly lovable scrub girl of the cheap London tenement lodging-house, will freely admit that it is her greatest achievement, while Miss Rambeau herself considers it as her favorite part.

Many theatergoers will also doubtless recall that it was as the heroine of this delightful Israel Zangwill comedy drama, that Miss Rambeau leaped into instant favor on her first appearance as leading woman of the Burbank company, and the announcement that she will again be seen as Mary Ann, will, no doubt, arouse more than ordinary interest in her second week's stay at the Broadway playhouse.

William Gibson will be seen in the part of the poor young composer who finally falls in love with Mary Ann, and who, after she has become heiress to a fortune and he has won success, refuses for a long time to attempt to win her hand.

Adele Farrington, Lloyd Bacon and every member of Miss Rambeau's splendid supporting company will be found in the cast to excellent advantage, not excepting the little canary "Dick," who plays such an important part in the Zangwill play.

With the presentation of "Merely Mary Ann," which doubtless will attract a series of audiences of large proportions, Miss Rambeau will close her engagement of two weeks at the Majestic, being followed by Margaret Anglin in "Green Stockings."

—o—

Burbank.

The literally tremendous triumph achieved by Muriel Starr, Donald Bowles and the others of the Burbank company in Bisson's world famous drama, "Madame X," made it apparent that a second week of this powerful and stirring play would be necessary.

No finer conception and pathetic portrayal of the unhappy woman who seeks forgiveness from her husband for an unfortunate mistake and is brutally denied even a final look upon her infant boy, can be imagined than that given by Miss Starr. It is at once compelling and convincing, and at all times sketched with absolute verity and strength.

Mr. Bowles instantly leaped into Burbank popularity by the forcefulness and the boyish eloquence of his defense of his mother, her identity unknown to him at the time, with only the unfortunate position of the poor woman speaking to his sense of justice and right.

From Forrest Stanley down to the most unimportant member of the big cast, there is no member of the Burbank company, who is not alway "in the picture" contributing fine acting to the performance.

Just as soon as the public shows that it is through with this wonderfully good "Madame X" presentation, Lauretta Taylor, one of the cleverest and brilliant young stars, will commence a special engagement with the Burbank company. Miss Taylor's first appearance at the Burbank will be in her original part in "Seven Sisters," the delightful comedy from an Hungarian source that was presented in New York and Chicago last season by Daniel Frohman with a great deal of success.

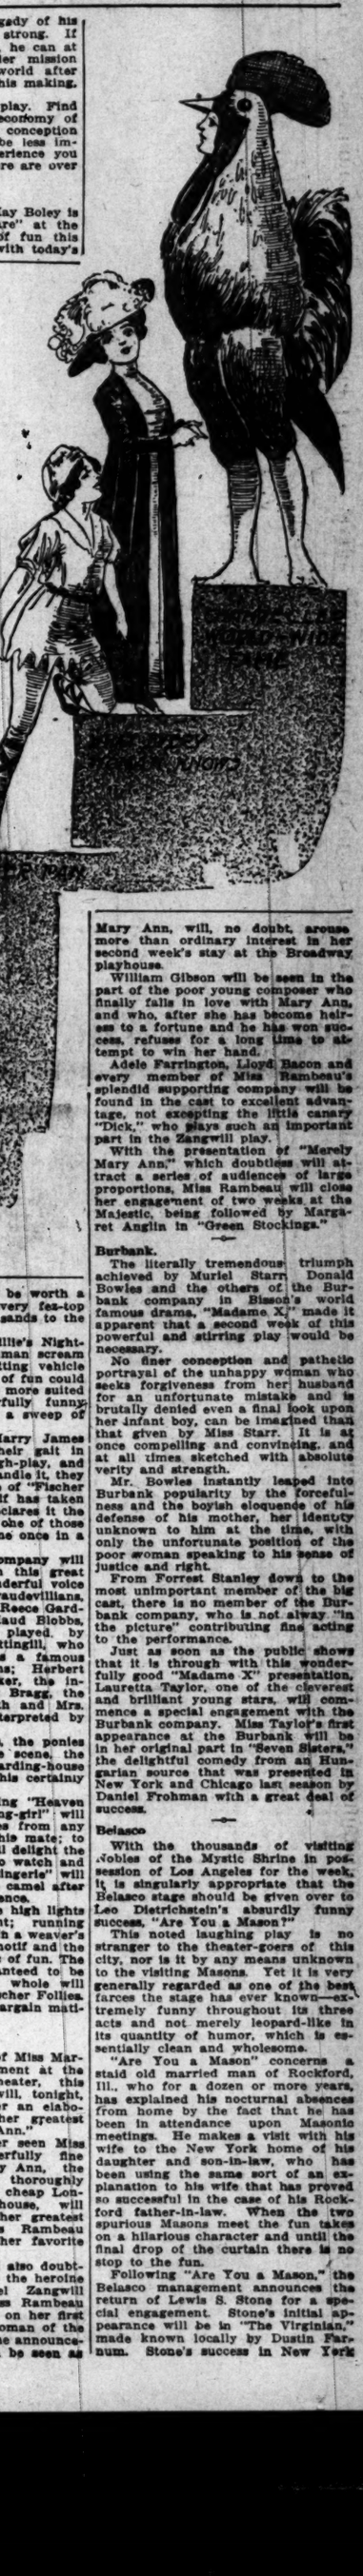
Belasco

With the thousands of visiting Nobles of the Mystic Shrine in possession of Los Angeles for the week, it is singularly appropriate that the Belasco stage should be given over to Leo Dietrichstein's absurdly funny success, "Are You a Mason?"

This noted laughing play is no stranger to the theater-goers of this city, nor is it by any means unknown to the visiting Masons. Yet it is very generally regarded as one of the best farces the stage has ever known—extremely funny throughout its three acts and not merely leopard-like in its quantity of humor, which is essentially clean and wholesome.

"Are You a Mason" concerns a staid old married man of Rockford, Ill., who for a dozen or more years, has explained his nocturnal absences from home by the fact that he has been in attendance upon Masonic meetings. He makes a visit with his wife to the New York home of his daughter and son-in-law, who has been using the same sort of an explanation to his wife that has proved so successful in the case of his Rockford father-in-law. When the two spurious Masons meet the fun takes on a hilarious character and until the final drop of the curtain there is no stop to the fun.

Following "Are You a Mason," the Belasco management announces the return of Lewis S. Stone for a special engagement. Stone's initial appearance will be in "The Virginian," made known locally by Dustin Farnum. Stone's success in New York



A Pen-and-Ink Fantasie

Of the Climb of Maude Adams, the Sphinx of the Modern Theater, up the Great Pyramid of Fame.

Faces of Shrine Week in the local playhouses.

In "The Bird of Paradise" has been of the most pronounced sort.

The Mission Play.

No dramatic offering of recent years in Southern California has made a deeper impression than "The Mission Play," John Steven McGroarty's stage-story of the stirring events connected with the history of the Franciscan missions, to whose establishment present-day California owes much of her civilization and culture, and practically all of her distinctiveness and romantic "atmosphere."

Hundreds who had heard of Mr. McGroarty's play, in advance, hoped at the most only for a brilliant pageant, a sort of tableaux of historic events. They were surprised and delighted when they found there the materials of a real drama.

A tremendous impression was scored on the first night, and has since been maintained by Ben Horning, in the role of Padre Junipero Serra, at once the Cromwell and the Luther of the pious-valiant band of early Padres.

Princess Eleanor Lazarovich has made all who have seen her wish that the exigencies of the play made it possible for her beautiful and superb assumption of Senora Josefa Arguello to extend throughout the play, instead of being seen only in the last act.

Others who have scored big, distinct personal successes are Ernest Wilkes in the role of Corporal Jose, Charles Lynton as Don Gaspar de Portola, Frank Staples as the leader of the band of monks, and several more whose major talents are shrouded in minor roles.

In order that hundreds unable to attend on week days may see the play, special permission has been granted for two Sunday performances, today.

For the benefit of the thousands of visitors to be here next week, there will be special matinees every day during the entire coming seven-day period, and the regular evening performance, as usual.

Grand.

After a week of high-class music, the Armstrong Follies Company will, on Monday return to its first field—that of burlesque. The offering at the Grand Operahouse during the coming week will be "Madame Xcuse Me," a clever burlesque of the lacrymose, "Madame X." Where pathos sways in the Bisson drama, humor has been substituted in the burlesque by Edward Armstrong, author of the burletta. The court-room scene is one of the biggest mirth-provokers, Mr. Armstrong has ever conceived. All the tearful petitions of "Madame X" have, of course been cut out and songs, dances and clever comedy lines substituted in their stead.

A dozen new songs and several new dances will be introduced at convenient moments. Ethel Davis, Clara Howard and Frances White will have the major portion of the singing to do. Miss Davis will play the title roles. Will H. Armstrong and Gus Leonard will play the parts of two clerks in a drygoods store, who are also amateur detectives. These two parts give the popular funmakers ample opportunity.

Gus Leonard will also be seen as the judge. Edward Armstrong will sing one of his brand new songs and will also be seen in a special dance number. Eddie Mitchell will be the young lawyer-son. Hazel Wilson, who has become a big favorite with Grand audiences will have a specialty, and the baby dolls will, as usual, be seen to advantage. New scenery and new costumes have been provided for "Madame Xcuse Me," which promises to be the best offering the Armstrong company has made during the season. Matinees will be given daily except Monday and Friday. Amateurs will have their night Tuesday, and the baby dolls will display their charms and talents on Friday night.

Orpheum.

The camels will all come to the Orpheum next week; it is Shrine week at the vaudeville, oasis, and the seraglio has been ordered; the fez will top every act, and the desert sands will all be forgotten in the gladsome joy that will enhance every moment of a Shriner's stay in the big new playhouse—itself one of the city's sights well worth seeing.

And the entertainment provided for the divans is something extraordinary, too, for McIntyre and Heath enter their last week here upon this occasion, and will divide it between the two of their best-liked skits, "Georgia Minstrels" running through Thursday night and "The Man From Montana" the balance of the week. It would be almost a crime did McIntyre and Heath come here and not play these two, and so it has been arranged.

Surrounding them is a bill fit for the occasion, topped by an English comedienne, stranger to Los Angeles, but destined to be a prime favorite hereafter—Lucy Weston.

Miss Weston has a budget of clever songs, gowns for each, the personality to make each a hit, and the gift of making friends with her audience from the start. Much may therefore be expected of her, and she promises to fulfill all expectations.

Another feature of the week is the Seamas MacManus players, a group of Irish actors personally selected by this writer and interpreter of Erin's literature and fairy lore, to perform his own new play, "The Lad From Largymore." These, by the way, are not the Irish players who aroused such terrific opposition in the East, but are true exponents of the best side of Irish dramaturgy. Their act is a distinct achievement in the line of vaudeville drama.

John E. Henshaw, veteran of musical comedy and vaudeville, reappears with Grace Avery, a charming soubrette, in "Strangers in a Strange Flat," a skit written by Mr. Henshaw himself. Of course, it is a broad farce, but it will be found vastly entertaining and edifying and the talents of the two are voluminous enough to carry anything.

The Stewart sisters and their escorts, a sextette of clever dancers, will entertain with a series of numbers, each separately costumed, and Wentworth, Vesta and Teddy—the last of the five new acts—will give some clever acrobatics, with Teddy, a bright dog, as a central figure.

Master David Schooler and Louise Dickinson, in their piano and singing number, and the Shelvey boys, acrobatic contortionists, remain.

The music will be Shrine-like in quality and the motion views will show the world's events of today.

The week following brings Blanche Walsh in "The Thunder Gods" and Katherine Grey in "Above the Law"—two very fine dramatic offerings.

Pantages.

Quite in keeping with the importance of the occasion is the Pantages announcement that for Shriners' week the bill at that theater will be headed by Affre, the great French tenor, and Mme. Richardson, dramatic soprano. It is only a few weeks since Mme. Chambellan delighted the Pantages patronage with the exquisite colorature soprano that has only one equal in the world, and now Affre, a tenor who, like Chambellan, has few recognized rivals, is also to sing for the patrons of popular vaudeville.

It is doubtful if the regular patrons of vaudeville realize the extent of their privilege. This is the first time that a singer of actual first rank in the operatic world has entered vaudeville, while still in his prime. Consequently it has become the fashion to suspect every noted recruit to vaudeville of an approaching, if not an actual, decline.

Affre, however, is the exception. He is no "has been." His voice is ever improving, and he sings with even greater ease and purity of tone than five years ago. His tour of the Pantages circuit has been an artistic triumph. Everywhere he has drawn to the vaudeville theater a class of patronage that was never seen there before.

Accompanying Affre is "la belle Americaine," Madame Richardson, American by birth, Parisian by long residence, and a protege of the National Academy of Music of France. The two will be heard in operatic solos and duets.

Wilhemi and Berri, known as the doll comedienne and the protean artist, are no strangers to Pantages patrons. They will be warmly welcomed. Newhall and Phelps have a comedy-pathetic playlet with Miss Phelps in the heart-winning role of a street urchin. Both are clever comedians, and their act is said to abound in good lines and interesting situations.

The Riva Larsen Troupe are acrobats of a type decidedly different from any yet seen here.

Empress.

"The Devil and Tom Walker," probably the most famous musical comedy that has ever come to the vaudeville stage, and an act that has won a splendid reputation throughout the amusement world, will be the particularly big headline attraction of the new seven-act Sullivan and Considine bill opening at the Empress Theater tomorrow afternoon.

Anyone who likes bright, snappy music, or has a laugh left in their system will find much to enjoy in "The Devil and Tom Walker," which is a lively, fantastic musical comedy of the very best sort.

The company of twelve presenting the act is headed by David Walters, who scored such a substantial success in the piece in the East, and contains six pretty, sprightly dancers, who will be seen in several novel dances. Scenically "The Devil and Tom Walker" will be found unusually elaborate for the special setting shows the throneroom of his imperial majesty in Hades, where Tom Walker, the son of Ham, is allowedto rule temporarily.

The second feature will be the Waterbury brothers and Tenny, trio of comedians and musicians, well known to vaudeville patrons, who a short while ago deserted vaudeville to play an engagement with Cohan and Harris famous minstrels, but who are once again delighting vaudeville patrons with their whirlwind of music and fun.

Third in the feature line will be the Fol-de-Rol Girls, four "great, big, beautiful dolls" who sing, dance, and play the piano as though they really enjoyed it as much as their audience. They are all young, good looking and talented, and their success all over the circuit is not difficult to understand.

Another offering that promises to prove a big favorite with local audiences is that of Anita Bartling, a fascinating little woman, who is generally acknowledged one of the best woman jugglers the stage has ever known.

Lupita Peres, the Parisian aerial artists, will furnish many of the sensations and thrills of the new bill with her daring mid-air performance and Carver and Murray will offer a series of bright, snappy specialities that should make them popular.

Completing this fine new bill, of which music and fun are the predominating features, will be the always enjoyable comedy motion pictures.

Margaret Anglin Coming.

It will undoubtedly be welcome news to local theatergoers to learn that the distinguished actress, Margaret Anglin, will be seen at the Majestic Theater one week from tonight in an entirely new and original comedy entitled "Green Stockings" by A. W. E. Mason, in which she has scored a most pronounced success during the last two theatrical seasons in the East.

"Green Stockings" is described as brilliant and witty, having a story of exceptional merit and with splendid opportunity for Miss Anglin in the part of a high-spirited English girl who sets out to emancpate herself from single blessedness by the apparently ingenious method of inventing a mythical fiance. The difficulties and embarrassment that follow in the train of this more or less innocent deception provide a large amount of fun through the whole of the three acts, all of which are laid in England at Lumley Park, the country seat of William Faraday, Esq., the father of four handsome daughters.

OXY TO REPEAT.

"The Sawdust Hero" to Be Given Again at Gamut Auditorium.

"The Sawdust Hero," presented by the students of Occidental College, achieved such success at the Gamut Club auditorium Saturday night, that it is to be repeated at Temple Auditorium May 25, with a largely-increased cast and chorus. A. Ray Petty, author of the book, is writing further lines for old and new characters, while the chorus is being perfected in its execution of the taking musical compositions of Miss Ethel Ward, dean of the college. The management will remain in the hands of Benjamin Scovell.

"BARGAINS," "Good Values," are expressions that have become more or less commonplace in advertising. That they had originally some real significance is not hard to believe, but time and hard usage has in no small degree lessened their drawing power. It is unfortunate that so many expressive phrases and descriptive adjectives have been so abused as to become of little value.

The merchandise which we handle is good enough to allow of a very liberal use of adjectives, but we are content to give the public the bare facts and let them use as many adjectives as they like in expressing their pleasure and satisfaction in the furniture, carpets, draperies and interior decorations which they have bought from us, as well as the careful service and complete satisfaction that is always a part of every transaction at this store.

The church was artistically decorated, the color scheme of white, pink and green being carried out. Three arches of ferns and white roses, lighted with myriads of miniature electric lights, were arranged at the altar, where the couple stood, and palms, ferns and baskets of Cecile Brunner roses were also effectively used here. The bridal party entered to the strains of Lohengrin's Wedding March, sung by a trio, including Mrs. Allan Tomlinson, Mrs. Ray Woodard and Miss Lollia Reynolds, accompanied by Mrs. J. C. Roberts at the piano. The bride was charmingly attired in white crepe marcene with duchesse point lace embroidered in pearls and carried a shower bouquet of lilies of the valley and bride's roses. Her sister, who acted as maid-of-honor, wore a gown of white marquisette over satin, while the six bridesmaids wore marquisette over pink, blue and pale yellow, two being gowned in each color. PERFECT in arrangement was the reception given by Judge and Mrs. C. N. Johnson, Wednesday afternoon and evening in celebration of their twenty-fifth wedding anniversary. The spacious rooms of the beautiful home were lovely with exquisite decorations. Most appropriately the color scheme used, was pink and silver. Floor vases of the silvery Southern California sage and beautiful La France roses were used in the reception-room and living-room, sage and California poppies in the den and library, beautiful white lilies and fragrant white roses in the dining-room. A pretty feature of the decorations was the many pretty pink crepe paper May-baskets, filled with pink roses hung throughout the rooms. The hostess was handsomely-gowned in a costume of silvery marquisette over gray messaline trimmed with crystal pendants and pink rose buds and wore a silver bandeau in her hair. Assisting Mr. and Mrs. Johnson in receiving were their daughter, Mrs. E. M. Lash, Miss Amanda Tinkler, sister of the hostess and Mrs. Volney Johnson, of Colton, sister-in-law. Showers of congratulatory remarks and good wishes were cordially bestowed upon the genial host and charming hostess as the guests assembled and many pretty gifts of silver were received, though no formal invitations were issued. Music was furnished by an orchestra, composed of Messrs. Irvin and Carl Johnson, sons of the host and hostess, and Misses Elizabeth Johnson, the young daughter of the family, and Fay Cox.

Second Week of Our Anniversary Sale

A Greater Week of Values, Even, Than the First

When we started this sale we determined to make it one of the most successful sales in the history of Los Angeles. And we realized then, as we always have realized, that the only way for a merchant to make anything successful is to give his customers more value for their money than they ever had before. That's what we did. And now, for the second week, we are putting into the sale 300 newly arrived sample suits just in from New York City, not one of which could possibly be purchased, under regular conditions, for less than $30. We are going to price them at $15 tomorrow. At $20 we shall offer 150 beautiful new designs, worth up to $40, including many elaborately trimmed, French models.

And Now, You Can Have Your Choice of Hundreds of

Some of the styles are almost startling in their newness. They are really the same styles that you will find other stores offering as mid-summer models, yet right now, at the 1st of May, you can get them here for half, or less than half, price.

—The kind of silk thread stockings that will really give uncommon wear and service; and the stockings so many women have come to know are superior stockings.

—Pure thread silk stockings at $1 pair, and they are here in every color to match new summer footwear—Lisle soles and garter tops; other distinctive features. (Main Floor.)

The Newest Fashions in Summer Coats and Suits and Dresses Will Be Shown on Monday

—A fashion display that we can't remember of having equalled this year—hundreds of garments, variously designed, will be exhibited in approved fabrics for summer. Many of these models have just come, all of the latest mode. The round of festivities, parties and balls attendant upon the Shriners' Conclave, and as well throughout the gay summer season, have already made their strong demand upon Bullock's stocks—and for this reason we are glad these new creations are here to help win more friends for Bullock's fashion salons—

Look Carefully at the Pictures Showing a Half Dozen of These Very New Garments

—Note particularly the individual design of each—the splendid lines, the superior "quality look" of the entire group. But you must plan to seeing the actual coats, suits and dresses on the second floor, Monday. Come to delight in their beauty and difference if not to buy. You are always welcome.

The Coats

—The first garment is a rich two-tone cheviot for summer with brown and gold diagonal grain. To this coat there is no collar, but a great shoulder yoke of self-material reversed—the same reversal effect is carried out on the cuffs—a striking value at $35.

—The last figure pictures the other coat—a distinctive style that is to be worn with the new pannier gowns. Note the fullness at the side to cover the fullness in the pannier gown. Black taffeta is used in making this coat, with a lining of silk in a soft shade of green. On the shoulders and cuffs is lace of heavy Moorish design in an ecru shade—$39.50.

The Suits

—These are to be seen on the Second and Fifth Figures. The former is of black taffeta tailored in a cutaway fashion with a single button for a fastening—a pleasing idea is made prominent in the embroidered collar of lingerie and real lace insertion which forms pointed revers. This suit is a real surprise at $55.

The other suit is a handsome two-piece tailored model at $175. This exquisitely made creation is of navy blue taffeta of softest texture. The revers and great collar that drapes the back are of finest real Princess filet lace and this suit is elaborately embroidered with navy blue silk and cord.

The Gowns

—These are ideally beautiful, and they should prove the delight of fashion lovers, Monday.

—On the fourth figure a Parisian design in a distinct new pannier gown—$95. This charming idea is in tan with small shaded stripes. The puffs on the hips are caused by a fullness of material that is caught up at the knees with velvet band and tabs. The yoke is of finest crepe—

—And the third figure—a real French frock—evidenced in the fitted sleeves, the dotted crepe of which it is made, and the red plaid that bands the skirt and waist front. This frock, a boulevard type, is of white with dots of blue, and has white plaited collar—$49.50——Truly Fashion will make a representative showing of Summer modes in ready-to-wear Dresses, Frocks, Suits and Coats at Bullock's, Monday—An exhibit every woman will want to see—and one which will bear a message of value that means much to every woman.

Began in Small Red Spots on Arm and Neck, Soon Spread Over Body. Used Cuticura Soap and Ointment. In One Week Completely Cured.

Smithville, Ind. — "My eczema began in small red spots accompanied by a rash. It started on my arms and neck but soon began to spread over my body. It was worst on my neck and arms, and it burned so that I could not sleep nights. I tried boiling borax water, but to no avail. Then I began to use the Cuticura Soap and Cuticura Ointment. I bathed with Cuticura Soap and hot water and applied the Cuticura Ointment every night and morning and in one week I was completely cured through the use of Cuticura Soap and Ointment." (Signed) Miss Josephine McCormick, Nov. 7, 1911.

FOR BAD CASE OF PIMPLES
Physician Recommends "Cuticura"

3890 Third Ave., New York. — "About three months ago my face and neck became covered with small red pimples which soon developed into large boils and my face was in such a condition that I was ashamed to go out of the house. After using various remedies I went to a hospital for treatment. The head physician told me I would have to remain for three or four months for treatment as the boils would even start to disappear. "A young physician while visiting a friend recommended Cuticura Soap and Ointment and told me to treat my face every night before retiring with both the Cuticura Soap and Ointment. The results obtained were much better even than the physician expected. In a was completely cured in a short time by the use of the Cuticura Soap and Ointment." (Signed) Fred Vichmeyer, Sept. 7, 1911.

Cuticura Soap and Ointment are sold everywhere. Sample of each mailed free with 32-p. book. Address, "Cuticura," Dept. T, Boston. Tender-faced men use Cuticura Soap Shaving Stick.

The farewell was in honor of Mr. and Mrs. C. D. Eaton and Mr. Frank Marshall, who left Wednesday for Chandler, Arizona, where Mr. Eaton and Mr. Marshall have entered a large land deal.

THE HELPING HAND.

"How far that little candle throws his beams!
So shines a good deed in a naughty world."

The pathetic death in the Titanic disaster of Mr. and Mrs. Isador Straus of New York makes of particular interest the last kindly act of the notable couple. The story of this comes from Miss Mabel Bird, Mrs. Straus's maid, ho says that her mistress insisted that she get into one of the lifeboats, and at the same time she took from her own shoulders a heavy wrap and put it on the maid telling her she would need it as a protection from the cold. Mrs. Straus then said she would remain with her husband, but Miss Bird, at the time, supposed they would follow her in the next boat because of the calmness they manifested, and the good work they were doing among the other people on the doomed vessel. Mr. and Mrs. Straus were thus kindly to the last, helping others when the natural impulse would have been to help themselves.

Mrs. Straus had been active in the conduct of this home for aged Hebrews, and many of them remember her constant kindness and 185 of the very oldest residents of the home offered special prayer for her memory.

David Trousdale, the plucky messenger who recently killed two bandits who attempted to rob the Wells Fargo Express car under his care on the Texas Railroad, has received evidence from the company that his loyalty is appreciated. A handsome gold watch has been presented him by General Superintendent Taft of the company, and he is to be transferred from the long, hard run between San Antonio and Sanderson to the shorter and easier run between San Antonio and Houston. One reason that prompted the company in making the change is the fear that some of the relatives of the dead bandits might attempt to get a chance to avenge their deaths should the opportunity offer. The company wish to protect the plucky man's life.

One Side.

We see the joys of other folks,
And envy them, perhaps,
And think that we have all the work,
While they have all the snaps.
We watch their pleasures with a sigh,
And sometimes think if we
Were only as well off as they
How happy we should be!
But we can only see one side
Of other people's lives,
The other side they cover up,
The nabobs and their wives.
The rich man has his worries, too,
For all his haughty airs,
The limousine, for instance, costs
Like blazes for repairs!
And no one's life is wholly joy,
From care and trouble free.
It may be those we envy are
No better off than we.
We see their pleasures, not their pains,
And frequently it's true,
We wouldn't envy them if we Could see their troubles, too!

Brock & Company are exclusively introducing in Los Angeles the newest style of engraving--known as "Brock & Company Text"--destined to be the most popular of all the recent productions and even more popular than the Shaded Colonial Script brought into prominence by this house a few years ago.

Brock & Company have also been the first to bring to the notice of Los Angeles society the use of gray ink in the engraving of wedding stationery--so popular in the East

An important feature significant of the extent and established character of the Brock & Company Department of Stationery is the fact that this is the only Los Angeles house using its own special watermark stock for wedding stationery.

Brock & Company advocate the use of VERY THIN calling cards—used extensively in the East and almost exclusively throughout Europe.

WOMEN'S WORK, WOM

THAT a candidate for the Presidency of the United States should deliver one of the most carefully prepared and brilliant speeches of his campaign before an organization of women voters- emphasizes the new status of woman. And that several hundred women, of every shade and stripe of political inclination, should listen with keen interests to the arguments set before them, is noteworthy. At each of the large political meetings held in the Auditorium the past two weeks a large proportion of the audiences has been women. Many women are taking an active part in the campaign for their respective candidates; many other women are still seeking enlightenment before deciding which candidate they will support. It is certain that a large number of California women are giving serious thought to the selection of the man for whom they will cast their first Presidential ballot, and are conscientiously considering the facts and arguments presented by the advocates of each aspirants. At least they will not be blind followers of a political "boss."

Cosmos Club.

The Cosmos Club is planning a brilliant programme for their "California day" next Wednesday afternoon at the Ebell clubhouse. Prince and Princess Lazarovitch are to be the guests of honor with Mrs. Anderson, former president of Crescent Bay Club, Santa Monica. All visiting Shrine ladies, who are members of federated clubs, are invited to be present. John S. McGroarty will talk of "California," and Miss Anna Dempsey will speak on "Landmarks." Spanish dancers and Spanish music and songs will be given. For May 23, Bernard Noon, who has spent several years in Panama, will give a lecture, accompanied by stereopticon views on Panama. On the 29th, the French Section of the club will give a play, followed by a reception, to new members. The annual luncheon will take place at the Beverly Hotel, May 21 on which occasion Miss Alice Wernlund and Mrs. Zoela Dodge will be guests of honor.

Ebell Club.

Ebell women are gratified at the successful issue of a large undertaking, the giving of the "Jappyland" performance at the Auditorium for the benefit of the McKinley Home. It is expected that a substantial sum will result, when the returns are all in. Interest in the coming election, for which the nominating ballots are now in the hands of the members, is keen, and there seems to be much variance of opinion as to which of the candidates will receive a plurality vote. At the meeting Monday afternoon the address of Dr. Pelxetto on the problems of domestic science and economics will be listened to with interest by members and guests. "Domestic science" and housekeeping ought to be synonymous terms, perhaps, but the practical way to accomplish the amalgamation has not yet opened to most housekeepers. On Wednesday morning, May 8, Dr. Bruce Gordon Kingsley will give a lecture recital before the music section, on "Die Meistersinger von Nurnberg." On Thursday morning the drama section will discuss two new plays, "The Pigeon," by John Galsworthy, and "The New Inferno," by Stephen Phillips; also the performance of Margaret Illington in "Kindling," and other noteworthy plays presented on the local stage during the past year will be reviewed.

For State Convention.

Presidents of clubs and delegates to the State Convention will be called together Tuesday, May 14, at the Woman's Club House, to discuss matters that will come before the State Convention at the coming session the latter part of the month. It is expected that the programme for the State meeting will then be out and that a number of questions of vital importance which are to come before the State Federation for action will be presented.

Rally Day.

Members of the Parent-Teacher Associations are planning for a Rally Day, Tuesday, May 21, when all those interested is invited to meet at the Fifth street side of Central Park at 10 o'clock in the morning. Under the guidance of officials of the Federation parties will visit the various points where a helping hand has been extended. As the Children's Hospital, the cottages provided for the treatment of children whose parents can not afford to pay regular fees will be visited. At First-street school the penny kitchen, which provides noonday luncheons for the children, will be inspected. The day nurseries at Utah and Castelar-street schools, the sewing class at Castelar and the maternity cottage will also be visited.

Mrs. F. P. Fay is the chairman of a committee to collect photographs and materials for the child welfare exhibit at the next meeting of the Mothers' Congress in Boston, 1913. It is hoped that Los Angeles and California can get together an exhibit which will prepare the way for a child welfare exhibit in this city. Such exhibits have aroused great interest and been of much practical good in some of the eastern cities.

Lawn Fete.

The King's Daughter Circle of East Hollywood had a happy party at the home of Mrs. Morgan D. Griffith on Myrtle avenue, on Saturday afternoon, April 26. A Maypole dance with a dozen little girls in white, and music by Los Felis school orchestra were much enjoyed. The children gave recitations and songs, and refreshments were sold, the proceeds to go into the treasury of the circle.

Friday Morning Club.

Hon. Joseph H. Call told the women of Friday Morning Club some facts that aroused attention, to put it mildly. He declared that in almost three years since the city of Los Angeles became a "harbor" city, it had spent not one cent of money toward building outer docks at which ocean-going vessels could unload, or toward providing a highway of any sort that would admit of reaching the harbor directly. There has been long litigation to decide whether bonds were good whose legality none questioned —the discussion of the matter of concrete piles or creosoted piles has gone on cheerfully—and filled time. And the speaker predicted that when this question is finally settled beyond possibility of further delay some other difference of opinion which will answer the same purpose, will be discovered. He stated that Congress had been in favor of a Panama Canal for forty years past. There was just a difference of opinion as to whether the canal should be cut through by the Panama or by the Nicaragua route. When the Senate favored one the House favored the other, and vice-versa, until by accident, almost, they concurred and work actually began. The railroads now transport 90 per cent. of all freight in the United States, yet we might have waterways

WOMEN'S WORK, WOMEN'S CLUBS

THAT a candidate for the Presidency of the United States should deliver one of the most carefully prepared and brilliant speeches of his campaign before an organization of women voters- emphasizes the new status of women, and that several hundred women, of every shade and stripe of political declination, should listen with keen interests to the arguments set before them, is noteworthy. At each of the large political meetings held in the auditorium the past two weeks a large proportion of the audiences has been women. Many women are taking an active part in the campaign for their respective candidates; many other women are still seeking enlightenment before deciding which candidate they will support. It is certain that a large number of California women are giving serious thought to the selection of the man for whom they will cast their first Presidential ballot, and are conscientiously considering the facts and arguments presented by the advocates of each aspirants. At least they will not be blind followers of a political "boss."

Cosmos Club.

The Cosmos Club is planning a brilliant programme for their "California day" next Wednesday afternoon at The Ebell clubhouse. Prince and Princess Lazarovitch are to be the guests of honor with Mrs. Anderson, former president of Crescent Bay Club, Santa Monica. All visiting Shrine ladies, who are members of federated clubs, are invited to be present. John S. McGroarty will talk of "California," and Miss Anna Dempsey will speak on "Landmarks." Spanish dancers and Spanish music and songs will be given. For May 22, Bernard Noon, who has spent several years in Panama, will give a lecture, accompanied by stereopticon views on Panama. On the 29th, the French Section of the club will give a play, followed by a reception, for new members. The annual luncheon will take place at the Beverly Hotel, May 31 on which occasion Miss Alice Wernlund and Mrs. Zoela Dodge will be guests of honor.

The railroads now transport 90 per cent. of all freight in the United States, yet we might have waterways which would give us access to almost every city of size in the country. Foreign vessels carry freight between New York and Liverpool at a cost of $1 a ton, in some instances. Vessels can carry freight from Duluth to Buffalo for 90 cents per ton. They do carry freight from Liverpool through the Suez Canal to the Orient for $4 per ton. According to these charges the freight rate from New York to San Pedro via Panama Canal should be less than $4 per ton. He pointed out the fact that the railway rates vary from $7 to $60 per ton, for commodities transported over exactly the same route, in the same trains and at the same expense to the company, and declared that rates were fixed simply by what "the traffic would bear."

At the luncheon following a brief address was delivered by Mr. Wells on the commission form of government for cities and for Los Angeles in particular.

Woman's City Club.

Milton K. Young will address the Woman's City Club on Monday, setting forth the claims of Champ Clark to a place on the Presidential ticket. Mrs. A. S. Lobingier, who has served so brilliantly as president of the club during its first year of existence, announces that she cannot possibly serve a second term, as she expects to go abroad for several months. Mrs. O. P. Clark, first vice-president, will probably receive the nomination for presidency, when the nominations are made Monday. Mrs. Clark, as president of the Friday Morning Club, and in many other positions of responsibility, has proved her quality and is generally popular.

A May Day Programme.

The Saturday Afternoon Club of Monrovia enjoyed a very delightful May Day musicale, given by a trio composed of Mrs. Gertrude Ross, pianist; Miss Ballard, violin, and Axel Simondson, 'cello, on Wednesday afternoon, May 1. The stage of the pretty little clubhouse was beautifully decorated with May baskets and roses and the whole place fragrant with flowers. One of the numbers given was a 'cello arrangement of a lullaby written by Mrs. Ross.

Wednesday Morning Club.

As a result of the election on Wednesday last, Mrs. H. Ivor Thomas is the president of the Wednesday Morning Club; Mrs. W. C. Mushet, first vice-president; Mrs. W. C. Bush, second vice-president; Mrs. M. B. Pitkin, recording secretary; Mrs. A. K. Smith, financial secretary, and Mrs. H. H. Curtis, treasurer. The directors are Mrs. J. E. A. Brown, Miss Martha Thompson, Mrs. M. E. Johnston, Mrs. F. A. Christy, Miss A. E. Pierce, Mrs. W. D. Bailey and Miss Nona Poole. Wednesday morning, May 8, will be Shakespeare reciprocity day, when mebers of the Shakespeare section will present scenes from "Twelfth Night," with readings and music.

Psychopathic Parole Society.

The women of the Psychopathic Parole Society will begin to receive patients in their new "Rest Haven" home this week. An experienced woman physician, Dr. Helen Coleman, will reside in the home and a competent housekeeper will take charge. Women patients who have been released from Patton, or those whom the commission think can be benefited and perhaps saved from the need of commitment to the State Hospital, will be received here for rest, care and necessary treatment, until they can be returned to their homes or permanently provided for. The examining physician of the society, Dr. L. C. Park, and members of the Lunacy Commission, will be in charge of the work. The committee of the Federation of Women's Clubs, Mrs. William Baurhyte, Mrs. H. C. Stockwell, Mrs. O. P. Clark, Mrs. H. H. Torrance and Mrs. Harry J. Slater are to be congratulated upon the work they have accomplished.

ACTIVE WOMEN.

Mrs. Ella Wilson completed the first year of her term as Mayor of Hunnewell, Kas., on April 11. Upon the whole her administration is said to have been very successful, although a little stormy at first.

Senora de Cueva, wife of the first secretary of the Mexican embassy at Washington, has been delighting her friends with old Spanish and Mexican ballads, which she sings with much feeling. She not only has a voice of unusual range, but is a composer of note. She studied in Paris and Dresden, and once thought of an operatic career, but was married instead.

Miss Mabel Rice of Denver drives a water wagon as her regular occupation, one that must be very satisfactory on a hot day in summer. She will receive $4.50 a day, and she owns the mules that draw the wagon.

Miss Etta Hardeman of Atlanta, Ga., an accomplished horsewoman, has been chosen color bearer for the cavalry brigade at the coming Confederate reunion at Macon. She will lead the brigade in the reunion parade.

Mrs. Robert La Follette was the first woman to graduate from the law school of the Wisconsin University.

Miss Margaret Davis, class of 1911, is said to be responsible for starting and carrying through to success a cooperative store for the students of Simmons College. After talking her plans over with Miss Louise Arnold, the dean of Simmons, Miss Davis issued 100 bonds at 50 cents each. With the money gathered by the sale of these bonds she equipped a store in one of the dormitories of North Hall.

Myriam DeRoxe, the San Francisco girl, has acquired such a pure French diction in five years' residence in Paris that she has been selected by the highest critics of the Sorbonne to interpret the works of great French writers.

Mrs. Mary E. Ewing of Chicago, is said to be the first woman in this country to qualify as a contracting and consulting engineer. For twenty-five years she worked as her husband's assistant and after his death she took up and is carrying to successful completion sewerage and water systems of a cost approximating $500,000.

A Child's Morning Prayer.

Oh, Watchful Friend! Thy gift of sleep
All night was given me;
And for my rest and pleasant dreams
I give my thanks to Thee.

I thank Thee, too, that Thou dost give
To me another day—
Another day to do Thy will—
To live and love and play!

A day to know a mother's love
And father's care again—
Oh, keep our household safe from harm!
That is my prayer—Amen.

MRS. C. E. TOWNSEND.

Wife of the Junior Senator from Michigan Is Well Known Through Her Ten Years' Residence in Washington When Her Husband Was in the Lower House.

Mrs. Charles E. Townsend.

WASHINGTON, May 1. — Charles Elroy Townsend and his attractive wife have been among the popular Congressional folks for the past ten years. They furnish the type of people to whom the adjective "young" will cling even when they are in the declining years of life.

"We have long ago grown used to being described as 'young people,'" said Mrs. Townsend, "and for a time it seemed as though our entire fame was to be expressed in juvenility. We were sworn chums when very young, we married young even for the Middle West, when a man takes on himself the burden of a home when he barely sees a living ahead, and all the consolation and rewards seem to have come while we are still enthusiastic over life and able to enjoy everything. I was quite a small child when I began to go with Charlie Townsend. We went to the same school, used to be confidants and allies, and many a problem of the three invisible 'R's' he helped me to solve. My husband's parents and mine came from Atlantic seaboard. Mine came from New York State and settled in Concord, Mich., when the fame of the West lured many from comfortable homes to break the ground and fell the trees of the wilderness. We grew up knowing each other and trusting each other and knowing exactly what our fate was to be when Charlie had wrung concessions from the fickle goddess of fortune. For, like all of his era, he had his way to make in the world. Parents then expected their sons to grasp the problem of living as they themselves had solved it, and few there were who had gold spoons or anything resembling that favorite symbol of fortune. Always friends, we went through the graded or grammar school together, and entered the higher courses given by the High School of Concord. I remained to finish the course. My husband, however, went to Jackson, a larger and more prosperous town than Concord, where an academy offered better opportunity.

"When my husband had completed this course here, he took his diploma and began his career as a wage-earner. He got a small district school in Jackson and a still smaller salary. We had become engaged then and were looking forward to his promotion for our marriage. Meantime, I had graduated and also gotten a diploma, and I began to teach, to help state along a little and to get ready for our nest building. My husband got a better school, and we were married. Meantime, he tried for higher things, began to study law at home and then he ran for office and got a post in the County Attorney's office. This brought him again to Jackson, and in the evenings he gave his whole mind and thought to law books, some of which he bought after saving the price for months, and others were voluntarily offered him by friends. Looking back now, the way seemed long and filled with obstacles, but we were never so happy as during this period of probation. One year Mr. Townsend spent in the University of Michigan, in the literary department, and this was indeed a red letter time. Finally in 1895, he went up for the bar examination, a self-taught man, and passed with a splendid record. He has practiced law ever since, and all the honors which have come, I believe, have been because of his solid legal knowledge and conscientious performance of public duty."

A franker and more attractive woman than Mrs. Townsend, the Senatorial body of hostesses does not possess, nor one with a deeper insight into things which add so infinitely to the charm of a woman. A native of that State which in some ways stands preeminent among her sister commonwealths, she values life by the correct standards, and not by the artificial ones. Well read, gentle and cultured she knows the masculine side of things as well as the feminine.

"Michigan, from my standpoint, offers a varied study to those who wish to inquire," said Mrs. Townsend. "We live within two and a half hours of Detroit, and are, therefore, in the middle of a radius of important considerations. Our city, Jackson, boasts something more than 30,000 inhabitants, and in a way we may be taken as a type of the inland Middle West city of that dimension. We have everything which the greatest city here or abroad may boast as to creature comfort, and we have a great deal more. Wide open streets, well shaded, well lighted are ours, everything which the modern woman needs for home comfort, we may have by lifting the 'phone to our lips, and besides we have elbow room and abundant space for a real home instead of four walls abutting some one's apartment or rows of houses and apartments. It is needless to remark that Middle West women still cling to the traditions and delight in being considered good homekeepers. Our city is made up of such women, indeed the exception is very rare. Homes are comfortable and artistic, nearly all surrounded by well-kept grounds, and many have kitchen gardens besides splendid lawns and flower gardens. Many have barnyards well supplied with chickens, so that the price of cold storage eggs is a matter of supreme indifference. Yet there are few towns anywhere where more clubs are maintained and successfully operated.

"I should become wearisome to attempt to detail all the clubs which have sprung into existence in Jackson and which continue a career of honor and usefulness. Civic clubs have taken over the problems which women in the new era consider their own—clean streets, sewerage, sanitation in public places, mostly schools, location of schoolhouses, the temperance question and the remuneration of teachers. There are literary clubs which furnish an outlook for many who desire a wider range of vision. Original papers, strict attendance of the members and a carefully selected course of study give these literary clubs a distinct value and place them above the frivolous or inattentive. Each member must contribute a certain quota to the researches pr be dropped from the list. Historical societies of the Middle west have won the praise of the serious scientific historian, and in Michigan we are in the foreguard of this valuable class of local chroniclers. To begin with, few States not in the original thirteen ave as absorbing a history as my State. Especially is this true about the area of Detroit, the records of which go back very far into the French and Indian War, and then again deal with the intrepid explorers of the early nineteenth century.

"Detroit claims a wonderfully interesting history; one episode is that it was the last possession held by the British, and they stubbornly refused to yield their rights until 1796. After that Michigan figured only as the northwest territory, and later it became part of the Territory of Indiana, and again and again in 1805, the lower peninsula was made into the Territory of Michigan, with Gen. Hull as Governor. Detroit and French town went back into British possession in the War of 1812, and remained so until after the battle of Lake Erie in 1814. After that began the long and brilliant story of Lewis Cass. So it will be seen that when we Michigan people want to study history we can find some absorbing chapters without getting out of sight of Detroit, not to mention the explorations of the Canadians and the Jesuit fathers under Marquette. We have a flourishing historical club in Jackson, and we have mothers' clubs and a sunshine club and every other sort which tends to make life varied and pleasant after our real work at home is completed."

Mrs. Townsend was before her marriage, Miss Katherine Paddock, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Jerome Paddock of Concord. Mr. Paddock came to Michigan from central New York State in his early manhood, and became one of the factors in the development of his new home. Mrs. Townsend received her education in the excellent country school near her home, and though in later years she contemplated adding a college training to her good foundation of learning, she has abandoned this idea. Since her marriage, she has become interested in the development of Michigan and she has all the resources of the State at her fingers' ends.

"Jackson county is in the heart of the agricultural district," she said, "and though I know farm life only by envious glances as I have passed by on the outside, I have always been interested in the details of Michigan's agricultural wealth. In the upper peninsula, which is really like different country, the riches of the community are in the earth, and mines and mining schools are vital points. All about our city of Jackson are the splendid wheat fields, corn, oats, rye and barley coming in closely after the first great staple of food. I would recommend any one who does not realize what a jolly life the farmer leads to visit our section. He can do so in almost every kind of way. By train, for we have trunk lines and branch lines and locals honeycombing the section. We have electric cars, fine, wide and airy, going out from Detroit at convenient intervals in every direction. Then we have good roads, good enough for coaches, autos or what you will. You will see the farmhouse a model of elegance and spaciousness, the barns and outhouses at a respectable distance and altogether apart from the pleasant vista which the homes afford. The dairy may be under the supervision of the mistress of the home. If so, she has only the work of supervision. Electricity, machinery, skilled labor perform the old-time drudgery. Every farm home has the phone, many have Victors for musical treats, pianolas, every sort of luxury in the way of reading, while many libraries in Detroit send out books weekly and magazines in electric autos to distant parts of the country. No more isolation for the farmer and his wife. On the contrary, he and his good wife may possibly get more of their friends visiting them than they wish, for these fine farm houses look very tempting from the high road."

Mrs. Townsend is handsome, with silvery hair, which is altogether out of place with her soft, girlish countenance, rosy and unmarked with any of the creases which Father Time usually sends with gray locks. She has a gay, contagious laugh and a consuming interest in everything which she considers worth while. Mrs. Townsend is one of the charter members of the Congressional Club. She is chairman of the committee on membership, and takes a great pride in bringing the excellent features of the organization before newly-arrived women in the Congressional set.

The Idols.

When Man was young and his senses dim
Death fashioned a God of War for him.
Red eyes of hate from the face looked out,
Gay trappings girded it round about.
And Man bowed down to the gory god
And poured out his blood on sea and sod.
But slow he learned as the ages passed
How hollow and false his god at last.
Then Death cried out, "I must quick devise Another idol for sacrifice."
And so he fashioned to meet the need
A god for moderns—the God of Speed.
Its sides were steel and its eyes were fire,
And ever more haste the one desire.
The best of their ranks to it men gave,
In skies, on land and the rolling wave,
And gathering in the lives so spent,
Death looked on his idol well content.

OVER THE SEA.

Sir Charles Elliot, the newly- appointed principal of Hongkong University, speaks twenty-three languages.

The Queen of Bulgaria has a medical degree and the young Queen of Belguim is the only ocurist of royal blood in the world.

Chung Mun Yew, who has been appointed minister of the Chinese republic at Washington, is perhaps more widely known in the United States than any other Chinese who has lived here. From his student days at Yale, where he steered the college boat to victory against Harvard in 1883, up to the present time, he has kept in close touch with American affairs, which he studied with close attention in the years he spent at Washington as an interpreter at the Chinese Legation.

The Duke of Westminster has given permission for visitors to inspect the gardens of Eaton Hall in England, which, just now are ablaze with daffodills and bluebells. The gardens at this time of the year are well worth seeing, the lawns being one mass of color. People come from long distances to see the display, for there is probably no garden in England where daffodils are grown in such profusion.

One of the eight daughters of the Archduke Frederick, the oldest brother of the dowager of Spain, is taking out a patent for a new form of candle. She is following an example set by several other personages. The most successful of these is the Grand Duke of Oldenburg, who has patented a screw which has been adopted by several German shipping companies.

M. Alexander Ribot is a possible next President of France, and Americans are interested because his wife was Miss Mary Burdin, of Chicago. If he is elected, she will be the mistress of the Palais Elysee. It is said that the French elections do not carry with them a great amount of enthusiasm.

Prince Henry of Prussia holds the patent of an invention for preventing the clouding of wind screens on motor cars, and his nephew, the Crown Prince, has patented a special form of sleeve link. The Kaiser is credited with the invention of a brake for automobiles, but up to the present this has not been patented.

IN THE LIMELIGHT.

Maj. Thomas L. Rhoads of the Medical Corps of the army has been selected by President Taft as his personal military aide to take the place of Maj. Archibald Butt. Maj. Rhoads is one of the medical staff at the Walter Reed General Hospital, near Brightwood, and for several months has been the personal physician for the President and the members of his family. In that capacity he always accompanied President Taft on his trips around the country.

Ex-Senator Chauncey M. Depew of New York has just celebrated his seventy-eighth birthday and the occasion was made quite an event by the Montauk Club of Brooklyn. Mr. Depew explains his continuing good health by the fact that he has always been careful what he put in his stomach, and he has never stopped working. "Work," he says, "but find time also to play."

Gov.-West, the reform executive of Oregon, has announced his intention next autumn to ride horseback from Salem, Or., to Boise, Idaho, to attend the meeting of western Governors. The distance is 500 miles, and he will be compelled to go through much wild country and cross the Cascade Mountains.

J. C. Farrer, a gray-haired carpenter and grandfather, of Durant, Okla., 57 years old, intends to return to his native State, Tennessee, enter Vanderbilt University and begin a three-year course to make use of a fund of $1200 that was raised by neighbors for his education nearly forty years ago.

Chimin Chu-Fuh, a Chinese student at Lehigh University, Pennsylvania, has been awarded the prize at the junior oratorical contest. He took for his subject "The Present Revolution in China." Last year he captured the largest prize at Lehigh, the Wilbur scholarship, valued at $300. He is studying civil engineering, and after his graduation expects to return to his native land.

Stephen C. Luce of Vineyard Haven, Mass., is the youngest cashier of a national bank in that State, if not in the United States. He received the appointment on his twenty-first birthday, a few months ago, having served three years as assistant cashier of the Martha's Vineyard National Bank. Graduating from High School, he took a course in a business college and began office work.

D. D. Streeter, a Columbia University graduate, has started on a trip around the world in an effort to gather unusual specimens for the New York Zoological Society and the Smithsonian Institution.

The Jews as Farmers.

[Springfield Republican:] As far back as history goes the Jews were farmers; that they have been city dwellers in recent years has been largely due to circumstances not under their control. There are many examples, but a few miles from Springfield in all directions of successful return to the most ancient occupation of the race, and now the twelfth annual report of the Jewish Agricultural and Industrial Aid Society makes it known that a similar state of things exists in every State in the Union. The society, in its twelve years of existence, has made 2278 loans to 1950 farmers in twenty-seven States, besides Canada. It also conducts an educational campaign by means of itinerant instructors, and it provides scholarships in agricultural colleges to the sons and daughters of Jewish farmers.

Adapted from illustration in April Hampton's—accompanying an article on "The Child Who Works at Home."

CAWSTON employs no child labor.

None but the most expert feather workers are employed in the making of Cawston Ostrich Feathers.

COULD the women of Los Angeles but see the conditions under which the so-called "cheap ostrich feathers" are produced—we venture that the dealers handling them would find an extremely slow market.

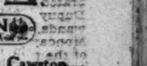
Nine-tenths—and even a greater per centage—of them are made by women and children in the filthy tenements of New York City.

RHETA Childe Dorr—the "children's friend—writing in the April Hampton's of conditions she personally found in that metropolis—says:

"These feathers are willowed, or tied by hand, by Italian women and children—especially children. The price paid is five cents per inch of stem. . . . The little girls hurry home from school and tie feathers until they fall asleep. They never play. They tie feathers. . . .That the public tolerates it must be, I am sure, because it does not know, with what terrible menace to the health this sweat shop labor is laden. I have myself seen a woman in advanced stages of tuberculosis, etc., etc."

AND when you consider that Cawston Ostrich Feathers are produced in this glorious California climate by only the most expert workers—working in the Cawston "Sunshine" factories — surrounded by every health-guarding and sanitary precaution—do you wonder for an instant that Cawston is the only American ostrich feather manufacturer who can sell his product under a rigid, signed guarantee?

Look for this Tag.



It is sewed to every Cawston Ostrich Feather and identifies the only guaranteed feather.

WONDERFUL STORE OF BARKER BROS. A MONUMENT TO PROGRESS OF CITY

Furnishing of Thousands of New Homes Yearly Calls for Immense Resources and Elaborate System

The Art of Making Homes Livable and Beautiful Reduced to Science

The fame of Los Angeles homes, for their genuine "hominess" and livable characteristics, has become as much a matter of comment as the interest which is manifested throughout the length and breadth of the land, in the "bungalow," which is essentially a Southland creation.

California is a land of comfort, and California homes are furnished invariably with that tendency uppermost. The living-room, the veranda, the sun-parlor, the sleeping porch, are features which are given particular attention in California homes, and a style of furnishing and equipping these rooms and open-air apartments, has gradually been developed, which makes possible a degree of home enjoyment, which is being widely followed and copied, insofar as practical, in every State in the Union.

Los Angeles is a progressive city in every sense of the word, and its commercial institutions have become famous for their advanced methods, magnificent establishments, splendid stocks and up-to-the-minute facilities. One of the most marked instances in this direction is the great house of Barker Brothers, which, in keeping with the growth of the city, has become the largest store in the entire United States, devoted exclusively to the furnishing of homes and offices, hotels and apartments, clubs, lodge rooms and other quarters.

Los Angeles may well be proud of this great store, which has logically been termed "The Furniture Center of America." In its expansion along with that of the city, it has brought within reach of the public of Los Angeles a home-furnishing emporium where it is possible to choose with utmost latitude from the largest and most thoroughly representative stock in the country in all the many lines of goods which combine in the making of a complete home outfit.

It is a source of surprise to many of those who visit this great store of Barker Brothers for the first time, to find in this far western city an establishment of such magnitude exclusively devoted to this one line of business, excelling, as it does, the leading stores of even the largest eastern cities.

A VISIT FULL OF INTEREST

In Which You Will Gather Much Valuable Information

A tour of this model home-furnishing institution is an interesting one, and furnishes opportunity for the gathering of an almost unlimited supply of information and ideas for the beautifying of the dwelling place, as well as giving one an impression of the extent to which the art of home-making has been carried. The many facilities which are necessary to the handling of the immense volume of business, created by the building and occupying of the many hundreds of new homes being added to Los Angeles every month, are a source of much interest.

Wending one's way southward along Broadway, the massive Barker Brothers building presents a striking appearance, with its snow white front seven stories high, and one hundred and sixty-five feet from end to end. In addition to the seven main floors, there is also a spacious mezzanine floor, which, together with the basement, makes in all, nine floors, with an aggregate floor space of almost a quarter million square feet.

A notable feature of the exterior is the immense sign on the south wall of the building, which is said to be one of, if not the largest, wall signs west of Chicago.

Stepping into one of the large passenger elevators, run by hydraulic pressure, you rise swiftly to the top floor, and find yourself in a great workroom, where the buzz of electric sewing machines greets your ears. Stepping into the workroom of the carpet and rug department, one finds an immense expanse of floor space, given over entirely for the making and sewing of carpets and rugs. On one side of the room, is a great carpet sewing machine, capable of sewing several thousand yards of carpet in a day. Over in another corner is a most marvelous and wonderful machine, called a carpet plucker, which literally "eats" the nap from long pile carpets, so that the edges may be turned back and breadths or mitered corners sewed so that there is no chance of ripping. Barker Bros. were the first firm in the United States to secure this remarkable machine, which, by the way, was invented by a Los Angeles man.

Passing from the carpet workroom the visitor is ushered into the window shade factory, where a staff of expert workmen are measuring, cutting, hemming and making up window shades. An enormous cutting board of hard maple, ninety inches wide and twelve feet long, is used in this work, this board being the largest of its kind in the city. Here many thousands window shades each month are made for the homes of Los Angeles. One of the interesting features in the making of the window shades, is the hemming. The end is slipped under the "presser" foot of the big Singer sewing machine, the electric "juice" is turned on, and whiz—in about three seconds, the curtain is neatly hemmed. The thread in the needle is fed from a giant spool a foot high, which contains twelve thousand yards.

Upon the top floor is also located the drapery workroom, where sometimes more than one hundred men and women are employed in the cutting, fitting and hanging of curtains and draperies ordered by customers, and executing all sorts of decorative wall work. Here may be seen fabrics of every material used for this purpose in progress of being made up—from heavy hangings, to the dainty, airy, lampshades. There are curtain testing boards—where curtains are actually tested and hung before they are allowed to be sent to a customer. If necessary, they are steamed and shrunk to the proper width, so that they may hang soft and sure, instead of stiff and awkward. Velours, after they have been packed or folded away, have a trick of showing creases in a most annoying fashion, and to correct this, there is a process of steaming by which the nap is raised.

INTO FURNITURE REALMS

—A Visit of Wonderful Delight to Every Woman

Coming down to the sixth floor, one finds an immense display devoted entirely to dining room furniture. The floor of the north building is given over entirely to fumed oak and golden oak pieces, while the floor of the center building is devoted exclusively to the beautiful mahogany pieces. Another section is devoted to the display of dining chairs. There are carried at all times upwards of one hundred and fifty to two hundred different styles of tables, and from two to three hundred patterns in dining chairs. It is not difficult to find what one desires, for all grades are represented in the display, from low priced tables at a few dollars, and chairs at a dollar or two, to the most elaborate and most beautiful complete suites, ranging upward in price to hundreds of dollars.

Upon the sixth floor is also found the china ware, household goods and kitchen ware, department, where one may buy anything and everything in these lines, from a magnificent set of the finest Haviland china, to a mouse trap—not omitting all the various table articles, kitchen wares and garden implements. Here are also found the famous Leonard Sanitary refrigerators, and Acorn and Vulcan stoves and ranges.

NOTHING LACKING HERE FOR COMFORT

For comfort and luxury, one needs but to visit the display of living-room furniture, which is shown upon the fourth floor of the north and center buildings. Here is such an array of chairs and rockers, davenports and couches, and other living-room pieces as you have probably never seen before. Here are luxurious Turkish rockers, that literally rock in all directions, so that you may lull yourself to rest or sleep by rocking forward, backward, or sidewise, as you may be inclined. Here are also morris chairs, with push button attachments, that raise and lower the back automatically; beautiful upholstered chairs, covered in art leather, with distinctive designs, some showing a coat of arms. Here also are the rush seat chairs of Colonial type. And, withal, you are impressed with the moderateness of prices.

The couches—really, a small army of them. Leather covered couches, couches with springs in the cushions, davenports that you may sit upon by day, or sleep upon at night—a tremendous improvement over the old folding beds of our fathers' and mothers' time. Here, also, are the living-room and library tables, in dozens and dozens of styles. And rockers, of wood, to fit the long and short, the slim and the stout, the light and the heavyweight—and to fit the pocket-book of everybody. Colonial furniture, English furniture, Mission furniture, and reproductions, too, in the dainty French styles, as well as Flanders designs.

If one is seeking bedroom furniture, a visit to the three immense displays upon the third floors of the south, center and north buildings, will surely satisfy any want which one may have. Here are literally carload after carload of dressers, chiffoniers, dressing tables, and all the other articles which go to furnish the bedroom complete. You will observe a splendid display of the beautiful Circassian walnut—so much in vogue now. Then there are beautiful suites in the rich mahogany, some in the four-poster effects, with the exquisite feather carving. There, too, are the English types, in oak, and the Flanders finish suites, which show the Dutch influence on the English masters.

One is very apt to be captivated by the dainty enameled suites, some in white, others in cream, and still others in pale gray. In bedsteads, you may buy a solid oak bed for a few dollars, a "Sarah Bernhardt" bed of brass with slender posts, or a brass bed of Taft's proportions, with tubes as big as the old-fashioned four posters. Or, if you prefer, there is ample variety in the substantial beds of iron, in their pretty enamel finishes. Three, four, or perhaps five hundred different patterns in beds alone to choose from. A showing of bedroom furniture said to be unequaled in any retail furniture establishment in America.

Upon this third floor one also finds a complete line of mattresses—the products of Barker Brothers' own shops, where cleanliness, strict sanitation and exceptional care are observed.

Upon another floor a wonderful display of the famous "Quality" Reed furniture is exhibited, as well as an extensive exhibit of the sturdy "Old Hickory" furniture. "Quality" Reed is an exclusive Barker Brothers product, and is made up in a great variety of exceptionally beautiful designs, in chairs, rockers, settees, davenports, steamer chairs, tables, baskets and other articles for use in living-room, bedroom, sun parlor and porch. This line of furniture has become an important factor in the furnishing of California homes, and has become surprisingly popular. Barker Brothers naturally take a great deal of pride in this particular line, which is their own exclusive product, as it is considered by the trade and public the finest in this line on the American market.

The amount of comfort which is to be derived from a properly furnished porch may be gleaned from an inspection of the large variety of old hickory furniture here assembled. This furniture is inexpensive, is durable, and a few articles upon a porch will practically provide another room to the home, which in this land of almost perpetual summer may be enjoyed practically the year around.

A special display of more than ordinary importance is the one upon the main floor of the south building—an extensive exhibit of the famous L. & J. G. Stickley Mission furniture. This is said to be not only one of the finest displays of Mission furniture on the Pacific Coast, but also the largest. Barker Brothers are exclusive agents for this famous L. & J. G. Stickley line, and the genuine products of this firm of leading makers are not be found in any other Los Angeles establishment. In this display, upon a rich carpeting, one may view this splendid furniture, in groupings much as it might look in one's own home.

In other sections of the store will be found complete and extensive stocks of writing-desks, bookcases, mirrors, hat trees, hall racks, music cabinets, sewing-tables, pedestals, tabourets, piano benches, colonial secretaries, folding and featherweight tables, hall tables, cellarette, costumers, cedar chests, tea wagons, tilting top tables, nests of tables, work tables and innumerable other articles, all of which are necessary to meet the varying requirements of thousands of buyers. One section is devoted to children's furniture and go-carts, baby carriages and perambulators.

THOUSANDS OF RUGS OF EVERY STYLE AND WEAVE

Floor Coverings of All Other Kinds Also Gathered in One Immense Exhibit

At Barker Bros. you can see more rugs in a few moments than you could have seen in a day under the old methods of display, where the clerk rolled out pattern after pattern for your inspection, and you forgot what one was like as soon as another covered it. Barker Bros.' rug department is said to be one of, if not the best, equipped in the United States today. Here may be seen actually thousands of rugs—no two alike—all hung on racks, so that each rug is brought separately before the visitor, giving an opportunity for comparison and to gain a satisfactory idea of colors and designs. Many patterns are carried in a complete range of sizes, from the smallest mat to the largest room size rug. None but weaves of established reliability are carried, so that there is always the assurance of dependability—a factor which the firm has been careful to apply in all lines of goods and in all transactions.

A large section of the second floor of the north building is devoted exclusively to the showing of rare antique and oriental rugs. This is a line in which Barker Bros. have long occupied a position of high prestige, and many of their special exhibits from time to time are said to have really equalled notable museum collections. Many oriental rugs are sold by Barker Bros. for shipment to points east of the Missouri River and north of San Francisco. Many visitors from eastern points, who come regularly to Los Angeles, purchase oriental rugs here from Barker Bros.—an occurrence so frequent that one is led to suppose that it must be from the fact that they take advantage of their recreation period to make their selections at their leisure, and when not absorbed with business, as they naturally are in their own home city.

In carpets, hundreds of sample patterns are shown, embracing designs and styles suitable for every possible requirement.

BEAUTIFUL DRAPERIES

Another department—one especially dear to the feminine heart—is the drapery department, spaciously located upon the mezzanine floor, south building. Here, in a wonderful stock, is carried a magnificent variety of drapery and upholstery fabrics of every imaginable weave and kind—a store complete within itself. Here one may find an almost limitless array of silks, damasks, taffetas, satins, velours and velvets. Another section is devoted solely to domestic cretonnes, denims and English prints. Another to fancy nets, both imported and domestic. Elsewhere are the materials of madras, sundours, etamines, silkolines, sateens, linens, and scrims. Laces, in a wondrous range of beautiful creations, are also shown here. And one must not forget the splendid variety of couch covers.

Upon the third floor are found complete stocked departments, devoted to table linens and bedding. Here everything in these lines, from the most moderate priced every day staples to the most elaborate table and bed sets, is shown. One entire floor of the new building is devoted to a wholesale linen and bedding department, from which hundreds of thousands of dollars' worth of these goods are distributed annually to the hundreds of apartment-houses, hotels, clubs and other large users in this line. By reason of this immense wholesale trade, Barker Bros. are thus enabled to quote prices in a retail way on very close margins.

THE ART DEPARTMENT

Adjoining the drapery department, and occupying the entire mezzanine floors of the center and south buildings, are the art and decorative departments. Here has been assembled a really remarkable collection of high-class decorative and art goods, embracing beautiful imported wall papers from France, Germany and England, with fabrics to match; Japanese and Chinese wall coverings, and specially woven fabrics from jute and cotton, as well as the most expensive brocade in silk and copies of antique tapestry, and also many examples of rich tapestry originals. Here also are shown many pieces of rare furniture and art goods, gathered by the firm's art director in a recent trip to the art centers of Europe. A splendid collection of high-class lighting fixtures is also here shown. Equally interesting are many handsome creations in garden and decorative pottery from Barker Bros.' own pottery studios. A corps of high-class designers is maintained, who are constantly engaged in the creation of decorative ideas and schemes. One artist makes it his exclusive business to design odd pieces of furniture. Another devotes his time largely to architectural ornamentation and wall decoration.

WHERE MUSIC REIGNS

One of the most important departments in the great establishment is that devoted to the display and sale of the famous Melodigrand and other leading makes of pianos. This department, occupying the entire second floor of the south building, contains one of the finest piano stocks on the entire Pacific Coast, maintaining separate rooms for the display of player pianos, grands and uprights. Barker Bros.' way of selling pianos on a strict one-price basis and at popular prices has met with general approval, and the firm has built up, within two years, one of the largest trades in this line in Southern California.

FOR THE BUSINESS MAN

Not only are the needs of the home catered to by Barker Bros., but also the many requirements of the business man—for office furniture and the other appointments of the well-equipped business establishment. Upon the fifth floor is carried one of the largest lines of office furniture, filing devices and supplies, and sectional bookcases shown by any firm west of Chicago. Everything in the nature of business furniture—office desks of every style and kind, office chairs, tables, directors' tables, etc., are shown in the greatest possible variety, in all the different popular finishes of oak and mahogany. Barker Bros. are said to be the largest dealers in these goods in the West.

FACILITIES OF THE BIG BARKER STORE A MODEL IN THEIR MODERN CHARACTER

The Satisfaction of the Customer the First and Last Consideration—Many Provisions Made to Give a Service that Has Set an Enviable Record

A tour throughout the building would hardly be complete without noticing the general offices at the rear of the main and mezzanine floors, where the most up-to-date facilities in billing machines, card index systems and files, facilitate the handling of the several-million-dollar-a-year business which this great house transacts annually. A telephone exchange, with nearly forty stations is installed on the mezzanine floor, where also are the stenographers' rooms, the furniture buyers' office, and where also catalogue files are maintained, containing hundreds of catalogues from the leading manufacturing firms of the United States. If a customer fails to find in the extensive lines of samples shown in this mammoth establishment just what is wanted, any choice may be made from the blueprints or photographs in these furniture catalogues.

Service is one of the great features which the house of Barker Bros. have made an uppermost factor in conducting their business, and it has doubtless been the effort in this direction in all the many years of this firm's long career, that has been largely responsible for the high regard in which the house stands with the furniture-buying public of the city, Southern California and tributary territory.

The most experienced sales forces that the house can assemble is placed at the disposal of the firm's patrons, to aid in assisting them to secure exactly what will prove most desirable and most satisfactory from the purchaser's standpoint. The buyers of the firm visit the principal markets of the country several times each year, in order to secure all that is newest and best.

As one passes the fifth floor, the office of the president, Mr. W. A. Barker, is noticed, in which the firm's buyers and department managers meet each week for the purpose of discussing store improvements, betterments of service and the welfare of the firm's customers.

On the floor below will be found the superintendent's office, and the advertising department. This latter department is said to be one of the best-equipped in the city. In the firm's effort to make their advertising truthful, from an illustrative standpoint as well as from a copy viewpoint, the services of a special artist are constantly employed to sketch and reproduce the articles upon the floors, so that the pictures shown in the firm's announcements shall be as nearly like the actual goods themselves as it is possible to make them.

On the mezzanine floor of the center building, directly in the rear of the beautiful decorative and art department, is located the office of the vice-president and manager of the store, Mr. C. H. Barker.

DOWN AT THE WAREHOUSE

When one has made a journey through all the many departments and visited all the floors of this great store—a trip of inspection which might well require a full half day or more—an impression would doubtless be formed that, in the great stock in this immense establishment, were enough goods to supply almost all the homes in Los Angeles. But the stock in this great building is one of samples, almost exclusively. In addition, there is a great warehouse, down in the industrial district, where reserve and surplus stock is stored, and this warehouse is the largest west of Chicago, in this line. This building covers a number of acres of space on its various floors, and a visit to this "beehive," where the orders of customers are filled, is an eye opener, indeed, to the man or woman who has never gone beyond the retail stock. Carload lots—yes, small trainload shipments—are handled here with as much ease and accuracy as single suites in the uptown establishment. Here you see beds and bedsprings—a perfect maze of them—enough apparently, to supply all the hotels in Los Angeles. There are chairs and tables, and dressers, and rockers, and hundreds of other articles—a literal wilderness of them—packed in crates, with tons of excelsior and tied with miles of rope—enough to girdle the town again and again, if it were stretched around.

Here, adjoining the warehouse, in separate shops, you may see men tufting mattresses, upholstering chairs, davenports and couches; you may see enormous bales of art ticking—a thousand yards in a bale—and great hides of leather on the shelves. Here are great carding and felting machines, which prepare the cotton which goes into Barker Bros.' "made with care" mattresses.

And now, after all this experience, you conclude that the furnishing of a home involves a vast amount of thought and time and labor on the part of a small army of expert artists and artisans, designers and men and women of varied and wonderful talents.

OPERATIC ART AT PANTAGES.

AFFRE AND RICHARDSON BRING FRENCH REMINISCENCES.

Mrs. Estelle Heartt-Dreyfus in Recital — Alexander Heinemann Coming—Other Musical News and Mention of Recitals and Concert Programmes of Recent Date.

BY JULIAN JOHNSON.

Affre, tenor recently with M. Grasi's "Paris" opera company, is now the biggest star on Pantages vaudeville circuit, and will be seen at the local house this week, in conjunction with Mme. Martha Richardson, also heard at the Auditorium when the Grasi organization was there.

Affre is one of the few really great French tenors who have been heard in the United States, and, though he is a veteran, he is by no means an old man, and his voice still retains power, brilliance and a great deal of quality.

For nineteen years Affre was first tenor of the Grand Opera of Paris, singing almost continuously, and appearing in many new productions. His rendition of dramatic roles gained him not only local fame, but widespread renown.

As an interpreter, for purity of diction, for distinction and for a general air of authority, Affre has been seldom approached by any man of his class, singing in the United States.

The programme of these two singers has not been announced, but there will be solo numbers and a duet at each performance.

Mrs. Dreyfus.

Estelle Heart-Dreyfus, one of the best known of the Los Angeles vocalists, whose work this season has been received enthusiastically by club members, has been more than successful in what she terms her "purpose programme." Dreyfus will give a public recital at the Woman's Clubhouse Friday night, May 24. A specially prepared programme on "The Rhymes and Rhythms of the Rommany" will be the evening subject, with the old Gypsy songs as well as the modern compositions. She will be assisted by the Tandler String Quartet and Mrs. Robinson at the piano. Those who are interested in the music of the Gypsies will find in this programme many valuable side lights on the Gypsy character, as well as hearing many of the folk songs of the European and American wanderers.

Public Schools.

At the Auditorium on the afternoon and evenings of May 16th. and 17th. the public schools of Los Angeles will present a May music festival. The afternoons will be given over to prepared programmes rendered by the elementary school pupils, while the intermediate schools will come in for their share in the afternoon. The evenings will be devoted entirely to high school music, interpreted by members of the various high schools of the city.

The committee in charge of all programmes is headed by Mrs. Gertrude B. Parsons, with Miss Jennie Jones, Kathryn Stone, Verna Blythe, Mary Groves, Carrie Trustow, Alma Stickel and Hugo Kirchhofer as associate workers. Mrs. Parsons is chairman of the committee. Not only are the public school teachers interested in this work, but all of the school departments in the various schools outside of Los Angeles are looking forward to this event and expect to visit the concerts and gain information and instruction on this essential work of school life.

Heinemann.

The next big singer coming to the Auditorium is Alexander Heinemann, court singer to the Emperor of Germany, who made his first appearance in this city last season, and who deserves patronage from every lover of the highest musical art. Two concerts will be sung, one on the night of May 14, the other the afternoon of May 18.

Heinemann is more at home in sounding the notes of weird tragedy, although he sings with ease and delicacy lightsome lyrics and even humorous lays. Comparison with Dr. Wullner is very often made with Heinemann, for these two rivals lay claim to the title of the greatest exponent of the dramatic and lyric art. Heinemann certainly excells Wullner in voice, technique and dramatic intensity. In tragic numbers he is far more moving, for he relies rather on vocal than facial expression to wring the heart of his hearers.

Orchestra Choral.

The First Congregational Orchestra and Choral Club will give the final concert of their season on Monday evening, May 6. The oratorio of "The Creation," is to be rendered by the Choral Club, which is composed of about 75 voices.

The artists engaged for the solo work of the oratorio are Mrs. Charles C. Stivers, Roland Paul and H. S. Williams. The director of the Choral Club is C. Haydn Jones. Prof. Skeele will preside at the organ and Miss Grace Nash will accompany on the piano.

The Orchestra and Choral Club frequently assist in the evening services of the First Congregational Church, with which they are affiliated and each year, give a series of subscription concerts in the church auditorium on Hope street, between Eighth and Ninth streets. An enjoyable evening is anticipated.

Titanic Benefit.

Among the benefits held for the deserving of the Titanic disaster, none was more interesting, both in programme and financial result, than that given last Thursday evening at Gamut Auditorium.

The artists who volunteered their services were Signor Romeo Savanatino, tenor; Miss Hilda Nelte, pianist, and Miss Bessie Irene Chapin, violinist.

Von Stein.

An accession of students from Arizona, Nevada and other Western States, with the approach of the warm season in those States, has shown the increasing fame of the Von Stein Academy of Music, and as the school vacation period approaches arrangements are being made by local students for the devotion of an increased amount of time to study in the academy. Heinrich von Stein is justly proud of the increasing fame and unwavering popularity of the academy built up by his efforts and is more than ever determined to make it one of the great music schools of America. He announces the two hundred and fifty-eighth students' recital, to be given May 14. These recitals are not in the amateurish class, in which classic compositions are "rendered" with deadly monotony by pupils who have no conception of the meaning of the music they are playing, and music-lovers of the city are glad to be in attendance.

The Titanic benefit recital given by the academy Tuesday night added $135 to the relief fund and gave new evidence of the enterprise and public spirit of the academy's founders as well as of the high musical standards of the institution.

Cheney's Recital.

Delmore Cheney, a bass-baritone of recent arrival here, gave a recital of excellent programme and fine interpretation at the Burlington on April 17.

Mr. Cheney's numbers included an aria from Haydn's "Seasons," Bruns's "Somebody" and "Naebody," Thomas Moore's "When Through the Piazetta" and "Row, Gently Row," the Clown's Song from "Twelfth Night," Buck's "The Skylark's Song" and the Liza Lehmann setting of Tennyson's "In Memoriam."

He was assisted by Oskar Selling. Mr. Cheney's voice is of unusual richness and depth, and his style is unimpeachable.

Mrs. Barlow.

Mrs. Vernon J. Barlow, who has achieved distinction throughout Southern California as a coloratura soprano of note, will leave Thursday for an indefinite stay in New York, Chicago and Washington, D. C. While in Washington Mrs. Barlow will see Signor Brada, the famous instructor, with whom she has an appointment. Mrs. Barlow will also fill several concert engagements while in the eastern cities, after which she will probably return to Los Angeles.

Mme. Amet.

Mme. Bertha Amet, dramatic soprano, gave a programme of German lieder, old Scotch and English ballads and other songs, with illustrated slides, at the Santa Monica High School auditorium Friday, May 3.

She was assisted by Margaret Obera Miller, reader, and Irene Walsh Masmith, pianist.

The concert was a benefit performance for the school fund and the Travel Club.

Buzzi.

Signor Pietro Buzzi's fourth monthly recital was given at the Starr Piano Hall, No. 628 South Hill street, last Friday evening.

The following pupils made their appearance: Misses Juanita Power, Beulah Maple, Evangeline Carrol, Eva Swalley, Opal Johnson, Madge Thompson, T. Anderson, Cecil Peabody, Minnie Brown, Clara Loge, Frances Neuscheafer, Alice Starr, Azella Johnson, Thereses Groswanez, Lucy LaCosta Godsey, Mrs. Warren Newton Bridges, Henry Wolfrom and Warren Newton Bridges. Mrs. Irma Hahn Wright was the accompanist.

Moore's Band.

Moore's Band, at Eastlake Park today, will present a programme including Strauss's "Mezzacopo" march, Strauss's "Vienna Bon-Bons" waltz, Feist's "Summer Days" overture, Suppe's "Morning, Noon and Night in Vienna" overture, Komzak's "Badner Madlin" waltz, and the "National Emblem" march of Bagley.

VAN DEN BERG COMING.

Well-Known Pianist Will Locate in Los Angeles Next Autumn, Joining Egan Faculty.

Brahm Van Den Berg, the distinguished Dutch pianist, heard here about ten days ago as soloist with Emma Calve, has signed a contract with Frank Egan to head the piano department of the Egan school next year.

Mr. Van Den Berg, who is perhaps the most distinguished of the younger European players to visit America this year, is now on his way to New York, and will shortly sail for Europe, to fulfill summer concert dates in Berlin and Vienna, and possibly in London and St. Petersburg, metropoli widely separated, but in both of which he is a great favorite.

Young Mr. Van Den Berg is the son of an Antwerp physician, and has had remarkable success both as an interpreter and as an instructor.

As a translator of the music of the modern Russians several New York critics have pronounced him almost without equal anywhere.

Certainly he is the most distinguished pianist to make his home in Los Angeles, and his coming speaks not only for the enterprise of the institution which has signed him, but for the growing prominence of Los Angeles as a general artistic center.

With Thomas Taylor Drill heading the vocal department, and with another instrumental surprise in store for still another branch, Mr. Egan feels that his school next year will have the dignity of a genuine conservatory—term so often abused by the small and inefficient concerns boldly misusing it.

COURT TAKING LOCAL GIRLS.

THREE FOR HIS NEW YORK PRODUCTION OF "C. O. D."

Misses Grace Hasemeier, Blossom Baird and Corinne Leser Please Theatrical Magnate to the Extent of Contracts—Egan Pupils Who Have Done Clever Work.

John Cort and Oliver Morosco visited the Egan school last Wednesday evening, saw a varied programme of dramatic offerings by the pupils and as a result Grace Hasemeier, Blossom Baird and Corinne Leser, all young Los Angeles girls, and all in their teens, are to go to New York City to play in the new Cort production, "C. O. D.," a farce which is said to be of extraordinary caliber.

This farce, in all probability, will have its trial performance at the Burbank Theater this summer, and in that case these three young women will assume the roles in which they will appear in Cort's metropolitan production.

Of this trio of Egan pupils little Miss Leser is the youngest. She is 17 years of age, is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. G. M. Leser of No. 1130 West Seventh street, and, it is said, has evidenced remarkable talent, both as a fascinatingly ingenuous comedienne, and as an impersonator of characters of considerable seriousness. Miss Leser appeared before Mr. Cort in a scene from Sudermann's "Margot."

Grace Hasemeier, 18 years of age, is the daughter of Dr. J. A. Hasemeier of No. 2851 Guirado street. She appeared in a sketch, "Ten Years Hence."

Blossom Baird, 19 years of age, is the daughter of Mrs. M. E. Baird of South Grand avenue, and, for the delectation of the visiting manager, enacted Rosalind, in a scene from "As You Like It."

Later on Miss Leser appeared with Patsy Calhoun in a burlesque from "Paid in Full," she enacting Cap'n Williams, while the vast Mr. Calhoun appeared daintily elephantine as Emma Brooks, the wronged and trusting wife.

Mr. Cort said: "I can only repeat what I said on my last visit—that Los Angeles has the most remarkable collection of young talent I have ever seen on my travels, and my journeyings are fairly extensive.

"These three young women are unusual types, and the remarkable part of it is that I found them all in one evening, and all in the same place. I am sure that for such talent as theirs the metropolis holds wide promise, for they bring the grace, the enthusiasm and the magnetism—typically western—which so many of the young easterners seem to lack."

Mr. Cort has made tentative agreements with three more Egan aspirants, but will not give them definite word—as he did Miss Leser, Miss Hasemeier and Miss Baird—until he reaches New York City and looks over his casts for the coming season.

THE UNCHLOROFORMED.

John Shell, 105 years old, and the oldest white man in Kentucky, recently rode from his home at Laurel Fork to Barbourville and back on a mule, a total distance of thirty-eight miles. He has never seen a large city, and saw a railroad train and electric lights for the first time nine years ago. His oldest son is 81 and his youngest 57. In all, he had eleven children.

John Roy of Manchester, N. H., is grandfather to more grandchildren, it is believed, than any other man in New England. Mr. Roy is the father of nine children, all of whom are living, and his grandchildren number seventy. He is 73 years old.

Although 84 years old, B. F. Garrett of Washington county, Arkansas, has completed a trip of nearly 140 miles from his home to Stillwater, walking the entire distance. He says the trip has benefited his health.

Jonathan Wax, a farmer of Bourbon county, Kansas, celebrated his one hundredth birthday anniversary last week, and his family has decided that he is no longer young enough to do any of the heavy work about the place and must confine himself to chopping the wood, doing the chores and other kinds of lighter work. His son, 70 years old, will do the heavier work.

John Doyle of Sanbornville, N. H., who is 73 years old and a Civil War veteran, has sawed, split and piled eleven cords of wood in the past few weeks.

Capt. Joseph S. Byxbee, the oldest licensed pilot in Connecticut, celebrated his one hundredth birthday anniversary recently. Born and reared in Norwalk, he has followed the sea for eighty-five years. He was quite wealthy when he retired. He is well and active, and complains of only a slight deafness.

Mrs. Deborah Shaw, 85 years old, of Cummington, Mass., has just completed the knitting of a rug seven feet four inches long and four feet eight inches wide. She has been at work on it for three years.

After having ridden more than 1,000,000 miles on the same run, J. D. Smith, a conductor for fifty-two years and the oldest employee in point of service on the Boston and Albany Railroad, has retired at 70.

The Rainbow.

They say that nevermore shall I behold your face. It is not true!
They doubt the bow of promise in the sky who so believe.
Ah! dear one, when had passed the first wild poignant grief,
When first I looked about and Nature smiled,
I saw your love in everything.
No bud that burst into a gleam of beauty in the spring,
The pink magnolia trees, the subtle sweet Mayflowers,
But thrilled me with fond memories of you
Because your love for me, like them, was fair,
With every changing scene of life coming to me anew.
This is my hope, you have not left me here alone
But still will keep my hand in yours, my vision clear
To see you when the veil is torn away.
No watery grave can take your love, your all-enfolding care from me.
—[Edith Marble in Philadelphia Record.

Despair.

How short the road that leads us to despair,
When once we turn, how soon our feet are there.
How dark the valley and how dim the sight
That tries to pierce the darkness dense at night.
How welcome are the gleams of coming day,
So slow to lighten up the clouded way.
How beautiful the path which leads us on
To hilltops kissed by radiant dawn.
How glad the heart that battles with the storm,
To see at length each purple cloud transform.

IN THE PUBLIC S

Supt. Francis Addresses Normal School.

Superintendent Francis addressed the Education Society of the Normal School on Friday, his subject being "The Reorganization of the School System."

Mr. Francis presented the philosophy of the movement, dwelling on the importance of keeping the child in the child atmosphere, in the schoolroom, with teachers who understand children and who make a special study of the child problem, and on playgrounds not dominated by adolescent children. He then took up the problem of the adolescent child, with its new group of thought and motor activities, explaining the impossibility of doing the work with these children under the old plan, where the teacher had so many great subjects, each a life study in itself, to teach, that she could do but scant justice to any one of them, and presenting departmental work in intermediate schools as the solution of the problem.

"We have gone beyond the point," said the speaker, "where we can afford to concern ourselves only with the children who want to go to college. We must look after those who will not go even so far as the high school, and see that they get all the equipment they can for the struggle with life."

Supervisor Lickley to Speak.

Next Wednesday Mr. Lickley will speak to the Parent-Teacher Association of Norwood-street School on the question: "Is Instruction on Sin and Its Effects a Safeguard Against the Commission of Offenses by Children?".

Mr. Lickley, in connection with this subject, will discuss the teaching of sex hygiene.

Custer-avenue Intermediate.

Ginger is Custer-avenue Intermediate's other name! Listen! In the very first debate which any Intermediate school has had with a high school, the Intermediate won. "Some laurels!" as the boys say.

The great event occurred on Tuesday, last, Custer contending with Poly High, and the subject being: "Resolved, that text-books in public schools should be furnished at public expense," with Custer on the affirmative and Poly on the negative, Hildreth Kotsch and Aaron Halprin for the Intermediate, Benjamin Creim and Isadore Pelser for the High, all ninth grade pupils.

A roof gym., one of the first in the city schools, is planned for Custer, in connection with the new Auditorium, and Mr. Faithfull, of Polytechnic, is designing the building.

General Knowledge Test.

Supt. Francis surprised the High School students, Friday, by unexpectedly springing an examination, the object of which was to find out how much general information the students had. Pupils were asked to characterize in a line or so, the following persons, in a way to explain what they stand for in general public intelligence: Queen Elizabeth, Ulysses, Hamlet, Gifford Pinchot, Diaz, Lancelot, La Follette, Marcus Aurelius, David Harum, Pythias, Jane Addams, Huckleberry Finn, Luther Burbank, Brer Rabbit, Carnegie Beethoven, Booker T. Washington, Isaac, Samuel Gompers, Millet, Darwin, Casaius, Henry Stanley, Pickwick.

The answers were surprisingly good, and several of the papers were most excellent, especially when one considers the wide scope of knowledge which the subjects touched, and the fact that the pupils had not a moment to prepare. Among the best papers is that of Vincent Jones.

"Queen Elizabeth of England is one of the dominating figures in world history. Her reign stands for power and great achievements. Her influence on history is shown in the fact that things which happened during her reign are spoken of as taking place in the Elizabethan era."

"Ulysses: Famous character in Homer's odyssey, the great traveler of mythology.

"Hamlet: The dominating personage in Shakespeare's 'Hamlet.' Hamlet's famous soliloquy is well known.

"Gifford Pinchot: Pinchot is known because of his views on the forestry question.

"Diaz: Famous President who 'ruled' Mexico, and who was recently deposed from his position.

"La Follette: Progressive Republican leader.

"Marcus Aurelius: Roman Emperor who was a tremendous power in the days of Rome's supremacy.

"David Harum: The kindly, humorist, shrewd horse trader and chief character of the book and play, 'David Harum.'

"Pythias: The friend of Damon, of whom we read in the Grecian myths.

"Jane Addams: The founder of Hull House in Chicago, and an earnest worker for social betterment.

"Huckleberry Finn: Noted book by Mark Twain, whose chief character Huckleberry Finn, is so familiar to the schoolboys.

Brer Rabbit: A humorous book.

Carnegie: Scotch-American financier, founder of the Carnegie libraries.

Beethoven: Great German composer—the link between the classic and romantic schools of music, and the greatest of all symphony writers.

Booker T. Washington: The noted negro preacher—stands for all that is high and noble in the negro race.

Samuel Gompers: Noted union-labor leader.

Millet: A striking figure in French art. His picture, "The Angelus," is known to all.

Darwin: The great evolutionary theorist, with whom so many disagree, and yet whose views are coming to be regarded as important.

Cassius: Character in Shakespeare's "Julius Caesar." A cruel type of man who lead others.

Henry Stanley: Great African explorer.

Pickwick: Famous character of Dickens's "Pickwick Papers." A type of pompous English gentleman."

While most of the papers compare favorably with the above there are a few, very amusing answers:

"Brer Rabbit: A famous Mormon."

"Mr. Carnegie: A great steal maggot."

"Luther Burbank: "A nature faker who has done much grafting with plants. The Burbank potato is named after him."

"Gifford Pinchot: The brother of Miss Pinchot in the story of the 'House of Seven Gables,' who lost his mind on account of loss of money."

"Jane Addams: The founder of Hull House in Chicago, and an earnest worker for social betterment.

"Huckelberry Finn: Noted book by Mark Twain, whose chief character Huckleberry Finn, is so familiar to the schoolboys.

Brer Rabbit: A humorous book.

Carnegie: Scotch-American financier, founder of the Carnegie libraries.

Beethoven: Great German composer—the link between the classic and romantic schools of music, and the greatest of all symphony writers.

Booker T. Washington: The noted negro preacher—stands for all that is high and noble in the negro race.

Samual Gompers: Noted union-labor leader.

Millet: A striking figure in French art. His picture, "The Angelus," is known to all.

Cassius: Character in Shakespeare's "Julius Caesar." A cruel type of man who lead others.

Henry Stanley: Great African explorer.

Pickwick: Famous character of Dickens's "Pickwick Papers." A type of pompous English gentleman."

While most of the papers compare favorably with the above there are a few, very amusing answers:

"Brer Rabbit: A famous Mormon."

"Mr. Carnegie: A great steal magnet."

"Luther Burbank: "A nature faker who has done much grafting with plants. The Burbank potato is named after him."

"Gifford Pinchot: The brother of Miss Pinchot in the story of the 'House of Seven Gables,' who lost his mind on account of loss of money."

Avenue Sixty-two Social Center.

The May Day cantata, held in Social Center Hall, for the benefit of the Arroyo-side Carnegie library site, proved a huge success from both an artistic and a financial point of view.

May 1, a boiled New England dinner, from the school garden products, furnished keen enjoyment to the teachers of Avenue Sixty-two and their guests, Miss Jennie Jones, Mrs. George Larkey, C. F. Lenz and C. A. Charlton.

Prof. E. J. Lickey addressed the Parent-Teachers' Association on Wednesday, his subject being, "The Troublesome Boy," for whom Mr. Lickey made a strong plea. The association's annual election of officers resulted as follows: Mrs. Gavin Witherspoon, president; Mrs. E. E. Denton, vice-president; Mrs. Frank Schaefer, secretary, and Mrs. E. A. Phillips, treasurer.

The social center orchestra has now reached standard proportions, under the direction of Miss June Irish, pianist. Kenny Stuart is the proud possessor and manipulator of a bass drum, snare drum, bells and cymbals; and Homer Renauif, flute; Douglas Barlow, Clarence Renauif and Guy De Long, violins; Marion Darrow, triangle; H. Loud, bass viol; A. Renauif, cornet; and C. Atherton, violin 'cello, complete a happy combination, which is a source of delight at the community meetings.

In consequence of Shriners' parade night, Friday, May 10, the executive committee have decided to drop the social center meeting scheduled for that evening.

Polytechnic High.

Stoves are being made in the foundry for the use of the Los Angeles High School and Gardena Agricultural High Schools in the cookery departments.

In fact, probably few people have really adequate ideas of the practical significance of Poly's shops. A visit to the woodshop is a revelation. For instance, the other day when the writer stepped in, a busy hum met her ears, and important-looking boys bent over their work, which turned out to be nothing less than doors for the lockers in the gymnasium lockerrooms, tables for the dressmaking and mechanical drawing-rooms, and a new set of shelves for the library, which latter were nearly completed. Besides the work done for the schools, the boys make many articles for use in their homes, the lumber being supplied by the school at cost. Two large sideboards have been made, a handsome dining-table is awaiting stain, and a comfortable-looking Morris chair is progressing rapidly. Poly's shops have the best lumber-room of any school in the State, being so arranged that the particular board desired can be removed without disturbing others. It has also a kiln for the drying of green lumber.

Mr. Kinsley of the City Housing Commission, addressed the Civics League, on Tuesday, on the conditions among the poor foreigners in this city, urging the necessity of alleviating the distress, poverty, and sickness which prevail, especially as the Panama canal is nearing completion, after which there will be a great wave of immigration to the Pacific Coast. He impressed his listeners with the gravity of the situation, and at the close of his speech was tendered the thanks of the league, by its president, Carl Shafer.

The Ionian societies held a joint meeting Thursday evening, presenting a programme, entitled "In Faraway Lands." The critic's report, read by Margaret Toon, and a piano solo by Alberta Brown, opened the programme. E. D. Ruiz spoke on the City of Mexico, his subject holding added interest from the fact that he is himself a native of Mexico. "South America, the Land of Tomorrow," was the topic of Ine Morrison. These talks were illustrated by stereopticon views. The Hawaiian Quartette is composed of Harold Sherman, Thomas Beyrle, Ben Weston and Burr Herendeen, and they sang in costume. One of the features of the programme was a group of three original sketches, "A Chinese Home in Peking," presented by Lillian Russell, Helen McCully and Amelia Lee; "An Armenian Roof Garden," by Roxie Jamochian (Armenian,) Bernice Bright, Helen Giles and Agnes Gentry, and "Tokio versus Yokohama," by Leroy Amett, Harold Burson, Cyril Bruning, Kitanje Miyamoto and Saburo Nakashima. Bernhardt Oerthy discussed "The Ups and Downs of Switzerland," Helen Campbell did dances in costume, and Robert Murray gave in a very clever manner an Irish reading, "Mickey Free's Father;" Margaret Pickart's subject was "Japanese Music," illustrated by a quartette of Japanese maidens, impersonated by Alfa Rosencrest, Helen Stockwell, Evelyn Mondon and Hallie Hughes, accompanied by Melva Larsen. N. Yamada presented some interesting information about the cherry blossoms of Japan, and the evening came to an end with two delightful songs, "Off to Philadelphia" and "A Red, Red Rose," sung by the Boys' Chorus of the school. Altogether, one of the most entertaining programmes ever given by the Ionian Society.

Amateur vaudeville usually means long waits, frequent hitches in the performance, and sad and painful, but wholly futile efforts to be funny. Not one of these things happened at Poly last Wednesday. In fact, from start to finish, the programme was full of "pep," and boys of 16 and 18 did stunts that bring high salaries on the circuits. The two sketches of greatest interest, as representative of school training, were the little playlets written and staged by Dick Morgan and William Pierson. The former, "The Angel Lady," was a jolly picture of student life at college. It was well conceived and well carried out in every detail. Dick Morgan's appearance as a ballet dancer and his exquisite imitations of Lole Fuller, Maud Allan and other dancers were vigorously applauded. The other, a dramatic episode called "The Brute," was well acted by three colored boys, William Pierson, John McLemore and Webb King. Acrobatic features by Lawrence Adams and Franklin Burton, a bit of stage life behind the scenes by Ryker and Young, some really wonderful performances with the diabolo, by Benjamin Isaacs, sleight-of-hand tricks by Carrol and Donovan, a trick dog and his trainer, "Bo" Burris, and a perfect clog dance by Wilfred Beebe, were the numbers of the programme. Each was most excellent of its kind, and the audience had difficulty in deciding which two should be chosen to represent Poly in the interscholastic vaudeville tournament to be held this month at Temple Auditorium. The two original plays received the largest number of votes.

The orchestra was under the leadership of Dwight Shepardson, who proved himself a skilful maestro. Practically every seat in the house was taken, and Poly's first vaudeville passed into history as a rousing success.

San Pedro High.

The student body presented the school with a San Pedro High flag in black and gold, the school colors, on last Tuesday. Students gathered about the colors and sang the school song, and listened to a stirring address by Principal Clayton.

Last Friday evening the freshman class entertained the student body and faculty at the High School auditorium. A good programme was given, and dainty refreshments were served in the lunch-house.

One of the late attractions was the excellent lecture by Lincoln Wirt, on Alaska.

The Annual, the yearly publication of San Pedro High, is now ready to go to press, and is anxiously awaited by students.

The High School Social Center will hold its regular monthly meeting at the High School auditorium next Friday night. President Mills and the Executive Committee are preparing a fine programme.

About thirty of the boys and girls, chaperoned by Mmes. Haskell and Wickersham, climbed Mt. Wilson last week and report a fine time, in spite of blisters and stiff joints.

Napoleon's Passion for Clothes.

[Chicago News:] Napoleon, according to a writer, had a passion for clothes. Leger, his tailor, however, held a poor opinion of his client's taste. Leger quoted to this effect: "I consistently ignored Napoleon's suggestions concerning clothes. He wished the skirts of his tunic to be turned back like those of Frederick the Great. 'I should not think of allowing such a thing, sir,' I told him. 'The eyes of the whole world are upon you. I would not make you such a tunic if you offered me the whole of your empire.' The Emperor laughed heartily, and gave way.

"He restocked his wardrobe in 1810. Up to that year he had been so parsimonious that his whole outfit, exclusive of lace and trimmings, was not worth £80 ($400.) I then obtained a standing order for six gray greatcoats in the winter and a like number of green uniforms in the summer.

"He also had a new pair of trousers and a white Kerseymere waistcoat once a fortnight. These were his chief expenses."

Recalls Historical Events.

[Baltimore Sun:] The discovery of the remains of an old potter's field near Eutaw and Preston streets, in Baltimore, recalls political satire directed against President Madison nearly one hundred years ago. After his hurried flight from Washington when the British captured and destroyed the Capitol there, his political antagonists jeered him as a coward. Later, when Madison street was named, his enemies pointed to the fact of its peculiar situation. It began at the poorhouse and passed the penitentiary and the eastern terminus of the street was near the old Maryland Insane Isylum, which stood on the present site of the John Hopkins Hospital.

The Real Eugene Aram.

[London Globe:] A sale of relics of Eugene Aram reminds us that Lord Lytton's Aram was a very different personage from him who was hanged at York, who, judging from the published account of the trial, was merely a felon of the baser sort. He associated with low companions, married a low wife and practiced swindling with a miserable creature whom in his younger days he was associated with in stealing flower roots—for they were both gardeners—and finally murdered him to secure a few pounds, the proceeds of a swindle.

Aram possessed a vigorous, intellect, had mastered the learned languages, had read every classic that came in his way, and, says a distinguished writer, when the learned felon came to make his defense, all Britain was astonished by a piece of pleading, which, if given to the public among the defenses and under the name of Thomas, Lord Erskine, so celebrated for this species of composition, would certainly not be deemed unworthy of the collection of its author.

Uncle Johnny Clifton and Attorney W. Sparks, rival candidates for the Legislature at Vidalia, Ga., will ride over the county in the same buggy, and so the farmers will not be delayed in their plowing one candidate will plow the farmer's field while the other talks politics to the farmer, each candidate to have equal opportunity to talk and to plow.

WILL PAINT BEAUTIES OF AMERICA'S SOCIETY.

[SPECIAL CORRESPONDENCE OF THE TIMES.]

PARIS, April 5.—Jules Cayron, probably the most popular portrait painter of beautiful women of the day, has at last decided to pay the United States a visit. Next December he will journey to New York to draw some of the most famous of America's "400." Cayron established himself among the leaders of the smart set of Paris's American colony long ago and has painted many of the best known of the women, among them, Comtesse de Lubersac, Mrs. Clinch-Smith, Miss Pulitzer and Mrs. William Moore.

Cayron is now holding a "one man's exhibition" at the Georges Petits Gallery here and the rooms are crowded daily by French society. Apropos of the occasion Marcel Prevost, greatest among modern French authors as a subtle delineator of character, has written to Cayron a letter which the writer is able to quote. It runs:

"My dear Friend: I have often envied your art. We authors also try to make portraits of women, but we have to do it from memory, putting together our observations gleaned from here—from there. We cannot say to a Parisian: 'Sit there, turn your eyes toward that vase of flowers,' and then get to work, pen in hand. The Parisian would make fun of us. What does she care for a portrait in printed characters, printed on pages! What she wants is a fine Cayron on canvas and in colors, a Cayron pulsating with light and life like any one of those you have collected for your fascinating exhibition. The Parisian is right.

"I shall not attempt to describe your works. The comparison of a painted portrait and a written portrait would be too much to my disadvantage. I shall say only to those who pass by 'Hurry and come in. If you have any sense of art you will here enjoy one of the best masters of our time, a master whose precise and careful drawing places him near our masters of the eighteenth century, while the warm glow of his color makes us think of the English painters. If on the contrary you have no curiosity to see works of art perhaps you are a student of human nature, a connoisseur of souls. You will study here a very curious collection of documents on modern woman, because not only toilets and hats are here shown (although there are admirable ones just the same) there are women's souls seen in the pupils, the mouth, the forehead, the sensitive nose, the fine hands—a psychological-cinema of Eve present in the flesh, and her disquieting thoughts.

"'Even if you are neither interested in art nor character, if you are somewhat snobbish, come in just the same, you will meet here the best society of Paris and of other places and see their most beautiful women—women who would never have given you a glance will look into your eyes and smile—a smile as real as the real itself.'"

Cayron is still a young man. He was born in 1872 in Paris. His early art education was under the guidance of Alfred Stevens. He has received numerous medals at the salon of the Artists Francaise, he is a chevalier of the Legion of Honor, and has the distinction of having had one of his portraits, which now hangs in the Luxembourg Gallery, bought by the French government.

His portraits are not only in demand by French people, but he has been in London to paint many prominent English women, among whom are the Queen of Spain, Lady Colebrook, Lady Bury and Lady Carrington.

Victory.

I could not think, as he went away
With the setting sun that winter day,
Of death at all—but of fighting past,
And a soldier come to his own at last.
I heard no sobs, but the tramp of feet;
A bugle's call—it was not retreat.
But forward march!—and the stir of drums
As when a hero conquering comes!
There was no gloom, but the sun's last ray
Warm on the Flag that about him lay,
And I knew, as though he had whispered me,
That it was not Death—it was Victory!

FAT MAN REDUCES MORE THAN 100 POUNDS

Without Drugs, Exercise or Starving—Tells How He Did It

"Philadelphia's Champion Fat Man," as he was called by most of his friends, has been giving those same friends the jolt of their lives. While all were deeply sorry for the enormously fat semi-invalid whose fast was such a burden he could hardly walk, yet they were wont sometimes to call him a "patent medicine fiend" on account of his well-known penchant for spending his money on various advertised "fat reducers" and quack nostrums which always seemed to increase rather than diminish his size. Finally he lost patience with all these and declared that he was through with such methods forever and was going to try one he had discovered himself, largely by accident.

Not long after, his friends were startled to behold a most remarkable change in his appearance. His fat began to vanish at an incredible rate and those who knew him could hardly credit the evidence of their own senses when, only a few weeks from the time he began to dwindle away at the rate of a pound a day, he announced that he had lost one hundred pounds, could stop reducing any time he wanted to, and proposed to reduce a few more pounds so he could say his weight was exactly the right weight for his height.

Dr. F. Turner, the man referred to above, was seen recently and said that since he reached normal weight of 150 pounds (from 354) several weeks ago, his fat has shown not the slightest tendency to return. He explained in detail the method he used, and while space will not permit a full description of it here, arrangements have been made to have all stout readers obtain the information free of cost. The method is highly scientific and requires the use of no drugs, medicines, exercise, starvation diets, apparatus, purging, sweating or anything weakening in any way. It could not possibly harm even a child or an invalid. Not content with reducing his own weight Dr. Turner had several friends try the method, some of these friends being in far distant cities. After using the method Mr. J. W. Moore at Montiello, Minn., wrote: "I have lost 70 pounds. Pains around my heart are gone." Mr. H. E. Purdell of Gloversville, N. Y., wrote: "My weight for 21 days was reduced 22 pounds." Mrs. Elizabeth Newkirk, Mt. Carmel, Ill., wrote: "Lost 15 pounds in 9 days." Mr. Thomas Lock of Cleveland wrote: "I have lost 36 pounds and can lace my shoes now, something I have not done in ten years."

In all, more than one hundred stout persons have tried this newly discovered method of drugless weight reduction without a single failure. Dr. Turner feels that if he can say that not ONE hundred, but FIVE hundred or even a thousand have found this method successful, then no one will doubt his word when he says it is practically infallible and never fails. Until such time Dr. Turner, whose present address is Suite 526B Clark Building, Syracuse, N. Y., announces his intention to send full particulars absolutely free to any stout readers who are sufficiently interested to write him at above address and simply enclose 2c stamp for reply. The more fat you are, the more welcome your letter will be to Dr. Turner. He is particularly anxious to have a man or woman weighing from 400 to 500 pounds reduce to normal by using his method, such reduction to be effected by Dr. Turner entirely without expense to the stout person in question. Dr. Turner has agreed to hold this offer open to readers only during the next ten days, when it will be withdrawn if he secures all the replies he desires. So if you desire the free information offered you are urged to write immediately, before it is too late to obtain it free of cost, and you can then begin reducing weight at once.

POETRY FOR ADULTS.

THE CANDLE AND THE FLAME. By George Sylvester Viereck. Moffat, Yard & Co.

GEORGE SYLVESTER VIERECK, America's literary boy wonder, sets another bomb under prudery by the publication of his book of poems, "The Candle and the Flame." It has been several years since the conservatives sat up and rubbed their eyes when he flung defiance in their teeth with "Nineveh, and Other Poems." In the meantime a change has been going on in this bilingual prodigy. Modernization has set in on his work—not modernization of sentiment so much as of execution. Viereck calls it evolution from the physical to the metaphysical. He explains it carefully in the introduction of his new book; but those who seek abstractions in his literary output will seek in vain. If there is a hint of metaphysics occasionally, it is founded—believe me!—it is founded on a very definite and concrete basis. And the physical element in all instances dominates.

Viereck explains that this is to be his last book of poetry. Says he: "I have the unique sensation of experiencing at 27 what Ibsen experienced at 70. Already the younger generation is knocking at the gate. Let the doors be swung wide open! This book, poetic youth of America, is my parting gift to you."

This decision was made when Viereck discovered that his was not the creative but the dynamic temperament. The stock exchange for him! The busy buzz of Wall street, the ticker and the dividends! Alas, America is to lose one of her brightest, perhaps her very brightest poetic luminary! A loss, indeed, it is in a country where the bosh-bard is triumphant, where genius is almost unknown, where we still cling pathetically and touchingly to the idea that James Whitcomb Riley is a great poet, where verse is bought and paid for by the inch, where Henry VanDyke, Richard Burton, Cale Young Rice and Florence Earle Coates are written about eloquently by our leading critics, where our standards of poetic taste are based on moralistic superstitutions and medieval theology, where sentimentality takes the place of emotion, and where insipidity is the criterion of magazine acceptances. We can ill afford to lose so virile and so passionate a bard as Viereck.

But the decision is evidently made. At any rate Viereck can never be the same hereafter, for he has emitted a depressing sentiment in the introduction to his new book, a sentiment which brands him for all time as a worldling, a money-grubber, a woodpecker, a mere beast of the field. Behold this sentiment, boldly printed at the top of page thirteen in his introduction: "I sometimes suspect that I would rather have reared the Metropolitan building than to have written my poem 'Queen Lilith.'" Could his dream ever again have been as pure, his fire as hot, or his passion as intense, after having voiced this sordid sentiment? Had he only suspected this horrible thing once, we might have passed it by as the result of a temporary mental depression: but he says "sometimes:" that is to say, more than once—several times; perhaps even numerous times! Apparently there is no hope. Adieu, friend and fellow poet, farewell to thee in thy dynamic chase for the dollar! Thou hast deserted they muse for the squalid marts of the world, thou hast forsaken thy rhyme for skyscrapers! Mayst thou find peace in the new road of thy choosing! May the vision of they dream not haunt thee as the vision of Jonathan haunts King David in that psychopathic poem of thine. Farewell, adios, adieu, a'je, vale.

Having thus, with lofty phrase and affecting rhetoric, parted company with a poet let us inspect his swansong. Duty compels me to report that "The Candle and the Flame" is one of the most significant books of poetry to come out of America. I say "duty," for, truth to tell, it would be easier, more popular, and more pleasing to the vast majority to denounce Viereck as a degenerate, a decadent, a marplot, a befeathered scaramouch, a poseur—anything and everything bestial, vile, disgraceful, low, despicable, contemptible, ignoble, scurvy, sinful, impure, vicious, iniquitous, worthless, miserable, mean, foul, immoral, corrupt, loose, licentious, lewd, smutty, filthy, coarse, gross, unchaste, brazen, indecorous, tainted, wicked, debased, dissolute, profligate, abandoned, defiled, shameless, demoralized, vitiated, false, degenerate, lax, wanton, debauched, lascivious, lecherous and libidinous.

But I shall leave this for the gentle moralists who believe that all human actions which give pleasure are fundamentally base. Let them pounce upon this poet with their vocabularies of derogation and contumely. It is not my habit nor yet my inclination to apply the moral standard to an artist's work. That may well be left to the critics of culture and refinement, to the professors of ethics, to the ladies and the earnest young bachelors of art, who write reviews for our literary monthlies.

Judged artistically, Viereck's book measures high—far higher than "Nineveh." He has attained in "The Candle and the Flame" a lyric intensity which at times is little short of marvelous. If there is an American poet living today who can write as really passionate and as genuine a poem as "Nero in Capri," I have yet to make his or her acquaintance.

The cry will be raised in all quarters that Viereck has gone outside of his poetic license to obtain his themes. That, of course, is a matter for each one to decide for himself. All art is nine-tenths execution, but if you demand substance and not method, I recommend to you Henry Van Dyke and not Viereck. For apparently there is no theme which he has deemed unworthy of poetic expression. Several of his poems deal frankly with homosexual subjects. In his "Children of Lilith," for instance, we meet, among other similar personages, Sporus, Heliogabalus, Antinoe, Echo, Narcissus, Charmides and Gaveston. And in "A Little Maid of Sappho," we have speculations on the maternal emotions, for an explanation of which you must go to Havelock Ellis or Krafft-Ebing. Viereck has openly assumed that psychologi-

INADEQUATE GUIDE.

PARIS A LA CARTE. By Julian Street. John Lane Company, New York. (Price 50 cents.)

IN "PARIS A LA CARTE," by Julian Street, we have an example of an excellent theme, bristling with possibilities, inadequately handled. It is unfortunate, for Street has spoiled the subject for another writer—or perhaps even for himself, for there are evidences in this author's other writings which point to the fact that he is capable of better work. The fault lies, perhaps, in the fact that the story was written to order for a magazine whose very name is enough to make intelligent people shun it. The article appeared originally in Everybody's, but did not attain the length to which it is carried in its present book form. (Let it be said for Street that the interpolated portions are the best in the book.

Its chief fault is its manner, rather than the Saxon temperamental attitude assumed by the author; although the latter fault reaches a depressing and almost puritanical climax, as Street ascends Montmartre. The book is written in that loose, flabby, discursive style known as journalese. It is replete with those melancholy puns, which pass for humor in the pages of Puck and Judge. Then there are passages in that quasi-elegant, pseudo-profound manner so frequently affected by ambitious newspaper reporters, to wit: "His complexion is of either a pasty cream color or an apoplectic purple, shading off to a lighter tone about the prominently upholstered neck. There are deep wrinkles beside the nose, flabby pouches beneath the eyes, diamonds on the fingers and very fancy buttons on the waistcoat. The whole is mounted upon creaky legs." An earnest and mastodonic straining—with nothing attained.

The book, however, is not altogether a failure. If one ignores its inexpensive attempts at humor and its ponderous striving for lightness and savoir faire, considerable information and entertainment may be gathered from its pages. Beginning with the "Cafe de Paris," Street fairly draws fairly accurate pictures of the better known cafes of Paris. His characterization of Maxim's is perhaps a tride harsh (probably due to the fact that the author visited it at that time of year when wealthy Americans are hitting the Parisian trail,) but what is said about it has been needed for a long time. This gaudy and over-advertised cafe has become in America a symbol of the French spirit of revelry—a thing which it most decidedly is not. Next comes Larue's, and then a few brief recommendations of certain restaurants, one of which, Durand's, was forced to close last year. When writing of the Marguery and the Tour d' Argent, Street is inclined to be impressed with the superstitions regarding their sole and canard—superstitions not unlike those harbored by certain American restaurants.

Descending into the Latin Quarter (the name of whose principal street is here misspelled,) the author displays a certain lack of sympathy with the follies of the Latin temperament by his insistence on their sordidness and pose. He enumerates many of the quarter's restaurants, giving brief descriptions of some of the most important, tells where one may find inexpensive food, points the way where American and Italian dishes can be found, and then leads to the restaurant Du Coucou, which greatly impresses him.

An excellent lead is made under the heading, "The Spirit of Parisian Restaurants," but Street apparently becomes frightened, for before he is well launched upon the themes sorts to quotation, lets fall a few innuendoes—and changes the subject. The change is not an uninteresting one, for it leads us to the outdoor resorts, and from there it is but a step to the Bois and the Champs d'Elysees. More might have been said about the cabarets, but Htreet contents himself with Fysher's. The Apache district is so inadequately treated that it might better have been omitted.

Whose recent volume of verse, "The Candle and the Flame," flings defiance in the face of prudes, rummages among the abnormalities of life, apotheosizes sex, wallows in exotic passion, and triumphantly succeeds in being genuine and important poetry.

"MICROBES AND TOXINS."

The Putnams have in train for publication in May a volume entitled "Microbes and Toxins," by Dr. Etienne Burnet of the Pasteur Institute. The Pasteur Institute is practically the center of the study of microbes and toxins, and in this work from the pen of one of Metchnikoff's colleagues, we have what a leading English authority thinks is "incomparably the best book there is on this tremendously important subject." This authority adds: "In fact, I am assured that nothing exists which gives anything like so full a study of micro-biology. Monsieur Metchnikoff, author of the "Prolongation of Life," and head of the Pasteur Institute, in commending the book, which was undertaken by Dr. Burnet at his instance, says: "In spite of the great difficulties which confronted him in presenting within a certain compass the results scattered over innumerable books that have piled up about microbes and their poisons and that have pursued the inquiry into the most varied channels, B. Burnet has benn able to complete this task in most commendable fashion." In the volume are considered the general functions of microbes, the microbes of the human system, the form and structure of microbes, the physiology of microbes, the pathogenic microbes, inflammation and phagocytosis, pathogenic protozoa, toxins, tuberculin and mallein, immunity, application of bacteriology, vaccines and serums, chemical remedies, etc.

BOOK GOSSIP.

The Putnams have entirely reset "Eve Triumphant," by Pierre de Coulevain, which they are publishing in an attractive new edition, to appear this month. The heroine is an American woman educated in France, and married to a scientific man, who gives her plenty of his money to gratify her whims, but comparatively little of his time. She goes abroad and leaves him absorbed in his work in New York. He feels so sure of her affection that he never has a moment's worry during her absence. She, however, has some awakening experiences. Apart from its readability as a story, it possesses interest as presenting a foreign view of American women. The translation has been prepared by Alys Hallard.

An interesting publication of April 10 is a new edition of Sir Thomas More's "Utopia," edited with an introduction, notes and glossary by Prof. William D. Armes, associate professor of American literature in the University of California. Prof. Armes has taken as the basis of the text of his edition the first edition of the first English translation, modernizing in so far as is possible the paragraphing and the spelling. The editor's idea throughout has been to present the "Utopia' 'in such a way that those who are interested may get More's thought with a maximum of pleasure and a minimum of difficulty. The book is attractively bound, and is provided with a frontispiece of the author.

The title of Prof. Edward Alsworth Ross's new book will be "Changing America," and it will discuss subsurface tendencies in modern society.

The Century Company will publish soon "Social Life in the Insect World," a compilation, translated from the French by Bernard Miall, from the work of J. H. Fabre, the noted French entomologist. The book will be lavishly illustrated.

Messrs. Henry Holt & Co. are already having to reprint Dr. Charles G. Ross's decidedly up-to-date book, "The Writing of the News," in which he gives among other things a list of "Bromides" and other "breaks" to be avoided, and abundant samples of headlines, etc., from the best newspapers.

Elijah R. Kennedy has a book published by Houghton Mifflin Co. this week on "The Contest for California in 1861," large parts of which constitute a biography of Col. Edward D. Baker, a brilliant personality and a soldier and statesman of the first rank. He was born in London and was a nephew of one of Collingwood's captains at Trafalgar. It is claimed that he has rendered greater service to the United States than any foreign born man since Hamilton. He was an able member of both the House of Representatives and of the Senate, and died at the head of his regiment at Ball's Bluff. He was an intimate friend of Lincoln and his funeral would have been held at the White House if the building had not been undergoing repairs.

Although but a short time has elapsed since the appearance of Garrett P. Serviss's novel, "The Second Deluge," (McBride, Nast & Co.) it is already being translated for publication in French by Mme. Eve Paul Marguerite, a daughter of the French novelist, Paul Marguerite. The fact of the book's being in the vein of Jules Verne no doubt makes it of especial appeal to French novel readers.

We now have an opportunity of reading "Cherry Orchard," the play by Tchekhof which created a sensation when produced in London last year. It is published by Mitchell Kennerley along with an earlier play, "The Seagull." Tchekhof has been called "the impressionist playwright," and no one interested in the drama should miss his work.

The Century Company is printing new editions of Guglielmo Ferrero's "The Women of the Caesars," Charles Caffin's helpful handbook, "How to Study Pictures," and Prof. S. E. Forman's "Advanced Civics."

Joseph Fennell's picture of the Campanile in Venice, published in the Century for March, has been officially adopted as the announcement of the dedication of the new structure and is being widely distributed all over Italy.

Messrs. Henry Holt & Co., announce that the sequel to Inez Haynes Gillmore's "Phoebe and Ernest" (which is already in its fourth edition here and has been reprinted in England,) will be entitled "Phoebe, Ernest and Cupid." The stories of the second series have been received with much acclaim as they have appeared in the pages of the American Magazine.

WITH THE AUTHORS.

The literary world was shocked when it learned that Jacques Futrelle, the novelist, whose stories, "The Diamond Master," "The High Hand," and "Elusive Isabel," won for him thousands of admirers, was among those lost in the wreck of the Titanic. Mrs. Futrelle, since the publication last fall of her first novel, "Secretary of Frivolous Affairs," has also gained fame as a writer. Since Mr. Futrelle left the newspaper business to devote himself entirely to fiction writing, the family has resided at Scituate, Mass., their home "Stepping Stones," being widely known among people of literary and artistic bent. It was here that Mr. Futrelle did all of his work.

Mr. Holbrook Jackson, the author of "Romance and Reality," a book of essays, just published by Michell Kennerley, was born in Liverpool in 1874. After being first apprenticed to the dry-goods trade he entered upon the career of a journalist. In 1907 he became one of the owners and editors of the New Age, and he has since 1895 been an active Socialist propagandist in Liverpool, London and Leeds, where he was one of the founders of the Leeds Art Club, an association whose object is to affirm the

A Wise Critic

(One of the first who discovered the charm of THE ROSARY) wrote:

"ONCE in a long while there appears a story like 'The Rosary,' in which there is but one adventure, the love of the two real persons superbly capable of love, the sacrifices they make for it, the sorrows it brings them, the exceeding reward. This can only be done by a writer of feeling, of imagination, and of the sincerest art. When it is done, something has been done that justifies the publishing business, refreshes the heart of the reviewer, strengthens faith in the outcome of the great experiment of putting humanity on earth. 'The Rosary' is a rare book, a source of genuine delight."

These are the reasons why Mrs. Barclay's books continue to appeal to a constantly increasing public in the United States, in England, in Canada, and in Australia years after most "best sellers" are dead. They are wholesome love stories, but each has its own strong and original plot and characteristics.

Hundreds of thousands of readers await with the keenest interest the publication of a new novel by the author of "The Rosary."

The DOCTOR'S ADVICE

by Dr. Lewis Baker

The questions answered below are general in character, the symptoms or diseases are given and the answers will apply to any case of similar nature.

Those wishing further advice, free, may address Dr. Lewis Baker, College Bldg., College-Ellwood Sts., Dayton, O., enclosing self-addressed stamped envelope for reply. Full name and address must be given, but only initials or fictitious names will be used in my answers. The prescriptions can be filled at any well-stocked drug store. Any druggist can order at wholesaler.

"Old Soldier" writes: "I would like to know what to do for rheumatism, as I am so crippled that I cannot walk. Please answer at once."

Answer: Here is the best remedy for rheumatism that is known and if taken according to directions you will soon be out again and be strong and well. Get 2 drams of iodide of potassium; 4 drams sodium salicylate; one-half oz. wine of colchicum; 1 oz. comp. essence cardiol, 1 oz. comp. fluid balmwort and 5 ozs. of syrup sarsaparilla comp. Mix and take a teaspoonful at meal time and again before going to bed.

"Laura" says: "Some time ago I contracted a very severe cold and cough. I have tried many remedies, but they do not seem to help me at all. I wish you would advise me what to do."

Answer: What you need is a laxative cough syrup, one that will drive the cold from your system. The following prescription will cure your cold and cough: Get a 2½ oz. package of concentrated essence menthol-lasse and mix according to directions on the bottle. Take a teaspoonful every hour or two or until your cold is better. This will cure you in a very few days.

"Stenographer" writes: "I can scarcely do my work on account of the terrible distress in my stomach after eating. I have a heavy feeling in my stomach and gas forms. I am also constipated."

Answer: This condition if neglected will cause appendicitis. You should begin at once and take tablets triopeptina, which can be bought in any drug store at small cost. They are packed in sealed cartons with full directions accompanying the package. I am sure many cases of appendicitis could be prevented by the use of triopeptina.

"A. R." writes: "Please send me a prescription for a good tonic. I am weak and languid all the time, have no appetite and cannot sleep at night."

Answer: Obtain the following ingredients from your druggist and take for several weeks and you will be strong and healthy. Syrup of hypophosphites comp., 5 ozs.; tincture cardamone comp., 1 oz. (not cardamon), and take a teaspoonful before each meal. Shake well before taking.

"Mrs. G." writes: "Please prescribe a safe treatment for reducing flesh. I am getting too stout for comfort, but I have always been afraid to try anything."

Answer: A reliable and quick acting formula for reducing weight is: Aromatic elixir, 5 ozs.; glycol arboiene, 1 oz. Mix, shake well in a bottle and take a teaspoonful after each meal for three days, then take two teaspoonfuls. Continue a sufficient length of time to properly reduce your weight.

"Unhappy May" writes: "I suffer constantly with headaches, indigestion and kidney trouble. My skin is pimply and oily."

Answer: Three grain sulpherb tablets (not sulphur tablets) is the best known remedy for the blood. They are made from sulphur, cream of tartar and herb medicines which act directly on the blood, purifying it, thus causing the pimples to disappear and the skin to become fresh and healthy looking. These sulpherb tablets are packed in sealed tubes and can be bought at any drug store. They will also cure your kidney trouble and indigestion.

"Mrs. G." The best remedy for bedwetting in children is to give them 10 to 15 drops in water before meals of the following: Tincture cubeba, 1 dram; tincture rhus aromatic, 2 drams, and comp. fluid balmwort, 1 oz.

"Marsh" writes: "Can you recommend a good tooth powder which will whiten the teeth, remove tartar discolorations of tobacco, preserve the gums and prevent decay?"

Answer: Yes, I think the following home-made tooth powder is superior to any you can buy and it is endorsed by many dentists. Mix thoroughly the following and apply twice daily with brush. Five ounces precipitated chalk; one ounce powdered soap; three ounces powdered sugar or sugar of milk and two ounces of antiseptic thiax powder. This makes enough to last a family a long time, equal to three or four dollars worth for less than one dollar.

"Sorrowful May" says: "My scalp is covered with dandruff, my hair is oily and straggling. Please help me so that I may look like other girls."

Answer: You can very easily look like other girls if you will get at the drug store a 4 oz. jar of plain yellow minyol and use it regularly according to the directions given. It will cure your dandruff and make your hair soft and fluffy and make it grow. This treatment differs from all others and I have actually seen the most wonderful transformations when people have used this only two or three times.

"Ann" writes: "Could you prescribe something to increase my weight? I am tall and thin to such an embarrassing degree that I am frequently subjected to slighting remarks."

Answer: Hypo-Nuclano tablets have been prescribed with great success as indicated by gratifying letters from hundreds of girls who suffer as you do. These tablets can be purchased in sealed packages from any well-stocked drug store and full directions are given inside. The Emerson PIANO

"Sixty Years a Favorite"

The first three essentials of a good piano are conceded to be: A sweet, sustained tone, a responsive action and durability. Another desirable feature is an artistically designed and properly finished case.

Buyers of the Emerson secure ALL these features at a commensurate price. The Emerson has a fine resonant tone because the scale was drawn by a master and the other features that contribute to the tone are based on knowledge and long experience. It has a light touch because it has one of the finest actions in the world, adjusted to an even, frictionless nicety. The Emerson is durable, because only the finest materials are used in it and these are put together by men of life-long training. Nothing is slighted.

A thoroughly good piano cannot be produced for less than a certain fixed price, but on the other hand the buyer often pays extra for a name, for "frills" in construction or for extravagant selling methods. In the Emerson you get a standard piano of known and distinctive quality—at an honest price. Remember, "only the best of everything is used in the Emerson."

ART AND ARTISTS.

BY ANTONY ANDERSON.

Freshness of Poetic Perception.

Day follows day; years perish; still mine eyes,
Are opened on the self-same round of space;
Ten fadeless forests in their Titan grace,
And the large splendors of those opulent skies.
I watch, unwearied, the miraculous dyes
Of dawn or sunset; the soft boughs which lace
Round some coy dryad in a lonely place,
Thrilled with low whispering and strange sylvan sighs:
Weary? The poet's mind is fresh as dew,
And oft refilled as fountains of the light.
His clear child's soul finds something sweet and new
Even in a weed's heart, the carved leaves of corn,
The spear-like grass, the silvery rim of morn,
A cloud rose-edged, and, fleeting stars at night!

—[Paul Hamilton Hayne.

The Spring Exhibitions.

It never rains but it pours—in spring.

In winter there is dearth in the artistic field, but when May comes the galleries spruce up, put on new coats, varnish their floors, dust their skylights, and hang up their pictures.

Two big and important exhibitions are now on in Los Angeles, one under the auspices of the Friday Morning Club, the other fostered, encouraged and protected by Blanchard of Blanchard Hall. The California Art Club show their recent works in the first, the Southwestern Painters in the other. Of course many of the painters exhibit in both galleries.

With over seventy pictures and sculptures gathered together on Figueroa street and an equal number on South Broadway, Los Angeles may now lean back and take her ease as far as art is concerned. She knows, with an inward thrill of satisfaction, that the aesthetic side of the Ladies of the Federation of Clubs, and the Shriners, is well provided for. Our guests will leave us, ennobled and uplifted.

Certainly, they cannot return to the East and the Middle West and the South, and say that we have no art in Southern California. I think they will declare, and with considerable enthusiasm, that we have a good deal of art, and that in technical standard it compares very favorably with the output in any other section of the country.

I myself am of the opinion that half a dozen of our landscape painters may be allowed to take their seats not far below those reserved for the great masters, and that we have a few portrait painters whose appreciation of character is extraordinarily fine and searching. All these painters will exhibit in one or both of the galleries.

In sculpture, also, we have one or two who thoroughly understand the plastic possibilities of clay, and who have the invention and imagination to produce groups and single figures that are noble and significant as well as beautiful.

The exhibition in the Woman's Club House runs through the entire month of May, that in the Blanchard gallery remains for three weeks. They will be reviewed at length in next week's Art and Artists.

At the College of Fine Arts.

An exhibition of pictures by the alumni of the College of Fine Arts, Garvanza, opened on Saturday, April 27 and closed yesterday.

Though this was an exhibition of work by very young painters, the most of whom had just "left school," it is interesting to note that comparatively few portraits or figure pieces were shown—so strong is the call of Southern California's landscape glories to the impressionable soul of the young artist. These youths had studied the human figure day after day, in the course of the usual art school curriculum, but when they were let loose they seemed to turn instinctively to landscape for self-expression. The exceptions are so few as to be almost negligible; one young woman paints portraits and draped figures, another paints flowers. There were no nude studies in the exhibition, though a few might have been reasonably expected.

When the youth and comparative inexperience of the exhibitors is taken into consideration the standard of performance was surprisingly high. Many of the canvases were of such technical excellence that they might have been shown anywhere, and all were imbued with an admirable sincerity and earnestness. Nothing trivial or ill-considered was shown.

Alice C. Wells is the figure painter and portraitist. Especially good is her girl in a pale-blue Japanese kimono. Her portraits seem to have genuine character. Emma Bridges incorporates several figures of young girls in a vigorous landscape in oils; perched on a hill, their hair and draperies are blown by a buoyant wind.

Decorative effects that are simple and beautiful are achieved by Arley L. Tottenham. For the most part she paints in opaque water colors—huts at San Pedro—a pine tree with a background of rugged, purplish hills—a study of gray, snow-clad mountains, and so on. Simplicity and charm also characterize the water colors of Vivian F. Stringfield, who is discriminating in her use of grays. Another good water-color landscapist is Hilda Kaltmeyer, who shows an attractive sunlit vista through eucalyptus trees in formal rows.

The oil landscapes of Marguerite Vignes are direct and vigorous; in them she holds to the decorative idea with much persistence, even to the sacrifice of many subtle truths of atmosphere to a broad simplicity. Sobriety of color, pleasing and harmonious, if at times a trifle monotonous, is found in Myrtle E. Godfrey's water colors. Her handling is finely synthetic.

Mrs. S. M. B. Dando's studies of flowers have been spoken of before in these columns, for she has had one or two exhibitions in Los Angeles. She shows a carefully-studied picture of grapes, pink and purple, exceptionally good in drawing and true in color, some violets and some pink roses. Mrs. Dando paints still-life with much subtlety in her handling of whites and grays.

A Ditch in the Desert.

E. Roscoe Shrader began his artistic career in his father's business college in Los Angeles, and modestly ascribes to his early training in business methods his success as an artist. There may be some measure of truth in this theory, though we are compelled to take into account young Shrader's talent for art, which is far above the ordinary.

A few years ago he left Los Angeles to study with Howard Pyle in the famous little school of painting and illustrating in Wilmington, Dela. He has remained there ever since, opening a studio last year in conjunction with several other talented young illustrators. Shrader has made magazine and book illustration his field, and in a very short time has won an enviable success in it, contributing with regularity to our best magazines illustrations that are fine in drawing and exceptionally good in color. Last month he had a full-page colored illustration in the Century, this month Scribner's publishes his first literary effort, with eight illustrations from his brush, two of them being in color. One of these is the frontispiece of the magazine.

"A Ditch in the Desert" is the title of the article, whose subject shows that Shrader has not broken off all "home ties," for it deals with our viaduct almost as graphically with the pen as the brush. Assuredly, the young Californian's literary talent is hardly less than his artistic—and neither is entirely the result of "business methods."

Shrader will visit his family, now living at Hollywood, next June, and this occasion will also be in his wedding journey, for he is engaged to marry a charming musician of Brooklyn.

ART NOTES.

Daniell, at No. 218 South Broadway, is now handling all of John Donovan's marines. Fourteen are now to be seen in the gallery. Twelve landscapes by Benjamin Chambers Brown are also on exhibition there, two strong new pictures by William Wendt, some fine new canvases by Elmer Wachtel and water colors by Marion Kavanaugh Wachtel, as well as good landscape bits from the brush of Elizabeth Borglum.

Nona White, painter and art reviewer, who has been living in Peoria, Ill., for the past few years, has returned to Los Angeles. It is her intention to build a pretty bungalow here very soon, and to remain with us "for good." Miss White has come to the conclusion that Southern California is the only place for an artist.

An important new portrait by Joseph Greenbaum is now under way in the Blanchard building studio on Hill street. The subject is Mrs. John Newton Russell. The lady is standing, and the picture is life-size. Though only "laid in," the unfinished canvas already gives evidence that it will be one of this painter's best efforts.

Those two capable painters of landscapes, the Wachtels, have just left in their natty little automobile, to be gone for three or four weeks of sketching among the picturesque places around San Bernardino. Each is represented by one good picture in the present exhibition in the Blanchard gallery.

Mrs. H. T. Jenkins, in charge of the art department at Pomona College, Claremont, has been granted a year's leave of absence. She will go to Honolulu as soon as college closes, then to Japan, where she will remain until February. In February she will join the "Victoria Louise" party and go to Naples. After that she will "paddle her own canoe."

The regular meeting of the California Art Club took place in the rooms of the Sketch Club, No. 109 Temple Block, last night.

About a dozen landscapes by Hanson Puthuff will be shown at the Kanst gallery, No. 642 South Spring street, next week, beginning Monday. Pictures by Jean Mannheim are also on view.

LITERARY NEWS.

The issue of Harper's Weekly for April 27 is in two parts, one devoted to Philadelphia's industries, the other an eight-page supplement relating to the loss of the Titanic, and containing a number of excellent and original photographs taken by those aboard the Carpathia as the survivors were picked up in the lifeboats, together with an authentic account of the shipwreck as told by one of the survivors. Among the special articles in this number are "First Aid for the Exporter," by John S. Capes; "The Birthplace of American Insurance," "Philadelphia as a Publishing Center," "The Leather Metropolis," "One Hundred Millions in Iron and Steel."

Rupert Hughes, the author of "The Old Nest," is getting many letters from people who appreciate the homely appeal of the book—a story of an old father and mother whose children go out into the world and forget the old home. A doctor writes to Mr. Hughes: "I have just bought and given away twelve copies of your book." A mother thinks the story "has given more real joy than perhaps any other ever written"—a large statement, but to some others it will mean a true one. Mr. Hughes is certainly a versatile person—his farce, "Excuse Me," is a far cry from "The Old Nest."

Emerson Hough, it is said, usually gets his first vision of the character he is to portray while sitting around the camp-fires on his annual hunting trips. He does all of his writing in his office in Chicago, and once he starts to put pen to paper, or, to be more exact, to pound his typewriter, he wastes but little time.

The success of Payne Erskine's romance of the Blue Ridge, "The Mountain Girl," now in its ninth edition, has resulted in a demand for this author's previous novel, "When the Gates Lift Up Their Heads," originally published in 1901, so that a seventh printing is just announced. The latter story deals with life in the South in the seventies. The English edition of "The Mountain Girl" will be published by Sampson Low, Marston & Co. This book has been on the press continuously since its publication in March.

John Muir, whose new book, "The Yosemite," has just appeared, is in New York for a short time, just back from a study trip through the wilds of South America and South Africa.

It is reported that Hall Caine has finished a new novel on which he has been engaged for the last two or three years, and that it is to appear serially in an English magazine. The story has the title, "The Woman Thou Gavest Me," and the theme is marriage and divorce.

In the course of his book of reminiscences, "At the Court of His Catholic Majesty," to be issued immediately by Messrs. A. C. McClurg & Co., William Miller Collier, late Minister to Spain, describes a conversation with King Carlos of Portugal during a state visit to the Spanish court. As the King had to initiate all subjects of conversation, and as he had met most of the members of the diplomatic corps for the first time, he found conversational progress rather hard sledding. When Mrs. Collier was introduced as the wife of the American Minister, the King "looked up at the ceiling for an instant as if searching for a subject, and then began with 'You have a great deal of snow in your country, do you not?' This broke the ice and a delightful conversation followed. . . . He had no hesitation about a subject when it came to me. It was Roosevelt. Always and everywhere, everybody seemed eager to learn about him and what he was doing at the time. Much interest was also expressed by the King in the American navy."

FRESH LITERATURE—BOOK REVIEWS.

By Willard Huntington Wright.

mutual dependence of art and ideas. He is now managing editor of T. P.'s magazine, and has about ten books to his credit, among them works on Bernard Shaw and William Morris. The following excerpts from the contents of "Romance and Reality" give some idea of the flavor of the man's work: Going to Nowhere, Peterpantehism, Between Waking and Awake, Hunger-tameness, Maeterlinck, Chesterton, Wells, Pavlova and the Dancing Spirit, A Note on Dandies.

Miss Jane Addams has added to her many other activities that associate editor of the Survey. The work of this periodical is much in line with that which has held Miss Addams's interest for years.

James Oliver Curwood, author of the just-published novel, "Flower of the North," tells the following story in support of his claim that the unsophisticated Indian is the best friend on earth: When traveling from the Barren Lands Mr. Curwood and an Indian hunter, Mukoki, whose life he had once saved, came across the skeleton of a fine moose. The author expressed his regret that they were too heavily laden to carry the magnificent antlers back with them. Months later a package arrived for Mr. Curwood in the Detroit customhouse. In it were the horns cut from the moose. Mukoki had traveled back 200 miles into the wilderness with dogs and sledges to do this favor for a friend. This wild country is the scene of Mr. Curwood's novel, "The Flower of the North."

Edith Macvane, the author of "Her Word of Honor," one of the new spring novels, is a member of a talented family. Her father, Silas M. Macvane, has been professor of ancient and modern history at Harvard since 1887 and is author of several important books. Miss Macvane's oldest sister, Emily, is the wife of Baron Dodeman de Placy, a captain of French cavalry. The younger sister, Dorothy, has already won fame as an opera singer. The author of "Her Word of Honor" is thoroughly at home in Paris and Rome society, where she and her sisters are great favorites. She is an expert yachtswoman, rides well to hounds, talks French and Italian fluently and knows the literature of those two countries as well. A great part of the manuscript of "Her Word of Honor" was composed while the author was ill abroad with typhoid fever. In spite of the doctor's prohibition, Miss Macvane dictated in French to the nuns who attended her and later translated into English. Miss Macvane is a native of Boston and was educated at Radcliffe College, Cambridge. Her previous novels include "Adventures of Joujou," "Duchess of Dreams," "The Thoroughbred," "The Black Flier" and "Tarantella."

Anne Douglas Sedgwick's new novel "Tante," now in its fourth large edition, is the author's first striking success with a book, although all of her previous eight novels have found a number of appreciative readers. But "Tante" seems to have "caught on" with that wider circle, the general public. Miss Sedgwick (who is now Mrs. Basil de Selincourt) is an American, who has for several years made her home in England, and it is there that the identification of "The World's Greatest Pianist," the "Tante" of the novel, is exciting much interest.

S. Beach Chester, the author of "Anomalies of the English Law," published by Little, Brown Co., is a London barrister and a Companion of the Military Order of the Loyal Legion of the United States. He deals in his new book in a clear and piquant manner with many questions of almost startling character. He not only exposes injustice and laxity, but mystery, ignorance and obscurity with the sure hand of one who knows.

E. Phillips Oppenheim has just returned to his home in England from a pleasure trip to the Mediterranean and Egypt brought nothing with me by my memories of an old order of things and a great hunger for the bread of freedom. How I was fed and taught and helped till the scars of my early martyrdom were effaced, how the democratic institutions of America carried me in a decade through as many centuries of progress—that is the story of my life. To love your country understandingly you should know what I have been and what I have become. In the book of my life is written the measure of your country's growth and an answer to your doubts."

REALISM TO THE FORE?

Whatever one may think of the present spring crop of novels, it must be conceded that the fiction writers are not turning altogether from realism to pink romances as last year a number of critics predicted. Some have, in fact, turned the other way. Meredith Nicholson, long known as a romancer, is author of "A Hoosier Chronicle," which is essentially realistic. Bobbs-Merrill have never advertised any purple romance so widely as they are advertising "John Rawn." The two most important novels of the Stokes' spring list, "To M. L. G.," and "Stover at Yale," both realistic, the first dealing with stage life in both its sordidness and splendor, and "Stover" presenting college life as it really is. A hundred other instances might be cited; such as Anne Douglas Sedgwick's "Tante"—a realistic study of temperament and jealousy, and Max Beerbohm's "Zuleika Dobson." Perhaps the theory of the complete victory of realism is nullified, however, when one learns that "The 469 Ultra-Fashionables of America," by C. W. DeLyon Nichols, social dictator, is highly popular, and that Mitchell Kennerley has taken over the rights of that charming, picturesque romance, "My Attainment of the North Pole," by Dr. Cook.

MARY ANTIN.

The autobiography of Mary Antin, a young Russian immigrant, was recently published by Houghton, Mifflin Co., under the title of "The Promised Land." Chapters from this book, which have appeared serially in the Atlantic Monthly, have aroused unusual interest and the complete story will be without question one of the important books of the year. The author says of her narrative: "I am one whose life has spanned the eddies of historic transitions. I can testify to things beyond memory. Born in a Jewish 'pale,' in the mediaeval atmosphere of a dark corner of Russia, I early fled from the scourge of despotism and took shelter under the American flag. I

The Old, Old Songs.

Oh, the old, old songs, and the dear dead songs,
And the songs that we hear no more,
Like a phantom race they haunt the place
And the scenes that were loved of yore,
And their voice still wails down forgotten trails
To the camps of the long ago,
Where the miners met when the eve had set
Its dusk on the vales below.

Sweet Annie Laurie, one health to her,
Maid of our visions kind,
For ever her face assumes the grace
Of "The Girl I Left Behind."
Another, another, till dawn paints red
The east 'neath its star-lit dome;
Then a final glass, and the dream shall pass
To the shadows in "Home, Sweet Home."

Oh, the old, old songs; I can hear them yet,
When the weary world is asleep
'Neath its comfort gray, with the stars away
Their ward o'er its dream to keep;
And I see the faces—now worn and gray,
Or touched by the Spectre King—
And the miners sit where the shadows flit,
And the old, old songs they sing.

BYRON L. STANLEY
fully appreciates that in this day of sensational advertisements there are more false claims and misrepresentations chaperoned through the columns of the daily press than the most hypocritical tongue could utter in a lifetime, until one cannot be blamed for doubting almost everything they read. Therefore he says to you—come to him this very day and let him give you a complete reading, telling you every hope, fear or ambition, better than you could explain yourself. He will tell you the bad as well as the good; keeping nothing hidden from you. He will tell you everything upon matters of love, marriage, divorce, business, health; in fact, he will read your life like an open book.
Before you go into anything of importance—or undertake anything serious—in business or love, or marriage, or before you make any change—you should consult the master mind of psychics.
ALWAYS CONSULT THE BEST. IT IS THE CHEAPEST IN THE END. IT IS BETTER TO CONSULT NO PSYCHIC THAN ONE WHO IS NOT ABLE TO HELP YOU.
DON'T FORGET
The name STANLEY, a double guarantee. See the real life reader who really tells what you desire to know or no charge. A foolish weakling only will pay for a reading that gives no benefit. Stop and think.
Don't struggle with a burden you can divide. A troubled mind begets a morbid conscience. Sympathy, consolation and timely advice heal the worst of wounds. Be advised and relieved of anxiety.
Realizing that this city has been overrun with pretenders, and that many of its best citizens are anxious to visit a genuine psychic, Mr. Stanley has decided to place his consultation fee within the reach of all.
Finding many deserving people who were not able to pay a large fee he has decided for a short time to place his readings within the reach of all at live and let-live prices. So if you wish to take advantage of this offer, call or write.
LEGITIMATE, SCIENTIFIC, ACCURATE DIAGNOSIS OF THE OCCULT INTELLIGENCE GIVING TRUTHFUL PALMISTRY, FROM THE HAND OF EACH CALLER.
If you contemplate consulting a psychic several things should be taken into consideration—ABILITY, the HONESTY of methods, the FAIRNESS of dealings, the HIGHER degree of work, the ACCURACY of each prediction, the COMMON SENSE used with it, the INTEREST taken in each case, the RESPECT shown to each caller, the fact of SECRECY in consultation, the FEE charged for services. Truth.
BEWARE of pretenders and partially-developed mediums. They copy his advertisements and in many smaller cities use his name. Please remember BYRON L. STANLEY can be seen only at his Los Angeles office.
To whom it may concern: We take great pleasure in recommending our brother, PROF. STANLEY, as a life reader of good standing, having to our knowledge been fully developed in all the various phases of mental phychism. We cordially recommend him to any individual or society that may need his advices.
DR. JOHN WESTERFIELD,
President Indiana State Association of Spiritualists.

PERSONAL—
MRS. MASSON,
the noted palmist of London, Eng., may be consulted at 322 S. SPRING ST. (over Owl Drug Store,)
by those desiring CAREFUL, CONSCIENTIOUS AND SCIENTIFIC HAND READINGS FROM ONE OF THE FOREMOST PALMISTS OF THE DAY.
The earnest student and thinker will soon learn in his investigation along psychological lines, that which pertains to occult phenomena proper can readily be distinguished from crude and oft-exposed SLEIGHT-OF-HAND TRICKS, the most common of which is the telling of the subject's name, age, etc., AFTER HE HIMSELF HAS WRITTEN THAT information.
PALMISTRY, HONESTLY PRACTICED, WILL NOT tell you your name, but it WILL give you information of considerably greater value in every-day life.
Your vocation, your present line of work, matters of health and domestic life, financial conditions, and ways and means of climbing out of a rut of ill luck into wide paths of success and prosperity, can all be told you through scientific palmistry WITHOUT A SINGLE QUESTION, WRITTEN OR VERBAL, MRS. MASSON DOES NOT APPEAL TO IGNORANT SUPERSTITION, BUT TO THE FINEST INTELLIGENCE.

PERSONAL—
PROF. C. IRVIN ALTHOUSE,
NOTED ASTROLOGER AND PALMIST OF NATIONAL FAME AND REPUTATION.
305½ S. SPRING, NEAR THIRD ST.
A RESIDENT OF LOS ANGELES 28 YEARS.
PROF. ALTHOUSE is an experienced practitioner in the science of modern ASTROLOGY, by which he has made many REMARKABLE PREDICTIONS. The horoscope shows the powerful influence of the planets in all affairs of life. It shows diseases, deaths, love and marriage, financial affairs, talents, environments, about children, relatives, when and where to travel, what to seek or to avoid, when in danger of losses, troubles, etc., etc., also your good periods coming—giving dates of these events for the future.
PROF. ALTHOUSE read E. H. Sothern, Nat Goodwin, Mary Mannering, Gadski, Admiral Schley, David Starr Jordan, ex-Gov. Pardee, ex-Senator Clark, Gen. Chaffee, Edison, Sousa, Modjeska, Julia Marlowe, Anna Held, Jefferson, Capt. Hobson, Lillian Russell, Calve, Admiral Evans, H. E. Huntington, De Wolf Hopper, Maxine Elliott, Ethel Barrymore, etc.
PROF. ALTHOUSE'S SKILLED WORK with his trained judment must in no wise be classed with that of other readers. Therefore do not waste your money on the idiotic advice and warning of HUMBUG astrologers, palmists, psychics—those doing dishonest work.
PROF. ALTHOUSE is an expert PALMIST, and WITH EACH PALM READING gives also an ASTROLOGICAL READING.
DR. J. A. LARSEN writes: "I want to say that your reading was the most satisfactory thing I have ever had in my life; I know a great deal about these sciences, and I consider your work as the most THOROUGH and reliable of any reader in the United States."
FREDERICK WARDE says: "Your reading was most SATISFACTORY. Your knowledge and skill is REMARKABLE."
MME. SCHUMANN-HEINK says: "I was greatly surprised to find how many of your warnings were well founded. YOUR READING WAS MOST MARVELOUS."
MME. BALDWIN writes: "The Horoscope you wrote for me is absolutely CORRECT. My friend, MME. NORDICA, the singer, first showed me her Horoscope, and recommended your work to me. Inclosed find check for four more Horoscopes—all friends of mine."
The interpretation of a Horoscope is a fine art; the percentage of "GENUINE" astrologers is exceedingly small. To know a little of astrology out of books, and to be a skillfully trained, EXPERIENCED ASTROLOGER, are two entirely different things. Therefore, in this work, it depends largely WHO it is that reads you as to the RESULTS obtained.
PROF. ALTHOUSE'S wonderful proficiency in the casting of HOROSCOPES and hand reading has brought him a LARGE AND SUCCESSFUL PRACTICE. The most private confidences are reposed in him, and his advice is sought in the most difficult and critical circumstances. Personal attention. Strict privacy. HIGHEST GRADE OF WORK that skill and many years of experience can produce. Therefore HIGH-CLASS PATRONAGE SOLICITED.
Daily and evening; Sunday, 10 to 2.

GOOD BYE BICYCLE.
LET A 4-H. P. THOR MOTORCYCLE DO THE WORK.
GET OUR BIG SPECIAL OFFER THIS WEEK.
The fact that 95 per cent. of all Thor motorcycles sold are being used for every-day service, proves positively their supremacy as the most reliable motorcycle you can buy.
The great demand for a better-than-the-ordinary motorcycle to be used for daily, hard service, in the hands of R.F.D. carriers, inspectors, collectors, salesmen, buyers, delivery-man and all other professions necessitating the covering of a great deal of ground at a low cost, made it necessary for the Thor factory to design this model as one being best adapted for these purposes.
That the 4 H. P. model has made good, we have but to point to the fact that it has won every important endurance contest ever held.
Every business man should have a THOR Motorcycle, as it is the cheapest, most consistent and economical investment that he can make. It is ready at a moment's notice—rain or shine—to make quick deliveries to any part of the city.
With a tandem attachment an extra person can be carried for long trips, which makes it ideal evenings or Sundays, when you are on pleasure bent. Owing to the practicability of Thor Motorcycles they are classed as a business necessity.
THE MOTORCYCLE SUPREME.

Sole and exclusive agents for the Celebrated C. G. Conn band and orchestra instruments.

Mario Lozito, director of the Italian Royal Guard Band, a famous eastern organization, now touring, adds his testimony to the long list:

Dear Mr. Conn:—I wish to inform you that I have been equipping my band with your instruments during this last season and I have found remarkable results from their use. The members of my organization who have used them have improved in their work materially and the ensemble of the band has recently given me marked satisfaction, and I attribute it almost entirely to the use of your remarkable instruments. I have succeeded in equipping most all the members of the band, and ere another season rolls by I hope to have an entire set of your wonderful instruments. I can now readily understand why such eminent bandmasters as Sousa, Pryor, Creatore, Sorrentino and others, praise your instruments. I think that any bandmaster with an interest in his organization would endeavor his utmost to have his organization supplied with the very best instruments, for it is entirely to his own credit and advantage. Wishing you much success in your new factories, believe me, Sincerely yours, MARIO LOZITO.

CLOSES LONG LEASE.

The consummation of a fifty-year lease on 60x155 feet on the east side of Spring street, between Sixth and Seventh, between E. Rabin, as lessor, and the Class A, B, C Construction Company, as lessee, is reported by E. Rabin & Co. Rabin states that he bought the site in question from James H. Adams for $300,000, and that he is to receive $18,000 a year or an aggregate of $900,000 in ground rental from the Class A, B, C Construction Company for the property. It is understood that the lessees in question will improve the holding with a modern office building, the construction of which will be begun next fall.

E. Rabin & Co. report also the sale for P. Max Kuehnoich to the Class A, B, C Construction Company of 47x150 feet, improved with a three-story brick building, at No. 1518 San Fernando street, for $21,000. Twenty acres at Jumbo Hill, Pasadena, were sold for the same seller to the same buyer for a consideration of $50,000.

FACT AND COMMENT.

Some oasis, eh, this Los Angeles town, Mr. Shriner? Worth the trip across the hot sands, isn't it? What do you think of our big buildings, our beautiful mansions, our cosy, rose-embowered bungalows, our get-up-and hustle, our general air of prosperity? You, that have never been here before, aren't you a bit amazed to find such a city as this tucked away in the southwest corner of the United States? And you, that haven't been here for three or four years, did you ever in your life see anything so marvelous as the way Los Angeles is forging ahead? Can you wonder that we are taking on metropolitan airs?

Mr. Noble, you are earnestly requested to have a look at the first page of Part VI in today's big Times. On that page there is told without words and without comment the story of the Los Angeles that is and of the Los Angeles that is to be. Every one of the buildings pictured is a 1912 project in the sense that it is to be or has been completed or started during the present year. Pictures of at least a half-dozen 1912 structures of equal importance were not available for publication at the time the page was made up. The display is impressive enough, however, without them.

These, Mr. Shriner, are not hot-air projects trotted out to impress you. Schemes that flatten out are launched here as elsewhere, but enterprises of this stamp have been eliminated from the great group of buildings presented. Every one of the twenty or more structures pictured represents a real addition to the downtown district of Los Angeles.

That Sky Line.

No doubt, you, Mr. Shriner, have been impressed with the great number of truly metropolitan buildings in the city, and the Fact and Comment man would be almost willing to gamble that you have wondered at the vast area occupied by our business section, and have been disposed to criticise the downtown sky line as being too ragged. You must not overlook the fact that the metropolitan development has come about in the past seven or eight years. Stay here awhile and you'll see that sky line shape itself to uniformity so rapidly that you will have reason to wonder at your temerity in criticising it.

You must know that the business section is spread over so much territory because Los Angeles capital has fully grasped the idea of the city's big destiny, and is actually preparing for the time when this shall be one of the largest and mightiest cities on the globe. If this sounds like big talk just take another look at Part VI and let its meaning sink in a bit. It surely convinces you that this city is advancing above all other cities, and that the day cannot be far away when all of present downtown Los Angeles will be solidly and beautifully built up with buildings of the uniform height of 150 feet that is allowed by law here.

If the lesson this group forcibly presents does not entirely convince, here are some figures of comparison between this city and others that will.

Mighty Strides Ahead.

To date for the year, Mr. Shriner, if you will pardon the intrusion of facts and statistics into the general round of good fun you are having, there have been issued in this city of ours approximately 5000 permits for new buildings of all kinds. This is the record for four months and represents improvements whose aggregate cost exceeds $9,000,000. Outside of New York, Chicago and Philadelphia, all three cities of the million class, no other city on the globe can boast such a record of construction activity in the same period.

Last year Los Angeles erected 12,498 new buildings, whose total cost was $23,002,885. In the number of permits issued New York City only beat us out by about 800 permits. We led Chicago by over 1000 permits. Outside of New York, Philadelphia alone outdistanced us in the actual number of new buildings projected.

Compared with our 12,498 permits, San Francisco, the next liveliest city on the Pacific Coast, boasted 6044 permits; Detroit, 6560; Portland, 7687; St. Louis, 8152; Washington, 5741; Cleveland, 7890; Minneapolis, 6121; Cincinnati, 11,129; Boston, 4277; Kansas City, 4538; Milwaukee, 5189; Pittsburgh, 4035; Newark, 2966; Buffalo, 3393; Rochester, 3680, and Baltimore, 3489. These are the exact figures for the cities in question, many of which, you will note, are as yet ahead of Los Angeles in point of population. Doesn't this settle once and for all any idea you ever had that Los Angeles was principally "climate?" Such an opinion, marvelous to relate, is still fostered in certain quarters of the land.

Steadily Advancing.

The marvelous building development of Los Angeles, Mr. Shriner, is not an advance by fits and starts. The little boom of 1906 in this city proved not to have been a boom at all. Not a man who in a state of fright let loose of Los Angeles property at a sacrifice, following the little panic which here, as in the East, was felt to a certain degree, will ever cease to regret his action. The prices that have been secured for Los Angeles property in the last two or three years make the boom figures look sick by comparison.

Previous to the so-called "boom year," 1906, the building development had been steadily growing, and the great construction figures of 1906 were only logically to have been expected. It was the little flurry of 1907 which came as a surprise. Both in 1910 and 1911 the boom figures were completely eclipsed and this year they are going to be buried out of sight. Here is the way it has been going since 1907: In 1908 there were issued 7371 permits for new buildings, these representing a valuation of $9,931,377. In 1909 the figures were 8571 permits and $12,260,703 valuation. In 1910 the building activities were represented by 10,738 permits and $21,-684,100 valuation. Last year the totals climbed to 12,498 permits and $23,004,185 valuation. This year the permits will most certainly number in excess of 13,000, and the valuation will unquestionably be close to $30,-000,000.

For the last three years Los Angeles has led the whole United States in building activity, for it is not fair to compare our development with that in New York, Chicago and Philadelphia, where, in proportion to the population, no such activity prevails as has been in evidence here. The truth of the matter is that Los Angeles has built more buildings and has spent more money in building in the three years in question than has any other city in the United States of under a million in population. Are you convinced, Mr. Shriner, that this is the safest city in the United States in which to make an investment in realty? That has been the object of the writer in presenting all these eloquent statistics.

You have had presented in facts and figures the Los Angeles of the past and of the present, the actual Los Angeles that you may see before you. This newspaper might be filled with reasons for expecting still greater advance and development in the future. You know all about our aqueduct, our harbor expectations, the inevitable benefit that we will derive from the Panama Canal and the rate at which we are increasing in population. Think it over, Mr. Shriner! Can you beat this combination of past realization, present facts and future certainties anywhere on the globe?

PLAN NOVEL BUILDING.

Fireproof Store and Warehouse Structure to Be Erected by Local Syndicate at Ninth and Wall.

A four-story reinforced concrete store and warehouse building of the most modern type will be started at the southeast corner of Ninth and Wall streets within the next few weeks as the result of a fifty-year lease concluded yesterday between Edwin W. Pascoe, as lessor, and a syndicate of local capitalists headed and represented by William C. Keim of William C. Keim & Co. The total amount involved in the lease, together with the value of the site and the investment in the building, is given by Mr. Keim at $1,000,000.

Plans for the structure proposed are now being prepared by the engineering firm of T. Beverley Keim, Jr., & Co. The building will cost about $150,000 and will represent a new departure in rental projects. It is the purpose of the owners to supply a demand for space in an absolutely fireproof building upon the part of small firms seeking an opening here and unable to afford buildings of their own.

In the new building there will be offered the advantages of a close-in location and reasonable rent, combined with the best of facilities for the handling, selling, shipping and storing of goods. Every tenant will have an office on the ground floor and a large stock-room on one of the upper floors. Two spiral chutes and four freight elevators will serve the different floors. All will be operated from one central control office.

BIG BUILDING ASSURED.

Medical Association Block at Sixth and Olive Practically a Certainty as Result of Site Purchase.

The most sensational realty transaction of the past week was the sale by J. H. Spires to the Los Angeles County Medical Association Building Company of the southeast corner of Sixth and Olive streets for a consideration of $528,000. The deal, which was reported exclusively in The Times of May 3, makes practically certain the project of the association to erect a magnificent $1,500,000 office block for the exclusive use of members of the medical profession in this city.

In speaking of the project yesterday, one of the leading physicians of Los Angeles, and a man prominently identified with the great scheme, stated that the enterprise was already practically assured. The campaign for the financing of the building, he declared, was meeting with complete success.

The site acquired by the association fronts 132 feet on Sixth street by 150 on Olive. The building projected will adjoin on the west the fifteen-story structure to be erected by the Building Owners' Company. The two buildings, with the handsome block of the Consolidated Realty Company, the eleven-story Hollingsworth building and the Jevne building, will give the south side of Sixth street from Broadway to Olive an unbroken skyline of metropolitan improvements.

Another noteworthy deal of the week was the conclusion of a fifty-year lease between George H. Pinney as lessor and the Spring Street Building Company as lessee covering the twenty-four feet on Spring street immediately adjacent to the Alexandria Hotel Annex, as the result of which a modern office block will be erected. The deal, which was made through the agency of Robert Marsh & Co., involves a total rental consideration of $300,000.

WILL THEY SUBDIVIDE?

Realty Men Interested in Probable Plans of Buyers of Wright Ranch on Harbor Boulevard.

The day of the complete urban development of all the lands along the Harbor boulevard between the city limits at Manchester avenue and salt water was advanced during the past week when the Wright ranch of 341 acres, lying between Main street and Central avenue and about a mile south of Los Angeles, passed into the hands of a syndicate represented by James H. Adams & Co. Although no statement has been given out by the buyers it is pretty well understood in realty circles that the great holding is to be cut up into a townsite. Speculation is rife in connection with the plans of the new owners and other acreage holders south of the city are preparing to follow the lead of the new subdividers.

The sale of the ranch, which was reported in The Times of May 1, involved a reported consideration of $924,000. The deal was negotiated by Chas. G. Andrews, who personally represented the Wright-Callender-Andrews Company. This firm and C. F. W. Palmer had jointly held an option on the property for several months. The ranch fronts a full mile on the Harbor Boulevard, and two miles on Central avenue. South Park avenue extends directly through the property, which is traversed in an easterly and westerly direction by the Redondo cut-off of the Pacific Electric Railway. The ranch is probably the largest in the immediate vicinity of Los Angeles that has not been subdivided.

ORANGE APARTMENTS SOLD.

The Orange apartments, No. 1532 Orange street, a three-story brick apartment building under a ten-year lease, was sold during the week to Charles F. Woehr for a reported consideration of $65,000 cash. Woehr bought the property for an investment. The sale was made through the agency of the Dunlay Realty Company and T. M. Todd & Co. The same agency sold to A. W. Ross of Los Angeles a ten-acre, full-bearing navel orange grove situated on Lugonia avenue, Redlands, for $20,000. Ross will improve the ranch with a modern bungalow.

Here is what you have been looking for! A handsome eight-room bungalow, located on high ground near Westlake Park, about twelve minutes' ride from the center of the city. It was built by day labor under most careful supervision, and has two bedrooms on the second floor, tiled bath, etc.; a beautiful, big, wide, cement porch on two sides and the interior is finished to the dot. You cannot buy a lot in this location and duplicate the house for less than $6500. Insist on seeing this property.

See us about "Ridgewood Park," beautiful Wilshire section; lots 60x170. $2400 and up.

A GREAT BUNGALOW BARGAIN.

We are proud to show this bungalow! Even such oldtimers as our salesmen grow enthusiastic when they see it. It's the biggest value for the lowest price in all Wilshire.

The location is Gramercy Place, east-facing lot, 50x199 feet, among fine homes, half a block from car line, and the house is new. Seven splendid rooms; all hardwood floors; extraordinary finish and tasteful decorations; breakfast-room; three bedrooms, one all sunshine, too; furnace, water heater and laundry trays; a great big veranda; garage with lavatory and extra toilet (mark this!) and wide cement drive.

The owners are anxious to sell and have a good reason. They have a chance to get an acreage bargain if they can sell this home at once. You are the gainer thereby to the extent of $600! The price of $5900 is just that much below cash value. That's all!

NEAR FIGUEROA AND EIGHTH.

Think of being able to purchase a home and an investment within one block of Figueroa and Eighth streets for $7500. Seems almost impossible, but we have it and can deliver it! Lot is 40x137 feet, with a fine seven-room, two-story home on it. This property is right now ripe for apartments, which will show a splendid income; it is within easy walking distance and only three or four blocks from what will be the center of the city in a few years. Snap it up quick! $2500 will handle it, the balance to suit.

WESTMORELAND SACRIFICE.

Fourteen-room home, east front, on a lot 70x150, easily worth $8000, and the improvements, built three years ago, cost not less than $9000, making a value of $17,000, which we are offering at $11,000, and the property will stand a loan of $5000. Don't forget the location, east front near Magnolia and 10th streets, in the Westmoreland tract; three baths, eight bedchambers—five on the second floor and three and a ballroom on the third. Cellar, large garage, furnace—in fact, everything is complete and at a real sacrifice! Let us show it to you and explain the necessity for a quick sale.

HOME NEAR THE HARVARD SCHOOL.

Nine rooms, three tiled baths, two dressing-rooms, complete servants' quarters on the first floor, large cellar, furnace, Ruud heater and garage. The interior finish on the first floor is in quartered oak and mahogany, with seven-coat ivory enamel on the second floor. CORNER HOME NEAR WILSHIRE BOULEVARD.
$20,000.

Nearly new, and the owner paid $25,000 for this home a year ago. But she is going abroad at once, and this is your opportunity to get a property which will suit you and at the same time save the $5000 which it would cost you in addition to the above price to duplicate the place. And it is impossible to get another corner in this desirable neighborhood, right at Seventh and New Hampshire. The entire lower floor is finished in oak and mahogany, with a large billiard-room on this floor. Upstairs are five large, beautiful bed chambers and three baths. A cellar, furnace, automatic heater, and two-story garage with servants' quarters, complete the home. $5000 cash, balance long time at 6 per cent.

FOR SALE—

SUPERB HOLLYWOOD RESIDENCE.

Seldom will you find an opportunity to buy a piece of property so complete in every way—both house and grounds, as is this home. As it was built by the owner for his home, it is as well built from founda- tion to roof as it is possible to build a house, and many unusual and convenient features have been added that are never found in the "built for sale" houses.

The builder of this home is a lover of flowers and plants, and as a consequence this yard is a bower of flowers and blos- soms. The lot is 150x200 feet, and every inch of ground not covered by the house is cultivated. Thousands of roses are bloom- ing in the rose gardens, over the artistic fences and over the pergola and summer house; there is almost every kind of a flower—lilac, jasmine, hybiscus, sweet syrin- ga, wistaria, violets, Scotch broom and so on. The broad front lawns and the rear yard contain many rare and ornamental palms, fra, bamboo and many other trees. Among the different fruits on the place are fig, lemon, orange, apricot, guava, tangerine, apple, plum, peach nectarine, and an extra three-foot brick and cement retaining wall runs across the front of the yard, and a cement driveway runs to garage. This is a yard to be enjoyed from one year's end to the other, and will be an endless delight to the fortunate purchaser of this place.

The house is thoroughly well constructed, of the best material in every instance. The foundation is unusually good, and the woods and finish inside are superb. All hardwood finish outside of bedrooms—the dining- room in oak, hall in curly birch, den and living-room in mahogany; these rooms are paneled high in the various woods, which have been ruffled to a piano fin- ish. Massive buffet in dining-room is 11 feet wide; the front window eight feet, and end of room is a circle bay. In the living- room is a broad Grubby tile mantel, built-in leaded-glass bookcases, a ten-foot window in front, and a circle bay all one end. All floors throughout are hardwood, and every room in the house contains an unusual number of windows. There are five bedrooms, two downstairs and three up; all de white enamel. The charming features of these rooms are their many windows; their extraordinary large closets, the many electric lights, with switches for each light, and the very dainty wall paper in each room. Doors are mahogany, with cut-glass knobs, full-length mirrors in some of them; in one bedroom there is a mantel and bookcases. Two bathrooms in white enamel one with tile floor, full length and other mirrors. Buffet kitchen with closets reaching the ceiling; finished in cedar; large sink board, hood for stove, linoleum on floor. Large basement, furnace, etc. Nothing lacking to make a complete home. Price includes all window draperies, hangings and portieres. House open every afternoon and Sunday for inspection, between 2 and 4 o'clock. Address 145 MORGAN PLACE. Take Hol- lywood car, get off at Morgan Place. This is the first house on west side of street. Telephone Home A3529.

Prices $2000 and up. Cash or convenient terms.

We shall consider it a privilege to show you Elliott Place and its Improvements.

FOURTH—Water stock is free. We deliver the complete irrigation system to the buyers of our land, free of all cost to them. The actual cost of operation is all that the water will cost YOU.

FIFTH—Whittier Acres is but thirteen miles by auto road from Los Angeles, 36 minutes by the Pacific Electric Railway, with a fine service. See how easy it is to maintain a home at WHITTIER ACRES and make it support you and still go to business in the city every day.

WIRE US, AT OUR EXPENSE IF YOU WANT ANY OF THESE PROPERTIES TEMPORARILY HELD OPEN FOR YOUR INVESTIGATION.

NO. 1.
THE "MOST GENUINE" SNAP IN A "CLASS A" 640-ACRE SUBDIVISION WE HAVE EVER SEEN. Located a short distance from a rapidly growing town of 1000 inhabitants, on main line R.R. Southern Coburn county. Practically all level. Soil, sedimentary gravelly loam. No improvements. 2000 acres of a 3300-acre tract, adjoining, sold 3 years ago for $65 per acre; the balance of 1300 acres sold at $125 per acre, as a subdivision, and is now planted mostly to almonds and grapes. Absolutely out of the frost belt. In the very midst of the best proven almond district in California. Property has been in owner's family for forty years, and never before has been offered for sale. The owner is a non-resident, has not investigated situation for a number of years, and does not realize that in permitting us to offer this tract at $25 per acre he enables us to state that it cannot be equaled in the State, as a genuine bargain. This firm has 73 eastern representatives handling its listings in the Middle West, consequently we know what can be done for a purchaser in the way of resale of this property in small tracts. No 640 acres in California at the present time can offer such assurance of quick profits. About $11,000 cash required to swing this deal.

NO. 2.
120 ACRES—THE CREAM OF PLACER COUNTY. At Lincoln. Fifty minutes' ride from Sacramento. Have just subdivided recently, and he is determined to leave. The place is way under value. You can buy all this for $600, which is about $5 per acre. Good 5-room house, large barn and outbuildings, windmill and tanks. Water near surface. Team of horses worth $300, yearling colt, cows, a few hogs, numerous chickens and chickens. All farming implements complete. Fenced into 6 fields—hog-tight. Excellent reddish sandy loam and chocolate sandy loam soil. 40 acres in grain, 40 acres summer-fallowed, 20 acres pasture. About 40 beautiful oak trees. 3 acres grapes and family orchard. This property is peculiarly adapted to orange and olives. Profitable orange orchards are absolutely demonstrated in this locality, the fruit from which ripens 6 weeks earlier than Southern California and commands the highest price in the Sacramento market. Due to owner's desire to go East it will take $4750 to swing this.

NO. 3.
161 ACRES—4 MILES FROM WOODLAND IN YOLO COUNTY. After examining hundreds of high-class income producers, we offer this as the best income-producing buy on the market today. Located on main line R.R. Soil—all sedimentary—60 ft. deep. Every acre highly improved. Last year was a bad year—yet this property paid over $12,000. Should pay $25,000 this year. Modern house, electric lights and all improvements, pumping plants, packing sheds and outbuildings, complete, in fine condition.
48 acres—Full bearing, money-making almonds.
15 acres—Young almond orchard.
85 acres—Full producing wine grapes.
30 acres—Full producing raisin grapes.
2 acres—Heavy yielding olives.
The income will support you in luxury. This is the finest property in Yolo county, and for $72,500, on easy terms, is the biggest bargain in California. You can take off $20,000 to $25,000 from the crop this year, and resell at an advance next year. How can you make money easier?

NO. 4.
HERE IS A DANDY 80-ACRE PROPERTY, possessing all the soil and climatic qualities necessary for the man who wants a chicken ranch in the Sacramento Valley for a country home and the raising of fruits, alfalfa, grains and garden truck. About 90 miles distance from a small town in Northern Yolo county, on the main line of the S.P.R.R. New 6-room modern house in fine condition. Extremely large barn and all other out-buildings. Two wells, pumps and tanks. Excellent sedimentary soil. Water within 12 ft. of the surface for pumping. Small family can show you more land and crops in that portion of the valley. Fencing, hog-tight. As a pure speculation this property is a snap at $8000. It will take $2700 cash to handle it.

NO. 5.
SHREWD BUYERS ARE LOOKING FOR 1000-ACRE SUBDIVISIONS, near transportation, where the soil is good, and where the prices are about one-half of what they should be—subdivisions that can be bought for $20 to $50 per acre. Agents say you can't get them today. Nevertheless, we have a few offering all these advantages. Our listings also comprise the very cream of Sacramento Valley properties, in tracts of from 10 acres to 10,000 acres. If you are considering a purchase of California lands, our force of field experts and bargain-hunters can put good dollars in your pocket, if you will write to us, or give us the opportunity to talk the matter over with you. Reference as to our integrity is the Humboldt Savings Bank of San Francisco.

SPECIAL BARGAINS.
125 Acres—This tract is a subdivision of the famous Baldwin Ranch and located within a few hundred yards of the thriving town of Puente and during any season of the year you can drive to Los Angeles dry shod, via the Valley boulevard, one of the good roads systems. Think of what this means. The soil is second to none for quality, and will produce any California product. Nothing better for alfalfa, vegetables, potatoes, strawberries or citrus fruits. As this tract is only 5 minutes' walk from schools, bank, stores, depot, it is unquestionably a fine homesite, or will sell readily if subdivided into small tracts. And, last of all, the water supply for irrigation is not surpassed by anything in Los Angeles county, being furnished by a pumping plant operated by electricity and delivering 180 miners inches of water. Will sell the tract as a whole or in two parts, at a price $100 per acre less than anything else of equal quality in the district. Do not delay but investigate this opportunity at once. Let us show you what is "doing" in the vicinity of Puente. It's the coming city in the San Gabriel Valley.

$35,000—80 acres, South Arcadia; deep sediment soil; all in alfalfa, which is a perfect stand and ready to be cut; 100 inches of water. This is a money maker and a real bargain. Terms, one-half cash.

$5000—12½ acres near Puente, sandy loam soil, all planted to walnuts, 4 acres alfalfa, balance fine crop of oats, 100 inches of water, small house, barn, etc. Terms one-half cash.

RANCHO LA PUENTE.

5-ACRE TRACTS.

A PART OF LUCKY BALDWIN LAND.

READ what Judge Rives says in not confirming a sale of Baldwin land in court:

"I am familiar with the land near La Puente," said Judge Rives, "and I know it has at least doubled, if not trebled, in value since the death of Baldwin. I think this increase may apply to virtually the entire estate, and I do not feel like confirming this sale now."

It is worth you while to thoroughly investigate the many advantages which our land presents. We know the soil is absolutely the best in the country. We know there is no hardpan under the surface. We know the water supply is abundant and ample for all time.

Permit us to demonstrate these facts to you.

Grow oranges, lemons or walnuts. Raise alfalfa, potatoes and all vegetables. Chickens thrive wonderfully well in this valley, owing to the dryness of the climate.

The only acreage near the big city which will have gas and electricity, and the proposed new electric car line will pass the Rancho.

Both the Salt Lake and Southern Pacific now serving the land.

FOR SALE—
ORANGE GROVES.
This is our specialty and we have a larger list of "saleable" groves in the close-in districts than any other firm in Los Angeles. We are practical growers and inspect every grove we offer for sale, and it must meet all requirements as to soil, water, climate and productiveness, as well as price, and we are in position to show you the very best buys in both groves and vacant lands.

The following are a few of our best:
8 acres—$19,500, at the beautiful little college town of Claremont. Solid to full bearing Washington navels. Crop averages over 4000 boxes annually (more than lots of 10-acre groves produce.) Very rich soil and cheap water. A banner grove in a banner district. $500 boxes still on trees, and included if sold this week. If you really want a grove you'll buy this one because its equal cannot be found at the price. It will pay for itself in four years.

10 acres—$26,000. Finest home on Foothill boulevard. Oranges and lemons; trees 9 years old; fine condition; no frost whatever; heavily fertilized. A magnificent home surrounded by a grove that will pay good revenue on total investment.

If one of the above does not meet with your requirements, come to headquarters and we will show you one that will.

EXCEPTIONAL OPPORTUNITY
MILLINERY OR CORSET SHOP.

I have a large space centrally located on Broadway with three large display windows which I desire to lease.

The rooms are completely furnished at a cost to me of about $3500. There will be no furniture or fixtures necessary unless you desire to put show cases in.

One-half the large reception room will be given you, together with the 3 show windows and a good space in my large, well lighted work room.

I have a large trade in ladies' made-to-order suits and whoever rents this half of my space will be able to sell hats or corsets to practically every one of my customers.

As I handle nothing less than $50 Suits, my trade is all of the very best class who demand and are willing to pay for the very best quality.

The rental is only $50 a month and the opportunity is so remarkable that if you desire to consider it you are strongly urged to see me immediately.

WHAT NEXT—
The sensational advance in American Marconi and the splendid profits resulting therefrom were lost by many stockholders owing to the fact that they were not fully and properly informed as to what to do.

Many inactive and apparently dead issues are now showing signs of activity. It would be a wise move on the part of those owning unlisted securities to send me a list of their holdings, so that they can be fully advised of important happenings.

Many Marconi stockholders would have saved handsome profits had they followed this suggestion.

"HOME BUILDERS" GUARANTY SHARES have many privileges which distinguish them from the shares sold without the guaranty. They are convertible into cash under the written terms of the Guaranty and are assured an earning of at least 8 per cent. per annum. They can also be used in the purchase of property or other securities held by the Company and have a standing loan value of 50 per cent. of the current selling price. This Guaranty is given only to original purchasers by "HOME BUILDERS GENERAL AGENCY," who issues it. Assets amounting to over $150,000 are held to assure the fulfillment of this Guaranty.

"HOME BUILDERS" stock, whether Guaranty shares or not, is the best investment in the local market today. If you can buy "HOME BUILDERS" shares without the Guaranty for less than the price of Guaranty shares it is a fortunate purchase, and will yield you a good dividend, but when you buy Guaranty shares you have an added protection and will participate in the profits of the GENERAL AGENCY which the other shareholders do not possess. Guaranty shares are sold only by

Cross Section of Roadbed Construction and End View of Truck for Valentine Monorail car

RAPID TRANSIT

The Need of the Hour

In our last Sunday's announcement we asked the citizens of Los Angeles and Southern California if they believed that better electric car service—safer and quicker transportation or lower traffic charges were desirable. The host of inquiries which followed our announcement proves to us conclusively that better traffic facilities are now demanded. When you consider that it now takes from thirty-five minutes to fifty-five minutes to travel ten miles—i. e., from Los Angeles to Pasadena—and frequently an hour to go from Los Angeles to the Ocean, the need for better transportation facilities is readily apparent. In spite of the fact that Los Angeles and the cities adjacent have one of the best street car systems in the country, there is no discounting the fact that it is inadequate for present needs and greater efficiency must be had.

How the Problem Has Been Solved

Present day electric car systems are based on an idea which cannot be carried much farther than it has up to the present time. If greater efficiency is secured new and advanced principles must be adopted. New ideas must be evolved. This has been successfully accomplished by Mr. Walter D. Valentine, an electrician and mechanic, who, after years of experiment, has perfected the VALENTINE MONORAIL SYSTEM.

What Is "MONORAIL?"

To explain the principles embraced by this system would take more space than we can give to it here. The following facts tell the story briefly: First, let it be said that 100 to 150 miles per hour will be easily obtainable in absolute safety with the Valentine Monorail, and that maintenance and operating costs will be so reduced that fares may be materially olwered.

A BRAND NEW IDEA IN CAR CONSTRUCTION.

In order to secure an unhampered right of way, the Monorail will be elevated from 12 to 15 feet above the ground. It will be double-tracked and built of reinforced concrete, permitting maximum speed at all points without dangerous grade crossings. The Monorail car runs on one rail, and is held in place by two wheels running underneath, on seperate tracks, as shown in the illustration. Valentine Monorail cars are absolutely non-derailable.

REDUCED OPERATING COST

Electricity will be used for motive power. The traction wheels are motors, thus eliminating all waste of power in transmission gears. The roads will cost about the same as present high-class roads, but the maintenance and operating costs will be reduced fully 50 per cent on account of the lightness of the cars, the absence of vibration with concrete construction, and the enlarged possibilities through increased traffic.

BETTER SERVICE.

100 to 150 miles per hour with absolute safety is not possible with the present type two-rail roads. The Valentine Monorail will not only afford great speed in safety but more frequent trains, materially reduced fares, lower freight tariffs and better service to the public.

THIS DEMONSTRATION IS FOR YOU.

We want every citizen in Los Angeles and vicinity who is interested in securing better traffic facilities—who desires to see "Los Angeles to the Sea in 15 Minutes" become a reality in the near future—to come to our demonstrating room in the south basement of the Consolidated Realty Building any day this week between the hours of 10 a.m. and 5:30 p.m. or 7:30 and 9 p.m., and see the demonstrating model of the Valentine Monorail system in operation. If you cannot call, fill out and mail the attached coupon and full descriptive literature of the Valentine Monorail System and the Monorail Rapid Transit Company will be sent you.

TREMENDOUS PROFITS APPARENT.

Our claims for the Valentine Monorail System are based upon demonstrated facts. It will revolutionize the rapid transit enterprises of the future. In the development of this system an extraordinary investment opportunity arises that you should inquire into without delay. We believe those who secure stock of the Monorail Rapid Transit Company today will ultimately realize profits similar to those made by the early investors in Bell Telephone, Mergenthaler Linotype, Westinghouse Air Brake and other great inventions. The Valentine Monorail System has a possible future equal to, if not greater than, any of these named. Get the facts about this enterprise.

DIMES SHOWER FOR THE POOR.

Charity Tags by Thousands Sell Everywhere.

Army of School Children Is Early on the Job.

At Least Twelve Thousand Dollars Realized.

An army of 15,000 school children, ranging from 6 to 18 years, helped to make the fourth annual tag day of the Associated Charities of Los Angeles a characteristic success.

The activities of this army, mounted and afoot, extended all the way from the Alexandria Hotel to the limits of the Santa Monica race course. Of the 300,000 tags issued, more than half were sold so that the net profits of the day were probably between $12,000 and $14,000 and may exceed that sum.

Those who had imagined tag day might be lost in the shuffle of big doings in the city yesterday had an agreeable surprise coming to them. The good will of the multitude was a match for its numbers and the persistence of the cheerful young persons who were on the job was remarkable throughout the day.

Secretary Spencer K. Sewall could well turn the tables on the Shriners who decorated the streets of the business district yesterday, for he wears the scimitar and crescent himself and for one day he made the U Kno Us greeting a slogan for his own good cause.

When Blanchard's band headed a procession of ten six-horse tallyho floats for the Associated Charities yesterday morning in a parade south on Broadway and north on Spring street, the Shriners perhaps thought it was another feather in the fez of the order. Each float was occupied by twenty lovely High School girls. A large number of the visitors constituting the Georgia patrol and these gallant sons of Dixie expressed admiration.

VISITORS GET FEVER.

When the visitors found out what was stirring, they accepted their initiation into the mysteries of Tag Day with fine generosity and made a quick demonstration that they were truly, duly and well qualified to participate in the festivities of the occasion. Said festivities consisted chiefly in the payment of 10 cents for one decorative bit of cardboard, the wearing of which was accepted as proof that its possessor had purchased a working interest in the beneficence of the city. It also offered a sort of immunity from the further importuning of industrious tag salesmen who were mostly saleswomen of years too few for questioning.

Not that anybody either escaped or tried to escape with the purchase of only one tag. Tag buying on Tag Day is a habit that gets to be chronic before nightfall and some of the generous patrons of the energetic little people were fairly threatened with enlargement of the heart before the day ended.

All of this is as it should be, for, in its fourteen years of activity, every anniversary finds the Associated Charities facing a vastly-increasing burden, and, even when so handsome a sum as that raised yesterday has been realized by Tag Day, the 600 regular contributors of the society still find the additional fund necessary to carry on the work to be greater than they can well meet.

All of the city schools distinguished themselves by valiant services. In the floats were the Hollywood High School, Los Angeles High, Manual Arts, Polytechnic, Berendo, Avenue Twenty-one, Custer-street, Thirtieth-street, Castelar-street school and the Sorority girls of the University of Southern California. They rode twenty to a tallyho. Their floats were handsomely decorated with their respective colors. Most of the girls were gowned in simple white.

GONE BEFORE BREAKFAST.

Many individuals joined heartily in the good work. Mrs. Ada Van Pelt had sold her twenty-five tickets before breakfast. The morning mail brought to the desk of Mrs. Mary Isabel Poulin, assistant secretary, $200 from several who had been assigned tickets in blocks of twenty-five. Some of the first to report are Miss Fanny Wills, Capt. and Mrs. Cressy, F. W. Smith, Mrs. Charles W. Allen and Mrs. E. L. Doheny.

Both the Cumberland Hotel and the Myer Siegel Company sold their first consignment of tickets before 9 o'clock, and placed an order for 100 more. During the day the money was received at the Associated Charities headquarters, No. 233 North Main street, where it was receipted for and sent to the vaults of a bank. Here it will be audited Monday by President Frank and some of his own clerks, after which it will be deposited to the credit of the organization.

Charles H. Lenz, auditor of the Board of Education, had charge of the Associated Charities' station at the Santa Monica road races, where a large number of tags were sold.

It was announced at headquarters that the construction of the seaside home for the children of the poor will be begun June 1, and that the $5000 building on the lot donated by Mrs. Ellen J. Swan will be rushed and fitted for the enjoyment of many hundreds of children the latter part of the present season.

Secretary Sewall, Mrs. Poulin and their staff of assistants were warmly congratulated last night by President Frank on their excellent management of yesterday's successful campaign.

EXCEEDS EXPECTATIONS.

Auction of Lots in Ralph Rogers's Highland Park Addition Brings Better Prices Than Anticipated.

So pleased is Ralph Rogers with the result of the auction of lots yesterday in the Ralph Rogers Highland Park Addition, near the Cawston Ostrich Farm, that he has decided to hold another auction on the 18th inst. of lots near the new Occidental College site.

The sale held yesterday exceeded expectations in two respects, the number of lots sold and the prices realized. When the auctioneer's hammer fell for the last time, 126 lots had been disposed of, at a total price representing 50 per cent. more than Rogers had anticipated.

CLOSES A LONG CAREER.

Retired Dry Goods Merchant of This City Passes Away—Had Lived Here Twenty-five Years.

Charles H. Whitmarsh passed away at the home of his son, Charles W. Whitmarsh, No. 671 Irolo street, Friday evening. He had been a resident of this city for twenty-five years.

Sturdy New England qualities had endeared Whitmarsh to a host of friends. His sympathies were broad, his character simple.

Whitmarsh was born in Stow, Mass., in 1826 and came to this city in 1887. He became connected with his nephew, J. W. Robinson, proprietor of the Boston Dry Goods Store. The establishment was then at Spring and Temple streets.

He remained with the dry goods company until 1893, when he retired from active business. Since that time he has made his home with either of his sons, Henry W. or Charles W. of this city.

Besides the two sons, he leaves a daughter, Mrs. R. J. Gardiner of Cleveland, O., and a niece, Mrs. N. B. Blackstone.

Episcopalian funeral services will be read this afternoon at 3 o'clock at the funeral parlors of Peck & Chase by Rev. Dr. Smith. Later the body will be shipped to Newton, Mass., for interment.

Shrine Festivities.

The Times will elaborately feature and illustrate the Shrine Conclave convention and festivities during the coming week. Los Angeles and the local Al Malaikah Shrine are prepared as never before for entertaining the thousands of visiting Shriners and their friends. If you wish to fully inform those at a distance as to the week's events, send The Times to them during Shrine week for 25 cents, postage prepaid. Orders may be left at The Times office, No. 619 South Spring street, or The Times Branch, No. 115 South Broadway. An appropriate souvenir will be given free to each person subscribing.

Taking Shape.

LARGE STEEL CONTRACT LET.

Local Ironworks Will Erect Frame of Rosslyn.

Plans for Big Fifth-street Hotel Revised.

Construction Will Be Begun Next Year.

During the past week Parkinson & Bergstrom, architects of the magnificent new Hotel Rosslyn, projected for Fifth and Main streets, awarded to the Llewellyn Ironworks the contract for the structural steel that is to go into this splendid improvement. The contract calls for the outlay of $140,000. Other contracts will be awarded during the next few months.

On this page is reproduced a new perspective of the projected building prepared by the architects and showing the present Rosslyn Hotel adjoining the corner to be improved on the north. The view is published as being an interesting one, although a perspective of the New Rosslyn, standing alone, was published exclusively in The Times of October 8, 1911. In the new perspective there is to be noticed a slight change in the general design, especially in the first story, where considerably more ornamentation has been introduced.

The new Rosslyn will be twelve stories in height and will cost in round numbers, $1,000,000. It will contain in all 430 guest-rooms, all connected wth baths. Its construction will be begun in November, 1913, immediately following the expiration of the leases now in force on the small buildings occupying the site.

The building will have a frontage of 158 feet on Fifth street and of 120 feet on Main. It will be of the most modern steel frame construction and will be handsomely faced with matt glazed, pressed brick of a creamish gray tint. The trim is to be of terra-cotta of the same color, tone and finish. The interior woodwork will be in birch, stained a Circassian walnut tint.

The second floor of the hotel will contain a dining-room 42x158 feet in size and seating 400. On the same floor will be the ladies parlors and a wide mezzanine balcony overlooking the grand lobby. This lobby will be 70x80 feet in dimensions, and will be wainscoted in marble to a height of twelve feet. The rest of the ground floor will be given over to stores. The basement will contain barber shops, a large restaurant and the power and heating plant of the hotel.

The hotel, which will be the largest and finest popular-priced hostelry west of Chicago, will be erected by Dwight Hart, and George A. Hart, owners and proprietors of the Nattick and Rosslyn hotels of this city. The Harts hold a fifty-year lease on the site, for which it is understood they will pay a rental of approximately $1,000,000. The lessor is the Century Building Company.

Checking Up.

LOOKS INTO THE CASH REGISTER.

SPECIAL AGENT SEEKING DATA TO FIGHT TRUSTS.

Intimates that Evidence Already Secured Is Sufficient Upon Which to Base Prosecution, but Hopes to Get More Here—Story of Keen Business Competition.

The gathering of evidence to be marshalled by the Federal government in the action instituted by Atty.-Gen. Wickersham for the dissolution of the so-called cash register trust, will be begun in Los Angeles immediately.

J. L. Bruff, a special agents of the Department of Justice, who has been working in other California cities, arrived yesterday and his campaign for information will continue for some time. He called on Dist.-Atty. McCormick yesterday and the preparation of the case in behalf of the government was discussed.

As in the instances furnished by the threatened prosecution of the alleged bean trust, now being considered in Washington and in the suit to dissolve the combination in restraint of trade by the plumbers' supply trust, scores of Los Angeles merchants who are using the National cash register will be interviewed. It is alleged that the contract signed by purchasers of registers will indicate a monopolistic tendency of the corporation.

Bruff refused to discuss in any way the line of his investigation here except to indicate that he has been successful in other places along the Coast and he hopes to secure similar good results in Los Angeles.

The suit on the part of Atty.-Gen. Wickersham is brought under the provisions of the Sheman anti-trust act and was instituted in keeping with the policy of the Taft administration to investigate supposed combinations which are successful in suppressing opposition and enlarging their traffic at the expense of would-be competitors.

SCOPE OF ACTION.

It is the understanding that the investigation will not only have to do with the contracts made between the National Cash Register Company and its patrons, but other features that will tend to show the corporation has conspired to restrain trade so effectually that it is the only recognized manufacturer of cash registers in the United States. Several concerns began in a small way to make a fight by methods only hinted at in the evidence so far secured, but they have all gone out of business. How this was done is one of the things Bruff is investigating.

One of the features of the local investigation will be to secure the facts regarding the fight waged by the National Cash Register Company against the Hallwood Cash Register Company of Columbus. It is alleged that the National company has made it an object for users to dispose of the Hallwood machines. Other competitors, it is said, have sold machines in the territory sought to be pre-empted by the alleged trust and these too, it is declared, have felt the weight of the organization of the National company.

Magnificent Hostelry for Northwest Corner of Fifth and Main.

New Hotel Rosslyn as it will appear when completed. Parkinson & Bergstrom, architects.

The Hallwood Company began business in Columbus about ten years ago, manufacturing cash registers under a patent issued to Henry S. Hallwood, an English inventor. The stock of the company, fixed originally at $1,000,000, was in the hands of representative business men of Columbus. For a while the enterprise was a success, but as it conflicted sharply with the National concern a war of extermination is alleged to have been begun by the Dayton corporation. For several years competition waged fiercely, and the outcome was that the Hallwood company failed. Many of the stockholders were almost ruined.

BANK GOES UNDER.

One of the largest creditors of the company was the Merchants' and Manufacturers' Bank of Columbus and this institution was compelled to liquidate. An organization known as the Union National Bank was its successor. The loans to the Hallwood company were made through the Park brothers, William D. and Howard C., president and cashier, respectively of the ruined institution, and William D. Park was indicted for a misuse of the fund in behalf of the Hallwood company. The disclosures ruined the Park brothers, and William D., once one of the leading business men of Columbus, is now said to be conducting a boarding-house at Asbury Park, N. J.

The Hallwood company was doing a big business until the National Cash Register Company began its fight, but the Dayton concern was backed by millions made in the business and it won. The big plant was turned over to the International Cash Register Company. Hundreds of the Hallwood machines were sold here and the special agent has a list of the users. It is alleged that some very sensational evidence having to do with the conduction of the Dayton company and the causes through which the Hallwood people were driven to the wall, will be shown by evidence to be secured from patrons of the Hallwood patent.

A transcript of evidence secured here will be sent to the Department of Justice in Washington to be used in the coming trial of the case. From Los Angeles Special Agent Bruff will go to San Francisco, Oakland, Sacramento and other northern points. He has already been in San Diego and places south. He expects to pass the entire summer in the collection of evidence against the National Cash Register Company.

NEW LIGHTING PLANT.

Los Angeles Capitalist Will Establish System at Beaumont With Laundry in Connection.

BEAUMONT, May 4.—A party of Los Angeles capitalists, headed by L. E. Rogers, is considering the establishment of an electric light plant in Beaumont. Mr. Rogers was here this week to investigate the probable number of consumers and made arrangements for the use of a suitable building. It is the plan of the promoters to operate a steam laundry in connection with the electric plant.

NEWS BRIEFS.

The Stower Orchard Company, which recently purchased the Gonchou ranch, one mile east of Beaumont, has shipped in stock for the foundation of an extensive nursery, the first to be located in Beaumont. Fifteen thousand seedling trees are now being set out.

Road Commissioner Sampson states that the new road from Beaumont to Redlands by way of the Yucaipa Valley will be ready for travel in about ten days, although much work will have to be done later to put it in perfect condition. This road is being built jointly by the commissioners of Riverside and San Bernardino counties. When completed it will add another beautiful scenic drive to Southern California's good roads. The new road is eighteen miles long.

A. G. Obernolte of Brawley has leased the Johnson apartments in this city which were recently purchased by Lewis Ripples of Ontario.

For the first time in the history of Beaumont women will serve on the election board at the Presidential primary here May 14. The following officials have been appointed inspectors: W. J. Sears and Elizabeth Springer; judges, Chester McNeil and Marie Seykora; clerks, B. H. Curler and C. E. Smoot.

F. C. Martin has been notified by the insurance company that his automobile, which was stolen two months ago, has been recovered. The car was abandoned by the thief in the Mojave Desert.

Arizona.

COMMITTEE IS WELL STOCKED.

Congressional Inquiry Digs Into Many Subjects.

Arizona Thoroughly Combed During Its Sessions.

Material Assembled for Democratic Campaign Uses.

[Special Correspondence of The Times.]

PHOENIX (Ariz.) May 3.—Last night was concluded a fortnight's session in Phoenix of a subcommittee of the House Committee on Expenditures of the Interior Department, and the members, Congressmen Hensley, Calloway and Hanna, together with Assistant Attorney General Birch, have started on their return to Washington. The investigation has been reported from Washington to have been much in the nature of a muck-raking trip, intended to furnish the Democratic party as much campaign material as possible, though Congressman Hanna was made a member in order to give the Congressional minority representation.

The committee has heard evidence on many subjects, from the $10,000,000 expenditures of the Reclamation Service, down to the whipping of an Indian boy in the Yuma Reservation School. It has heard about all the malcontents of this vicinity, concerning the financing of the Salt River Irrigation project. It has heard from persons who insisted that the "turning down" of the San Carlos project was a "job," there has been scrutiny of a much-discussed contract of the Reclamation Service with the Pacific Gas & Electric Company, and evidence has been heard in extenso covering the purchase of electric power from the local irrigation project for the benefit of the Pima Indians. On the side, inquiry was made concerning the administration of the Indian reservations and charges were aired against a late superintendent of the Pima Reservation, who is said to have profited financially above the salary actually given him.

CAMPAIGN MATERIAL.

It is probable that the Democratic members of the committee have secured campaign material, for Congressman Calloway has summed up his findings in the following remarkable statement.

"I find from the figures that have been submitted here in testimony that you all have paid for water rights, during the years prior to the Reclamation Service taking over the means of collecting and distributing water, some $2,471,572, and with that money you have bought and paid for a ditch system which was sold for you to the government for greatly in excess of its value, and now the Reclamation Service is seeking to have you buy the whole thing back again. This I consider to be a damnable outrage, and a little piece of high finance that I never saw nor expect to see equaled. As far as the opinions or estimates of government engineers upon the value of work or the cost of projects are concerned, I am frank to state that I don't consider such an opinion worth a cent. These men have all along proved too variable, and no two of them seem capable of reaching the same conclusion. Now, by this same service your rights to receive water from the Salt River have been taken away from you by purchasing the system that had heretofore been purchased with your money. I can scarcely find language strong enough to express myself of what I think of such an action. I think you have a complaint that is just. You have been the innocent victims of the Reclamation Service and the water users, and as a result will have to pay three times as much for your irrigation system as you bargained to pay at the time such a proposition was made to you. But because of this hardship I do not think any attempt should be made to avoid payment. I have no sympathy for the dodgers, and from what I have seen of you I do not believe that you would be satisfied to have anything that you have not paid for. You ought not to want to get one dollar without rendering a dollar's worth of service for it, neither ought you to render a dollar's worth of service without being paid for it in 100 cents. I shall favor an extension of time in the payment of this project, on the condition that on the deferred payments you pay a reasonable amount of interest, and I think you ought to want to pay a reasonable interest."

The committee members seem to agree that whatever extravagance has been apparently manifested in the conduct of the Salt River project is no exception and state that they have heard the same complaints from other irrigation districts, where the cost has far exceeded the first estimates.

WITNESS GIVES HISTORY.

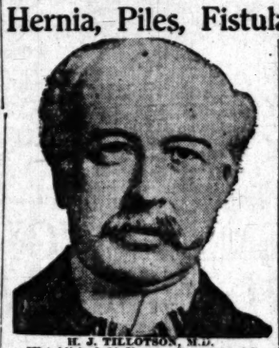
Engineer Hill, in charge of the local project, was one of the most satisfactory witnesses examined, for from him came exact data concerning the cost of all the units which comprise the local reclamation project, from the time the government paid $40,000 for the rights of the Hudson Reservoir and Irrigation Company to the Tonto basin damsite. He told how the original project had been amplified, about the extra work that had been found necessary at the dam and to secure transportation, of necessity that had arisen in the construction of an expensive diversion dam at Granite Reef and the acquirement of the canal systems of the valley. The Arizona canal cost $265,000 and, on the south side, the Consolidated canal $187,000, these having been the main waterways. Upon the former since has been spent about $413,000 in widening and improving. All together there has been acquired or constructed about sixty-four miles of canals and 382 miles of distributing laterals.

Very much of the added cost has come through the electrical development, of which about 6000-horse power already is available, with a maximum possibility of more than 25,000-horse-power, roughly rated as worth $50 per annum per horse power. The electric transmission line alone cost nearly $400,000, the greatest cost being that of the eighty-mile high voltage line from Roosevelt to Phoenix.

Again was told the tale how, when the Arizona canal was purchased, the Pacific Gas and Electric Company was found possessing a twenty-five-year lease upon the water power available along that canal and how it was thought best in exchange for a surrender of these rights, to execute a new ten-year contract, giving the company the exclusive right to retail power within Phoenix, where delivery was to be made to the corporation to the extent of 1500 kilowatts at the rate of 1½ cents per kilowatt hour.

CURED IN FIVE DAYS

Hernia, Piles, Fistula and Varicose Veins



H. J. TILLOTSON, M.D.

Many Cases Cured Permanently in FIVE DAYS. Most Time-Saving, Most Natural, Most Safe. No Detention from Occupation, Family or Home. A Radical and Permanent Cure. I Will Give $500 to Any Charity as a Guarantee That Every Statement In This Announcement is True.

I cure rapidly, painlessly and at small expense. Cured patients are my testimonials; however, I do not make patients' names merchandise by publishing them. I will give conclusive evidence of my merit, which is obtained and maintained by ability. I invite you to come to my office. I will explain my treatment for Hernia, Piles, Fistula, Varicose Veins, Pelvic, Nervous, Blood, Kidney, Bladder and Rectal Diseases. I will give you free a physical examination; if necessary a microscopical and chemical analysis of secretions to determine existing pathological and bacteriological conditions. Every person should take advantage of this opportunity to learn their true condition. Certainty of cure is what you want.

VARICOSE VEINS.

In the cure of Varicose Veins, Rupture and Associate Diseases of the Pelvic Region, I am successful in bringing to bear the curative power of Nature's forces in such a manner as to supplant the old-time, wide-open surgical operation. Once it required several weeks to cure these conditions and the method which some still use is such as to endanger the life of the patient and require a long period of convalescence. Now an absolute cure can be accomplished in a few days and with perfect safety.

TRUSSES SELDOM CURE RUPTURE.

Disregard for existing Hernias has cost many lives. The smallest hernias are the most dangerous to life, because of the increased liability to strangulation. I am aware that a great deal of fraud has been practiced on the public in connection with the alleged cure of rupture, and when I say positively that I cure Rupture, to stay cured, I do not expect any one to accept my statement without investigation of my professional work. My claim to your confidence is based on absolute facts, accomplished results. A personal consultation. I will make a free examination and can explain every detail of your Hernia and demonstrate to you the curative value of the method I have discovered. I invite the careful investigation of any person who sincerely desires to be cured. I cure Rupture, in selected cases, with perfect safety, and entail no suffering, and do not detain you from occupation under Written Guarantee. Many cases cured to stay cured by a few treatments.

PILES, FISTULA, RECTAL DISEASES.

These diseases are very common; most frequently found in persons of middle or advanced age; are exceedingly annoying, often very painful, and sometimes very dangerous, and frequently unfit one for pleasure or occupation. My treatment and successes are the result of years of experience; my treatment is kindly applied. I cure Piles without cutting. Some cases are cured by one or more treatments. If I do not cure your Piles, Fistula and other Rectal Diseases, my treatment does not cost you anything. Gentleness in treatment comes from treating many cases, so I guarantee a cure of Piles, Fistula, Ulcers and all curable Rectal Diseases.

KIDNEY AND BLADDER DISEASES.

With these diseases you may have more complications than are presented by any other diseased organs. By my searching illumination of the bladder I determine accurately the diseases and by my microscopical examination and urinalysis, make sure of the condition of the kidneys, thus laying foundations for scientific treatment.

WRITTEN GUARANTEE.

Dr. Tillotson's written guarantee means a cure or no pay for services. I guarantee to cure certain diseases or refund every dollar you have paid me for my services. My services cost you nothing unless I cure your Varicose Veins, Hernia, Piles, Fissures, Fistula or any disease I guarantee to cure. My terms are reasonable and no more than you are willing and able to pay.

[Established 21 Years. Copyrighted.]

I publish my true photograph, correct name and personally conduct my office. I am the longest established, most successful and reliable, as medical credentials and press records prove. Imitation of my copyrighted announcement is an evidence that I am a bona-fide specialist. I make this statement that you will know you consult a Specialist who sees and treats patients personally. I possess skill and experience acquired in such a way that no other can share. Experience is the safe standard by which judgment may be valued and results obtained.

A thorough investigation should be made by every ailing person as to the specialist he consults. Duty and destiny to self and those who depend upon you demand the best medical attention. I have the ability and can give you this service. I have always charged a very reasonable fee, so that my services may be obtained by any man who sincerely desires to be cured. I make no misleading statements or unbusinesslike propositions. Neither do I desire to be particularly independent, and I would like to have you for a patient if you will come to me on a strictly professional basis, and the inducements that I offer, which are my ability and thirty-one years' successful experience. Time-saving treatment and guarantee of cure of certain diseases.

NO MONEY REQUIRED TO COMMENCE TREATMENT. Many patients have no confidence in their doctor because he demands pay before a cure has been effected, and there are many who have been misinformed about their condition, or through unsuccessful treatment have become skeptical and think there is no cure for them. I want an opportunity to treat such cases. It makes no difference about the financial part, as I accept pay for my services as benefits are derived, when I am satisfied the patient is reliable. Health is capital at interest. I will prove my ability to cure you before asking pay for my services.

FINANCIAL NEWS SUMMARY.

NEW YORK, May 4.—Three important events governed the course of this week's stock market. Given in the proper order they were: The developments in the negotiations between the Eastern railway managers and their engineers, the quarterly report of the United States Steel Corporation, which was poor beyond all expectations, and the Massachusetts primaries. These were added to in the final days by the demand of the railway firemen, recurrent serious floods in the Mississippi section and a number of adverse railroad reports.

Stocks were fairly steady at the outset, with new high records in Reading and some of the speculative industrials, notably American can issues, but the selling movement of yesterday effaced not only all these gains, but reduced the general average to the lowest level in a fortnight.

Local monetary conditions played no part in this sudden reversal, the supply of cash having at all times been abundant, with some slight hardening of rates over the May 1 settlement. Bank exchanges for April were the best thus far this year and confirmed general advances and betterment in most lines of trade.

Preparations for next week's sale of $25,000,000, 4 and a quarter per cent New York City bonds were being made, with all indications pointing to the success of the offerings.

Opening prices of today's stock market indicated further unsettlement. Gains and losses were quite evenly divided, but the extent of the declines was greater. United States Steel opened, with a block of 800 shares at 49¾, and 50¾, compared with 49 1-8 at yesterday's close. Reading, after opening at a slight decline, gained ¾; Erie first preferred was off 1 and Illinois Central ¾, with weakness in Great Northern, Northern Pacific, St. Paul, Amalgamated Copper and Utah Copper. The few slight gains included Union Pacific, B. and Ohio and Chesapeake and Ohio, and Canadian Pacific.

Early irregularity changed to heaviness soon after the opening with a moderate resumption of yesterday's late selling. Reading was again the object of bearish attacks, declining 1¾, with losses of 1 to 2 points in U. S. Steel, Amalgamated Copper, General Electric, Interborough and Metropolitan preferred, Consolidated Gas and some of the less prominent issues. At best recoveries were slight and support was only moderate.

The market closed steady. Prices improved generally in the late dealings and a considerable part of the early losses was recovered, with a sprinkling of net gains. Union Pacific, Canadian Pacific and Lehigh Valley were the strongest of the unadjusted shares with underlying steadiness in Reading and U. S. Steel. International Harvester and National Biscuit rose over a point and some of the specialties, including American Beet Sugar, were well above yesterday's final quotations.

LOCAL PRODUCE MARKET.

There was a raid on strawberries at the Japanese market on Ninth street yesterday, on account of the regular market being closed. The American merchants bought all the berries they could get at 7½ cents.

The Japanese, believing they had control of the situation, held the berries at better than that price. The market opened at 5 cents a basket, or 1 cent above the bottom price quoted on the Produce Exchange. The demand was enormous and all who had not laid in an extra supply in view of the closing of the American market for a day's outing, went to the Japanese market to trade. The result was that the market was cleaned up entirely by American merchants; the Japanese, despite their efforts, forcing the price of berries only ¼ a cent above the quotation of 4@7 cents.

Market Notes.

The convention of the National Wholesale Grocers' Association will open in St. Louis May 15. Grocery jobbers, manufacturers and retailers from all over the country will be there, including a delegation from Los Angeles.

Due to a continued strength of the wheat market flour is very steady. An advance in the near future is probable, according to some dealers.

Dried fruit prices continue to waver. Declines have been recorded on spot fruit sales, as each holder has his own individual prices. Apples, fancy apricots and large-size prunes were slightly off last week. Declines have been so general for the past forty days that it is now believed bottom has been reached. Peaches are beginning to steady up.

All white beans were dull last week with a tendency to weakness. Pink beans were firm and displayed a tendency to advance. Because of the unusually low price this variety commanded this year only a small acreage has been planted. It is believed that when this fact is fully understood spot prices will advance.

LOS ANGELES EXCHANGE.

General Condition of Market Is Steady—Mexican Petroleum Common Declines.

The market yesterday was from steady to a fraction weaker with the exception of Home Telephone preferred, which advanced 12½ cents to $31.62½, sales, however, being limited to twenty shares.

Mexican Petroleum common declined to $67, a drop of 12½ during the call, the high point of the day being 25.

Union Oil was very steady at $99.50 and trading was fairly large. California Midway dropped to 10 cents a share, 6000 shares being sold at that price. An assessment of 5 cents has been declared on this stock.

With the exception of Home Telephone nothing was traded in but oil stocks, and 3000 shares of Consolidated Mines, the latter selling at 5 cents.

MANIPULATION IN WALL STREET.

STOCK EXCHANGE IS SUFFERING FROM IT.

Prices Are Irregular and Fail to Respond to the London Close, Which Shows Record Gains for American Securities—Reason for Rise of Beet Sugar Shares.

(BY A. P. NIGHT WIRE TO THE TIMES.)

NEW YORK, May 4.—In the two hours of today's session in the stock exchange there was additional evidence that the market continues to suffer from a surfeit of manipulation and ill-advised speculation. Prices were irregular, failing to respond to London's close, which showed record gains for our securities. Early dealings here were light but became more active later at the expense of quoted values. Reading and United States Steel were again the main objects of attention by bears, and signs of liquidation on long stock were not lacking. Support in the early period was half-hearted. Apparently the professional element was indisposed to press its advantage of the previous day, which conduced to general recoveries. The close was steady with strength in Union Pacific, Lehigh Valley, Canadian Pacific and special issues. The bank statement upset all calculations as to the cash movement, the actual loss being slightly more than $4,000,000, where a gain of as much had been expected. Actual loans increased over $2,000,000 with a decrease in the reserves of $5,400,000. In the main, the statement was a reflection of the uncertainty which attended the May 1 settlements in all parts of the country. Some reason for the recent rise in American beet sugar was furnished by the company's annual report, issued today, which showed an increase in the balance for dividends on the common stock much in excess of the preceding year. The bond market was easy. Total sales (par value) aggregated $987,000. United States Coupon 3's advanced ⅝ and the registered ½ and Panama 3's coupon declined ⅛ per cent. on call, during the week.

HAYDEN WORKS ALMOST READY.

Bullion from Concentrates to Be Produced.

Electrical Equipment Is on Hand for Operations.

Ray Ores Will Occupy All Facilities at First.

[Special Correspondence of The Times.]

HAYDEN (Ariz.) May 3.—One of the great reverbatory furnaces at the Hayden works of the American Smelting and Refining Company has been completed and has been fired up for and has been fired up for the purpose of drying it out. This process will take two weeks and it is expected that the production of bullion from concentrates will then be started. Already on hand is all the electrical equipment needed for handling concentrates and slag.

At Hayden there has been a recurrence of a rumor that Japanese labor is to be employed around the concentrator, the report probably being due to the fact that the works are now being enclosed within a high board fence and to the enforcement of a rule that no outsider be permitted in the works unless under charge of an employee.

Succeeding the resignation of David Cole as manager of the Ray Consolidated, William H. Janney has resigned the position of mill superintendent. Hereafter he will be connected in a consulting capacity with the Hayden mill and with the Chino Copper Company and Utah Copper Company, owned by the same interests. John Q. MacDonald succeeds Mr. Janney at this point. L. S. Gates remains in charge of mining operations at Ray.

Late visits to Christmas of representatives of the Development Company of America have caused speculation concerning probable work upon the mines of the Gila Copper Sulphide Company. It is understood that the Hayden smelter for the current year, at least, will handle only the ores of the Ray Consolidated Company, and that production at Christmas will necessarily entail the starting again of the smelter at Sasco, the works there being owned by a subsidiary corporation of the development company.

Powder is now being sent across the border in ample supply for the larger mines around Cananea and Nacozari, where work continues without regard to the revolution, though several small bridges on the Nacozari railroad have been wantonly destroyed by roving bandits.

At Cananea the Greene Company is installing a large quantity of new machinery, including boilers, converters, blowers and an additional electric crane. The management is much gratified by a demonstration that the available ore body at the Capote mine extends as far down as the seventh level.

Reorganization is being effected of the Calumet & Sonora Mining Company and a new set of directors expect to place the corporation upon a dividend-paying basis very soon.

Cababi Pays in Full.

TUCSON (Ariz.) May 3.—A final payment of $20,000, completing a total of $50,000, has been made by the Cababi Mining Company to G. H. Richey on property sixty miles southwest of Tucson. The company also owns the famous Pichacho mine, one of the phenomenal silver producers of the pioneer era, and the two properties are to be worked in conjunction. There are several ore bodies running high in both silver and copper. C. N. Wilson, president of the purchasing company, is here from Indianapolis and active operation is to be started at once under direction of S. G. McWade.

At Douglas has been placed a contract for a magnificent ore-carrying system for the new smelter of the Arizona Copper Company at Clifton. This system will automatically convey ore from the cars to the mixing beds and thereafter will deliver it into the furnaces, with automatic sampling en route.

Smith Bros., of Boston, have purchased for $500,000, of W. N. Small and John Kniffen, the Apache Box gold mine, west of Silver City, N. M., a new gold discovery of the highest promise.

There is a report that the well-known Hedges mine, near Yuma, is to be reopened within a short time. At present very little mining is being done in the desert country of Yuma county, which has been so notable in the past for wonderfully rich surface gold croppings and wherein have been located such profitable mines as the Fortuna and King of Arizona. The mining districts of northern Yuma county, along the Arizona and California Railroad, also are notably quiet and little in the way of further development there can be expected before next fall.

Good Man to Resign.

BISBEE (Ariz.) May 3.—Parker L. Woodman will soon leave the position of mine superintendent of the Copper Queen Consolidated Mining Company, a place he has held for five years, within a total period of twenty-one years' employment by the company. He succeeded Superintendent S. W. Clawson, after having been for eleven years superintendent of the Lowell mines. Mr. Woodman will probably make his home in Southern California. He says the only reason for his resignation is his desire to get away from underground work.

The fire and gas troubles of the Copper Queen now have been practically eliminated. The fire within the Holbrook property has been extinguished and in the Lowell a small amount of smouldering sulphides now are being drenched with water. By means of thorough ventilation, all danger from fumes and gases has been eliminated.

In Globe District.

GLOBE (Ariz.) May 3.—W. H. Aldridge, managing director of the Inspiration Consolidated Copper Company, is upon the ground at Miami, considering plans for the new 7500-ton concentrator and the sinking of two three-compartment steel-concrete working shafts. At Miami, around the test mill of the Inspiration Company, are a large number of machinery equipment salesmen, keenly interested in tests that are being made of the relative efficiency of a number of kinds of concentrating machinery. This work is being done under the supervision of J. J. Callow, consulting metallurgist for the company. Determination of the type of concentrating table to be used is expected to be made within a few days.

The monthly production of the Miami Company is now averaging about 3,000,000 pounds. The mill is turning out 125 tons of concentrates a day, assaying 40 per cent. copper, shipped to Cananea for further reduction.

Miami was visited during the past week by J. Park Channing, who has been investigating methods of mining and reduction. Several changes are being made in the mill where Hardinge pebble mills have demonstrated their superiority over Chilean mills for fine grinding and will probably replace them in all units. Mr. Channing says the cost of mining for the past year was $1.24 a ton. This might have been reduced by 40 cents, had it not been for a desire to fully safeguard the men and to utilize the ore most thoroughly. In the interest of safety, heavy expenditures are made for timbering under the capping of the ore body.

An option has been secured on the Virginia group of thirty-five claims, six miles northwest of Miami, by L. D. McClure, manager for the South Live Oak Development Company. Development on the property thus far has been by means of shallow shafts, short tunnels and open cuts but it is expected that the ground will be explored thoroughly by means of churn drills.

Copper ore assaying about 18 per cent. is being shipped to the Old Dominion smelter from the Gibson mine. The Gibson ores are especially valuable owing to their high percentage of sulphur.

WILD ERECT LARGE PLANT.

Pacific Sewer Pipe Company Acquires Valuable Thirty-two-acre Manufacturing Site at Los Nietos.

The Pacific Sewer Pipe Company has completed the purchase, through A. B. Chittenden, of a tract of thirty-two acres at Los Nietos. The site was selected on account of its natural advantages and the fact that the Santa Fe, Southern Pacific and Pacific Electric railways have lines crossing at that particular point so that convenient shipping facilities are to be enjoyed. The tract is situated immediately south of the stations at Los Nietos of the three railroads and adjoins the right-of-way of the Santa Fe and Southern Pacific systems.

The company, of which E. M. Durant is the president, is now proceeding with the improvement of the property and the erection of large buildings to house a plant for the manufacture of tile, sewer pipe and other clay products, which will cost $350,000 or more.

This plant is being built for the growing business of the concern, which now owns two plants in this city, a large plant at Corona and other properties.

Mr. Chittenden states that a cash consideration of $800 per acre was paid to Mrs. R. A. Dalluge, the former owner. The land purchased is a part of the Guirado estate.

TO RECONSTRUCT BLOCK.

Announcement was made yesterday that the Whiting Wrecking Company, which is now engaged in wrecking the old California Furniture building, to clear the site for the ten-story addition to Bullock's, will utilize the material of the demolished Broadway structure in the construction of a six-story building for its own use at No. 415 East Ninth street. The project involves the practical reconstruction of the building now being torn down. The framwork will be set up on Ninth street exactly as it was on Broadway. While the building is being erected the company will occupy a four-story structure on the south side of Ninth street between Wall and Maple, which it constructed about a year ago.

OFF WITH A RUSH.

Building permits during the first three days of May represented improvements whose total cost will be in excess of $600,000. The largest single permit was that for the ten-story addition to Bullock's, involving a cost of $243,000. To date for the year 5121 permits, representing a valuation of $9,252,239, have been issued. The figures for the corresponding period of last year were 3776 permits and $7,380,306.

BUYS ON MONETA.

Mrs. J. M. Pellegrini has purchased from J. William Roberts the two-story brick block on the northwest corner of Moneta avenue and Fifty-third street. The block has three stores below, with five apartments on the second floor. The reported consideration is $23,000. The sale was made through the office of Woodward & Burges.

ADD DEPARTMENTS.

H. J. Ruess & Co., at suite No. 504 Hibernian building, have added a hotel, apartment and rooming-house department, placing S. J. Rosenberg in charge.

EL TIGRE PAYS FINE DIVIDEND.

Pacific Mine Will Erect Concentrating Mill.

Empire Property of Parker Is Being Developed.

Gold and Copper Shipments Both Are Made.

[Special Correspondence of The Times.]

YUMA (Ariz.) May 2.—The El Tigre Mining Company, owning the Lucky Tiger mine in Sonora, Mex., has just declared its regular quarterly dividend of $150,000, United States money.

This mine is equipped with a 250-ton concentrating and cyanide plant. The mine has over ten miles of underground workings, is opened to a depth of 1300 feet and the main ore shoot is 3000 feet long and from four to six feet wide. Over 500 men are employed at mine and mill, fifty being Americans.

John Kelley, president of the El Tigre mine, and the Pacific Copper Mining Company of Prescott, Ariz., together with C. W. Mitchell, of Los Angeles, vice-president of the company, have been on a tour of inspection of the property, and, while there decided to erect a 200-ton-concentrating mill at the Pacific mine.

This mine has two miles of underground workings, is opened to a depth of 600 feet, and has a large tonnage of $15 to $20 opened up, and has four veins which are being developed.

C. W. Mitchell and associates of Los Angeles, owning the Arizona Empire copper mines, near Parker, Ariz., are developing this property on an extensive scale. Most of the development work is being done on the 200-foot level of the Carnation mine, where the ore body is sixty feet wide and has been drifted on for over 100 feet.

HIGH-GRADE NEAR WALL.

This ore body averages from $6 to $8, gold, and 2½ per cent. copper, and next to the hanging wall there is a high-grade streak of ore eighteen inches wide, going $100 a ton in gold and 5½ per cent. copper.

The company is now shipping a grade of ore going from $60 to $70 in the two metals. This property has over 6000 feet of underground workings, is opened to a depth of 300 feet in three different places. There are four main ore shoots, each 500 feet long and from thirty to sixty feet wide. The mines are three miles east of the Colorado River, in Yuma county.

INDORSEMENT IS WITHDRAWN.

CHAMBER OF COMMERCE OPPOSES STOCK JOBBERS.

Railroad Project Which It Was Announced Was Fully Financed Proves to Be Stock Selling Scheme and the Valley's Chief Civic Body Repudiates—Short News Stories.

PORTERVILLE, May 4.—Keen disappointment is expressed by the officials of the Chamber of Commerce over the statement from the officials of the Big Four Railroad that they expect the city of Visalia to subscribe to a large block of stock in the enterprise. As it was stated at the outset by the officials and by the chief engineer, who recently arrived here from San Francisco, that the constructors of the road had ample capital, the chamber officials agreed to give the company all possible aid in securing rights of way. Now that the enterprise appears to be the usual one of stock promotion the chamber directors have withdrawn their indorsement. The officials of the commercial organization have always refused to give their official indorsement to every and any enterprise of promotion nature.

At the meeting of the Woodville district people held this evening the Woodville Chamber of Commerce also expressed their willingness to indorse the construction plans only if the officials of the road live up to their original statement that the road would be built without any stock jobbing.

FINE WELL.

What is one of the finest wells ever brought in since the Woodville-Poplar district was exploited was tested out on the property of J. Vossler this afternoon. Only forty-five feet in depth, with a lift of twenty-four feet, the well developed exactly 200 inches of water on a continuous twenty-four-hour test.

As it is universally estimated that water is worth $100 per inch the Vossler well adds $20,000 to the value of his dairy.

RABIES PREVALENT.

Telegrams received here today from the State laboratory confirm the suspicions of local physicians that Mrs. Mira Cole, a resident in Hockett street, had been exposed to danger of rabies when she was bitten by a pet dog early this week. Examination of the skull of the animal showed that the animal had rabies in a very aggravated form. This is significant in showing that in spite of the strenuous measures that have been taken by the city officials to stamp out the disease it is still prevalent.

Mrs. Cole has been placed in the local Pasteur institute for treatment. The city officials expect to immediately put into force again the ordinance compelling owners of dogs to keep the animals confined and chained.

CITRUS CHLOROSIS.

Prof. J. H. Loughridge of the University of California arrived here this morning to continue a series of experiments, upon which he has been at work for the past several years, to determine the cause of the disease called chlorosis of citrus trees. The professor hopes to devise some means of correcting the difficulty as well as discovering the basic reason for the trouble.

At the outset his experiments were conducted upon the theory that the disease was pathological, but this has been abandoned, and he is now working on the assumption that it is due to wrong soil conditions.

Chlorosis is a disease which causes the trees to turn a light green in color, and this symptom is followed by a general debility of the tree and a more or less complete loss of fruiting capacity.

Experiments conducted locally would appear to confirm a theory that an excess of acidity in the soil is a predisposing cause, and that it can be eradicated by persistent use of fertilizers carrying an assimilable form of lime.

AN OPEN LETTER

For years I have realized the great need of giving the PEOPLE an opportunity for safe and profitable investment. I have seen the danger in companies carrying large liabilities and have known many to fail because of their inability to meet their obligations, and the SAVINGS OF A LIFETIME OF THE STOCKHOLDERS SWEPT AWAY.

I, therefore, determined to find some business and devise a plan whereby no risk would be assumed and one that would give the GREAT MASSES an EQUAL PARTICIPATION in the EARNINGS.

After an exhaustive examination I found companies dealing in mortgages make a profit annually of from 10 to 30 per cent.—SOME FAR MORE, consequently the stock in the different companies has advanced several hundred dollars per share and stockholders can readily SELL OR BORROW money on their STOCK if necessary—an important consideration.

I realized, FIRST: that by organizing a company to do this business and by distributing the stock among thousands of people would mean added PROFITS.

SECOND: limiting the number of shares sold to any one person would keep the control in the hands of the majority—ANOTHER IMPORTANT CONSIDERATION.

THIRD: that dividends could be paid quarterly, hence I organized the United Mortgage Corporation, being satisfied that what other companies have done this corporation can do.

THEREFORE, IT IS THE VERY SAFEST AND MOST PROFITABLE INVESTMENT TO BE MADE.

At the first meeting a resolution was placed upon the minutes, authorizing a limited amount of shares to be sold at the par value, $10.00 for cash or $10.50 per share payable in monthly installments of 50c each.

While the corporation is less than two months old the business already accomplished JUSTIFIES an advance of 20 per cent. in the price of this stock.

I shall recommend this advance at the next meeting of the board.

This is the opportunity you have sought to become interested in, a dignified, permanent money-making business enterprise.

DELAY WILL COST YOU 20 PER CENT. Investigation means buying.

Full particulars on request.

Yours for financial betterment,

F. W. RAYBURN, President.

The Rights of Way

For an interurban trolley line through Grogan's Merced Tracts have just been signed, and the president of the road informs us that we can expect to see dirt flying and actual construction commenced in a very short time.

We all know what effect interurban trolley communication had on population and land values in Southern California. This is not alone the history of Southern California, but of the whole United States. Railroad statistics show that interurban trolley communication has practically doubled population and land values in all territory affected. What has been true elsewhere must of course be true at Merced, and it is certain that a sharp advance in prices on Grogan's Merced Tracts must take place in a very short time.

In addition to this, Grogan's Merced Tract is the only body of good land immediately adjoining the city limits of any of the more important San Joaquin Valley towns that can be had at original subdivision prices. Comparable lands similarly located in relation to any of the other important San Joaquin Valley towns would cost you from $350 to $500 per acre.

Railroad men and other experts who have looked over the 4300 acres, comprising Gorgan's Merced Tracts, have been unanimous in the opinion that these lands would be cheap and should now be selling at from $250 to $300 per acre. The present low prices are the result of my general sales agency contract being made before there was anything definite regarding the electric line. The owner of the property, Mr. Charles P. Grogan, would naturally never have consented to the present range of prices, nor would he have made a definite contract authorizing me to dispose of his holdings at the present very low figures if he could only have seen a few months ahead.

My sales agency contract is your opportunity. Whether for investment or speculation you cannot afford to miss this chance, and I honestly believe that every dollar invested in Grogan's Merced Tracts will double inside of twelve months, or if you desire you can hold your purchase as a permanent investment and make from 20 per cent to 60 per cent per acre net by farming the land.

REMEMBER, first, Merced is the banner agricultural county of California, and took at the 1911 State Fair held at Sacramento, 17 out of 25 first prizes, 4 seconds, 4 thirds, grand prize for the best general agricultural exhibit and a special prize for the best display of cereals.

Second, Merced, with a population of 4000, has over $4,000,000 on deposit with its two banks, making this the richest city per capita in America. Every dollar of this is farmers' money and proves conclusively the universal prosperity of this entire section.

Grogan's Merced Tracts are selling fast. Practically everyone who looks at this land buys. In addition, we are selling steadily to local people at Merced, who realize the sharp advance in values that must inevitably occur in the very near future.

You probably missed the profits that others made while the trolley system was building in Southern California. Don't make the same mistake twice.

Why not call at once and get information regarding Grogan's Merced Tract and the money-making opportunities it affords—either from a speculative or investment standpoint, but if you cannot call personally, 'phone or write for free booklet, entitled "Facts For Farmers." Excursions Tuesdays, Thursdays and Saturdays.

New Laurels.

APRIL TOTAL OVER MILLION.

San Diego's Building Outlay in Seven Figures.

All Former Records Broken in Hustling City.

General Realty Activity Also at High Tide.

[Special Correspondence of The Times.]

SAN DIEGO, May 4.—A value of more than $1,000,000 for new buildings in San Diego, in April was a record-breaker for one month. This is a greater amount than was reached during the entire first four months of 1910, and more than two-thirds as much as recorded during the first four months of 1911. It is also twice as much as for any one month preceding it in 1912. The amount for the four months this year is nearly twice as great as for the first four months of 1911.

The building permits up to May 1 this year, aggregated $2,623,531. Last year the amount at this time was $1,424,635. A boost for the April permits was given on the last day when plans were approved by Building Inspector W. J. Kirkwood, for a six-story building to be erected at Sixth and C streets, by Mrs. Amelia C. Bridges at a cost of $130,000.

An interesting comparison of the amount of building done in San Diego in the last three years is found in the following tables:

In 1910 the amounts by months were as follows:
January	$158,170
February	203,450
March	245,400
April	266,240
Total	$868,260

In 1911 the aggregate permits were:
January	$ 219,900
February	230,125
March	551,970
April	422,740
Total	$1,424,635

In 1912, the amounts by months were:
January	$ 523,952
February	506,178
March	541,051
April	1,047,350
Total	$2,623,531

Judge Victor Shaw of the Los Angeles Court of Appeals, a former resident of San Diego, has begun the erection of a three-story brick hotel and store building, on the east side of Second street, between C and D, to cost $30,000. The lot is 50x100 feet. Excavating for the basement was completed this week by H. G. Fenton. The building has been leased to the Sunset Hotel Company.

J. S. Perry, who came here from Virginia, has bought of R. Hanson, through the Stooke Land Company, 122 acres of the Marcelena tract, for $14,000. B. W. Harris, who came here from Victoria, B. C., has bought of the Stooke Land Company, the northeast corner of Sixteenth and H streets, two lots, 100x100 feet, for $10,000, and will soon begin the erection of a business block with rooms above.

T. J. Ellis, who came here from Hillsburg, Mo., has bought fifty acres of alfalfa land near Nestor, for $14,000. He will improve and subdivide the tract. The sale was made for various owners by the Stooke Land Company.

A. T. Sebastion, who came here from Oxnard, has purchased the northwest corner of Fourth and Elm streets, two lots, 100x100 feet, from Brodnax & Neale for $15,000. The purchaser will erect a large apartment-house, plans for which are now being prepared.

Mrs. Elizabeth Ann Winesteer has bought of M. Shea, a thirteen-room residence, and two lots at the corner of Nineteenth and F streets, for $6000.

A. B. McIntyre, a property owner of Seattle, has purchased an entire block of lots in the Burlingame tract, where he will begin the erection of twelve modern residences to cost from $8000 to $11,000 each. For the block of lots facing Kalmia and Thirtieth streets he paid a reported consideration of $14,750.

APRIL RECORD MONTH.

SIXTY PERMITS TAKEN OUT.

VENICE, May 4.—The month just closed was the biggest, so far as dollars and cents are concerned, ever experienced since the founding of Venice. A total of sixty-one building permits represents the grant, and these permits stand for the expenditure in permanent improvements of $231,350. The largest item related to amusements and embraced the "Virginia Reel," which will cost $50,000. The late permits included the following: Mrs. E. J. Hindley, dwelling on Victoria avenue, $1500; Venice Roofing Company, concrete and metal building on Trolleyway, $2000; M. Burns, residence on Petrel avenue, $4000; C. Caine, bungalow on Fifth street, $1600; Adolph Lofton, cottage on Rose avenue, $1950.

Plans are being rapidly developed for the formation of a road district, the object being to secure county aid in the construction of a new boulevard from the beach to Los Angeles by way of Boyer Grove and Palms. This road would be one of the shortest between the city and the sea. It would parallel the double tracks of the Pacific Electric's trolley line for a considerable part of the distance. The Washington road is a popular one, but there are many quips and curves that add to the length of it. These would be eliminated by the new route, which would do no backtracking from the time it departed from tide water until it struck direct connection in the vicinity of Vineyard with the paved streets of Los Angeles.

The City Trustees, in response to the request of booster organizations, have decided to give consideration to the passage of an ordinance establishing an industrial district. The suggestion was that the zone of industry, noise and smoke should be near the Rose-avenue gas factory, the lumber yards and the planing mills. This decision is not gladly received by the people who have bought lots and are building little homes in that part of the city. They insist that the industrial city should be founded in the back country, where there is more room and where the factories to be established would naturally have better railway and shipping facilities.

GOOD BUILDING RECORD.

APRIL A BUSY MONTH.

PASADENA, May 4.—The aggregate sum of building improvements in the city represented by the April permits is $180,606. One hunded and twenty-five permits were issued. This is a signal increase over the building permits issued for the month of April a year ago, which totaled $138,779.

Of the permits issued last week those for improvements to cost $1000 or more were: Edward F. Samron, four-room frame bungalow, No. 950 South Fair Oaks avenue, $1000; Mary Maude Earle, eight-room apartment-house, No. 52 Kerkimer street, $15,000; William Land, seven-room frame residence, No. 1188 North Hill avenue, $4500; Miss Henrietta Vischer, seven-room frame residence, No. 265 South Madison avenue, $4500; Kathleen Wallace Jansen, No. 756 North Lake avenue, $2200; J. Frank Bowen, No. 9 Bowen Court, five-room frame bungalow, $1500, and Cleveland Thomas, five-room frame bungalow, No. 393 Flower street, $1500.

BRIDGE NEAR COMPLETION.

WILL GREATLY AID FARM.

SOUTH PASADENA, May 4.—When the new bridge across the Arroyo Seco near the Cawston Ostrich Farm and connecting the cities of Los Angeles and Pasadena in a great main highway ins opened in June, South Pasadena will begin to reap the benefits which for so long have been but hopes. Paving improvements which, down to the present time, have not seemed of paramount importance will be pushed through with great rapidity that the town's best interests may not suffer.

The new bridge is almost completed. It is of reinforced concrete and has five piers and six arches in all. It is 700 feet in length and has 1200 feet of lineal fill. At present a special pouring of cement is going into the walls to support the arches. The Salt Lake Railway will have right of way on the north side of the bridge, the automobile road on the south side, and there will be a walk to the south of the automobile road.

A fork goes off from the main road of Pasadena avenue, to the Arroyo Verde drive, to connect the present road with the new one. There remains now but the finishing work, the closing up of the fills, the grading of the roads, the making of fences and general cleaning up. The early completion of this bridge, the proposed new short line of the Pacific Electric, which comes out of the hills at this point, and the paving of Pasadena avenue and Mission street to Fair Oaks avenue, means a new era for the Lincoln Park section of the city, and will prove a strong incentive for the sale of lots as well as for building construction.

The O. Hibbard Company reports the following recent sales: William Dodge of Pasadena to Frank Graham of Los Angeles, 45x115 feet, on Oak street, between Fair Oaks and Mound avenue, with six-room bungalow; reported consideration, $3800. L. Keck of this city to William Dodge of Pasadena, 50x150 feet, on Elm avenue between Marengo and Garfield avenues; consideration, $1200.

Emma L. Davenport of this city has let the contract to the Milwaukee Building Company of Los Angeles for the erection of a seven-room frame bungalow on Marengo avenue, near Monterey road, to cost $3031.

BUYS FINE GROVE.

ADDS TO HOLDINGS.

AZUSA, May 4.—V. M. Greever has bought of Charles Robinson an orange grove of eleven and a quarter acres between Ceritos and Orange avenues, just southeast of town. The trees, partly navels and partly Valencias, are in full bearing. The grove adjoins one previously owned by Greever, the two together comprising twenty-five acres, and forming one of the finest properties in the valley. The consideration was $25,000.

Charles Robinson has bought, through the Case Realty Company, four lots belonging to Mrs. J. W. Calvert on San Gabriel avenue, between Center and Sixth streets, for $1200. He has already given the contract for a five-room bungalow.

OPENING UP AVENUE.

The opening up of Montana avenue and its development into a wide, smooth and high boulevard passing Ethelwyn Manor, will shortly make this another of the famous auto driveways in the Santa Monica district. Ethelwyn Manor lies south of San Vicente boulevard, in a picturesque section of rolling land. Around it good roads and highways are traveled by hundreds of motorists daily, on their way to the beaches and palisades. Montana avenue will form an added link in the series of speedways. On the lands, Robert Marsh & Co. are developing an excellent water supply for domestic and gardening purposes. The pumping plants are to be uniquely picturesque in their design and will be beauty places rather than eye sores. Many new bungalows are planned for this tract, which is now surrounded by costly homes on expensive sites.

PLAN FIFTH THEATER.

The Globe Amusement Company, incorporated a short time ago for the purpose of building and operating a circuit of suburban theaters, has just completed a contract on the basis of a long-time lease with Luke Kelley of San Pedro, who will build for the company a $55,000 theater, to be known as the Globe Theater No. 5. This building will be one of the most pretentious of the port section, and will be situated at Palos Verdes and Sixth streets. The second story of the building will be occupied by large rooms. The front of the house will be arched and constructed of selected Italian marble with stucco trimmings. The surmounting dome will carry a revolving searchlight, which is typical of the Globe Amusement Company's theaters. This company is at present operating the Globe Theater No. 1 at Fifth and Los Angeles streets, and has in process of construction houses on Central avenue near Jefferson, at Sunset boulevard and Echo Park avenues, and on Main street near Eighteenth.

SITE CLEARED FOR HOTED.

Work to Be Started Soon on Fine North Beach Improvements—Trolley Promoters Ask for Franchise.

SANTA MONICA, May 4.—The ground is being cleared and it is expected that work will soon be started on the construction of a new hotel and bathhouse on the strand at the foot of Colorado avenue. The plans for the bathhouse show that preparations are to be made for the entertainment of future crowds that may seek recreation at North Beach. Commodious sun parlors and a bandstand are features of the project.

The week brought forth the formal application of the aerial trolley line promoters for a franchise for the construction of a line eastward through the city on Fremont avenue. It is expected that when the time comes for the sale of the franchise at public vendue, there will be two bidders. Both the Fawkes and the Valentine monorail corporations have their eye on Santa Monica. Each desires to operate on Fremont avenue and each desires to build a line from the seaside to Los Angeles.

The shortage of the crop of canyon gravel has made it necessary on the part of the city to make a change in its specifications for street paving. Heretofore canyon gravel was the principal ingredient. In all new contracts crushed rock appears. The rock is brought to the beach from the Covina quarries. This adds not a little to the expense of street paving, but those who are familiar with the materials say crushed rock is not inferior to the canyon gravel. The improvement of Rustic and Santa Monica canyons is responsible for the shortage of gravel. Suburban lots are being platted throughout the canyon and the storm water flow is to be controlled by means of concrete conduits. Many thousand dollars will be spent in this work and the paving of winding drives, in building curbs of concrete, and in laying sidewalks.

The city engineer is preparing estimates for a tunnel to be bored through the Marine-street hill. The purpose of this is to accommodate a sewer main, which is to be laid for the relief of the rapidly-developing back country. A bond issue will be required to meet the expense.

All thoughts of building a City Jail in the residence district has been abandoned. The Council is considering plans for a jail, to be built on the city property to the west of the City Hall and adjoining the fire-engine-house on the south.

Among the building permits granted during the week were the following: Elks, for clubhouse, on Ocean avenue, near Fremont, $35,000; C. S. DeBerry, frame bungalow, $1750; W. A. Vale, frame cottage at No. 153 Dwight, $1000; Samuel Heald, residence at No. 2700 Michigan, $1400, and E. Hopp, frame cottage at No. 209 Bay, $1600.

AFTER PILFERERS.

Double rows of rose bushes, planted on either side of the eighteen-mile boulevard that leads through the Van Nuys-Lankershim lands to the new town of Owensmouth, or a total of seventy-two miles of rose hedge, has tempted the cupidity of certain visitors to this upper end of the San Fernando Valley and for several successive nights, early in the week, hundreds of these plants were dug up and carried away. It was found that the pilferers were automobilists and that they were also familiar with different varieties of the plants was evidenced in that they selected only the choicest and rarest rose varieties. At least one party also made away with a number of small cedar deodora, the evergreen trees set out along this driveway. The Janss Investment Company reports that there are now three deputy Sheriffs, mounted on speedy motorcycles, who are watching the boulevard night and day to protect the plants and an extra night force guarding the newly planted trees and flowers through the Owensmouth business center.

STRAWBERRY PARK.

McKenzie & Carter report sales in their Strawberry Park tract to the following buyers: Fred Young, Harry Eaton, E. L. Chapton, Albert Jenrich, G. N. Young, William Behr, Fred L. Letton, M. J. McIlroy, Mrs. W. H. Watts, William Nowell, Edward W. Smith, John Rvan, R. J. Boles, and N. W. Lilly. Several houses are under construction in the tract.

THOM RANCH TO BE SUBDIVIDED.

NORTH GLENDALE TRACT TO BE ADDED TO HOME AREA.

Church Buys Site for Handsome House of Worship—Bond Election to Determine Fate of Proposed Casa Verdugo School—Valley People Want Lighting Plant.

GLENDALE, May 4.—One of the most important real estate subdivisions to e made in this city during the past few months is that of a section of the Thom ranch lying in the northern section of this city. About twenty acres of this land is being cut up at this time, the subdivided section lying north of First street, and between the Pacific Electric line and the Glendale-Eagle Rock Railway. It extends almost to the Verdugo wash on the north. The lots are to be 50 x150 feet in size. Curbing and sidewalks will be laid and the streets are being oiled and graded.

The members of the First Congregational Church of this city have purchased two lots at the northwest corner of Central avenue and Third street, on which they will soon begin the erection of a church to cost about $20,000. It has been stated that work on this structure will be started within a few weeks.

The following building permits were issued during the past week: Victor W. Daniels, story and a half house, Sixth street, near Central, $2000; Eleanor Whittaker, Ninth and Central, one-story dwelling, $1500; H. H. Huff, one-story residence, Third and Central, $2000, and F. A. Aldrich, garage addition, No. 332 Glendale avenue, $800.

The J. J. Canfield property on Brand boulevard, corner of Arden avenue, has been sold to a buyer whose name is being kept secret, the price paid for the property being given at $15,000. This sale was among the most important of the week.

A large unimproved section of land lying in practically the center of Glendale, bounded on the north by Fourth street, on the east by Orange street, on the south by Hawthorne street, and on the west by Central avenue, is about to be opened to the public. The piece consists of an entire block, and is owned by George and Arthur Stepper and S. L. Borthick, the latter having purchased recently a third-interest in the property for the stated sum of $20,000. A street will be cut through the tract to correspond with Hawthorne street. The streets will be graded and oiled, sidewalks and curbs will be laid and shade trees planted. This land lies about one block from Glendale's chief business center.

The following real estate sales were made here this week: S. L. Borthick to Dr. W. Hedges of Missouri, four lots, two on Chestnut street near Brand boulevard, and two on Seventh street between Central avenue and Brand boulevard, consideration, $4000; Mr. Borthick to George A. Lobdin, lot on Orange street, between Fifth and Sixth. Ernest H. Owen from Alexander Mitchell, northwest corner Brand boulevard and Mountain street, $1250. D. F. Fuller has sold three acres on the west end of his property on Kenneth road to R. H. Whitten, president of the Angelus University, who will improve it in an attractive manner. The price paid for the land is stated as being $2500 per acre.

An election for bonds to the amount of $30,000 for grammar school purposes in this city has been called and will be held on May 28. If the bonds carry the money derived from their sale, will be used to purchase grounds in Casa Verdugo, and for the erection of a modern school. An election was held for this purpose a short time ago, but the proposition was voted down, principally on account of the northenders wanting $15,000 for the purchase of a five-acre site at $3000 per acre. This time the people of this newly-annexed territory to the north asked that a bond issue for $35,000 be called, but the school trustees, after carefully considering the matter, cut $5000 off the amount asked.

A circulation of a petition among the residents in the lower end of this valley as to whether or not an election for $20,000 bonds for the establishment of an electric lighting system should be called showed, this week, that those favoring the lights are greatly in the majority. The election will be called next week.

The people of this section have also taken up the matter of a public library for their locality. The City Attorney has been notified to prepare an ordinance ordaining that the city acquire, maintain and operate a public library in co-operation with the county free library system. This movement was started by the Thursday Afternoon Club of this place.

Improvement work consisting of curbing, sidewalking, grading and oiling of Cypress street has been completed. Like work on Glendale avenue is being rushed, and similar work is soon to be started on Acacia avenue and Moore avenue. Extensive improvement work is being done by an improvement road contractor at the corner of Central avenue and San Fernando road.

Improvements to the amount of several thousands of dollars in the form of new kilns, new machinery and new buildings are being made by the Western Art Tile Company at this plant, at the southern end of the valley. The operating force of this place has increased threefold during the past three months, and the promise for the future is very bright.

REPORTS ACREAGE SALES.

Sterling W. Banks, manager of the lands department of Aronson, Gale Company, formerly Purcell, Gray & Gale, subdividers of Rancho La Puente, reports the following sales for the week in rancho acreage: Herman Wilson, five acres, $2750; Andrew Stone, five acres, $2625, and George W. Johnson, five acres, $3000.

CARLOS HEIGHTS ANOTHER NEW SUBDIVISION NOW TO BE ADDED.

To add to the already large number of magnificent subdivisions, now in existence in Santa Monica, George I. Hart & Co. of the Trust and Savings Building of Los Angeles, is to throw on the market on the fifteenth of the ensuing month, a subdivision totally unique in its beauty, embellishments and location.

This superb mesa, consisting of one hundred and sixty-four acres, is one of the show places of Southern California. It was originally laid out by Tracy Drake, at present the owner of the Blackstone Hotel in Chicago. He spent $50,000 on its improvements alone, laying out its broad, beautiful macadam streets, and establishing its park and lake.

The park of Carlos Heights is one of rare charm, planted to the most select imported plants, flowers, shrubs and trees, such as the royal Status, Lilies of the Nile, eucalyptus robusta, the lotus, banana palms, bread palms and other palms in their many varieties, hemp, cane, papyrus, the flowering acacia, and scores more.

The lake of this beautiful park, is as placid and clear as a mirror; filled with various types of gold fish, their shimmering forms, reminding one as they dart hither and thither in the clear, blue depths of the water, of so many jewels in a great casket.

Carlos Heights in addition to its many other advantages, has the extra allurement of unsurpassed location, lying as it does directly adjacent to Brentwood Park, overlooking its palatial homes and beautiful parked driveways. On the East Carlos Heights faces the famous San Vicente Boulevard, which just yesterday was the center of world wide attention, due to its automobile races, as it will continue to be each succeeding year. San Vicente Boulevard, as the majority of those familiar with this district know, is in itself one of the highest class automobile thoroughfares, there is in existence. It is centered by the car line, which connects the residents of this district with Los Angeles in forty-five minutes.

This ideal home spot, Carlos Heights, is placed at an elevation which commands a view of the sea from every point, with stately Catalina on the distant horizon, and amethyst link between earth and sky.

Also can be seen from this beauty spot, on one side, the taller spires and skyscrapers of Los Angeles; their minimized forms by day, shaping themselves into a long line of slate gray against the blue of the heavens, by night their thousands of lights becoming another sky of glimmering gold.

WALL OF MOUNTAINS BACK OF CARLOS HEIGHTS.

Back of Carlos Heights, to afford another world of interest and charm to its residents, stand the ever faithful watchmen of the Crescent Bay, the Sierra Mountains. These mountains have not only endeared themselves to the hearts of those of this community, because of their protection against the desert trade winds, though they are largely responsible for the unsurpassed climatic conditions of this region; but they are equally loved for their marvelous beauty.

In the early morning at the first peep of dawn, when Old Sol is just commencing to awaken into life, another day, it is the tips of these mountains that receive the first announcement of the coming King, and blushing crimson at the high tribute paid them, they in turn, reflect back the message to all the surrounding territory. As day advances, and they continue to change their attire, now to emerald, and again to the richest purples or gray, again the spectator becomes enthralled with their unparalleled magnificence.

When Carlos Heights was first planned, it was laid out in lots of from one to two acres each; but Mr. Hart appreciating the fact that seclusion, should not necessarily also mean isolation, has resubdivided the lots, into the more normal sizes of from fifty to one hundred and fifty feet and from seventy to one hundred and eighty feet. He has also put them at prices, that will not necessitate their being purchased by the millionaire exclusively; but at such comfortable figures as $650 to $2500, in which the business men of the less pretentious income, can participate. Every lot is covered, however, with a high class restriction, so that everyone purchasing here can be assured of the fact, that no matter how costly a home they may build, it will never be depreciated in value by poor surroundings.

It is Mr. Hart's intention that Carlos Heights will be a thriving community of happy, contended inhabitants in a very few months, so in order to precipitate this, he is going to offer special price inducements to those who will build within a year.

A most attractive tract office is one of the features of Carlos Heights, this is of applied cement, its rich, rough cream colored surface, lending a striking contrast to the wealth of scarlet and other bloom inundating it.

YIELDS TO LURE.

Charm of Life in Southland Prompts New York Woman to Buy Beautiful Wilshire-Boulevard Home.

A beautiful and elegant residence of the Elizabethan style of architecture, at the northwest corner of Wilshire boulevard and Manhattan place, was sold during the past week by Mrs. Elizabeth Riggs of San Francisco to Mrs. Helen Seymour Sylvester of Brockport, N. Y., who has for the past year owned a fine winter home at Venice, and who has determined to make her permanent home in Los Angeles. The transfer, which was handled through Giles & Kells, managers of the house-and-lot department of the Wright-Callender-Andrews Company, involved a consideration of $27,500.

The house contains eleven rooms and is of brick construction, with cement plaster and half-timber exterior. The interior finish of the first floor is in Peruvian mahogany and weathered oak, while the upper rooms are in egg-shell white enamel. The house contains three baths. The garage is in keeping with the dwelling. The grounds are 75x150 feet in size and are beautifully laid out.

TOWN TAKING SHAPE.

New Industrial City of Torrance Soon to Occupy Conspicuous Place on Southern California Map.

With more than 300 men working in the various gangs at the new town of Torrance, the industrial city is beginning to take shape. Already the huge steel framework for the shops of the Union Tool Company's plant and the Pacific Metal Product Company's factory are nearing completion and preparations are being made to pour the concrete curtain walls.

Ten cars of crushed rock daily are being received for the street work. This contract will be done in sections. The final cost of street work and curbing will be $500,000, with the necessary sidewalk construction, and at the present time the Benton-Pennybaker Company is busy with the first section of the work, which will cost $160,000.

As the overhead construction of electric lines is not complete, the switching of the cars of materials is being carried on by a switch engine furnished the Union Tool Company by the Southern Pacific.

The Dominguez Land Company has also let a contract for placing 2000 acres of its land outside of the industrial section, which is not being improved at the present time under cultivation, and a warehouse for the storing of 800 carloads of potatoes will be finished before the crop is ready for sacking.

At the company's offices in the Title Insurance building a force of engineers and architects are busy with the plans for the $1,000,000 worth of homes that are to be built at once, while Architect Gill is completing the drawings for the big steel and concrete station building that will be placed in the center of the city. Besides this building, which will be of Spanish type, two additional buildings will be rushed to completion at once. These structures will be those for the administrative office of the new city, and for the engineering corps that will be required in the district for the next five years.

Gill has taken up the plan of Frederick Law Olmsted and will lay out the entire building problem of the town. The plan is to make a city with wide open spaces and lawns.

Central California.

BUYERS FROM THE SOUTHLAND

Southerners Big Features in Realty Activities.

San Diegan Pays Record Price for Grove.

Crown City Syndicate Enters Porterville Field.

PORTERVILLE, May 4.—Realty dealings were slow, comparatively speaking this week, although there were several deals of more than the usual interest. There is an apparent dullness now as regards the number of tourists visiting this district, and the chief interest in property for the past seven days has been, as usual on the part of the Southern California people.

Quite the largest deal of the week and one which awakened the greatest interest because of the new record price set by the transfer, was in the sale of the Henry Tromm orchard in the El Mirador foothills, to C. V. Henry of San Diego. This property, which includes a little more than seventeen acres of fully matured navel oranges, was sold for $35,000. This is the highest price paid to date for orange property of this character, in the Central California district. The new owner expects to make his future home on his new orchard, and his plans call for the construction of a fine bungalow home.

I. K. Nash of Ventura has purchased a five-acre tract of land in the Strathmore district from Mrs. W. A. Turney, the property bringing Mrs. Nash about $1500. It is said that the new owner will engage in small fruit farming.

One thousand dollars per acre net was paid by Mrs. Sarah Phillips of Exeter this week for the Jack Hennison grove in the Covita district. There are seven acres of oranges in full bearing on the property. Mrs. Phillips owns an adjoining seven acres and several changes are to be made in the place in the way of development under the new ownership.

PASADENANS BUY TRACT.

Another large deal of the week was recorded when F. T. Billing, W. A. Higgins and J. T. Luck, partners, owning a 1600-acre tract of alfalfa in the Pixley district, sold their property to the Farm Lands Investment Company, an association for land dealers of Pasadena. As the property has been bought for speculative purposes the price at which title passed is not given out. Senator Cattel of Pasadena is the principal owner in the Farms Lands Company, and he is expected to arrive here soon to take personal charge of the development of the property. Several large pumping plants are to be put in and every acre of the property will be put under ditch immediately. The land lies in the heart of the Pixley dairy district, and is said to rank with the best alfalfa lands of Central California.

W. A. McTer of Garvanza has bought forty acres of raw lands lying in the Terra Bella district foothills, the land being the former property of F. G. Teachout. The new owner arrived from the South this week and has put a force of men to work levelling the property in preparation for planting out to oranges. There are already five acres of oranges in the property.

Horace L. White of Los Angeles has purchased twenty acres of land in the Terra Bella foothill district, and has already started the development of the property. The entire tract is to be put out to navels. A number of Los Angeles owners have land in the same locality and have installed a co-operative pumping plant with ample capacity for the land to be covered. L. H. Emery, also of Los Angeles, has charge of the grove.

J. T. Raitt, formerly of San Diego, where he owned a fine dairy property, has arrived from the south to take personal charge of the improvement of the C. C. Ridgway ranch, which he recently purchased in the Woodville-Poplar district. Among the plans for the development of the property are the erection of a model barn, two huge silos, and milking sheds, a fine house, and the importation of 150-head of the finest pure-bred Holstein milkers. Raitt expects to make of the property the model dairy of this district.

GIVES ADVICE ON TREES.

State Forester Offers Valuable Information on Varieties Adapted to Planting in This Vicinity.

Valuable advice about tree planting for residence sections of Los Angeles has been furnished by State Forester C. M. Homans to the Carlin G. Smith Company, in response to an announcement that this company's Du Ray place tract, at the end of the West Adams street extension, is to be improved with native trees and shrubs. The letter of suggestion from the State Forester says:

"I enclose for your consideration a rather lengthy list of trees slutable for street planting in your vicinity. Many of these, if not all, are being grown in Los Angeles or its vicinity. The first list is better suited for wide parking or where the houses are set pretty well back off the sidewalks, and includes the California box elder, California maple, silver-leaf maple, pepper tree, Cocus plumosa, date palms, Phoenix Canarensis, Colonel Grant palm, California sycamore, magnolia, elm, bottle tree and Coast live oak.

"The following species have a somewhat narrower crown spread and would be better adapted to streets where the distance between the curb and sidewalk is rather limited and where the houses are built pretty close to the walk: Flowering acacia, black wattle, hardy catalpa, silk oak, common black locust, camphor tree and madrone.

"The pepper tree, appearing in the first list might properly be placed in the second list as well. I have mentioned a few species of palm, but personally I believe they have no place along streets, unless nothing else would grow. Elm trees are very effective but, unfortunately, their roots are wide spreading and have, in many cities, proved detrimental to sewer systems and water pipes, and may disrupt sidewalks if they are constructed closer than three feet to the tree.

"The trees in the first list should not be planted closer than thirty feet apart and those in the second list twenty-five feet. I believe a better effect is obtained if trees are not planted at the intersection of two streets; but rather ten or twelve feet away, thereby giving the appearance of a small park at the intersection of streets. It has been found best to avoid planting closer than eight feet to hydrants, fire alarm, police and letter boxes. On narrower streets, if the trees are arranged so as not to come opposite each other, they make a better development because more light is admitted and a freer circulation of air is permitted. To secure the best effect only one kind of tree should be planted on a street. This effect is very pleasing. I think you will agree with me on this point if you have noticed any of the streets in Los Angeles where several species have been planted on the same block."

CARPET OF FLOWERS.

Following the plan of another subdivision company to utilize only native shade trees for parking purposes in a residence tract, G. F. Cimiotti of R. A. Rowan & Co., has arranged an unusual scheme of beautification for the vacant lots in Windsor square, on the heights of the Wilshire district. His idea is not only to have unsold lots in this private home park kept green and improved but to have these sites made vast fields of California wild flowers. In accordance with this idea, Cimiotti has secured a botanist who is directing the work of gathering plants and seeds of mountain and valley posies that will be planted in such system as to give continual bloom through a greater part of the year. None of the native flowers that propagate so fast as to become a nuisance by the scattering of seeds will be used.

LIBRARY ASSURED.

During the past week, the Council appropriated $3500 for the maintainance of the Vermont Square Park Branch Library. Building continues active throughout Vermont Square, and New Vermont Square, and the Southwest Land Company report the starting of seven bungalows during the past week, by the following owners: J. F. Minter, south side of Forty-fifth street, between Halldale and Denker; D. W. McLeon, north side of Forty-sixth street, between Harvard and Western; Joseph Schmidt, north side of Fiftieth street between Halldale and Kenker; A. N. Cline, north side of Forty-sixth street, between Denker and Western; C. W. Strasser, south side of Fiftieth street between Kansas and Budlong; O. M. Ekman, north side of Forty-seventh street, between Normandie and Halldale and George F. Miller, south side of Forty-second street, between Gramercy and Arlington.

KENILWORTH ACTIVITIES.

The Edwards and Wildley Company report the sale of three houses in the Kenilworth Tract in Glendale during the past week, as follows: For the California Bungalow Company to Blanche E. Pickarts, lot with seven-room house, No. 1630 West First street, $3500. To Ella C. Welch, lot, improved with six-room bungalow, No. 1638 First street, consideration, $3250. The purchaser was represented by Swank and Letton. For the California Bungalow Company to A. W. Belden, lot, improved with six-room bungalow, No. 1634 First street, price $3750. The California Bungalow Company has commenced contracts for three new houses on Patterson avenue, in Kenilworth, making a total of fourteen houses now completed or under way in the tract.

OUTSIDE ACTIVITY GREAT.

The replatting of the business thoroughfares and blocks of the West Adams tract by Robert Marsh & Company, reveals the present activity outside of Los Angeles, but at its outskirts, by subdividers. When the West Adams tract was laid out and the maps filed with the County Recorder the tract plat was listed as No. 1601. Less than three weeks later with the change in streets for that part of the subdivision laid out for a model shopping center, the replat was numbered 1706, showing that within less than seventeen days there had been recorded maps for 105 subdivisions, all close to the city.

SIX BUNGALOWS STARTED.

Six bungalows at Hollenbeck Heights were started the past week by the Braly-Janss Investment Company. Twenty bungalows have already been finished and sold in this tract within the last few weeks. As quickly as the six now under way have been finished, work will start on a series of ten houses. These bungalows are on Indiana street, or close by. At Putney place, on Long Beach and other carlines, the Braly-Janss Company reports the sale of many new bungalows. Seventy lots in that neighborhood were purchased some months ago by the company.

RISK'S WRITER'S CRAMP.

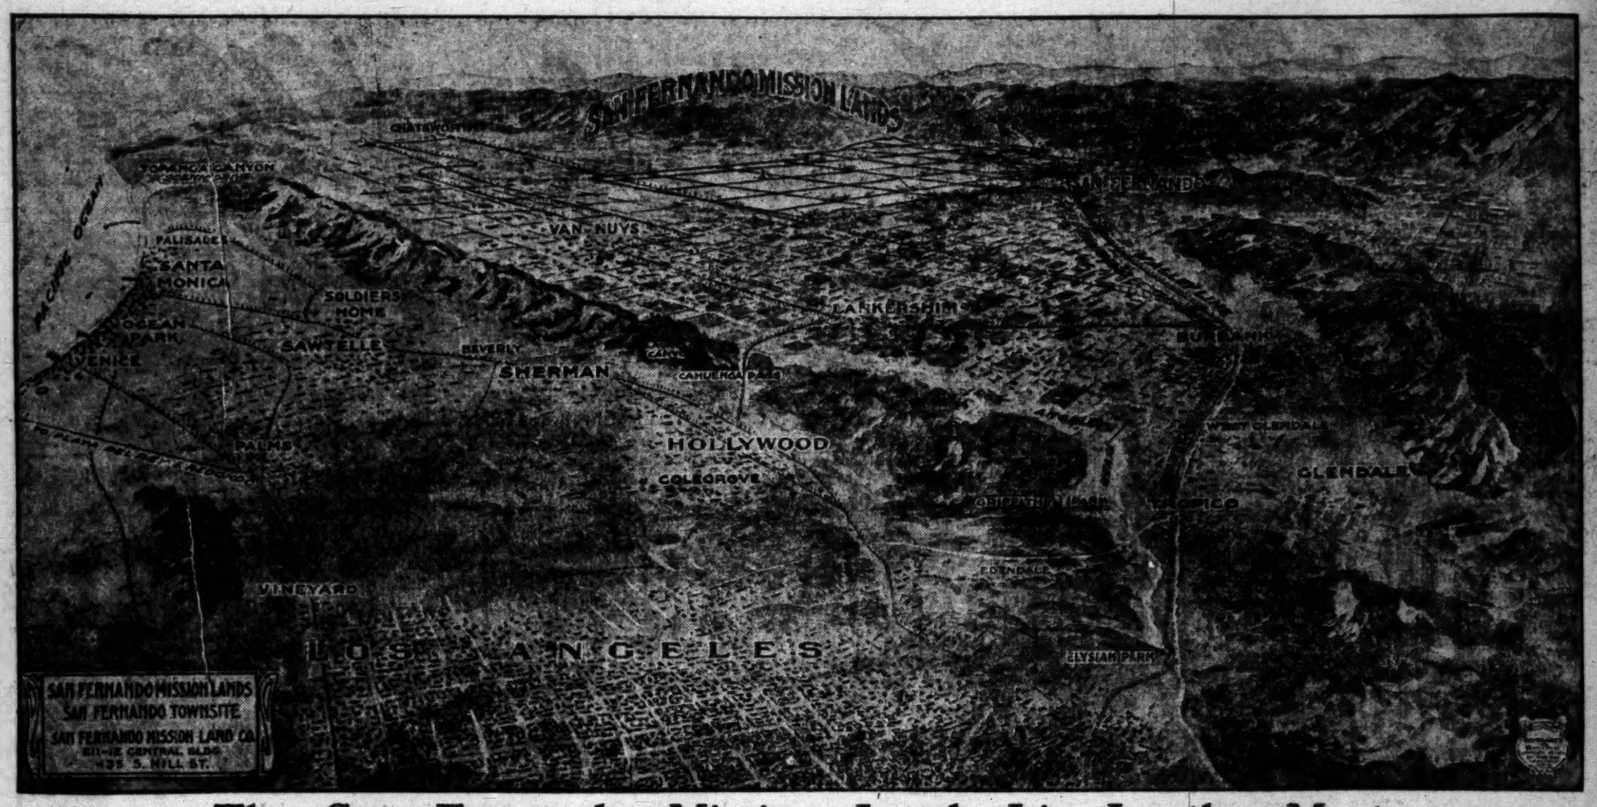
George Derby, treasurer of the Los Angeles Investment Company, is engaged in the task of signing his name to over 12,000 checks, comprising the quarterly dividend declared May 1 and payable May 1 to the stockholders of th ecompany. The checks are prepared for signature by a wonderful machine that pastes them together in series of six and under the manipulation of two young women whirls them out all properly made out with name and amount and address of the recipient. The present dividend amounts to more than $200,000, it is stated by officials of the company.

PLANS FOR FOOTHILL HOME.

W. B. Glidden, wealthy manufacturer and designer of silverware, has purchased a picturesque lot at Beachwood, in the Hollywood foothills and will at once build a country home to cost $25,000. Two other lots were bought for friends. The Albert H. Beach Company report the following sales in this tract: Peter Holmes, Seattle, $1100; G. N. Fuller, $850; E. F. Coombs, $600; S. T. Bartlett, $600; Stewart W. Capen, two lots, $700; Homes Builders, $900; Charles Hope, $1000; William Farnum, $760, and F. H. Post, two lots, $875.

MANAGER RE-ELECTED.

J. F. Wilson has been re-elected manager of the stock department of the Western Building and Investment Company, for which Strong and Dickinson are selling agents. In its first year the Western Building and Investment Company has developed a number of tracts, made big plans for the future and has many hundreds of stockholders.



The San Fernando Mission Lands Lie In the Most Protected Part of the Entire Valley

—That is what makes a great portion of these lands perfect for orange and lemon growing. This protection is what makes the lands frostless, and frostless citrus lands in Southern California are hard to secure, and when such property can be bought extremely high prices are asked.

—Here you have the opportunity to purchase absolutely frostless citrus lands for $450 and $500 an acre. In four or five years time you can have a full bearing grove bringing in good profits and your land will then be worth $2000 to $3000 an acre. One ten-year-old orange grove in this tract is held at $3000 an acre by the owner. A three-year-old lemon grove, thrifty and flourishing, is held at $2000 an acre. Other owners of groves in this tract will not sell at any price. And this will practically be YOUR last opportunity to buy frostless citrus lands so close to Los Angeles at such prices.

—Three packing houses at San Fernando now are busy caring for the citrus fruits of this valley. In ten years time this will be a most important citrus center.

—The San Fernando Mission Lands are only 22 miles from Los Angeles. In about sixty days the Pacific Electric Cars will be running direct to this property from Los Angeles. Besides this two magnificent boulevards will connect the two places—the San Fernando County Boulevard is now completed, the other one is building.

—When the electric cars are running and the many other improvements in, prices are bound to increase. The wise one who jumps in now and invests, will have the pleasure of seeing his property increase in value. A man who bought property from us some time ago, has just invested in 20 acres more at $500 an acre—and he considers it cheap at that price. Another party who has been leasing these lands, seized the opportunity to purchase sixty acres—and he has tested these lands for six years.

—That these are proven, profitable citrus lands can be testified to by prominent men who own groves on this tract. Such men as Mr. Frank Wiggins, Secretary of the Los Angeles Chamber of Commerce; Mr. Stoddard Jess, Vice-President of the First National Bank; Mr. F. B. Wilkinson, Secretary of the California Fruit Growers' Exchange; Althouse Bros., for years the foremost fruit dealers in Los Angeles, California Vegetable Union, and others.

—Other portions of these lands are adapted for the growing of deciduous fruits, every small fruit, berries and nuts and for general farming lands. All of these crops are grown to perfection here and at the least possible expense. Los Angeles is supplied with winter tomatoes from these lands.

Deciduous fruit and General Farming Lands $300 an acre.

Our New Selling Plan

is proving most attractive. As we want to see improvements put in as fast as possible by purchasers, any settler who will spend $2000 or more, according to amount of land purchased, on immediate bonafide improvements, will not be required to make a cash payment for one year. We are selling land that will pay for itself in a short time, we are willing to help purchasers get started, so we make this liberal offer.

See This Property Immediately

—Come to our offices and our salesmen will take you out to see the property. Our most convincing argument is to show you the lands and the crops. If you have a machine, go out on the San Fernando County Highway Boulevard—a superb ride. See our salesman at the San Fernando office. Or take a Southern Pacific train to San Fernando and go direct to our San Fernando office.

NEW ZEALAND BANKRUPTCY

Colossal Failures of Experiments in Socialism.

The Country Is Hopelessly i the Bonds of Debt.

Deterioration of Citizenshi Is Very Marked.

[Special Correspondence of The Times.]

MILWAUKEE (Wis.) April 26.—After a four months' visit to New Zealand for the purpose of studying socialism as it is practiced in that country, and for the purpose of comparing conditions over there with socialistic conditions in Milwaukee, B. K. Miller, a prominent Milwaukee attorney, has returned home and given his observations.

It will be remembered that one of the excuses of the local socialists for their failure to carry out their platform and put into effect their socialistic ideas was that the "capitalistic conditions" existing here had made it impossible to accomplish their aims in so short a time. It was held that without the ownership of public utilities and of government control of railroads, telegraph and telephone lines, nothing could be accomplished here until they had time to change conditions. Mr. Miller found that in New Zealand the government controls railroads, telegraph and telephone lines, all public utilities, banks and does a life and fire insurance business, but that in spite of all these things the socialistic experiments had proven a complete failure and that the country itself was hopelessly bankrupt.

"Socialistic experiments are a ghastly failure. As a result New Zealand is hopelessly bankrupt. Give them reasonable credit for the property they own (railroads, telegraph lines, etc.,) and the net debt still is so large that I do not see how any sane man can believe the dominion can ever pay it.

"But bankruptcy is not the worst of it," said Mr. Miller. "If a country be improvident it can, like an individual, go into bankruptcy and compromise with its creditors. Socialism, however, has devitalized the people and sapped their initiative. Nowhere else in the world have I seen Anglo-Saxons so casual and inefficient. Bankruptcy and a compromise will not avail.

NEW ZEALAND BANKRUPTCY.

Colossal Failures of Experiments in Socialism.

The Country Is Hopelessly in the Bonds of Debt.

Deterioration of Citizenship Is Very Marked.

[Special Correspondence of The Times.]

MILWAUKEE (Wis.) April 26.—After a four months' visit to New Zealand for the purpose of studying socialism as it is practiced in that country, and for the purpose of comparing conditions over there with socialistic conditions in Milwaukee, R. K. Miller, a prominent Milwaukee attorney, has returned home and given his observations.

It will be remembered that one of the excuses of the local socialists for their failure to carry out their platform and put into effect their socialistic ideas was that the "capitalistic conditions" existing here had made it impossible to accomplish their aims in so short a time. It was held that without the ownership of public utilities and of government control of railroads, telegraph and telephone lines, nothing could be accomplished here until they had time to change conditions. Mr. Miller found that in New Zealand the government controls railroads, telegraph and telephone lines, all public utilities, banks and does a life and fire insurance business, but that in spite of all these things the socialistic experiments had proven a complete failure and that the country itself was hopelessly bankrupt.

"Socialistic experiments are a ghastly failure. As a result New Zealand is hopelessly bankrupt. Give them reasonable credit for the property they own (railroads, telegraph lines, etc.) and the net debt still is so large that I do not see how any sane man can believe the dominion can ever pay it.

"But bankruptcy is not the worst of it," said Mr. Miller. "If a country be improvident it can, like an individual, go into bankruptcy and compromise with its creditors. Socialism, however, has devitalized the people and sapped their initiative. Nowhere else in the world have I seen Anglo-Saxons so casual and inefficient. Bankruptcy and a compromise will not avail.

"In one town, laborers were digging a ditch, one of the simplest and safest forms of labor I know of. The pay was ten shillings (say $2.45) a day of eight hours. If the place were damp they got an additional shilling (say 24 cents.) So far as I could judge the laborers were doing about half the work which would be required in a like time in America, England or Canada. Similar conditions prevailed all over the country.

"Several years ago I became interested in the progress of these experiments. After two years of close study I was half convinced that they had proved successful. Then I visited the country. The conclusions I then reached have not been changed by my present visit.

"The country has been socialized about as much as it can be. The government owns the railroads, telegraph and telephone lines. It issues life and fire insurance policies. It runs banks. Yet it is hopelessly in debt. Why? Because the government has been inefficient and extravagant. Its life insurance, for one thing, has maintained itself. But it has tried so many other experiments that it has had to borrow vast sums to make up deficits and now about 25 per cent. of its income is used in paying the interest on these loans. About one person in five is a government employee.

"Labor unions have been in control and the results have been bad. Capitalistic exploitation is undesirable, but labor exploitation is just as bad. The socialists have long pointed with pride to New Zealand and insisted that in that country they had obtained industrial peace; that strikes and lockouts were forbidden by law and that judicial decisions had taken their place. Just so long as the decisions were in their favor the laborers were content, but lately there have been several decisions in favor of the employers and the trades unions are withdrawing their subscription to the arbitration act and returning to strikes and intimidation.

"The government of New Zealand is like that of England. When the government is beaten on a measure it resigns and a general election is called. For years everything has been in the government's favor, but a little while ago, dissatisfaction with governmental extravagance became so great that Parliament split exactly even. The Premier, Sir Joseph Ward, of course, voted with the government, which gave it a bare majority of one.

"But this was so close, and was, in fact, a repudiation, that the Premier resigned. It was then up to the opposition to form a new Cabinet. But not having a working majority, without which it can do nothing, it is likely that the opposition will call a general election. Then the people will have an opportunity to express their approval or disapproval of the government's course."

Mr. Miller also visited awhile in Honolulu, where he made interesting observations on industrial conditions there, the oriental problem and the effect the Panama Canal will have on trade.

Not a Mermaid.

[Brooklyn Eagle:] John Searles, policeman, is the humorist of Freeport, and his grand-daughter, who attends the kindergarten class in the Archer-street school, is a "chip of the old block." One day recently the child was kept home from school because of rain. The next day the teacher asked the child for her "excuse," a written slip every absentee must have.

The child did not know of this rule, and when the teacher asked her for her excuse she looked somewhat crestfallen. Then she seemed to have an idea.

"Were you here yesterday, ma'am?"

"Yes. I was here; but why were you absent?"

"Well, I'm not a mermaid yet," she replied.

She was excused.

MAKE WAR ON BIRDS.

People of Porto Rico Eat Everything That Flies, and Even the Unhatched Eggs.

[Washington Star:] Birds, poverty and agricultural depression form the features of a report on wild life in Porto Rico, just made to the Department of Agriculture by Alexander Wetmore of the biological survey, who was sent specially to report on the bird life of the island. Porto Rico has advanced wonderfully since the American occupation, it is declared, her foreign trade having increased about 400 per cent., most of it with the United States, and the total trade balance is in her favor. The plantations are doing better than they have ever before, and the local government has decided to establish a Department of Agriculture.

The insular government hardly knew where to begin this line of work, but one thing was obvious, it was stated, and this was that there was very little bird life in the island, and it was at the same time realized that birds were a necessary adjunct of successful agriculture. The Department of Agriculture here was asked to examine the situation, find out what birds were the scarcest, and to make recommendations for the importation of desirable varieties. Mr. Wetmore, who formerly was a resident of Washington, was selected for the examination.

It was thought at first that the mongoose was principally responsible for the absence of bird life. This bloodthirsty little beast was introduced in the island years ago, about the same time he was let loose on Jamaica. He has cleaned out almost every ground-nesting bird in the island, and many of the birds that formerly built low in bushes. This is regarded as one of the chief evils of mongoose infestation, and is one reason why he is so rigorously excluded from the United States.

But Mr. Wetmore found there was another potent factor in the bird life problem. For years the natives have been the victims of the most grinding poverty, and they have formed the habit of eating any sort of birds they can get. They made no distinction of game birds or song birds. Wherever there is a nest within reaching distance of a road or trail it is robbed. If there are young birds there, well and good. They eat them and, if possible, kill the parent birds. If there is nothing but eggs they will eat them for fear some one else should find them before they hatch.

No bird is safe, from a humming bird to an ostrich. Of course, with an island—and Porto Rico is an island, though a good-sized one—this sort of persistent destruction will exterminate almost anything.

If the natives turned their attention to killing the mongoose as earnestly as they have to killing birds they might even rid the island of this little beast. But it requires a good deal more work to kill the mongoose than to kill the birds, and the birds have to suffer from both sources.

The result on agriculture of lack of bird life, Mr. Wetmore says, is deplorable. He says also that the bird-killing habit is too strongly implanted in the natives either for education or legislation to do much good. The chief hope lies in educating the rising generation through the public schools. He says if the native birds are undisturbed many of the breeds that are not entirely exterminated can be trusted to reproduce, but so long as the natives persistently kill all varieties of birds, there is little use in importing them.

The biological survey has found the same conditions in parts of this country where bird life has been entirely destroyed by the newly arrived immigrant laborers, with the resulting injury to agriculture. This nest-robbing, bird-killing habit seems to be worst among the Italian laborers. It has been found in several places in this country where large gangs of Italian laborers have been brought on construction work that they have absolutely wiped out all bird life.

The local authorities are frequently shy of enforcing the law, as one or two Sheriffs have already been killed when trying to make arrests in the laborers' camps.

Landscape Art in Japan.

[The Century:] Kioto, that city of the soul, is the paradise of lovers of landscape art. For more than a thousand years the greatest gardeners wrought their masterpieces there, and their creations endure. The city, lying in the long, level valley of the Kamogawn, has an admirable landscape setting, the continuous, wooded hills of the east and west coverging and breaking into the foothills of the noble mountain that dominates the north, to form a composition worthy of the greatest of landscape artists.

Along the base of the eastern hills stretches a five-mile chain of temples, monasteries and villas, each with a garden or many gardens within its walls. On the other side of the city there is another such combination of religious and landscape beauty three miles in length. In addition, there are innumerable palace and temple gardens distributed over the level city. One temple compound covers twenty acres, and its eighteen monasteries have many separate garden courts.

How Time Changes Words.

[Kansas City Times:] Owe used to mean "to own, to possess."

Any boy was once a knave.

Idiot once upon a time was applied to a private person who took no part in public life. It is a Greek word, and the Greeks believed that all such persons were foolish; so it has come to mean a foolish person.

Hussy now characterizes an impudent woman, while originally it was a short word, meaning housewife.

A villain was once a slave attached to a farm.

Tyrant once applied to any prince or Governor.

Infant was once synonymous with "speechless."

Substitutes for Tobacco.

[London Chronicle:] There would seem to be no end to the things that can be smoked, though many of them can hardly be commended as substitutes for tobacco. Reports from the Commissioner of Inland Revenues show that tobacco can be adulterated with things as far apart as molasses and lamp-black. Licorice and gum apparently smoke well, and so do such leaves as rhubarb, cabbage and chicory. Then there are honey, moss and treacle, to say nothing of seaweed and powdered wood.

A Bad Habit.

[Baltimore Sun:] "There would be fewer divorces," said "Big Tim" Sullivan, at a banquet in New York, "if men treated their wives with absolute equality. There are too many husbands of Cholmondeley's stamp.

"As Cholmondeley blew the froth from a large glass of beer one evening, a friend said to him:

"'I hear you've had your pay raised, Cholmondeley.'

"'Yes, but it did me no good,' and Cholmondeley drained his glass and pushed it to the bartender for refilling.

"'Did you no good? Why not?'

"'I talked in my sleep,' Cholmondeley remarked, 'and my wife got on to it.'"

Do It Better.

LONDON'S SYSTEM OF STREET WORK.

AMERICAN CITIES HAVE MUCH TO LEARN.

The Thoroughfares of the British Capital Are Repaired by Piecemeal, Thus Causing the Least Inconvenience to Traffic—Many Kinds of Paving Are Used.

[St. Louis Globe Democrat:] "Everything connected with the management of the streets is done better in London than in the large cities in the United States," declared H. Gordon Selfridge, late managing partner of Marshall Field of Chicago, now the proprietor of London's big American dry goods store and an admitted authority on municipal affairs on both sides of the Atlantic, to the writer a few days ago. Later, I quoted Mr. Selfridge's statement to a Londoner. After staring a moment in amazement he said: "Well, all I can say, then, is that conditions in the United States must be deplorable." Subsequent talk with experts made it evident that, although conditions are far from perfect in London, the city has much that it can teach the big American cities.

Londoners declare, as one of their grievances against the powers that be, that the streets here are invariably "hup." It has passed into a proverb, "Come to London, where the streets are always up and consols always down," sang Rutland Barrington in "The Cingalee." And true it is that, go where you will in this biggest of big towns, you will find sections of the road railed off, every here and there, and gangs of men, who always are accompanied by a dinky little shanty, with a brazier in front of it, engaged either in pulling up the pavement (which is mostly composed of wooden blocks), or in putting it down, while all the flood of traffic, motor-omnibuses, motor cars, taxis, cabs, trades men's carts and vans, and costers' barrows, goes by in two thin streams on each side, under the direction of an imperious policeman. Exact official figures are difficult to obtain, those that have been published prove that, in Hammersmith, which is not one of the largest metropolitan boroughs, but which is representative of the rest of the city, the pavements were opened at the request of private companies no fewer than 2336 times in 1911.

It all sounds like uncommonly bad management on the part of the authorities, but it is doubtful if in any other city in the world this matter of regulating interference with street pavements would be managed as well as it is here, considering the handicaps with which the twenty-eight borough councils, which, under the London County Council, are charged with the management of London's 2191 miles of streets, are saddled.

THE LONDON SYSTEM.

The best points of London's system are the way in which thoroughfares are inspected and repaired, the manner in which any really serious interference with traffic is reduced to a minimum and the restrictions that are put on building operations. I found the London officials, as a rule, rather ignorant regarding conditions in American cities and diffident about drawing comparisons with London. They, one and all, seemed to think that when things were pretty unsatisfactory here, it was chiefly due to conditions for which there isn't an effective remedy.

They have practically no control, they state, over the London gas and electric light companies, nor over the Water Board, the municipal department which, a few years ago, superseded the private companies which previously had supplied the metropolis with water. All these bodies, not to mention the Postoffice, which now controls the public telephone service, having power under acts of Parliament to burrow through to their respective mains, which lie directly under the thoroughfares, practically whenever it suits their sweet pleasure. All these statutory companies have to do is to give the borough councils notice of their desire to dig. When possible, a month's notice is required, but the notification may be limited to three days, or an even shorter time, if there is a leakage or other trouble that needs attention at once. Should the borough council refuse to permit any proposed excavation the companies can appeal to the Board of Trade.

"It is this business of the electric, gas and water mains which requires to be got at constantly and which are so laid that they can be reached only by digging down through the roadways, that presents our greatest problem in street management," said the chief engineer of the Holborn Borough Council, in discussing the matter with the writer. "The actual cost of it certainly falls upon the companies themselves, or, rather, upon the consumers of gas, electricity and water, for, of course, we charge the former with the expense of reinstating every roadway which they disturb, but this constant interference with it has a bad effect upon the pavement, makes it difficult and a lot more expensive to keep in repair. There have been endless conferences on the subject, one suggestion being that pavement might be laid so as to be removable in sections, but no practical solution has been forthcoming. Of course, in the case of a new street, there is no difficulty. In Kingsway, for example, and Shaftesbury avenue, which is a comparatively new street, the gas, electric and water mains are laid in subways, which can be reached directly from the surface.

"In repairing the streets," this official continued, "I think we interfere with traffic as little as possible. When a whole street requires relaying it is our rule never to allow a trench to be dug right across the thoroughfare, but to repair half at a time. The necessity for smaller repairs is noted by the Council's inspectors and reported by them to me, and are ordered carried out at once. Comparatively few London borough Councils, by the way, either lay or mend the street pavement by direct labor. In the cases of wood pavements, contracts for a term of years generally are placed with one of the English wood-paving companies, or, in the case of asphalt, either with the Val de Travers or the French Asphal Company, who are notified at once of all repairs needed."

COMPARISON WITH OUR CITIES.

When I appealed to H. Gordon Selfridge and asked him if the streets of London were better managed here than in the United States he said:

"Infinitely! Everything in connection with street management is conducted for better in London than we do it in our cities at home. It is a thing that has impressed me ever since I have been in England, and it seems to be mainly the result of employing one special quality—plain common sense. This first struck me one morning soon after my arrival here, when I started out at 5 o'clock or thereabouts. After having a look at Covent Garden flower market, I strolled about the streets, and one of the first things that I noticed was workmen examining the wood pavement for defects. In some places the wooden blocks had been disintegrated, and these were being replaced with new ones, there and then. It was so eminently the sensible thing to do—before the traffic had worn big holes in these weak places in the pavement. It was the stitch in time! Those repairs cost 50 cents—a fortnight later it would have cost $400 to put the street in shape. In New York, Chicago or any other American city with which I am acquainted, it would have been allowed to shift for itself. We put streets down and let them decay as fast as they will. Our officials are actuated by other considerations than what happens to the public's property. But in London there is an intelligent, honest and unapproachable inspector for every district to see that the pavement is kept in repair. It is the same with the asphalt, though, of course, they haven't as much asphalt here as we have in American cities. They take up a little at a time and it costs a dollar and saves hundreds. Kept constantly in repair in this way, it is only once in years that a whole street needs to be repaired and, consequently, serious interference with traffic is avoided. It is so inordinately simple, just having men to look after things with some interest beyond—well, with interest in their work. The absence of intelligence on the part of public officials at home, or the absence of wanting to do the thing right, is one of the most appalling omissions of public municipal management in America.

"The perfection of the regulation of the traffic here," Mr. Selfridge went on, "often has been commented upon, but it is nothing short of wonderful when you consider that there are three times as many self-propelled vehicles here as in any other city in the world running from 6 in the morning until 1 at night, and that the controling of it is universally good.

CAN'T BLOCK THE STREETS.

"Another point. In London, no builder is allowed, through favoritism, to block up three-fourths of the street with building materials, as so often happens in American cities. When we were building the Selfridge store in Oxford street, we were not allowed to use one inch of the pavement. After we got above the foundation, we were allowed to put up a boarding over the sidewalk, and carry out building materials on that, while pedestrians were passing along, as before, underneath. The fact is that, in contrast to what happens in the United States, British officials are elected by the public, and realize that they are elected to do what is best for the greatest number, and no power or amount of acquaintance will get the richest man or the poorest an advantage that conflicts with the general welfare."

"Yet there is a lot of local criticism of street management here," I put in. "You know, Londoners say, among other things, that the streets are always up."

"Londoners," replied Mr. Selfridge, "complain about what exists here in comparison with what they would like. In other words they compare the present street management with perfection. If they knew how other cities—American cities, for instance were conducted they wouldn't complain at all. I thought of this a few days ago when, while driving through the country, my chauffeur turned around and said: 'This road is in rotten bad shape.' Well, perhaps the road was a bit short of perfection in which most roads in this country are kept, and of the perfection to which it would be brought within a week or so, but it was nothing more. My man was just a representative Londoner. They are extremely critical, and intelligently critical, but so far as street management is concerned they criticise it as compared with the ideal."

MANY KINDS OF PAVING.

London uses more different kinds of paving material than perhaps any other city in the world. Besides wood and asphalt, macadam, granite, flint, tar macadam, gravel, clinker and a special proprietory material, which furnishes what is known as an "iron" road, on account of its imperviousness, all are used in paving the streets of this metropolis. In the Borough of Westminster, for example, there are forty miles of wood paving, twenty-five of asphalt, twenty of macadam, twelve of granite and three described as "miscellaneous." The wood pavement has proved cheapest, and the authorities are well satisfied with it, the square blocks wearing down evenly from five to two inches in thickness in the course of from eight to twelve years, according to the heaviness of the traffic. Oddly enough, there is disagreement between the English and German municipal authorities in regard to wood pavement, the latter declaring hardwood from Australia the only satisfactory variety, while the Londoners declare that Norway deal, pavement, and lasts twice as long. Asphalt is found easier to keep clean properly creosoted, is by far the best and far more sanitary than the wood pavement, from which a dust arises that is said to be a prolific cause of diptheria, but the slipperiness of the asphalt after a slight rainfall is regarded as a serious drawback, especially since the introduction of motor traffic.

The Letter that Made Dollars for Jack

Dear Jack:

Yours of the first inst. received and was sorry to hear that the company you invested in has ceased to pay dividends. I'll tell you what, old man, these bankers and capitalists would not be loaning and investing their money in 5, 6 and 7 per cent. securities if the companies that pay from 17 to 40 per cent. dividends offered an absolutely safe investment.

Daisy and I have been investigating for some time now as to the different investments offered for any one who can lay aside a few dollars a month. We are making a little more than we need now to comfortably live on and have been putting our money in the savings bank, but while it is perfectly safe, the 3 and 4 per cent. interest does not amount to very much. We thought of buying a lot, but Harry advised us not to. He has been paying $10.00 a month on a lot for a long time and says that it keeps him poor paying interest on deferred payments and paying for street work, taxes, etc. and then if he gets a chance to sell it he will have to pay a real estate commission and pay for a certificate of title and all that.

After looking the situation over we decided that the SECURITY INVESTMENT CO. OF RIVERSIDE offers the best investment for our purpose. They make a business of buying and selling first mortgages. Their plan is just this, Jack. Say, for instance, that Mr. Smith sells Mr. Jones a house and lot for $2,000.00 on the following terms: $1,000.00 cash and $1,000.00 in three years at 8 per cent. interest secured by a first mortgage. Mr. Smith would take $1,900.00 for that house and lot if he could get spot cash, so he sells the mortgage he got from Mr. Jones to the SECURITY INVESTMENT CO. OF RIVERSIDE for $900.00, this netting him his $1,900.00 cash. Quite often the Investment Co. has opportunities to sell these mortgages and use the money to buy others with. The policy of the company is to pay a 7 per cent. dividend to the stockholders and carry the remainder to the surplus fund. Of course, the larger the surplus the more the stock is worth.

You remember, Jack, that company that you invested in used to raise the price of its stock about once a month. I found out afterwards that whenever they wanted to raise the price of stock that they would add a few thousand dollars to the price of their real estate. This was mostly pure water. THE SECURITY INVESTMENT CO. OF RIVERSIDE cannot do that. If they have a thousand dollar mortgage today in a month from now that mortgage will be worth a thousand dollars and accrued interest and no more. The surplus of the SECURITY INVESTMENT CO. OF RIVERSIDE represents real money earned and is not made by appraising its mortgages every few months and adding several thousand dollars to the value of them.

We had decided to invest in the SECURITY INVESTMENT CO. OF RIVERSIDE when Dick dropped in to see us. You know he is with one of the banks in Riverside and he advised us to go into it by all means. He says that a great many of the most prominent merchants, bankers and lawyers in Riverside are stockholders in the company.

They sell their stock at $10.00 a share, either all cash or 5 per cent. or more down and 5 per cent. or more per month. Dick is putting in $30.00 a month and we are putting in $20.00 and expect to raise it soon to $25.00 per month, but they will take as low as $5.00 down and $5.00 a month.

Take my advice, Jack, and if you can only spare $5.00 a month start putting it into the SECURITY INVESTMENT CO. OF RIVERSIDE. Your dividends will probably not amount to as much the first year as they would if you invested in some gold mine or some of those companies that pay from 17 per cent. to 40 per cent. dividends, but it is much more satisfactory to know that your dividends will continue to come in year in and year out and not depend upon the sale of other stock to furnish money to pay your dividend.

If there is anything else that you would like to know about the company, write to Security Investment Co. of Riverside, 632 Seventh St., Riverside, and they will give you any information that you may desire.

Sincerely yours, GEORGE.

"More work and thereby more wages," should be the workers' slogan, not "strikes, less work and thereby less wages"—and let enforced recognition of the union and the labor agitator "go hang." There is nothing to be gained by killing the goose that lays the golden egg—otherwise known as the regular weekly pay envelope.

Knew the Real Governor.

[Washington Post.] The late Senator Taylor was fond of telling an incident that happened while he was Governor of Tennessee. Then he was quite irregular in coming to his meals. At times he forgot to come to luncheon. That annoyed Mrs. Taylor very much. One day the Governor came to his midday meal on the dot. Scarcely had he got into the house when his negro body servant came to the door with the information that there were three men at the capitol who wished to see him.

"Tell them, Sam," Gov. Taylor said, "that I shall be down immediately."

"You will tell them, Sam," said Mrs. Taylor, "that the Governor will be there in half an hour."

"Inform the gentlemen," said Gov. Taylor, positively, "that I'll be there right away."

"Sam, the Governor will be there in half an hour," remarked Mrs. Taylor, just as positively and firmly.

"Sam," said the Governor, thinking to end the argument, "you know who the Governor of Tennessee is, don't you?"

"Yes, seh; yes, seh," answered Sam. "I suttenly do. I'll tell the gemmen you'll be there in half an hour."

Labor's Unrest.

STRIKES ON AND OFF AND STRIKES COMING.

IT MAY be taken for granted that T MAY be taken for granted that the participators in the recent for one moment take into consideration the fact that for every one of the workers in the worsted and cotton mills there the capital investment in the mills is $2636. That is what the employers had to first invest and keep invested to enable these workers to earn wages. Here are the census figures to prove this:

Capital invested in manufactures	$79,750,147
Wage earners (30 per cent. in mills)	30,545
Yearly pay roll, over	$13,000,000

There are two sides to every question and in the case of strikes, whether at Lawrence or elsewhere, this side of the capital investment necessary to provide work and wages is always ignored by strike agitators and strikers. "Put yourself in his place" as Charles Reade said in his novel years ago, is never done by strikers when considering (if they ever consider,) the rights and claims of employers. What if thousands of stockholders in the Lawrence or other mills were also to strike, as they have an equal right to do, and withdraw their capital when their investment is in danger of strikes? What then would become of the strikers' work and wages? It is these attacked investments which have given Lawrence a population of 86,000, the increase in the past twenty years being nearly 40 per cent. Yet some of the strikers, urged on by Anarchist William D. Haywood, were quite willing to actually destroy the property represented by these city-building, work and wages-providing capital investments. They did destroy its earning power for some weeks, causing heavy loss to the capital owners—the stockholders in the mills. Low as some of the wages paid in Lawrence comparatively were the fact remains that they are two and three times higher than the wages paid in foreign countries for the same kind of work. As Haywood was prominent in the Lawrence strike, American workers there and elsewhere, who love their country (and there are millions of them) should note that recently in Faneuil Hall this arch-traitor declared that the time is at hand "when the government of this commonwealth must be overthrown." That is rank anarchy totally unworthy of the countenance, let alone support, of any American or other worker.

Wages lost	$1,500,000
Manufacturers' loss	1,500,000
Militia and police pay (Haywood's fault)	300,000
Total direct cost	$3,300,000

It is impossible to figure the indirect and collateral "cost" of the strike, but it was doubtless fully $2,000,000, or a total cost of $5,300,000. Did it pay, even though a more or less temporary wage advance of 5 to 10 per cent. was secured? Like everything else in life labor is subject to the law of supply and demand, and a "forced" raise of wages, or anything else is not a permanent raise. Lots of talk was put out at Lawrence about "all-round extremely low wages," but the Rev. Dr. George Chalmers Richmond of Philadelphia, who personally investigated conditions there during the late strike, says: "In some cases I found skilled operators were making as high as $30 a week. Only in a few cases did I find the wages below $9 a week. This latter rate, $9 a week, was also certified to by F. G. R. Gordon, Immigration Inspector.

Railroad history contains the record of many costly strikes, among which the most disastrous and expensive which ever affected the country were those of July, 1877, and July and August, 1904. The strike of 1877, says the Sun of New York, was caused by a 10 per cent. cut in wages. From the Baltimore and Ohio Railroad it spread rapidly over almost all the northern roads between the Mississippi and New England. The strikers took forcible possession of the tracks at all the principal junctions and prevented the forwarding of any goods and in many cases the passage of passenger trains. Violence ensued and the militia was called out to rescue the railways from the strikers. In the conflicts hundreds were killed or injured. One hundred thousand railroad employees were out, nearly 7000 miles of road were controlled by the strikers, including four great trunk lines—New York system, Erie, Pennsylvania and the Baltimore and Ohio. To make matters worse the coal miners went on a general strike at the same time, which was more determined and prolonged than the railroad strike. The worst day was July 20, 1877, when incendiarism was rampant. Hundreds of cars and other railroad property were burned at a direct loss to the railroads of $10,000,000. By the end of July the strike petered out and on August 1 normal conditions prevailed in both freight and passenger traffic. This big strike closed without any benefit whatever to the strikers, while they lost millions of dollars in wages.

The next month, August, 1877, came the coal strike, centering in Pennsylvania. It lasted through August, occupying thousands of troops. It was ended by an advance of 10 per cent. in wages.

In May, 1904, began the great Pullman Car Works strike at Chicago, which developed into the greatest contest between labor and capital which ever afflicted this country. It was a movement for higher wages. After several weeks it was extended to the railroads, as they refused to stop running Pullman cars. The American Railway Union, under Eugene V. Debs, took command of the strike with the Railway General Managers' Association on the other side. By July 1 railroad traffic had almost entirely been suspended throughout the West and South. As the mails were interfered with, President Cleveland ordered out the soldiers, who camped on Michigan avenue, Chicago, and the Lake Front, in command of Gen. Nelson A. Miles. This action of Cleveland's was generally approved by the country. Similar action at this day under similar circumstances would also be similarly approved, in spite of militant trades unions, I.W.W.'s, Socialists and the like disturbers of industrial peace and industrial progressiveness. After weeks of violence this strike also fizzled out without benefit to the strikers, as do all strikes which have not a majority—a good majority—of public sympathy behind them. Hence the cautiousness as to strikes displayed by such leading labor leaders as are beyond the control of such men as Haywood, Gompers, Debs, Harriman, Tveitmoe, Johannsen, Gallagher, McCarthy and others of that ilk.

Striking has come to a pretty pass—that is, petty striking—when even Sing Sing penitentiary, New York, has three strikes for "more food," as it did on April 24. Judging by the reports the prison warden somewhat favored the strikers, probably as the easiest way out of an internal difficulty, or perhaps, as more likely, it was a case of too many convicts and too few guards.

Now comes the newly-organized Federation of Federations of Railway Employees with a threat from Kansas City (organized there April 22) to put 350,000 railroad men in the West on strike, in sympathy with the strike on the Harriman lines and the Illinois Central. The federation's first act was to send a long telegram of its strike intentions to President Taft, probably in the hope that he will try (which he won't) to coerce the Harriman and Illinois Central lines into a "recognition of the federation (or union)" settlement.

An aftermath of arrests for violence and conspiracy during the late strike is occurring at Lawrence. Haywood seems to be keeping away from Lawrence these days.

The textile strike at New York Mills, N. Y., is being settled without recognition of the union.

Work as an open shop has been resumed in the silk mills at Bayonne, N. J.; 650 operatives have gone back without recognition of the Industrial Workers of the World, with whom the strikers affiliated.

The fifty eastern railroads threatened with a strike of their engineers have a mileage of 50,000 out of the 237,000 railroad mileage of the United States. A strike order would affect, says Grand Chief Stone, 54,000 engine drivers and throw 200,000 firemen, trainmen, conductors and other railroad employees out of work against their own wills.

The coal strike in Bohemia is at an end and the lockout of tailors in Germany ended last week.

All over the United Kingdom there is much rejoicing that the great British coal strike is over. At the same time there is a reported aftermath of suffering because the loss of orders during the strike reduces employment in industries using coal.

One-sided.

FUNDAMENTAL ANTAGONISM.

WHAT UNIONS MEAN BY "COLLECTIVE BARGAINING."

Involves the Closed Shop as the First Step and Is Regarded as a Bargain That Binds Only One Side and That Not the Side of the Labor Unions.

[American Industries:] Half truths are often more unsatisfactory and misleading than actual misstatements. When the Hon. Seth Low uttered his now famous panegyric of Samuel Gompers at the recent convention of the National Civic Federation, he urged employers to recognize the rights of laborers to organize in trade unions as "agencies for collective bargaining." He failed to add that collective bargaining on the part of organized labor is predicated on the "closed shop." In other words the first requisite in any attempt at collective bargaining between employer and employee is that the former must conduct his business on a "closed shop" basis. This un-American and unjust viewpoint apparently meets with the enthusiastic approval of the editor of the Outlook who, in a recent editorial refers to the Hon. Seth Low's address as "an able defense of the labor union." With this viewpoint the Hon. William McCarroll, member of the Public Service Commission of New York, takes issue in the following letter:

March 19, 1912.

Rev. Lyman Abbott, D. D., Editor the Outlook, No. 287 Fourth avenue, New York City.

My Dear Dr. Abbott: It seems to me worth while to call your attention to what appears to me a very important omission in your editorial in the issue of March 16th., on the address of Mr. Low in defense of labor unions and Mr. Gompers. Not having yet seen a report of Mr. Low's address, I do not assume to speak of any more of it than that to which you refer. The statement is entirely misleading in which the attitude towards labor unions of business men and corporations is described as being one of opposition to "collective bargaining." That is only a part and a small part of the grounds of objection, although on that alone there is the substantial practical objection that in too many cases a "collective bargain," when such has been made, has been found to be regarded by the labor unions as a bargain that binds only one side, and that not theirs.

The fundamental reason of antagonism is that the "collective bargaining" on the side of the labor unions involves and is based upon insistence on the "closed shop." The "collective bargaining" is only incidental to that. The "closed shop," in the judgment of those who oppose it, is un-American and, indeed, un-Christian. It involves debarring from employment any workman, however good a mechanic, however excellent a citizen, who is not, and does not choose to become affiliated with a labor union. Besides being wrong and indefensible in principle, the position of labor unions in seeking to compel the "closed shop," often by unlawful means,—plus dynamite,—is an effort of the minority to coerce the majority of American workingmen.

You are doubtless aware of the fact that the membership of the labor unions represents only a small proportion, speaking in the by and large, of the American workingmen; but even were it a large majority, it is intolerable that the freedom of any body of citizens to work when, where or for whom they please, should be questioned or invaded. I do not need to say any more as to the extremities of lawlessness to which the unions have resorted in endeavoring to enforce this. It is but carrying out to its logical end, in a certain sense, the proposition of the fundamentally wrong "closed shop." Until that is abandoned with all its incidental wrongs, it does little good, but a great deal of harm, to defend those who stand for it.

I do not dissent from the opinion that the labor unions have been of great advantage to the workingman, I believe in them. I believe that they have a wide field of utmost usefulness. Membership in a labor union should be an evidence of capable workmanship, industry, sobriety and good citizenship—qualities which are characteristic individually of the American workingman. Such membership should be as much a badge of honor as that in any professional society or association is to the professional man. Happily there are some examples of labor unions of which this is true. Unfortunately it cannot be said to be so in general of the American Federation of Labor. I submit that it would be very much more in the interest of good order and good citizenship and of the labor unions themselves that these useful ends should be pointed out and insisted upon, rather than that defense should be made of those who have been leaders in the opposite direction—defense either by apology for their so-called "mistakes" or by misrepresentation of the attitude of the employers of the country. I do not use that word "misrepresentation" in an offensive sense. I assume it is such only from misconception or from omission in statement on the part of Mr. Low or The Outlook, with both of whom I am happy to be usually in full accord.

When labor unions recede from their present position as to the "closed shop" and stand for the better things which I have indicated, the objection to "collective bargaining" will disappear, and industrial harmony and progress will follow.

Very truly yours,
[Signed] WILLIAM M'CARROLL.

SHIPPING BANANAS.

Much Care Is Needed to Prevent Them Becoming Overripe Before Reaching Home Port.

[New York Sun:] Before the banana reaches the breakfast table or the hawker's van it may journey 2000 miles and pass through half a dozen different hands. The consumer is generally critical and troubles not at all about how, when or where the banana came from so long as it is in good condition and to his liking.

The shipment of bananas twenty years ago was a problem the solution of which the consumer had to pay for, but now he reaps the profit of experience in transportation. Bananas shipped to America generally come from the West Indies, the Central America republics, Mexico or South America, and such great strides have been made in the methods used for their shipment, that as compared with the 50 per cent. loss of twenty years ago from the time the fruit left the banana groves until it reached the consumer's table, the loss is now figured out at a half of 1 per cent. in a special shipment.

With the growth of the banana traffic the banana boats came into being, and a special line of steamers runs to the South American ports solely for the conveyance of the fruit to northern shores. Refrigerator steamers were built capable of handling 150,000 bunches of bananas and special provisions made for their care when on board. Nowadays in boats of five and six thousand tons capacity the facilities for the care of the fruit are unrivaled, and a banana boat is unlike any other steamer. In the holds, instead of having room for a cargo there are partitions extending from the well of the ship to the deck. Along the beams in each compartment are hundreds of hooks. They are used to sling the bunches of bananas upon, for bananas should not be shipped with one bunch touching another.

The fruit is first picked green by the growers and then brought to the steamer in boats. As each boatload is taken aboard the bunches are placed in the refrigerators and slung on the beam hooks a few inches apart. When every compartment is filled, the steamer proceeds on her journey. To every few compartments there is a man in charge whose duty it is to examine the bunches every day and see that they do not get overripe during the voyage. These men have an electric lamp, and, crouching on their hands and knees, they go from bunch to bunch, examining each carefully to see whether there are any signs of decay. Should a banana bunch show any tendency to become overripe it is at once taken down from its hook and brought out on deck to be consumed by the ship's passengers or crew or else flung overboard. Careful note is made of the place where the bunch was hung and a detailed examination made of the bananas surrounding it, for one overripe bunch in the course of a single night is apt to contaminate others unless a careful watch is kept. The watch on the fruit is redoubled when the ship is nearing its destination, for by this time all the fruit has more or less ripened.

Practical Philanthropy.

PENSIONS FOR STEEL LABORERS.

A LIBERAL POLICY OF DEALING WITH EMPLOYEES.

Workmen Contribute Nothing to the Fund and Are Entitled to Benefits as Soon as They Enter the Service of the Corporation, Regardless of Legal Liability.

The pension system of the United States Steel Corporation is the most generous, so far as known, of any concern employing thousands of workmen. The steel corporation's employees contribute nothing to the pension fund. It is a purely voluntary expenditure on the part of the company, which costs the men nothing, not even the trouble of looking after it. A man loses nothing by leaving the service of the corporation because he has invested nothing, nor has he had anything deducted from his wages. It has not crippled and it cannot cripple the independence of the men. An the other hand, the company's plan is far more liberal than that proposed by President Taft for the benefit of civil service employees, or than the plans adopted by some leading railroads. Mr. Taft thinks that the government employees should contribute. The steel corporation asks no such thing. The company has not been in existence very long, and, naturally, the pension system is still in its infancy; but the company is already paying pensions at the rate of $30,000 a month to about 2000 old employees.

While time enough has not elapsed to show the full results of the pension plan, the benefits derived by employees from the company's accident relief plan have been amply demonstrated already. Regardless of legal liability, the men are taken care of when hurt, and in case of death their families are provided for. This voluntary relief is now costing the company $1,500,000 a year without taking into account money spent in providing safety devices. Every improvement of the kind that can be devised is promptly put in use and the company is spending an additional $1,000,000 a year in this way to minimize employees' risk.

As the result of its efforts to prevent accidents, the United States Steel Corporation has in five years reduced the number of serious accidents to its employees occurring in the course of their work, to one-half the number which occurred annually five years ago. This means that there now escape injury each year over 2500 men who would have been killed or injured under the conditions of five years ago.

Five years ago the mills, mines and plants of the United States Steel Corporation were not behind their neighbors in the prevention of work accidents. They carried no casualty insurance, and were corresponding concerned in the avoidance of accidents. Each subsidiary company had its own casualty department striving to deal with this problem; yet in the last five years the serious accidents among those companies have been reduced to one-half their former number. In one company, employing 30,000 men, the serious accidents have been reduced to one-quarter the former annual number. In terms of 200,000 workmen, this means nearly 3000 men a year saved from injury or death.

When this plan was adopted about six years ago, a safety committee was organized, which consists of seven representatives from the leading subsidiary companies. This committee receives all reports of accidents, and investigates all fresh sources of danger and all new safety devices. It awards prizes for the invention of safety devices and other improvements tending to minimize risks, and issues bulletins of instructions to employees and posts advisory notices at the works, its routine work is prescribed as follows:

The safety committee sends to all the mills, mines and plants independent inspectors responsible only to the committee and chosen from some company which maintains rivalry with the plants whose mills are under inspection. These inspectors criticise everything which they consider unsafe and commend all effective safe-guarding. They report directly to the safety committee. The recommendations of these inspectors are considered by the committee and, if approved, are sent to the company concerned with a request for a report in thirty days showing what has been done about them. In the rare cases of disagreement between the inspectors and the plant officials, members of the safety committee make a personal investigation.

In three years these inspectors of the committee made 7000 recommendations—from important matters such as building a $30,000 subway under the railroad tracks to details such as washing the windows of a shop. Of these 7000 recommendations all but 400 were immediately carried out by the companies concerned.

There is no term of probation or signing of agreements for employees preliminary to receiving the benefits of the voluntary relief plan. The privilege of this relief takes effect as soon as an employee enters the service of the company, and this continues so long as the plan remains in operation during his service, and terminates when he leaves the service. This last statement, made with full authority, is also contained in the literature furnished to all employees.

The allowances are liberal. For temporary disablement single men who have been five years or less in the service of the company receive 35 per cent. of the daily wages they were receiving at the time of the accident. Single men of more than five years' service receive an additional 2 per cent. for each year of service over five years. But in no case single men receive more than $1.50 per day. Married men living with their families who have been in the service of the company five years or less receive 50 per cent. of the daily wages they were receiving at the time of the accident. For each additional year of service above five years 2 per cent. is added to the relief. For each child under 16 years 5 per cent. is added to the relief. But in no case this relief exceeds $2.50 per day for married men. Married men not living with their families are classed as single men.

The amount of relief which is paid to employees who have sustained some permanent disablement, such as the loss of an arm or leg, depends upon the extent to which such disablement renders it difficult for them to obtain employment. The kinds of disablement that may occur and the extent to which each interferes with employment differ so greatly that it is impossible to provide any adequate schedule of relief which will be paid in all cases of permanent disablement. Permanent disablement from all capacity to work is entitled to a measure of relief in no case less than the death relief for such a man.

In the case of married men living with their families, who have been in the service of the company five years or less and leave widows or children under 16 years of age, the company pays relief to an amount equal to eighteen months' wages of the deceased employee. For each additional year of service above five years, 2 per cent. is added to this relief. For each child under 16 years, 10 per cent. is added. Payments for death relief may run as high as $2000.

We can cite no other case where relief payments are so generous unless it be when the employees themselves contribute a large part or all of the money so disbursed.

TELEPHONE EVESDROPPING.

An Invention Expected to Prevent Anyone from Listening When Others Are Using the Line.

[Indianapolis Star:] The New England Telephone Company has paid $17,000 for a device that will make it impossible for a third person to listen to a telephone conversation. So old and so universal is the contempt for the person with an ear or an eye to the keyhole that most of us have almost forgotten this trait of human nature, the desire to obtain surreptitious information from the conversations of others. But the telephone companies can testify that it is still a prevalent trait. Indeed, it has given them plenty of trouble in their own organizations, through the proneness of operators to listen to conversations of their subscribers. Its prevalence on the party lines has become proverbial.

One of the telephone solicitors tells of an old lady on a country party line who had obtained a receiver clipped over the head, such as exchange operators use. As soon as her morning work was cleaned up she took a seat with her knitting near the telephone, donned the receiver and listened to whatever might be going on over the line. When remonstrated with she became indignant and declared that if she could not listen to what was going on she would give up the telephone. Not long ago a divorce suit in the local courts arose from the fact that a woman called up her husband at his office and was "let in" by the operator upon a fine flirtation he was carrying on over the telephone with some other woman. So frequently have important business secrets leaked from the telephone wires that people have preferred the telegraph whenever secrecy was an important factor in the transaction.

It is a rather sad commentary on human nature that such precautions have to be taken against the disposition to nose into the affairs of other people, but humanity is still a long way from perfection.

Man Power and Coal Power.

[Answers:] Does anyone realize the power of coal as a worker? A man was set to work to pump as hard as he could all day, and at the end of ten hours it was found that he had done just as much work as a little less than two ounces of coal could do.

Taking all the energy put forth by a hard-working man during one whole year, the same amount of force would be furnished by thirty-six pounds of good coal, or say forty pounds of average coal.

We produce six tons a head of population, and this contains the energy of 346 men working for a whole year.

Of course, even in our best engines the greater part of the working energy of coal is wasted. But even if only one-tenth is turned to account, one and a half cwt. of coal is equal to a man working for 300 days of the year.

A horse can do as much work as ten men, but one and a quarter pounds of coal has as much working force as a horse expends in one day. So that a ton of coal, if we could use all its force, would do as much work as six horses working for a whole year.

BEAUTIFUL GOTHIC CHURCH STARTED

EDIFICE WILL FOLLOW TRUE MEDIEVAL LINES.

New House of Worship of Trinity Parish of Santa Barbara to Be One of Most Imposing of Type in State—Plans Prepared by Crown City Architects.

SANTA BARBARA, May 4.—Construction has been begun upon the beautiful new church of the Trinity Episcopal parish of this city, an edifice which will rank among the most noteworthy erected by the Episcopal denomination in the State. The plans for the structure have been completed by Architects Hubert Frohman and Harold H. Martin of Pasadena, who will also supervise its construction.

The church will occupy a site 100x175 feet in size on Micheltorena street. The building itself will be seventy-four feet wide by 124 feet in depth. The interior height of the nave will be forty-five feet, while the tower will have a height of eighty feet.

Architecturally the church will be Gothic, combining certain characteristics of the geometrical, curvilinear and perpendicular periods of English ecclesiastical designing. A suggestion of the Italian and Spanish Gothic will be observable in the low-pitched tile roof.

The roof of the nave will be supported on arched trusses resting on stone corbels. The ceiling will be open, with heavy oak beams extending from wall to wall. The chancel will have a vaulted ceiling and will be roofed with mission clay tile.

The church will have a seating capacity of 500 and will cost about $50,000, exclusive of the outlay for furnishings. The parish is at present worshiping in a temporary wooden building, which has been occupied since the destruction of the old church by fire about eight years ago.

WOMEN AND DIVORCE.

[The Argonaut:] The progressive women of New York are determined that the municipality shall go into the marriage bureau business, and of course they come well to the front with the usual claptrap about the evils of divorce and the need of a freer communion between the sexes. From what little we know of New York the communion seemed to be very free, indeed, distressingly so, but it will never do to interfere with gushing theories by the introduction of horrid facts. Mrs. Mary Austin is the promoter of the new idea, and while she does not suggest the opening of courtship parlors or the registration of applications from plump widows with a little money and large, loving hearts, or from Christian young men, who wish to marry for revenue only, she does think that the young people ought to be brought together in order that they may quarrel before marriage instead of after. Half the divorces of today are due, says Mrs. Austin—but there, we know what Mrs. Austin says. We know what they all say, and we know it isn't so. Commend us to the progressive woman of today for an unexampled capacity to see what isn't there and to substitute a maudlin sentiment for a concrete, steel-riveted reinforced fact.

We are under no obligation to explain the divorce evil to Mrs. Austin, but our public spirit urges us to do so. We are built that way. Philanthrophy is a passion with us, an obsession. Now divorces are not due to hasty marriages, or to the precipitancy of a number of innocent young people who are inexperienced in the facts of life. Not a bit of it. First of all divorces are due to premeditation and to the firm establishment in our midst of the trial marriage. Young people marry with the intention to be divorced if, or as soon as, they grow tired of each other. They will openly avow their disinclination to buy a home until they know by experiment if they can put up with each other.

But the real explanation of the divorce problem is a deeper one. Marriage is the orderly union of the sexes, and in most of the marriages of today, there is only one sex and that is the feminine sex. The average husband has about as much sex as a parson. As a money-getter he may be unequaled, but as a human man, he is a parody. The woman does not know until after marriage that money has unsexed her husband. Probably she does not know it even then. She does not know why she despises him, why, at the end she can not even endure him. And then comes divorce. We hear a good deal nowadays about the unsexing of the woman. But it is the man who is unsexed, who has allowed nearly the whole of his virility to atrophy, who has abdicated his rightful place in nearly every department of domestic life.

But the question becomes more complicated as we pursue it. It is not exhausted when we have decided why men and women, being married, wish to be divorced. We must ask also, why so many never get married at all and why the element of a cold-blooded calculation has been allowed to invade a field that should be occupied almost wholly by romance and sentiment. The eugenists may say what they will, the silly creatures. We can not damn an act by saying that it is sentimental, but we may glorify it. And it is sentiment and not a comparison of ancestries that is the arbiter of weal and woe.

The Honorable Barbara Wilson has something to say about the decline of the marriage market in the current number of the Nineteenth Century. She is old-fashioned, is Mrs. Wilson, and therefore sane and wholesome. She assumes that women wish to be married, and we know that she is right, however fashionable it may be to talk about independence and the glorious nobility of character which, as all the world knows, is the chief characteristic of the unmarried woman. For women to say that they do not wish to be married is precisely equivalent to saying that they do not wish henceforth to eat and drink, that in future they are absolved from the degrading promptings of nature. All normal human beings, male and female, wish to be married, using that word in its broadest sense. And they will continue to wish it so long as positive and negative electricity continue to attract each other.

Then why do so many women remain unmarried? When Mrs. Wilson says that this is due to "the passing of the chaperon" she means a great deal. The chaperon was the type of the inaccessible, of the mysterious. The chaperon was the high wall set around the garden of girls. The chaperon, while seeming to guard the treasure, was actually the incitement to the assault. She was the prohibition that gave to the fruit its temptation and its lure.

So Mrs. Wilson is in direct opposition to Mrs. Austin of New York. Mrs. Austin is an estimable woman and she means well, but what she does not know about men would fill quite a big book. Her theory is that young people ought to be thrown together and that restraints should be removed so that they may marry and live happily ever after. The restraints now existing are not very noticeable, anyway, but the theory is a pretty one and quite ladylike. On the other hand, Mrs. Watson urges us to keep the young people apart, to enhance the sense of mystery, to persuade the man that there are dragons in the path, and that not by faint heart nor by the mere dropping of the glove can the prize be won.

Women, says Mrs. Watson, are making themselves too cheap nowadays. They are too much on view. They leave too little to the imagination. We are allowed to know too much about them. In their platonic friendships and flirtations they leave no secret of their minds undivulged and in their athletics even their bodies become public property. Naturally enough men will take all that is given to them, but so much is given to them, the demand for feminine disclosures is so amply supplied, that there is no need of marriage. Curiosity no longer exists. Familiarity has bred, not contempt, perhaps, but indifference. The woman does not know, says Mrs. Watson, "that though she has altered, men are ever the same, that the idea of purdah is as strong in the West as in the East. The bride that is desirable is the precious guarded jewel which has not sparkled for others."

Well, it is a good thing to have plain speaking and that a woman should do it. A man would hardly dare to assert that the vast majority of women earnestly desire to be married. It would be opposed to the nasty cant of the day, which would have us believe that women get married only as a means to a living and that they would welcome an economic independence that would enable them to obey the dearest wish of their hearts and to remain single. Mrs. Watson does not argue about the matter. She assumes as an unassailable proposition that all women wish to be married, just as they wish to have their dinner, and she tries to tell them why they find it increasingly difficult. She tells them that they have lost their mystery, that they are too cheap, that their absurd philanthropies, and politics, and cultures, and athletics have rubbed the bloom from the peach.

THE GIANT OSPREY.

They Have Perfect Poise and Majestic Carriage and to the Student Have a Permanent Fascination.

[Country Life:] Travelers in the tropics wonder at the ease of flight of the wandering albatross and the man-o-war bird, but for perfect poise and majestic carriage, it is not necessary to seek further than the American osprey or fishhawk.

Owing to its abundance this bird is not appreciated in this country, and even the visitors to such near-by summer retreats as Atlantic Highlands and Shelter Island must surely have seen ospreys or their bulky nests.

The bird's abundance throughout the eastern range, from Newfoundland to Florida, has resulted in his being looked upon by most people with only common interest, but for the bird student this imposing hawk possesses a charm and fascination which never wane. His nest, flight, hunting habits, all proclaim him a noble creature. Even when harried by the kingbird or redwing he strives to preserve his dignity, pursuing an even course and ignoring his diminutive tormentor.

As a conspicuous landmark the nest of the osprey is second only to that of the bald eagle. Occupying the topmost branches of some gigantic pine, as is often the case, the nest, composed of sticks, sods and a varied collection of debris, affords a lookout from which the birds command a view of the country for miles in all directions.

The osprey has a weight of only about three and one-half pounds, but his wing-spread often exceeds five and one-half feet, making it possible for him to extract from the water and carry off a fish weighing a pound or more. The sight of this great hawk catching his prey is something to be long remembered.

He drifts easily on set wings at a considerable height above some bay or pond, frequently stopping to hover for a moment over a spot where a fish is sighted. But the quarry is either of improper size or sinks at once to deep water, for the bird, after a few powerful wing strokes, sails on, ever scanning the water below in quest of food. Presently he checks himself abruptly, wheels, folds his wings and drops to within some fifteen feet of the surface.

Here he poises for only a fraction of a second to reassure himself, then the wings are drawn close to the body again and in a moment he strikes the water with a tremendous splash. At the last instant the long legs are thrust downward and amid the spray the strong talons grasp the victim by the back. With a few laborious wing beats the hawk rises a short distance, wriggles vigorously to shake off the drops from his feathers and is off on a steady course toward either the nest or some favorite feeding station.

The osprey spends his winters where fish are plentiful—in the Southern United States, West Indies, Mexico or Central America—but toward the middle of March the call from the north and the old nesting site becomes strong, and by the first week in April each pair of hawks possessing a nest in the region of New York is back at the favorite stand.

The birds apparently mate for life and certainly have a deep attachment for their home. Undoubtedly the same pair returns year after year to the same abode, and each spring the hawks repair the nest or increase the size of it by adding more sticks and debris, until, when it is eight or a dozen years old, it is tremendously bulky and weighs upward of half a ton.

She was 800 feet long, of 70,000 tons' displacement, 40,000 horse power, and on her trial trip had steamed at a rate of twenty-five knots an hour over the bottom, in the face of unconsidered winds, tides and currents. In view of her absolute superiority to other craft, a rule of navigation thoroughly believed in by some captains, but not yet openly followed, was announced by the steamship company to apply to the Titan: She would steam at full speed in fog, storm and sunshine, and on the northern lane route, winter and summer, for the following good and substantial reasons; First, that if another craft should strike her, the force of the impact would be distributed over a larger area if the Titan had full headway, and the brunt of the damage would be borne by the other. Second, that if the Titan was the aggressor, she would certainly destroy the other craft, even at half-speed, and perhaps damage her own bows; while, at full speed, she would cut her in two with no more damage to herself than a paint brush could remedy. In either case, as the lesser of two evils, it was best that the smaller hull should suffer. A third reason was, that at full speed she could be more easily steered out of danger, and a fourth, that in case of an end-on collision with an iceberg—the only thing afloat that she could not conquer—her bows would be crushed in but a few feet farther at full than at half-speed, and, at the most, three compartments would be flooded—which would not matter with six more to spare.

So it was confidently expected that when her engines had limbered themselves the steamship Titan would land her passengers 3000 miles away with the promptitude and regularity of a railway train. She had beaten all records on her maiden voyage, but, up to the third return trip, had not lowered the time between Sandy Hook and Daunt's Rock to the five-day limit; and it was unofficially rumored among the 2000 passengers who had embarked at New York that an effort would now be made to do so.

She was the largest craft afloat and the greatest of the works of man. In her construction and maintenance were involved every science, profession and trade known to civilization. On her bridge were officers, who, besides being the pick of the royal navy, had passed rigid examinations in all studies that pertained to the winds, tides, currents and geography of the sea; they were not only seamen, but scientists. CHAPTER II.

Night turns dragged the great mass of mid-stream and pointed her nose down the river; then the pilot on the bridge spoke a word or two; the first officer blew a short blast on the whistle and turned a lever; the tugs tautened in their lines and drew off; deep in the bowels of the ship three great engines were started, opening the throttles of three large ones; the propellers began to revolve, and the mammoth, with a vibratory tremble running through her great frame, moved slowly to sea.

East of Sandy Hook the pilot was dropped and the real voyage begun. Fifty feet below her deck, in an inferno of noise, and heat, and light, and shadow, coal-passers wheeled the picked fuel from the bunkers to the fire-hold, where half-naked stokers, with faces like those of tortured fiends, tossed it into the eighty white-hot mouths of the furnaces. In the engineroom, oilers passed to and fro, in and out of the plunging, twisting, glistening steel, with oil-cans and waste, overseen by the watchful staff on duty, who listened with strained hearing for a false note in the confused jumble of sound—a clicking of steel out of tune, which would indicate a loosened key or nut. On deck, sailors set the triangular sails on the two masts, to add their propulsion to the momentum of the recor-breaker, and the passengers dispersed themselves as suited their several tastes. Some were seated in steamer chairs, well wrapped—for, though it was April, the salt air was chilly—some paced the deck, acquiring their sea legs; others listened to the orchestra in the music-room, or read or wrote in the library, and a few took to their berths—sea-sick from the slight heave of the ship on the ground-swell.

The decks were cleared, watches set at noon, and then began the never-ending cleaning-up at which steamship sailors put in so much of their time. Headed by a six-foot boatswain, a gang came aft on the starboard side, with paint-buckets and brushes, and distributed themselves along the rail.

"Davits an' stanchions, men—never mind the rail," said the boatswain. "Ladies, better move your chairs back a little. Rowland, climb down out o' that—you'll be overboard. Take a ventilator—no, you'll spill paint—put your bucket away an' get some sandpaper from the yeoman. Work inboard till you get it out o' you."

The sailor addressed—a slight-built man of about 30, black-bearded and bronzed to the semblance of healthy vigor, but watery-eyed and unsteady of movement — came down from the rail and shambled forward with his bucket. As he reached the group of ladies to whom the boatswain had spoken, his gaze rested on one—a sunny-haired young woman with the blue of the sea in her eyes—who had arisen at his approach. He started, turned aside as if to avoid her, and raising his hand in an embarrassed half-salute, passed on. Out of the boatswain's sight he leaned against the deck-house and panted, while he held his hand to his breast.

"What is it?" he muttered, wearily; "whisky, nerves, or the dying flutter of a starved love. Five years, now—and a look from her eyes can stop the blood in my veins—can bring back all the heart-hunger and helplessness that leads a man to insanity—or this." He looked at his trembling hand, all seamed and tar-stained, passed on forward and returned with the sand-paper.

The young woman had been equally affected by the meeting. An expression of mingled surprise and terror had come to her pretty, but rather weak, face; and with acknowledging his half salute, she had caught up a little child from the deck behind her, and turning into the saloon door, hurried to the library, where she sank into a chair beside a military-looking gentleman, who glanced up from a book and remarked: "Seen the sea-serpent, Myra, or the Flying Dutchman? What's up?"

"Oh, George—no," she answered in agitated tones. "John Rowland is here—Lieut. Rowland. I've just seen him—he is so changed—he tried to speak to me."

"Who—that troublesome flame of yours? I never met him, you know, and you haven't told me much about him. What is he—first cabin?"

"No; he seems to be a common sailor; he is working, and is dressed in old clothes—all dirty. And such a dissipated face, too. He seems to have fallen—so low. And it is all since—"

"Since you soured on him? Well, it is no fault of yours, dear. If a man has it in him he'll go to the dogs, anyhow. How is his sense of injury? Has he a grievance or a grudge? You're badly upset. What did he say?"

"I don't know—he said nothing—I've always been afraid of him. I've met him three times since then, and he puts such a frightful look in his eyes—and he was so violent, and headstrong, and so terribly angry—that time. He accused me of leading him on, and playing with him; and he said something about an immutable law of chance, and a governing balance of events—that I couldn't understand, only where he said that for all the suffering we inflict on others, we receive an equal amount ourselves. Then he went away—in such a passion. I've imagined ever since that he would take some revenge—he might steal our Myra—our baby." She strained the smiling child to her breast and went on. "I liked him at first, until I found out that he was an atheist—why, George, he actually denied the existence of God—and to me, a professing Christian."

"He had a wonderful nerve," said the husband with a smile; "didn't know you very well, I should say."

"He never seemed the same to me after that," she resumed; "I felt as though in the presence of something unclean. Yet I thought how glorious it would be if I could save him to God, and tried to convince him of the loving care of Jesus, but he only ridiculed all I hold sacred, and said, that much as he valued my good opinion, he would not be a hypocrite to gain it, and that he would be honest with himself and others, and express his honest unbelief—the idea; as though one could be honest without God's help—and then, one day, I smelled liquor on his breath—he always smelled of tobacco—and I gave him up. It was then that he—that he broke out."

"Come out and show me this reprobate," said the husband, rising. They went to the door and the young woman peered out. "He is the last man down there—close to the cabin," she said as she drew in. The husband stepped out.

"What! that hang-dog ruffian, scouring the ventilator? So, that's Rowland of the navy, is it? Well, this is a tumble. Wasn't he broken for conduct unbecoming an officer? Got roaring drunk at the President's levee didn't he? I think I read of it."

"I know he lost his position and was terribly disgraced," answered the wife.

"Well, Myra, the poor devil is harmless now. We'll be across in a few days, and you needn't meet him on this broad deck. If he hasn't lost all sensibility, he's as embarrassed as you. Better stay in now—it's getting foggy."

CHAPTER III.

When the watch turned out at midnight, they found a vicious half-gale blowing from the northeast, which, added to the speed of the steamship, made, so far as effects on her deck went, a fairly uncomfortable whole gale of chilly wind. The head sea, choppy as compared with her great length, dealt the Titan successive blows, each one attended by supplementary tremors to the continuous vibrations of the engines—each one sending a cloud of thick spray aloft that reached the crow's-nest on the foremast and battered the pilot-house windows on the bridge in a liquid bombardment that would have broken ordinary glass. A fog-bank, into which the ship had plunged in the afternoon, still enveloped her—damp and impenetrable, and into the gray, ever-receding wall ahead, with two deck officers and three look-outs straining sight and hearing to the utmost, the great racer was charging with undiminished speed.

At a quarter past 12, two men crawled in from the darkness at the ends of the eighty-foot bridge and shouted to the first officer, who had just taken the deck, the names of the men who had relieved them. Backing up to the pilot-house, the officer repeated the names to a quartermaster within, who entered them in the log-book. Then the men vanished—to their coffee and "watch below." In a few moments another dripping shape appeared on the bridge and reported the crow's-nest relief.

"Rowland, you say?" bawled the officer above the howling of the wind. "Is he the man who was lifted aboard, drunk, yesterday?"

"Yes, sir."

"Is he straight now?"

"Yes, sir."

"All right—that'll do. Enter Rowland in the crow's-nest, quartermaster," said the officer; then, making a funnel of his hands, he roared out: "Crow's-nest, there."

"Sir," came the answer, shrill and clear on the gale.

"Keep your eyes open—keep a sharp lookout."

"Very good, sir."

"Been a man-o'-war's-man, I judge, by his answer. They're no good," muttered the officer. He resumed his position at the forward side of the bridge where the wooden railing afforded some shelter from the raw wind, and began the long vigil which would only end when the second officer relieved him, four hours later. Conversation—except in the line of duty—was forbidden among the bridge officers of the Titan, and his watchmate, the third officer, stood on the other side of the large bridge binnacle, only leaving this position occasionally to glance in at the compass—which seemed to be his sole duty at sea. Sheltered by one of the deckhouses below, the boatswain and the watch paced back and forth, enjoying the only two hours' respite which steamship rules afforded, for the day's work had ended with the going down of the other watch, and at 2 o'clock the washing of the 'tween-deck would begin, as an opening task in the next day's labor.

By the time one bell had sounded, with its repetition from the crow's-nest, followed by a long-drawn cry —"all's-well" from the lookouts, the last of the 2000 passengers had retired, leaving the spacious cabins and steerage in possession of the watchmen; while, sound asleep in his cabin abaft the chartroom was the captain, the commander who never commanded—unless the ship was in danger; for the pilot had charge, making and leaving port, and the officers, at sea.

Two bells were struck and answered; then three, and the boatswain and his men were lighting up for a final smoke, when there rang out overhead, a startling cry from the crow's-nest:

"Something ahead, sir—can't make it out."

The first officer sprang to the engineroom telegraph and grasped the lever. "Sing out what you see," he roared.

"Hard-a-port, sir—ship on the starboard tack—dead ahead," came the cry.

"Port your wheel—hard over," repeated the first officer to the quarter-master at the helm—who answered and obeyed. Nothing as yet could be seen from the bridge. The powerful steering-engine in the stern ground the rudder over; but before three degrees on the compass card were traversed by the lubber's-point, a seeming thickening of the darkness and fog ahead resolved itself into the square sails of a deep-laden ship, crossing the Titan's bow, not half her length away.

"H—l and D—" growled the first officer, "Steady on your course, quartermaster," he shouted. "Stand from under on deck." He turned a lever which closed compartments, pushed a button marked "Captain's Room," and crouched down, awaiting the crash.

There was hardly a crash. A slight jar shook the forward end of the Titan and sliding down her fore topmast stay and rattling on deck came a shower of small spars, sails, blocks and wire rope. Then, in the darkness to starboard and port, two darker shapes shot by—the two halves of the ship she had cut through; and from one of these shapes, where still burned a binnacle light, was heard, high above the confused murmur of shouts and shrieks, a sailorly voice:

"May the curse of God light on you and your cheese-knife, you brass-bound murderers."

The shapes were swallowed in the blackness astern; the cries were hushed by the clamor of the gale, and the steamship Titan swung back to her course. The first officer had

An Independent Income and a Beautiful Home for the Man with not Much Capital

TEHACHEPI is the best place in California to raise APPLES and PEARS. These fruits have a quick market, an unlimited market and a very profitable market. They will NET the farmer from $250 to $300 per acre.

TEHACHEPI is only 70 miles from Los Angeles, but is nearly 4000 feet higher. Its climate is delightful; its geographical location in the Southland gives it a very mild, short winter—crisp weather—to make apple and pear trees drop their leaves and become entirely dormant, and just enough to make the people who live there appreciate springtime and the change of seasons.

Currants and other berries will yield $600 per acre; cabbage will net $200 per acre; beans and potatoes will net from $50 to $200 per acre. This makes it possible for a man with not too much money to get and own a producing orchard at TEHACHEPI—because abundant and profitable crops can be grown between the rows of trees while the young trees are getting big enough to bear.

TEHACHEPI soil is exceedingly rich and mellow; there is an abundance of water, raised by pumps. There are good railroad facilities; the main lines of both the Southern Pacific and Santa Fe Railways traversing the Tehachepi Valley. Its location, so close to the City of Los Angeles, affords an immediate outlet, at top prices, for all that the Valley can raise.

10-Acre Tracts, WITH WATER, can be had on easy terms, of one-fourth down, and the balance two, three, four and five years, at only 6 per cent. interest.

A Few Hundred Dollars is all that is needed for the first payment, and the products of the land, if it is properly farmed, will take care of the other payments as they fall due. Larger tracts, from 20 acres to 100 acres, can be had on the same terms. All of the lands lie close to the thriving town of TEHACHEPI, which affords splendid school facilities, and is a fine place to live.

It Costs About Five Dollars to personally investigate TEHACHEPI and its advantages. Call at our office and get full particulars.

"The Wreck of the Titan."

not turned the lever of the engine-room telegraph.

The boatswain bounded up the steps of the bridge for instructions.

"Put men at the hatches and doors. Send every one who comes on deck to the chartroom. Tell the watchman to notice what the passengers have learned, and clear away that wreck forward as soon as possible." The voice of the officer was hoarse and strained as he gave these directions, and the "aye, aye, sir" of the boatswain was uttered in a gasp.

CHAPTER IV.

The crow's-nest lookout, sixty feet above the deck, had seen every detail of the horror, from the moment when the upper sail of the doomed ship had appeared to him above the fog, to the time when the last tangle of wreckage was cut away by his watchmates below. When relieved at four bells, he descended with as little strength in his limbs as was compatible with safety in the rigging. At the rail, the boatswain met him.

"Report your relief, Rowland," he said, "and go into the chart-room!"

On the bridge, as he gave the name of his successor, the first officer seized his hand, pressed it, and repeated the boatswain's order. In the chartroom he found the captain of the Titan, pale-faced and intense in manner, seated at a table, and, grouped around him, the whole of the watch on deck except the officers, lookouts and quartermasters. The cabin watchmen were there, and some of the watch below, among whom were stokers and coal passers, and also, a few of the idlers—lampmen, yeomen and butchers, who, sleeping forward, had been awakened by the terrific blow of the great hollow knife within which they lived.

Three carpenters' mates stood by the door, with sounding-rods in their hands, which they had just shown the captain—dry. Every face, from the captain's down wore a look of horror and expectancy. A quartermaster followed Rowland in and said:

"Engineer felt no jar in the engine-room, sir; and there's no excitement in the stoke-hold."

"And you watchmen report no alarm in the cabins. How about the steerage? Is that man back?" asked the captain. Another watchman appeared as he spoke.

"All asleep in the steerage, sir," he said. Then a quartermaster entered with the same report of the forecastles.

"Very well," said the captain, rising; "one by one come into my office—watchmen first, then petty officers, then the men. Quartermasters will watch the door—that no man goes out until I have seen him." He passed into another room, followed by a watchman, who presently emerged and went on deck with a more pleasant expression of face. Another entered and came out; then another, and another, until every man but Rowland had been within the sacred precincts, all to wear the same pleased, or satisfied, look on reappearing. Rowland entered, the captain, seated at a desk, motioned him to a chair and asked his name.

"John Rowland," he answered. The captain wrote it down.

"I understand," he said, "that you were in the crow's-nest when this unfortunate collision occurred."

"Yes, sir; and I reported the ship as soon as I saw her."

"You are not here to be censured. You are aware, of course, that nothing could be done, either to avert this terrible calamity, or to save life afterward."

"Nothing at a speed of twenty-five knots an hour in a thick fog, sir." The captain glanced sharply at Rowland and frowned.

"We will not discuss the speed of the ship, my good man," he said, "or the rules of the company. You will find, when you are paid at Liverpool, a package addressed to you at the company's office containing one hundred pounds in bank notes. This, you will receive for your silence in regard to this collision—the reporting of which would embarrass the company and help no one.

"On the contrary, captain, I shall not receive it. On the contrary, sir, I shall speak of this wholesale murder at the first opportunity."

The captain leaned back and stared at the debauched face and trembling figure of the sailor, with which this defiant speech so little accorded. Under ordinary circumstances he would have sent him on deck to be dealt with by the officers. But this was not an ordinary circumstance. In the watery eyes was a look of shock and horror and honest indignation; the accents were those of an educated man; and the consequences hanging over himself and the company for which he worked—already complicated by and involved in his efforts to avoid them—which this man might precipitate, were so extreme, that such questions as insolence and difference in rank were not to be thought of. He must meet and subdue this Tartar on common ground—as man to man.

"Are you aware, Rowland," he asked quietly, "that you will stand alone—that you will be discredited, lose your berth and make enemies?"

"I am aware of more than that," answered Rowland excitedly. "I know of the power vested in you as captain. I know that you can order me into irons from this room for any offence you wish to imagine. And I know that an unwitnessed, uncorroborated entry in your official log concerning me would be evidence enough to bring me life imprisonment. But I also know something of admiralty law; that from my prison cell I can send you and your first officer to the gallows."

"You are mistaken in your conceptions of evidence. I could not cause your conviction by a log-book entry; nor could you, from a prison, injure me. What are you, may I ask—an ex-lawyer?"

"A graduate of Annapolis. Your equal in professional technique."

"And you have interest at Washington?"

"None whatever."

"And what is your object in taking this stand—which can do you no possible good, though certainly not the harm you speak of."

"That I may do one good, strong act in my useless life—that I may help to arouse such a sentiment of anger in the two countries as will forever end this wanton destruction of life and property for the sake of speed—that will save the hundreds of fishing craft, and others, run down yearly, to their owners, and the crews to their families."

Both men had risen and the captain was pacing the floor, as Rowland, with flashing eyes and clenched fists, delivered this declamation.

"A result to be hoped for, Rowland," said the former, pausing before him, "but beyond your power or mine to accomplish. Is the amount I named large enough? Could you fill my position on my bridge?"

"I can fill a higher; and your company is not rich enough to buy me."

"You seem to be a man without ambition, but you must have wants."

"Food, clothing, shelter—and whiskey," said Rowland with a bitter, self-[illegible] the captain reached down a decanter and two glasses from a swinging tray, and said as he placed them before him:

"Here is one of your wants. Fill up." Rowland's eyes glistened as he poured out a glassful, and the captain followed.

"I will drink with you, Rowland," he said. "Here is to our better understanding." He tossed off the liquor; then Rowland, who had waited, said: "I prefer drinking alone, captain," and drank the whisky at a gulp. The captain's face flushed at the affront, but he controlled himself.

"Go on deck, now, Rowland," he said, "I will talk with you again before we reach soundings. Meanwhile I request—not require, but request—that you hold no useless conversation with your shipmates in regard to this matter."

To the first officer, when relieved at eight bells, the captain said: "He is a broken-down wreck with a temporarily active conscience; but is not the man to buy or intimidate; he knows too much. However, we've found his weak point. If he gets snakes before we dock, his testimony is worthless. Fill him up, and I'll see the surgeon, and study up on drugs."

When Rowland turned out to breakfast at seven bells that morning he found a pint flask in the pocket of his pea-jacket, which he felt of, but did not pull out in sight of his watchmates.

"Well, captain," he thought, "you are, in truth, about as puerile, insipid a scoundrel as ever escaped the law. I'll save you your drugged Dutch courage for evidence." But it was not drugged, as he learned later. It was good whisky—a leader—to warm his stomach while the captain was studying.

CHAPTER V.

An incident occurred that morning which drew Rowland's thoughts far from the happenings of the night. A few hours of bright sunshine had brought the passengers on deck like bees from a hive, and the two broad promenades resembled, in color and life, the streets of a city. The watch was busy at the inevitable scrubbing, and Rowland, with a swab and bucket, was cleaning the white paint on the starboard taff-rail, screened from view by the after deck-house, which shut off a narrow space at the stern. A little girl ran into the inclosure, laughing and screaming, and clung to his legs, while she jumped up and down in an overflow of spirits.

"I wunned 'way," she said; "I wunned 'way from mamma."

Drying his wet hands on his trousers, Rowland lifted the tot and said, tenderly: "Well, little one, you must run back to mamma. You're in bad company." The innocent eyes smiled into his own, and then—a foolish proceeding, which only bachelors are guilty of—he held her above the rail in jesting menace. "Shall I drop you over to the fishes, baby?" he asked, while his features softened to an unwonted smile. The child gave a little scream of fright, and at that instant a young woman appeared around the corner. She sprang toward Rowland like a tigress, snatched the child, stared at him for a moment with dilated eyes, and then disappeared, leaving him limp and nerveless—breathing hard.

"It is her child," he groaned. "That was the mother-look. She is married—married." He resumed his work, with a face as near the color of the paint he was scrubbing as the tanned skin of a sailor may become.

Ten minutes later, the captain, in his office, was listening to a complaint from a very excited man and woman.

"And you say, Colonel," said the captain, "that this man Rowland is an old enemy?"

"He is—or was once—a rejected admirer of Mrs. Selfridge. That is all I know of him—except that he has hinted at revenge. My wife is certain of what she saw, and I think the man should be confined."

"Why, Captain," said the woman, vehemently, as she hugged her child, "you should have seen him; he was just about to drop Myra over as I seized her—and he had such a frightful leer on his face, too. Oh, it was hideous. I shall not sleep another wink in this ship—I know."

"I beg you will give yourself no uneasiness, madam," said the captain, gravely. "I have already learned something of his antecedents—that he is a disgraced and broken-down naval officer; but, as he has sailed three voyages with us, I had credited his willingness to work before-the-mast to his craving for liquor, which he could not satisfy without money. However—as you think—he may be following you. Was he able to learn of your movements—that you were to take passage in this ship?"

"Why not?" exclaimed the husband; "he must know some of Mrs. Selfridge's friends."

"Yes, yes," she said, eagerly; "I have heard him spoken of, several times."

"Then it is clear," said the captain. "If you will agree, madam, to testify against him in the English courts, I will immediately put him in irons for attempted murder."

"Oh, do, Captain," she exclaimed. "I cannot feel safe while he is at liberty. Of course I will testify."

"Whatever you do, Captain," said the husband savagely, "rest assured that I shall put a bullet through his head if he meddles with me or mine again. Then you can put me in irons."

"I will see that he is attended to, Colonel," replied the captain as he bowed them out of his office.

But, as a murder charge is not always the best way to discredit a man; and as the captain did not believe that the man who had defied him would murder a child; and as the charge would be difficult to prove in any case, and would cause him much trouble and annoyance, he did not order the arrest of John Rowland, but merely directed that, for the time, he should be kept at work by day in the 'tween-deck out of sight of the passengers.

Rowland, surprised at his sudden transfer from the disagreeable scrubbing to a "soldier's-job" of painting life-buoys in the warm 'tween-deck, was shrewd enough to know that he was being closely watched by the boatswain that morning, but not shrewd enough to affect any symptoms of intoxication or drugging, which might have satisfied his anxious superiors and brought him more whisky. As a result of his brighter eyes and steadier voice—due to the curative sea air—when he turned out for the first dog-watch on deck at 4 o'clock, the captain and boatswain held an interview in the chart-room, in which the former said: "Do not be alarmed. It is not poison. He is half way into the horrors now, and this will merely bring them on. He will see snakes, ghosts, goblins, shipwrecks, fire and all sorts of things. It works in two or three hours. Just drop it into his drinking pot while the port forecastle is empty."

There was a fight in the port forecastle—to which Rowland belonged—at supper time, which need not be described beyond mention of the fact that Rowland, who was not a participant, had his pot of tea dashed from his hand before he had taken three swallows. He procured a fresh supply and finished his supper; then, taking no part in his watchmates' open discussion of the fight, and guarded discussion of collisions, rolled into his bunk and smoked until eight bells, when he turned out with the rest.

LESSONS TO BE LEARNED FROM TITANIC DISASTER.

"Engineering News" Says Course of Steamers Must Be Moved Farther South to Avoid Icebergs and Reckless Speed in Ocean Travel Ended at Once—Expert Opinion of Scientific Magazine.

IN ALL the annals of shipwreck and marine disaster one can find nowhere a story of a vessel's loss which has so transfixed with horror the civilized world as has the story of the Titanic's wreck, says the Engineering News.

It is not alone that the number who met their death when the great vessel went down far exceeds the number lost in any ocean shipwreck ever recorded. It is because danger and appalling disaster came where they were least expected.

The public has come to regard travel in the huge floating palaces, which ply with almost the regularity of ferry boats between Europe and America, as exempt from the dangers which formerly always beset "those in peril on the sea."

The public has come to believe that these modern marvels of marine architecture were not only so huge and strong as to be able to defy all peril of waves and storms, but it had believed that the division of the hull into water-tight compartments, the development of wireless telegraphy, the frequent passage of ships over a regular route, enabling a vessel in difficulty to receive prompt succor, had combined to eliminate all those other elements of risk which, as the records of marine underwriters show only too well, beset ocean traffic under ordinary conditions.

It is for this reason that the loss of the Titanic, with nearly two-thirds of its passengers and crew, a population equal to that of a small city, comes as a great shock to Europe and America.

That the largest and newest vessel afloat in the world, in the construction of which it was supposed that everything had been furnished which ingenuity could suggest or money could purchase to secure absolute safety—that such a vessel should meet disaster in mid-ocean on its maiden trip is proof indisputable that science and engineering have not yet eliminated risk in ocean navigation.

NO "UNSINKABLE" SHIPS.

In view of the Titanic's fate it will probably be long before anyone will venture to claim for any vessel that it is "unsinkable." Few engineers, probably, would ever have claimed such a thing for any vessel ever constructed. The only really unsinkable vessel was the old-time, wooden-hulled ship, which, under certain conditions, after her ballast had gone, would actually float as a derelict.

The division of a vessel's hull into compartments has, of course, saved many a vessel from foundering after a collision which wrecked the bow. In other cases, as in the wreck of the Republic, it has enabled the vessel to keep afloat long enough to permit the transfer of passengers and crew to another vessel.

Even in the case of the ill-fated Titanic it kept the vessel afloat long enough to permit lowering her lifeboats.

It is well understood, however, by engineers familiar with ship construction that a vessel may have its sides ripped open by a glancing collision with another vessel or with some other obstruction such as ice, thereby opening several compartments at once to the sea. The same result might follow if the sharp point of a reef or other obstruction in shallow water pierced the bottom when the vessel was under way.

Further than this, in any vessel the margin between the normal water line and the top of the hull is such that not many compartments can be permitted to fill before the hull will be plunged so low that water will come over the sides, and it will sink at once.

SAFETY OF BIG VESSELS.

In the testimony of Mr. Ismay, head of the White Star line, before the United States Senate Investigation Committee, he stated that the Titanic was so designed that any two compartments could be filled with water and she would still float, and continued: "I think I am safe in saying that very few ships would float under such conditions."

In the description of the Mauretania published in the Engineering News some years ago it was stated that the vessel was designed for safe flotation with two of the largest compartments full. It appears from this that even with the largest vessels if leaks start in only a few compartments greater than the pumps can handle the vessel is doomed.

Another subject which is bound to be seriously discussed as a result of the Titanic's loss is the relative safety of the vessels of phenomenal size. It may be considered certain that the sinking of the Titanic, taken in connection with the collision of her sister ship the Olympic with the cruiser Hawke, will have a marked influence in checking the present craze for beating the record in size which has taken the place of the craze twenty years ago for beating the record in speed.

PUBLIC DEMANDS LUXURY.

It is well understood that the vessels of record-breaking size, which have been built for trans-Atlantic traffic during the last half a dozen years, have been profitable not be-

The U. S. Government Has Proved These Three Things:

1st. That dates can be grown in the Coachella Valley, which equal the finest Algerian varieties.

2d. That the industry is a mighty profitable one.

3d. That, with reasonable care, there is no reason why anyone cannot duplicate their success.

You Can Benefit By What Uncle Sam Has Learned

This company owns 480 acres of the finest date land in the Coachella Valley. It lies midway between the two government experiment stations there, and is a producing ranch right now, with 350 miners' inches of water developed, and yielding enough in alfalfa, grain, grapes and hogs to pay 8 per cent. in a year.

Several thousand date trees have already been planted on the property. They are thriving. And gangs of men and mules are at work planting other thousands.

An acre of such soil as this, according to the results obtained by the government, should carry 50 date trees. And each date tree should produce 100 pounds of the finest fruit. A yield of 5000 pounds per acre. A total yield of 2,400,000 pounds to the ranch. A yield of a quarter of a million dollars, annually, even if the crop should be marketed at the ridiculously low price of 10c per pound.

You can buy stock in this date ranch, now, for $1 a share, and the money raised by sales of stock will be used to plant more dates and further improve the property.

In this investment, be guided by—first, the results of the Government's experiments; second, the market price of the choicer varieties of dates!

Stock for sale is limited. Also it's going fast. In a month, or maybe in a week, from now none will be left.

Mr. Easterner, are you looking for a home in California? Have you a desire to engage in the attractive pursuit of raising citrus fruits on either a large or small scale? If so, this article will be of interest to you.

To the colonist and homeseeker seeking a location where land may be purchased at reasonable cost and where nature has afforded facilities which assure undoubted success in various agricultural lines, the Orosi district can be well recommended for the reasons herein set forth.

Or to the investor with capital wanting an enterprise which will net him good returns on his money, the new Orosi district presents several attractive features along specific business lines which are worthy of investigation.

The Orosi district is further destined to become an objective point for the tourist and pleasure-seeker, the magnificent national parks of the high Sierras being most directly and conveniently reached from this starting point by a fine automobile boulevard which is under construction.

LOCATION.

The town of Orosi is located about 181 miles north of the city of Los Angeles, in Tulare county, close to the western foothills of the Sierra Nevada Mountains, in the famous San Joaquin Valley.

To reach the town from Los Angeles, one takes the Santa Fe railroad to Cutler Station. Orosi is one and half miles due north of Cutler. The Southern Pacific Railroad may be reached at Dinuba, which place is six miles west of Orosi.

Orosi, however, is soon to be favored with an electric railroad service which will pass not only through the town but also through a large section of the surrounding farming district. The railroad company (known as the Tidewater and Southern,) is a $5,000,000 corporation and is engaged at the present time in building a line from Hanford to Fresno. Thence it will come through Dinuba and Orosi and continue on through the southern portion of the San Joaquin Valley orange belt. Over eighteen miles of this road are completed.

The completion of this railroad system through Orosi will not only facilitate transportation but will give a tremendous impetus to business generally and enhance realty values. Thus it behooves a prospective settler to purchase his land as soon as possible, as the construction of the electric railroad through the district is assured fact and land values in the Orosi section will certainly never be less than they are at the present moment.

IN ORANGE BELT.

By far the largest portion of the Orosi district is in the famous thermal orange belt of the San Joaquin Valley. Here are approximately 50,000 acres of available citrus lands.

Spurs of the foothills jut out onto the level plains all along the eastern side of the country and form a countless number of protected coves and little valleys.

The soil along the base of these hills is of a heavy loam nature. In some places along the hill sides the black "dry-bog" predominates. This is conceded to be the best kind of citrus soil as it contains large quantities of decomposed organic matter which is so essential.

The "dry-bog" land merges into a very rich adobe. This grows a fine orange and the local ranchers do not experience any difficulty in working it if they plow and cultivate the ground in a semi-moist condition.

As one comes out a little from the foothills the country stretches off in a very level plain. Oranges are successfully grown five miles from the hills on this plain. The red iron soil of this part of the district is similar in texture and chemical composition to the well-known Redlands and Riverside orange districts. It produces a sweet, thin-skinned fruit, is very pliable and easily worked.

The red soil extends out some distance from the foothills and generally terminates in a dark clay-loam which finally merges into a light sandy loam as one goes further out on the plains.

This latter soil is especially adapted for figs, peaches, grapes, melons and olives, of which large quantitites are grown. Under the head of general farming, deciduous fruit growing is covered in further detail.

One of the important features of interest to the citrus fruit growers is the fact that the Orosi citrus belt is in that territory of the San Joaquin Valley which produces a very early navel orange. The navels ripen here from two weeks to two months earlier than in some other parts of the State.

The early ripening of the fruit always brings a good market price and as the crop is generally picked before the coldest part of the winter, this condition is a protection against frost.

Another advantage to the citrus grower is that the entire district is devoid of "black scale." This is probably one of the most troublesome pests with which the citrus grower has to contend. This scale cannot survive the dry climate of the San Joaquin and so the growers do not have to fumigate their trees. Fumigation in itself is a source of considerable expense and as it is not necessary in the Orosi district it is an operation which does not have to be added to the expense items for the maintenance of a grove. No spraying of citrus trees is ever done in the district.

WATER CONDITIONS.

Orosi is going to become a first-class orange district on account of the exceptionally convenient conditions which are encountered in obtaining water. The entire country is endowed with an abundance of water in the form of an underground lake, which is being tapped by wells in every locality. The wells range in depth from thirty to sixty feet for domestic use and from seventy to 250 feet for irrigating purposes. Most of the irrigating wells are less than 100 feet in depth. The average life in these wells may be placed between fifteen and twenty-five feet. Gas engines and electric motors furnish the power for pumping plants. Centrifugal pumps are chiefly used.

Passing through the country is a stream from the mountains called Sand Creek. This is fed from the melting snows in the Sierras and during the spring and summer when the creek is high the first water strata on the lands extending for a mile or more on each side of the stream may be encountered between six and ten feet below the surface.

There is also an extensive irrigating ditch system, threading throughout the country. The water is supplied to the ranchers wherever the ditches pass. The supply is obtained from the Kings River a number of miles northwest of Orosi. The ditch system is owned by the land and is maintained at a slight cost to the farmers, tax being levied according to property valuation. The general cost amounts to about 50 cents per acre annually.

Besides the copious water supply from both the underground sources and the ditch system, this district receives an annual rainfall which runs from twelve to seventeen inches. Alfalfa growers receive sufficient water during the year from the rains to raise five or six crops of hay without an irrigation.

TOWN OF OROSI.

Orosi is an unincorporated town, but it is expected that the people of the community will incorporate before long. In the town and surrounding ranching district there reside approximately 1200 people.

In the town there are several mercantile stores which supply all the general needs of the community.

The Citizens' Bank of Visalia has established a branch bank at Orosi and this has proved a great convenience to the local people. The branch bank has also grown steadily since it was established and now holds deposits amounting to $50,000.

There is a hotel with a dining-room in connection where visitors can secure very comfortable accommodations.

The Orosi postoffice serves about 300 families and delivers mail to the ranchers along two rural free delivery routes, one of which is eighteen miles in length, the other about twenty miles.

A street-lighting system is a feature not generally met with in a town of this size. Electricity for domestic illumination is furnished to the homes at a nominal rate by the San Joaquin Light and Power Company. Current for power is supplied the ranchers by the same company.

An excellent telephone system is a convenience enjoyed by both the residents of the town, as well as the entire rural community.

The modern $20,000 brick grammar school building in Orosi is well equipped and many modern facilities for the education of the children are provided. At present the High School classes are held in the grammar school building, but the rapid increase in the number of students will make is necessary for the community to erect a separate High School building in the near future. There are nine teachers in the school and an enrollment of 240 pupils.

Several of the fraternal orders have local lodges and a number of church denominations are represented. There are three church buildings in the town.

A prominent organization in the Orosi district is the Orosi Literary Club. This has a membership of both young and old people. Regular meetings are held at stated intervals, at which entertaining literary programmes are rendered. The entire population usually takes advantage of these entertainments and are present at the meetings.

A Board of Trade is to be organized soon. A number of the most energetic business men are working with that purpose in view.

There is a branch of the Tulare County Circulating Library at Orosi. This is to be found in one of the store buildings. A number of volumes of fiction and current magazines are continually kept on hand. All titles are changed periodically.

REALTY VALUES.

There may be other localities in the State which afford as good soil and water conditions as the Orosi district, but when it comes to the prices of such lands it will indeed be difficult for the homeseeker to secure better value for his money than can be had here. Realty bargains, in every sense of the word, may be purchased in this district at the present time. This country has not been given a very wide publicity in the past and it is only because more people have not heard of it that the real estate prices are what they are today.

It was the Southern Californian who first realized that the country surrounding the town of Orosi is an immense citrus belt. Several large companies were soon organized to buy up big tracts and subdivide them into small farms.

One of the first of these companies was a concern organized in Los Angeles and Pasadena. This company was incorporated at a quarter of a million dollars and adopted the name of the Pasadena Farm Lands Investment Company. The directors came to Orosi and bought a tract of 3000 acres of the best orange land and, after subdividing this into twenty-acre pieces, sold off 2000 acres in the remarkably short time of eighteen months.

The Orosi Orange Land Company owns six and a quarter sections of fine land, or about 4000 acres. This is the remainder of a much larger holding which the company has been selling off very rapidly.

Another concern known as the Sorelle & Sheridan Co. owns 1920 acres of orange lands in the district. This they have subdivided and are selling very fast at moderate prices.

The Orosi Farms Company has been disposing of 3100 acres east of Orosi in small tracts.

Another Southern California syndicate, known by the name of McKenzie-Southerland, purchased 1020 acres north of Orosi last April and will immediately commence to improve the same. It is their intention to do all the pioneering work and sell young orange groves later at their minimum cost.

At Orosi is located one of the best organized and most active realty firms in California. This is the George Biswell Company. In sixty days, between February and April of this year, the Biswell concern sold over half a million dollars' worth of Orosi real estate. To this one concern is due much of the recent development in the section.

Orange lands are running in price from $100 to $200 per acre for good soil with easy water conditions. Some, however, are in more protected locations than others. The average tracts sold are of twenty acres, although some ten-acre pieces are occasionally changing hands. Terms of one-fourth cash and the balance in five years at 6 per cent. interest are prevailing, generally.

The best deciduous fruit lands sell at about the same prices as the orange lands, but most of the deciduous fruit properties have the advantage of being supplied with ditch water.

Mountain lands suitable for grazing and general farming purposes run from $10 to $50 per acre in tracts of forty acres up.

Land suitable for alfalfa growing can be had from $100 up per acre.

GENERAL FARMING.

Besides the culture of citrus fruits nearly every other kind of vegetation is grown. The grape, peach, fig and watermelon crops are gigantic in size.

As an example of what profit may be obtained in grape raising here, one man received $200 to $375 net on eight acres of Malagas for the last four years. He secured from eight to twelve tons to the acre, for which he received $30 to $40 per ton in the open market. These are normal market prices and any other man with as good intelligence could secure the same profit on as good a crop.

On eighty-four fig trees (Asiatic variety,) which were 21 years old, one man received $1046 gross for his crop this year. His expenses were about $70.

There were 2000 boxes of Valencia oranges secured from nine acres of 13-year-old trees, which sold on the trees at 2 cents per pound, averaging $8 per tree and netting the owner $4950 on the entire nine acres.

A nineteen-acre peach orchard produced $5100 worth of fruit last year.

SULTANA.

Three miles due west of Orosi is the town of Sultana. This is a station on the Santa Fe Railroad. The town is composed of several merchandise stores, a postoffice, a grammar school, town hall, a livery stable and a number of homes. There are also a lumber yard and several packing-houses located along the railroad.

Sultana is a shipping point for much of the surrounding country. Last year sixty-nine carloads of watermelons were packed and shipped from this place. The grape crop, however, is the most important, and last season over eighty carloads were shipped. The town is named after the Sultana seedless grape, which grows to perfection in the immediate vicinity.

There has recently been set out a large acreage of citrus trees in this district, but it will take some time for these to come into bearing. The 1911 orange crop sent out from Sultana amounted to about twenty carloads.

The water conditions about Sultana are very good, and realty values here are about the same as those given for Orosi. The town is on the main irrigating canal of the Alta ditch system.

Several persons living close to Sultana have succeeded in growing Turkish tobacco on their ranches. This is a valuable crop, for it is almost impossible to grow Turkish tobacco in any other part of the United States. Repeated experiments in the Southern Gulf States have demonstrated that the weed will not do well there and its successful culture here should in itself be sufficient to warrant an extensive industry being immediately created. This is an annual crop. It does not take a number of years to come into bearing as do oranges and it has netted the local ranchers an average of $100 per acre over and above expenses. There is an excellent market for the stuff.

NEEDS.

There is an urgent need in the town of Orosi for a medium-sized, but first-class hotel. For a place of its location and population, Orosi has a very large number of transient visitors. Present accommodations afforded these visitors are excellent but not nearly sufficient in extent to meet the requirements of as many people who have been coming recently. Nearly every evening strangers in the town have to find lodging in private houses. It will be absolutely necessary in the immediate future to construct a first-class hotel here and it may be to the profitable interest of an outsider to take this matter up in further detail with the local people.

In connection with a hotel should be operated a dining-room; but a clean, well managed restaurant is also badly needed, one where meals may be served at all hours. Orosi has nothing of this nature at the present time. The only eating place in the community is the small hotel dining-room and this is taxed considerably beyond its capacity.

There is nothing in the nature of an amusement place in Orosi. There is a fine opening for a motion-picture show. This would find good patronage from a population of nearly 1000 people. Property in the town is reasonable and a promoter of this kind of an enterprise would not experience great expense in building his own theater, although there is a hall which might be rented for the purpose if this were not desired. Electric lighting current is furnished.

There are opportunities for a harness maker, a furniture store and a plumber.

BOOSTERS.

Among the following names will be found some of the most energetic boosters for the Orosi district. These people are all property owners and will be glad to answer correspondence addressed to them and give further in-

MORE ATTENTION GIVEN INDUSTRY

General Petroleum's Advent Stimulates Drilling.

Pipe Line Plans Forecast Big Cash Outlay.

Would Connect With Newly-Proved Regions.

[Special Correspondence of The Times.]

M'KITTRICK (Cal.) May 3.—The general interest manifested in the development of oil lands on the North McKittrick front and in the area extending for miles in the direction of Lost Hills, has been increased by the advent of the General Petroleum Company, formerly known as the Esperanza Oil Company, which, by the acquisition, through purchase or lease, of large tracts of realty, has indicated a determination to give the properties a thorough test. Camps have been established and preliminary work has been quite active during the past few days. The company is officered by men of long experience in the oil business, and the capitalization of the corporation represents large figures.

The operations will be awaited with interest, and it is hoped that they will aid greatly in demonstrating the importance of the new field.

The General Petroleum Company has so far purchased six tracts of land on the North McKittrick front, and in territory lying between that and Lost Hills, comprising 1540 acres. All of section 3, 29-21 was bought from Mrs. Emily B. Hopkins, of New York, and it is understood, that the price paid was $1250 an acre, aggregating $800,000. The other property secured by the company consists of eighty acres in section 2, 29-21, 320 acres in section 6, 29-22, 100 acres in section 11, 29-21, eighty acres in section 12, 29-21, and 320 acres in section 15, 29-21.

TO PIPE LIGHT OIL.

While no definite announcement of its entire plans has been made by the General Pipe Line Company, of which Capt. John Barneson, of San Francisco, is vice-president and general manager, and Eugene De Sabla of the same city is president, it is expected that they include the laying of a six-inch pipe line for the transportation of light oil from Lost Hills and the Belridge district, through North Midway to Los Angeles.

The company is now putting in an eight-inch line from Maricopa to Los Angeles, and will also lay a twelve-inch gas line from Taft to Los Angeles. The eight-inch line is intended for the transportation of heavy oil. Trenches for the pipe are being made and seventy carloads of the twelve-inch pipe have already been received by the company.

Should the six-inch line be laid to the Belridge and Lost Hills districts it would most likely be brought through the pass between Elk Hills and the country three or four miles southeast of McKittrick, and thence across the McKittrick flats to the area from which it is designed to draw the maximum production that can be handled.

After passing through Elk Hills and the pass referred to, the route would doubtless be to the northeast, directly traversing or bordering upon the properties of several oil companies, some of which have one or more fairly productive wells, and others are preparing to make tests at an early day. The topography of the country is conducive to rapid work, the surface being flat and the soil sandy, so that no delay may be anticipated.

In the event this line is routed through McKittrick it will, in addition to serving the interests of the oil companies on the North McKittrick front, and in the Lost Hills region, emphasize the importance of McKittrick as a point of distribution.

LINE 200 MILES IN LENGTH.

The General Pipe Line Company's line will be 200 miles long and will cost approximately $2,500,000. There are to be twelve pumping stations, and the company expects to transport 24,000 barrels of oil a day through the line. The General Pipe Line Company is composed largely of men at the head of the General Petroleum Company, which, as stated, has lately acquired much valuable property in the Belridge and Lost Hills country. Several rigs have been put up on certain of these tracts, and with fair production from wells soon to be spudded in and others to follow them, and shipments from leases controlled by prospective patrons, it would seem that the line through McKittrick would be kept well supplied with oil.

AT MIDWAY PACIFIC.

Well No. 1, of the Midway-Pacific Oil Company, on section 24, 31-22, which was brought in recently, is reported to be producing about 150 barrels a day. The Midway-Pacific property adjoins that of the Coalinga-Monterey Oil Company. The Brookshire Oil Company is operating on the same section.

The Mahaska Oil Company, whose lease is on section 36, 29-21, this week re-perforated well No. 1, at 1300 feet.

The ground was cleared this week for two new rigs for the Belridge Oil Company, on section 2.

IN SAN LUIS OBISPO.

The first well of the McKittrick Western Oil and Land Company has just spudded in. This company, which is capitalized at $100,000, has extensive holdings north and west of McKittrick, the camp being thirty-eight miles from this city. The principal place of business of the McKittrick Western is San Francisco, and the properties are in San Luis Obispo county.

There are no other oil companies operating in the vicinity of the McKittrick Western, but its incorporators believe the prospects for a strike are good, and they have not only established an excellent camp, but also supplies unusually good equipment.

The active management of the properties is in the hands of P. O. Whittaken, of Bakersfield, one of the best known superintendents in the West Side fields.

MONARCH AGAIN PRODUCES.

Reports from the old Monarch well, the operation of which was resumed recently, by Ira M. Anderson, of McKittrick, after a lapse of several years, the former owners having stopped work after considerable money had been expended on the property, are that the daily production is in the neighborhood of 100 barrels. It is likely that a second rig will be erected at an early day on this lease, which is on section 34, 30-21.

PUTS WELL ON THE BEAM.

The Berry and Kellar Oil Company, put No. 8 well on the beam Wednesday. This well in the McKittrick field, is 914 feet in depth. The company has started work on well No. 4, putting in a new string of 8-inch pipe.

The Reward Oil Company has moved No. 10 rig thirty feet, and will put down a new well.

Santa Maria.

BRADLEY CAMP GETS RESULTS.

ENCOUNTERS OIL IN SHALLOW TERRITORY.

Well Started Short Time Ago Strikes Productive Sands at 475 Feet—Gravity Is Low, and Narrow Stratum May Not Yield Commercial Petroleum.

[Special Correspondence of The Times.]

SANTA MARIA (Cal.) May 3.—One of the most important times in the history of the Santa Maria oil fields occurred last night when the Bradley Canyon Oil Company struck oil at a depth of 475 feet. This well was started only a short time ago and has shown itself different from all other Santa Maria wells from the very inception. It is located only a short distance from Fuglers Point, near the axis of what appears to be a low anticline running from a point between Santa Maria and Orcutt, on down toward Cat Canyon. A comparatively small stream of surface sand was encountered at 180 feet and from that point down to 430 feet, where the drilling has ceased for the present, the hole was carried on without casing. The drill was in brown shale just before the oil stratum was penetrated. This stratum of the sand is apparently about five feet in thickness and may not yield commercial quantity of petroleum. William Wigle, former oilfields inspector for the county of Santa Barbara, is the driller in charge.

The drilling operations were carried on with a rig of Wigle's own invention. He says that an attempt will be made at once to case off the oil stratum and to carry the operations to greater depth in search of thicker sands and lighter oil. The strike of this well undoubtedly means much to Santa Maria's oil industry.

For two years or more past extensive wildcatting has been carried on. Oil men were searching for light oil territory. It seems to have been found on both sides of the Cat Canyon district, that is by the Oil Fields Syndicate well on the John Bell ranch and by the Bradley Canyon Oil Company near Fuglers Point. Mr. Wigle says the log of his well has had no parallel in the Santa Maria fields. It is different in every respect and he believes he will get a large producer in shallow territory.

In speaking of the locality in which the Bradley Canyon Oil Company is now drilling, Ralph Arnold in his report of 1907 said:

"On the ridge north of the central portion of Canada del Gato and extending indefinitely northwestward out into the Santa Maria Valley a mile or so southwest of Gary is a low anticline, the southeastern end of which merges into the almost horizontal northern part of the Gato ridge anticline. At no place along its course is this structural feature well developed, although it appears to be fairly persistent for a considerable distance."

In another place in the report he says:

"Southwest of Fuglers Point, however, there is evidence of the presence of a low anticline, which should yield good returns if penetrated deep enough."

From the results at hand it would appear that this anticline will now be well exploited as local oil men have been pretty busy already and rumors of new land deals are in the air.

The Princess well No. 2 in the Tepusquet resumed operations today and the crew is busily engaged in putting in the 6¼-inch casing. The hole is now 2640 feet deep and Superintendent Grainger reports that the eight-inch was successfully cemented off. The derrick shows the effect of a heavy gas pressure. No. 1, on the Tepusquet, is working on a heavy 4½-inch casing at 3650 feet in brown shale.

The Santa Maria Midway well in the Tepusquet is 3280 feet deep and has a fine showing. It is the opinion of many local experts that this company will soon have a good producer. Palmer Annex A No. 1 is producing about 1400 barrels daily.

Coalinga.

PREMIER WELL TO COME BACK.

Redrilling of Hole Will Make It Produce.

Oilfields Is After Oil of Paraffine Base.

Standard's Success in High Gravity Inspires Others.

[Special Correspondence of The Times.]

COALINGA, May 2.—Well No. 1 of the Premier Oil Company on section 24, 20-15, has been redrilled and preparations are being made to shut off the water above the lower oil sand. The well will be on the producing list again in a short time.

The Canadian Coalinga Oil Company delivered to the Union Oil Company in tank cars, during the month of April, in the neighborhood of 5500 barrels of oil. The production is from the No. 1 well, which many weeks held the center of the stage here by its continuous gushing. The well is now producing about 200 barrels of oil daily.

The California Oilfields, Ltd., has erected a derrick on section 21, 19-15, near the line of section 28, on which the Standard Oil Company reached the Eocene, (paraffine base) oil. The boilers for this rig are being set and as soon as rigged up drilling will be started in view of reaching the newly-discovered oil sand.

The Coalinga Midland Oil Company on section 10, 19-15, will resume operations next month its object being to reach the eocene sand, which was recently encountered by the Standard Oil Company. The Midland well is 1600 feet deep and the formation is very similar to that passed in the Standard well.

The W. K. Oil Company on section 2, has completed two new rigs. They are located on the west property line and drilling will be started soon.

Water has been shut off in well No. 50, of the Nevada Petroleum on section 18, 20-15 in eight and one-fourth-inch casing at a depth of 2700 feet. As soon as the cement is thoroughly set the water will be bailed out and the cement tested.

TO LEAVE FOR TRINIDAD.

The Coalinga oilfield is to lose another of its most prominent drillers in the person of William C. McKnight, who, with his family, will leave Coalinga this week for Los Angeles, thence to New York, where he will embark for the Trinidad Island off the coast of Venezuela, South America. McKnight has contracted with the Barbour Asphalt Company to take charge of their drilling on the island and is settling up his affairs here as soon as possible so that he will lose no time in getting to his new field of operation.

The Barbour Asphalt Company is operating in a large field in Trinidad, and has twenty-five producing wells and quite a number of drilling wells. The property has a good production and the new field promises a good future. Ralph Arnold, who is well known here, is the geologist for the company, and it was through him McKnight secured the situation.

McKnight is well known in this field and has drilled several important wells here. He was superintendent of the Mohawk Oil Company at the time of bringing in well No. 1, which was the first gusher in that part of the field, known as the east side extension.

BLAIR TO RESUME.

The Blair Oil Company after being shut down for the past three months will resume operations Monday.

The six and five-eighths-inch casing was landed at 4309 feet in a tough blue shale formation, and a test showed that the water was shut off successfully.

The four and one-half-inch casing will be put in the well with which the officials of the company hope to reach the pay sand.

READY TO PRODUCE.

Superintendent Dave Beveridge of the California Oil and Gas Company, has just finished a thirty-day job on well No. 1, of that company on section 6. The well, at one time was one of the best producers on the section, and about a year ago, the casing became damaged and about 200 feet of tubing was lost in the hole. The tubing was successfully fished out, the casing pulled and straightened and replaced in the well. The oil stands now in the hole about 300 feet from the top of the casing, and the bailer is being run to clean the sand out of the lower part of the hole. It is expected to be on the producing list again within a week. The well is 2645 feet deep.

Chinamen as Students.

[Popular Science Monthly:] There are today in some of the universities of America and Europe Chinese students who in laboratory work, in physics and other natural sciences are distinguishing themselves even in comparison with western students. The Chinese have a power of application and patience and a capacity for detail that is destined to bring success in scientific inquiry when once they get the background, adopt the method and make the start. The irresistible progress destined to be made by western science in the Chinese empire will surely undermine Chinese faith in the "Book of Changes," which is at the base of Chinese philosophy. Whatever is permanently true will remain in imperishable blocks, but the structure as a whole will fall in ruins, with Chinese ideals pitilessly and irrevocably shattered. At this critical period of the disintegration of outworn forces, what new moral and spiritual ideas are to replace the old in order that the new state of these people may not be worse than the first?

Fine Points About Dress.

[Detroit Free Press:] Miss Elsie de Wolfe, "America's best dressed woman," was talking about the draped skirts of the new spring fashions.

"I heard an Easter anecdote the other day about these new skirts," she said.

"A young wife appeared before her husband in a draped suit of cream-colored cloth, ready for the Boardwalk's Easter parade.

"'How do I look, George?' she said.

"'Fine.'

"'But tell me, George, does my skirt hang even all round?'

"'Yes,' said George, after a close look. 'Yes, quite even.'

"'Oh, dear!' said she, 'then I'll have to go upstairs again. These new draped skirts, you know, don't hang right if they hang even.'"

KOLA NUT SUPERSTITIONS.

Still Used Among the African Tribes as a Pledge of Friendship and Affection.

[Chicago News:] In the parts of Africa where it grows the kola nut is much esteemed by the natives on account of its stimulating and other properties, and it occupies a large place in African legends, as well as in ceremonies and cults. Those tribes have been aware of its power as a stimulant from time immemorial, and it is also used as a remedy for marsh fever and many other maladies. M. P. Guerin of the Paris College of Pharmacy, brings out a number of curious customs in which the kola nut figures. It is used as a pledge of friendship or affection, as an offering to fetich men, and also as money or for paying tribute. In the Bambara and other regions a young man sends a basket of white and red kola nuts to the father of a young woman whom he desires to marry. If the father consents he keeps all the nuts, but if not, he keeps the white ones and returns the red.

The kola tree is much respected. M. Chevalier says that he wished to secure some very fine flowers from a kola tree growing in a small village, but the chief did not dare to allow him before assembling some of the old men and other principal persons, and even then none of them would pluck the flowers. They allowed him to do so, but said that this would bring him bad luck. Among the Bagas a tree is planted at each birth or notable occasion. In the Diorugu region, when a chief goes through the ceremony of naming his child he plants a kola tree, and this afterward belongs to the child.

In the whole of the Soudan region the kola nut is a symbol of friendship, and as it is an article of luxury the act of offering it as a gift is taken as a mark of the wealth of the giver. Eating the kola nut together is a sign of friendship, and it would be a great offence to refuse to do this. Treaties, vows or compacts are made binding in the same way.

Our Embarrasing Language.

[Cleveland Plain Dealer:] Once there was an Ohio girl who had been permitted to spend a year in England just at a critical point in her education.

She was not there long enough to become really British—only long enough to learn to mispronounce a few American words, and to commit homicide on a few bits of American rhetoric. In spite of these things, an American man fell in love with her.

He proposed—she accepted. But she was still a bit coy. When he opened his arms and dashed forward to taste the luscious fragrance of her lips, she demurred.

"No, Billy," she said—"you cannot kiss me on the mouth—yet. But you may kiss me on eyther cheek!"

Billy stared, but did not move.

"Why do you hesitate?" she blushed.

"I'm trying to choose which cheek," he answered.

And then she had to explain that "eyther" not only meant "either" but "each." It was awfully embarrassing, but what could the poor girl do? And it was her own fault.

Substitute for Coal.

[London Daily News:] I have today discovered a substitute for the unobtainable coal. It should be a boon to the worried housewife, and particularly to the poor in a situation like the present. A chunk of salt saturated in paraffin, if it does not give a cheerful blaze will at any rate produce a flame of considerable heat.

For a half-penny one can buy a piece of salt the size of a brick, and the oil is 1¼d. a pint to all comers. The mineral is relatively inexhaustible. It absorbs the paraffin rapidly, and is then placed in the grate and a match applied. Half a salt brick saturated with about a gill of oil will give a good blaze, for half an hour or more. The plan is useful whenever a hasty fire is needed, but it should not be tried with a copper kettle, for paraffin makes a lot of soot.

THE PLAN and THE PEOPLE Behind THE PLAN

The Southwestern Sugar & Land Company is building a MODEL COMMUNITY at MARINETTE.

The Southwestern Sugar & Land Company is the largest business institution in the Wonderful SALT RIVER VALLEY in Arizona. It owns the great SUGAR FACTORY at Glendale, Arizona, and a large area of VERY CHOICE LANDS.

The very CREAM of all the company's land, the very BEST LANDS in the Salt River Valley, are those at Marinette. The company has spent hundreds of thousands of dollars and is spending hundreds of thousands of dollars MORE in giving each acre of these lands the BEST WATER RIGHT in the SALT RIVER VALLEY.

This splendid body of land, lying high, on a bluff, well drained, well protected from frost, lying in even level slopes, and with a DOUBLE water right—is crossed by the railroad. ALL the land is close to the townsite and to the railroad.

The land at Marinette is the only well-irrigated land in the Salt River Valley that can be owned and developed by a non-resident.

The rest of the Land in the Salt River Valley is watered wholly by the Roosevelt Dam, and is restricted by agreement with the government to ACTUAL RESIDENT settlers. The land at Marinette is watered only in part from the Roosevelt Dam, and is NOT RESTRICTED.

TWO HUNDRED ACRES, close in, all good land, each tract as good as any other has been set aside for developement on a MUTUAL CO-OPERATIVE PLAN. The Sugar Company will itself join in this plan.

YOU AR EINVITED to join a million-and a-half dollar company in a mutual development plan which should produce the BEST results, at the LOWEST COST.

You Can Act Quickly And Still Be Safe

The NEAREST of these ten acre tracts is less than three-quarters of a mile (by road) from the main business center. The FURTHEST is less than 1¾ miles by road. All the tracts are equally good.

These tracts will be allotted in the order of choice. The first to say "I'll take one" will have FIRST SELECTION. The second will have the second selection, and so on.

YOU CAN SELECT A TRACT, SUBJECT TO INSPECTION AND UNDER A RIGID GUARANTEE.

Desert Climate and Rich Soil Important Factors

The Salt River Valley is just coming into its own. By the time these orchards and groves are ready to bear, MARINETTE should be famous from one end of the country to the other.

Navel Oranges are RIPE, and SWEET and WELL COLORED three to six weeks ahead of Southern California.

Grapefruits are VERY EARLY and VERY SWEET.

Olives grow nearly twice as fast as in Southern California. Yield heavily and very regularly. An easy, sure crop to raise.

Apricots are ready for market three to six weeks ahead of California. Meet an eager market, have paid as high as $1000 an acre.

Poultry is very profitable. The hens LIVE OUT DOORS the year around. Very slight expense of buildings, maximum results in health and eggs.

The CLIMATE of the Salt River Valley is "eight months of May and four months of summer." The air is so DRY that even if the thermometer goes high in midsummer, you can keep COMFORTABLE.

Glen Airy Place

The moderate priced tract that set the pace for all others in the fashionable West Adams District

The acreage from which GLEN AIRY PLACE lots are made was bought at such an exceedingly low price that we can afford to sell lots today for less money than our competitors are paying for acreage. Our prices include the street improvements, too.

This is the only tract in this now largely advertised section that has miles of cement sidewalks and curbs already in. This tract set the pace for the balance of the others in this district and the only conclusion you can arrive at is that GLEN AIRY PLACE must be a better bargain.

These GLEN AIRY PLACE lots are now for sale at an average price of $500 per lot. Figuring five lots to the acre, this means $2500 per acre. Acreage adjoining GLEN AIRY PLACE is held at $3000 per acre WITHOUT improvements. According to the prices of surrounding property, our lots should bring at least $300 more each, but we wish to encourage a quick sale and will share our profits with the public. That is why we make these prices which you cannot afford to overlook.

Large Lots $300 Up--Easy Monthly Payments, Including Interest at 6 Per Cent

GLEN AIRY PLACE still holds the record for the greatest number of sales of any tract in Los Angeles, and also the greatest number of re-sales within 30 to 60 days at from 100 to 500 per cent. profit on ACTUAL CASH INVESTED. These facts should claim your careful consideration before you make your purchase in the West Adams district. It is to your interest, if you want to make a profit on your investments, to buy where profit is being made, NOT where the profit has all been taken out by the subdivider.

To encourage a quick sale we are willing to cut our profit down. Who gets the benefit? The purchaser.

The reason for the phenomenal success of GLEN AIRY PLACE is that we give the purchaser a chance to make money on any property we sell to him. GLEN AIRY PLACE has made good.

Property well bought is already half sold and in GLEN AIRY PLACE a sale means big profit.

Come down early today and join the crowds looking over the best moderate priced tract in the entire West Adams District. Make sure that you get to the RIGHT OFFICE. GLEN AIRY PLACE is the name of the tract. Take the West Adams car marked "Through Car" to the end of the line. Be sure that you are talking to an authorized representative of this company.

LESSONS TO BE LEARNED.

cause the cost of ocean traffic decreases with increased size of carrier, as is often claimed, but because the passenger traffic on the North Atlantic route demands and is willing to pay exorbitant prices for an amount of luxury which could not be profitably furnished on any other ocean route in the world.

There are a great number of travelers on this route between Europe and America who are willing to pay an extravagant price to travel on the largest and newest ship afloat. Under this stimulus the trans-Atlantic shipping companies have continued to vie with each other in building the largest ships that builders would undertake or harbors would float.

The loss of the Titanic will at least impress the traveling public with the idea that the size of the vessel is no sure indication of its safety.

An illustration of the revulsion of feeling against huge vessels is the story published with great detail in the New York Times about the time the Titanic sailed from England, to the effect that the North German Lloyd Company had ordered from the firm of Schichau & Co. a vessel of 54,000 tons register, or 8000 tons in excess of the Titanic and Olympic. Very soon after the news came of the Titanic's sinking this report as to the new North German Lloyd vessel was authoritatively denied.

It should be understood that in our reference to large vessels we are referring to the few vessels afloat of enormous size, in excess of 20,000 to 25,000 tons. There are undoubtedly advantages in steadiness possessed by the vessel of, say, 20,000 tons, over a ship of 10,000 to 12,000 tons, which mean something to the comfort of passengers in rough weather.

SIZE DOES NOT MAKE STEADINESS.

Experience does not indicate, however, that increasing the size of a vessel beyond some 20,000 tons gives any particular gain in steadiness.

It is probable also that when the net profits on the investment are computed, it will be found that the vessel of, say, 20,000 tons yields a higher percentage of net returns, taking the year through, than larger vessels. Indeed, there are those who contend that a 20,000-ton vessel is too large to yield the highest profits even on such a route of dense and high-priced traffic as the North Atlantic.

On all other steamship routes it is well known that very few vessels larger than 12,000 tons have yet been put in service.

As far as freight traffic alone is concerned, the advantage lies with much smaller vessels, which represent a far smaller investment per ton of carrying capacity. The owner of a freight steamer takes into account the fact that his vessel may at times have to lie idle in seasons when the ocean freight business is dull and realizes the advantage of keeping down the investment in his business.

Undoubtedly one of the chief reasons why the big ships have been so popular is because the public has hitherto supposed that great size in a vessel meant greater safety. Doubtless this fact alone has aided the companies to obtain higher prices for passage on its largest ships. The Titanic disaster will probably dispel this notion.

COMPARISON IN SIZE.

It is doubtful whether even shipowners realize that the larger a vessel is, the more fragile is its outer skin. By fragile we refer not to the stresses from wave action, but to the danger of injury by collision with piers, tugs or other ships, or from grounding. It is true, of course, that the larger vessel has thicker plates and heavier frames, but the thickness is by no means in proportion to the increased size, weight and inertia.

If one desires an instructive comparison between a large vessel and a small one in the matter of withstanding external blows, let him compare the process of bringing a light river or lake steamer up to a pier with the same process where an ocean vessel of 20,000 tons is concerned.

For a still more convincing comparison, read Commander Peary's account of the voyage of the Roosevelt through the Arctic ice in Baffin Bay, Smith's Sound and Kennedy Channel to the station from which he made his final successful dash to the Pole. Of course, it is true that the Roosevelt was a ship especially built to withstand ice pressure and collision with floating ice; but had she displaced as many thousands of tons as she did hundreds, her inertia would have been so great that she never could have withstood the butting against the Arctic ice.

In the Titanic's collision with the floating ice mass which sent her to the bottom, there are probably few outside the engineering profession who realize that the pressure produced against the vessel by collision with any stationary object increases directly with the tonnage of the vessel.

FEW LIFEBOATS CARRIED.

In the discussion of the loss of life in the Titanic disaster, public attention has been concentrated chiefly on the lack of lifeboats sufficient to carry all the people on board the vessel. All the shipping companies are being severely censured because they have not furnished lifeboats on their vessels in proportion to the number of passengers and crew carried.

It is fair to say at this time, however, that the White Star Company has simply followed common practice in this matter. There are no large passenger vessels afloat today, that we know of, either in inland waters or on the ocean, which carry boats enough to rescue the entire ship company in the event of the vessel's loss.

Of course at this time, with the news of the Titanic disaster fresh in everyone's mind, a universal demand goes up that every vessel must carry lifeboats sufficient to accommodate every person on board. It is well to reflect, however, that even if this provision were carried out, it would be very far from insuring safety.

It must be remembered that after the Titanic's collision the circumstances were unusually favorable for launching her lifeboats. The sea was phenomenally calm, the vessel's lights were all burning and the serious injuries the vessel had suffered were hardly realized by the passengers, such was their confidence in the vessel's stability, until the end was very near. Undoubtedly this had much to do in averting panic and its disastrous consequences.

LOADING THE LIFEBOATS.

There are wrecks, however, where a vessel goes down too suddenly to give time for launching the boats. In the Bourgogne disaster the stricken vessel after collision listed so much as to prevent most of the boats being handled.

Again, during a large proportion of the time the North Atlantic is too rough to permit lifeboats to be launched from a vessel and passengers to be placed therein without heavy risk of swamping or smashing the boat against the vessel's sides. Much of the time the sea is too rough for open boats to long survive even when safely launched.

Even with the favorable circumstances on board the Titanic, absence of panic, good discipline of the crew, and ample time for lowering and loading, some of the boats went off with only a few in and others crowded to the limit of their capacity. Had all boats been as full as these latter, nearly 200 more persons might have been saved. Yet no better results in systematic loading could be reasonably expected on a vessel about to founder.

We point out these facts, not to oppose the public demand that more adequate provision be made in the way of lifeboats, liferafts, etc., to secure safety at sea, but in order that attention may not be unduly concentrated on this detail to the exclusion of matters of equal or greater importance. Lifeboats are, at best only a last resort.

COLLISION ON CLEAR NIGHT.

Up to the time the Carpathia arrived in New York with the Titanic's survivors, it has been generally assumed that the unfortunate vessel collided with the iceberg while sailing through a fog. From the accounts of the survivors, however, it appears that the night was a clear one, although dark, and that the navigating officers failed to see the ice mass in their path until too late to steer clear of it.

There has been more or less loose talk of the vessel running onto a submerged iceberg, as if it were possible for ice to float waterlogged barely showing above the water surface.

On the other hand, it is a fact that a floating block of solid ice has only 8½ per cent. of its bulk above the water level. It is, therefore, quite possible for a block of ice with a bulk of many tons, sufficient to badly strain the plates of a rapidly moving steamer coming in contact with it, to float with so small a portion of its mass exposed above the water that the lookout from the bridge, or the crow's nest, of a rapidly moving vessel readily fail to see it on a dark night.

It must be remembered that no very serious shock against a vessel's side or bottom, comparatively speaking, is necessary to open the seams and start leaks too great for the pumps to keep pace with. Should a glancing blow be struck, springing the plates and seams and admitting the sea to four or five compartments, the vessel may be doomed even if the bulkheads themselves remain perfectly tight.

COURSE MUST BE CHANGED.

It appears to us, therefore, that the first and most important lesson of the Titanic's loss is the need for moving the summer course of transatlantic steamers between North Atlantic ports and English Channel ports farther south. This terrible disaster shows that the present southern course, which is followed from January 15 to August 25, is not far enough south to avoid ice dangers in all seasons. To guard against the ice danger now existing in the usual track of vessels, a new transatlantic course has already been laid down.

Of course it will not be necessary to follow this southern and much longer course in ordinary seasons; but what should be done, it seems to us, is to provide timely warning to vessels of the approach of icebergs to the transatlantic track. Instead of waiting until the floating ice masses actually reach the transatlantic track and endanger shipping, it would be practicable to have a cruiser of the revenue marine service dispatched to northern waters as early in the season as the arctic current brings its ice burden down as far as the latitude of Newfoundland. Such scouts could give seasonable warning to vessels of the approach of ice to the ocean track and the transatlantic routes could be shifted as the news of such ice movement demanded.

It must be emphatically impressed upon the masters of all vessels that floating masses of solid ice may make little show above the water surface and still be capable of seriously injuring the hull of a vessel colliding with them at high speed.

LESS SPEED IN FOGS.

Finally, although the loss of the Titanic as now reported seems to have occurred in clear weather, it is to be hoped that this greatest of marine disasters will not pass by without some concerted effort to stop the present practice of running at high speed in dense fog.

Let it not be forgotten that the Republic disaster, only a few years ago, when such a loss of life as has now occurred was escaped only by a hair's breadth, was due to a collision in a dense fog.

Wireless telegraphy has, it is true, somewhat reduced the dangers of navigation in a fog; but there are thousands of craft afloat not equipped with wireless and hardly a week passes but brings its record of marine disaster due to collision in fog.

It is probable that some of the recklessness with which steamship companies and vessel masters allow their vessels to plunge ahead at practically full speed when the fog is so thick that one cannot see half a ship's length ahead has been due to misplaced confidence in the stanchness of the vessel's hull and to the idea that modern huge high-class vessels were practically unsinkable. The Titanic disaster definitely ends this fallacious notion. If it shall lead to the cutting down of a few knots in the speed with which ocean vessels are propelled through dense fog, the [illegible] lost on the Titanic will not have [illegible] lost in vain.

FORTY THOUSAND DOLLARS A DAY FOR BUILDINGS FOR UNCLE SAM.

[SPECIAL CORRESPONDENCE OF THE TIMES.]

WASHINGTON, May 1.—The sum of $12,000,000 a year is spent by the national government outside of the city of Washington, for the construction of public buildings. Bandy, a frugal person in red whiskers coming down from the lakes, complained that he had not been in Glasgow four hours when bang went a sixpence. Bang goes $40,000 every working day in the year for new postoffices and courthouses, and Uncle Sam actually smiles as he foots the bills and signs his good name to fresh contracts.

Prudent men in Congress, having dotted their districts with free edifices, say that it is time the orgy were halted. Many a fierce watchdog of the treasury goes suddenly blind and mislays his voice when his constituents evince a healthy desire for an appropriation. But the "orgy" as a matter of fact has just begun. There are thousands of towns in the country with grass-grown streets that are demanding postoffices of their own, on the steps of which, at once an exchange and a forum, the male citizens may congregate in pleasant weather.

Nor can the members of Congress hailing from large cities consistently deny public buildings to what may be called the rural regions. So far, since the organization of the government, the National Capital excluded, $160,-272,000 has been spent on courthouses, customhouses and postoffices, and $44,000,000 for land on which to put them. Most of the money has been expended in the great centers of population. The customhouse in New York, for example, cost $7,140,000—$2,240,000 for the land and $4,900,000 for the building.

BIG CITIES CANNOT COMPLAIN.

Of the two hundred and odd millions of money spent altogether, twenty-five and a third millions, or about 11¼ per cent., has been distributed in the Empire State alone. Nor can Boston, Chicago, St. Louis, Indianapolis, Cincinnati, Denver or San Francisco grumble and put a good face on it when Hell's Oven, out in the iron and steel country, asks $10,000 for a postoffice. Neither can Cleveland, where $4,000,000 was spent on a single building, $146,000 going to a private architect for plans and supervision, $14,000 to John W. Alexander for mural painting, $30,600 to Frank D. Millet, who was drowned in the wreck of the Titanic, for decorative painting, and $12,000 to E. H. Blashfield for putting pictures on the walls and ceilings of the Circuit Court room.

Small towns will keep on asking for appropriations and the money will be voted. The rivers and harbors bill is not the only pork barrel in Congress. Moreover, the enemies of a greater navy rather shrewdly say that the sum spent for a battleship, about $16,000,000, would pay for 200 buildings costing $50,000 each. The naval establishment, they declare, requires about $140,000,000 annually, which is within $20,000,000 of the total cost of all the public buildings in the country, those in Washington not included. There are 175 buildings under construction at this time, and 250 more, the cost of which will be $25,000,000, have been authorized by Congress and will be started as soon as the $12,000,-000 a year set aside for the purpose becomes available.

In the opinion of Secretary MacVeagh of the Treasury, no more than $1,000,000 a month should be expended for building purposes in the present state of the nation's finances. It will require three and a half years, consequently, to complete the buildings already authorized. Meanwhile, Congress will have legalized the construction of many others. Since 1906, three bills providing for buildings to cost $102,000,000 have been enacted into law. Therefore, while Congress authorizes an expenditure of $20,000,-000 a year, Secretary MacVeagh is only spending $12,000,000. The construction of the public buildings is under the management of the Secretary of the Treasury. He pays out the money. Also, in fact, he approves the plans, which are drawn two flights of stairs up from and immediately over his own office. James Knox Taylor is the supervising architect. Helping him are seventy-five skilled men and a large force of stenographers and clerks.

GOT IDEAS IN GREECE AND ROME

The first creative architects of the government went to Greece and Rome for their ideas of beauty, stability and utility. Every little postoffice that is built today has a touch somewhere of the classic architecture of those early masters. William Thornton, a Philadelphia physician, followed the government from that city to Washington and drew the plans of the first Capitol building. He was a learned man and a scientist, and became superintendent of the Patent Office at its establishment in 1802. Charles Bulfinch of Boston, a graduate of Harvard and the architect of Faneuil Hall, worked on the National Capitol from 1817 until it was finished, in 1830. Thomas U. Walter, who studied in Europe and designed Girard College in Philadelphia, which was said to be the finest specimen of classic architecture in the United States, drew the plans for the extension of the Capitol and directed the work to its completion forty-seven years ago.

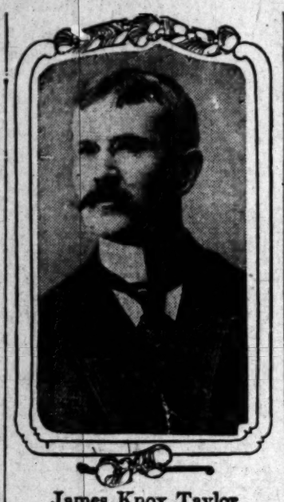
A Frenchman, Benjamin H. Latrobe, born in England and educated in Germany, and having a romantic history, was appointed Superintendent of Public Buildings in 1803 by Thomas Jefferson. He was mainly engaged on the interior of the Capitol, planning the columns of marble cornstalks and introducing tobacco plants among the carvings. Such were the men who gave to American architecture its classic style and whose influence continues today in the construction of the government edifices.

The Supervising Architect of the United States, Mr. Taylor, designs all of the government buildings except those constructed in Washington. He was born in Knox county, Illinois, fifty-four years ago, was educated in St. Paul and the Massachusetts Institute of Technology, and practiced in New York and Philadelphia. At the time of his appointment as chief architect of the government he was senior draftsman in the office. He gained his promotion by the record he made at a civil-service examination, standing second among forty applicants. Skilled in his profession, he is also a very competent executive and an able business man.

TEMPLE WITH HUGE TOWER.

"Are any fine buildings now being put up by the government?" I asked him.

"Oh, yes. One at Denver, to cost $1,560,000; a Courthouse and postoffice at New Orleans, to cost $1,750,-000; a postoffice in New York, to cost $4,000,000, and an extension to the Boston customhouse, to cost $1,500,-000. The Boston building, let me add, is to be something of a curiosity. Originally, it was in the form of a Greek temple. No land could be obtained for its enlargement, and so we are constructing a huge tower that is to be almost 500 feet high, and is to contain eighteen stories. Buildings in Boston are limited in height to 125 feet. The national government, however, is superior to the laws of cities and States in the matter of its own land, and we are going ahead regardless of the local building regulations. The tower will really transform the old Greek temple into a skyscraper. We also have a skyscraper in Chicago. All of our other buildings throughout the country are of conventional height, though they are not alike architecturally."



James Knox Taylor.

"Doesn't the expense of maintaining a building, together with the interest on its cost, make Uncle Sam's rent bill pretty large?"

"Unquestionably. As a business proposition simply, no public building pays. By way of illustration, let me give you a little arithmetic concerning a suppositional town that has a postoffice costing $50,000. The interest on that sum of money at 2 per cent., the government rate, would amount to $1000 annually. Light, heat, water, repair and janitor service would be from $1500 to $2000. At the lowest reasonable estimate the building would cost the government $2500 a year. Ordinarily a storeroom large enough and good enough in every way for the postoffice could be rented for $800.

"But you must recollect that a public building is not a business enterprise, no matter if it is located in a small city or in Washington and is used as a meeting place for Congress or a residence for the President. Public buildings are speaking witnesses of the power, dignity and greatness of the country. There are 90,000,000 Americans. Not more than one in every hundred of our people ever gets to see the city of Washington. The ninety-nine who stay at home, I venture to say, have only a hazy notion of the authority, solidarity and wealth of their own government.

WASHINGTON LOSES MYSTERY.

"To them the government in Washington is far away, intangible and even mysterious. It is brought to their very doors, however, when a public building is located in their vicinity. They see its substantialness and likewise they see the American flag waving daily from its staff in the breezes. The building, well kept, solidly built and impressive, becomes to them a center of the national government. They pay taxes, they will never get to Washington, as I have said, and the building is the only visible return they will ever receive for the money taken from them for national purposes.

"Then we should remember that there are millions of foreigners in the United States. They have come from countries where government is constantly observable and where it makes itself felt to the humblest citizen. They were accustomed to public buildings at home and to officials in uniforms, with gold braid on their caps. Coming here and settling in or near a western town, they find the United States attorney in a shabby room over a butcher shop, the United States marshal above a dry-goods store, and the postmaster between a saloon and an undertaking establishment. 'This is a —— of a country,' they say to themselves in their own tongue. The 'government' is scattered and meanly housed, and the immigrant concludes that the national capital must be cheap, unclean, weak and poor.

"Well, the immigrant, let us imagine, stays here and prospers. His sons go to school. They are bright boys, having been taught that 90 per cent. of genius consists of hard work, only the case hasn't been put to them in exactly that language. John Brown, a native American, is their neighbor. He is a dull boy at his books, but he drags through the law and the chances of politics make him the local attorney of the United States. 'Ole Oleson,' the immigrant declares, referring to his favorite son, 'is a smarter man than John Brown.' Thus the government goes down another peg or two in the opinion of the former Swede or Norwegian. Ole Oleson can be changed into Jacob Schmidt, whereupon our immigrant would be a German.

PATRIOTISM TAUGHT.

"But if the same immigrant sees a public building in the town he has chosen for his home and the Stars and Stripes fluttering in the western wind, he has respect, and not contempt, for his new allegiance; and that is what is needed in this republic—respect for law and for lawmakers, respect for courts and for judges, and respect for all rightful authority, including the parents of our own children. Hence we must not regard public buildings as business investments. On the contrary, they are moral influences, teaching patriotism, which is pride as well as love of one's country, and exemplifying the strength — and you notice that I put a shade of emphasis on that word — and the dignity of our national government."

"Who takes care of the buildings after they are up and occupied?"

"House is kept for them from my office. Usually some official, the marshal, postmaster, or collector of customs, is made custodian and is held accountable for the care of the building. The bills, down to the pay rolls of the scrub woman, must be sent to Washington for scrutiny and payment."

"Could money be saved were the government to construct its own buildings?"

"I have been studying that subject for several months, and have concluded that on a yearly expenditure of $12,000,000 at least $500,000 can be saved were we to change our methods of entering into contracts. A number of our so-called contractors are no more than brokers. They bid on buildings, and when successful give the work out piecemeal to others, to men and companies who actually do the constructing. They make a profit, of course, perhaps 10 per cent. of the amount of the contract. Then the subcontractors demand larger prices of them—because of the risk they take with respect to payments—than they would were they dealing at first hand with the government. It would be better, possibly, for the government to do business directly with the contractors who perform the work, and thus save the money that now goes to the brokers."

GOOD WORK AND MATERIALS PAY.

"Do you require the best material and workmanship obtainable?"

"Yes. It would be unbecoming in the national government to do cheap and slipshod work. Furthermore, our buildings are put up to stay. Private buildings, as a rule, so the owners figure, can be profitably torn down and replaced at the end of forty years—the sinking fund and the increased value of the land equaling in that time the cost of the building in the first place. We never figure on that basis. Some of our buildings are fifty years old and others seventy-five years old are structurally as good as ever and are still rendering good service. The cost of repairs on a business building runs from 1 to 1½ per cent. of its cost annually. Repairs on government buildings average but 67-100 of 1 per cent. The construction work is not always done by local mechanics. Contractors have their own men and send them to different parts of the country."

"How is the land bought on which to put a building?"

"We advertise for bids. They are mailed to Washington. After they are opened, an expert is sent to examine the sites which have been offered. Contracts stipulate that mail must be delivered by the railways if the postoffice is within eighty yards of the station. That provision in all government contracts for the transportation of the mails sometimes influences the selection of a site. The rule is to get a central location so that business letters may be distributed expeditiously. It often happens that land leaps up in value when it is learned that the government is looking for a site on which to erect a building. Commonly, however, there is competition, one group of landowners pulling toward the part of the town in which they are interested and another group pulling in the opposite direction.

"Now and then the government pays more for land than it is worth. Once in a while it gets land for nothing. Los Angeles donated a $250,000 site for its $1,000,000 Courthouse and postoffice. Walker Brothers, bankers at Salt Lake City, sold a $75,000 block of land to the government for $1. We paid them paper money. They returned it and asked for silver. So we sent them a silver dollar in a leather case, and they framed it and hung it on the wall of their private office."

"What qualifications must a town possess before it can get a public building?"

"It must have, first, an active, capable and popular representative in Congress," Mr. Taylor answered. "He will get an appropriation for the building through the exercise of the personal qualities I have mentioned. A building will be authorized by law. In time it will be constructed. There is said to be a rule, though I am no authority on the subject, that a town must have 5000 inhabitants, and that the revenues of its postoffice must reach a certain sum of money. If that be true as to population, a good many places have mysteriously dwindled in size since they have had public buildings."

"Who approve the plans for a building?"

"The plans are drawn in the office

RARE MINERALS, METALLURGY, CHEMISTRY.

INQUIRIES FROM AND ANSWERS TO CORRESPONDENTS.

Uranium Absent.

PASADENA, April 7.—Q.: When you arrive at conclusions in reference to the first samples of ore sent to The Times early in March, you are authorized to make public your findings. I am sending you two boxes of the sand, and a vial containing quicksilver, having made a test with nitro-muriatic acid in presence of ammonia, and you will probably find the lights in the materials. The voluminous clippings you send me do not show that any trained scientist has passed on the fact as to the radioactivity of the ores, so confidently, pronounced as "high in uranium" (?) The locality of the ores I submit is known to you, and you also know that the ores of the other locality, of which I have no personal knowledge, are hundreds of miles from the locality of the samples that I send you. It is over two years now, since I discovered the lights in this mineral, and when I found that Mme. Curie's laboratory work seemed on a line with my work, and the results very much alike (including the different rays,) I, naturally, desired corroborative evidence before I would be satisfied with the results obtained by me; then, I appealed to The Times. You will observe that this mineral is taken from a locality that exhibits peculiar phenomena. I was first puzzled as to the source of the light which would show, at night, in the lower rooms of the dwelling at the locality, and the substance, at least, apparently, is radioactive through wooden floors. The mineral in the tin box is of recent packing from the earth, and it will make a radioactive photograph. I also send you a photograph obtained from the mineral, after contact in a dark-room for a week, and also the original (glass) negative. I believe that if a shaft were dug at the locality a more radioactive mineral would be discovered. You know the locality of my find, and you are welcome to investigate it at any time. I am ready to answer all questions, and help you in any way that I can.

Yours respectfully, MRS. M.

A.: When an inquiry comes to The Times, such as the one you propounded early in March, it calls for extreme caution, thorough analyses, and full application of the labor and study called for in physics; especially so when certain publications have been sent broadcast over the world alleging that immense finds of radium-bearing minerals have been located in Nevada and in California.

Not only have we worked faithfully on the minerals received from you, but we have been called upon to analyze the other minerals referred to, and in conjunction with scientists of Paris, France; two chemists of New York City, and help from the United States Geological Survey, we have come to the conclusion that the great radioactivity claimed for these minerals is without foundation, in fact. In arriving at these conclusions, all of the investigators agreed to hold back the why and wherefore of such negative results, and, at some time in the future make public their findings.

We are limited for space, but, nevertheless, in a brief way, must state the followings conclusions: (1) The mineral you offer does not carry a trace of uranium. (2) Among scientists there is "a quantity of triboluminescence," in some minerals, "but little understood," and while your samples are not triboluminescent (like the sphalerite from Southern Utah,) and do not carry a trace of uranium, there is a very slight effect upon sensitized photographic plates if the mineral be placed in contact therewith, but the effect is occasioned by the combination of the baryte content (sparingly present,) together with the silver content on the sensitized plate. Such a discovery is a common one, and practically is of no value. (3) As for rays emanating from the mineral, that is contraindicated, and in short, for, and with, the reasons stated, we conclude, regretfully, that further experiments with the mineral along the lines indicated by you will result unfavorably to all probable or possible experimenters.

Appreciated Samples.

GILA BEND (Ariz.) April 7.—Q.: I am sending you two samples of our best copper ore from the Rowley mines; the mine you gave me, particulars on as to how to work it, when every one thought it "no good." I feel grateful to you and give you the samples for your collection. With the given samples I enclose others in the hope that they may turn out tin ore, and tellurides. MRS. R.

A.: Accept our thanks for the handsome samples (copper ore,) from the Rowley mines; the two specimens are now on the shelves of our collection. It will be a source of pleasure, and of profit, to refer to the specimens when samples from your district are sent to us for test, etc. Your samples (quite a number,) are representative of no single class of mineral, all of them were tested for tin, and also for tellurium, with the result that we find not a trace of tin or of tellurium in any sample.

Phosphates Absent.

CAJON PASS, April 7.—Q.: Under separate cover, and by same mail, I am sending you four samples of mineral, all of them from good size leads, within fifteen miles of this point. I am very frankly after all there is in this lot of mineral or ore, and am assured that each of them are "full of phosphates," is that right? L.T.

A.: In this instance "that" is not "right." No. 1 sample is limestone, stained yellow with hydrous iron oxide (limonite.) No. 2 is a crystal of calcite, stained with hematite, and is not "apatite" as marked on slip wrapped around the sample. No. 3 is simply a low grade sienna, from which paint can be made when pure enough. The sample is too impure with lime carbonate to be of any value in the paint industry, however. No. 4 is an impure (iron oxides present) baryte. No. 4 is obsidian (volcanic glass.) No. 5 is impure orthoclase (feldspar) with iron oxides present, and No. 6 is granular gypsum.

Feldspathic Minerals.

SAN JUAN CAPISTRANO, April 9.—Q.: Kindly inform me according to number the content and current value of samples I am sending you under separate cover. They are all found along with gem formations in San Diego county, coming in abundant veins or ledges. H.A.S.

A.: No. 1 is an altered feldspathic rock with a trace of beryllium. No. 2 is a mixture of albite (soda feldspar,) amblygonite trace, lithiamica, quartz, and trace of beryllium. No. 3 is feldspar (albite and oligoclase.) Values, on commercial scale, doubtful.

Bronze Mica.

CORONA, April 10.—Q.: Will you please state what the sample is that I am sending to you? Has it any commercial value? It was found in the vicinity of Corona. W.W.W.

A.: The sample represents material that is utilized in the wallpaper industry, in the manufacture of spangles, etc.

Not Gold.

POMONA, April 10.—Q.: Enclosed find samples of ore. Please tell me what this sample contains? Found on this end of Los Angeles county. F.C.E.

A.: The specimen is mica-schist carrying mica resembling gold in color.

Iron Oxides.

LOS ANGELES, April 10.—Q.: I found this specimen in the Newhall district, it looks like a tin and lead ore, found two feet below the surface. The other sample was washed out from the sands near Newhall, and looks like corundum. H.D.P.

A.: Sample No. 1 is not corundum; simply granite. No. 2 is part of an ore kidney, and carries iron oxides (hematite and magnetite.) Tin and lead both absent.

Wolframite.

BEATTY (Nev.) April 10.—Q.: Sample taken from a small lead, five miles west of Beatty. Does it carry any rare metal, and if so what approximate percentage? J.B.S.

The sample is high-grade wolframite, and carries, approximately, 72 per cent. tungstic acid of commerce.

Doubtful Minerals.

CARRIZOZO (N. M.) April 12.—Q.: I am sending you today, by mail, separate package, two samples ore; marked Nos. 1 and 2. The samples were taken from property in White Mountains, about six miles from here (southwest.) No. 1 comes from shaft ninety-six feet deep, and may carry zinc or lead. No. 2 comes from surface of cross-vein, about 300 feet north, and may carry tungsten or manganese. Will you please tell me what they are? Is there any value to them as metal? G.C.H.

A.: No. 1 is a bluish-calciferous rock with gothite (iron oxide) and magnetite crystals scattered sparingly throughout the mass. Zinc present in low percentage. No. 2 is oxidized ore (iron-manganese.) Copper trace, and iron oxide (sienna.) Tungsten and lead are absent from both specimens. No. 2 looks well as outcrop, but it is not, strictly, gossan. No tests were made for gold or silver.

Lithophane and Baryte.

LOS ANGELES, April 12.—Q.: Please find in this box two samples of ore which may be as follows: No. 1 baryte. No. 2 carbonate of lead. I am anxious to know the process of converting baryte into lithophane, and also the minerals known as "barium compounds." A.J.C.

A.: Samples Nos. 1 and 2 are baryte (barium sulphate,) and contaminated with hydrous iron oxide. Lead absent in both samples. We know of no process by which baryte can be converted into lithophane. Lithophane is a chemically manufactured pigment, and is included in "group 3" with "the chemical products such as basic carbonate white lead, red lead, orange mineral, and Venetian red." We do not clearly understand what you refer to in the sentence, "minerals known as 'barium compounds?'" Under the names "witherite (barium carbonate;) barium binoxide; barium chloride, and 'Blanc Fixe'" (artificial barium sulphate;) are the barium compounds known to the paint industry.

Not Turquois.

LOS ANGELES, April 12.—Q.: Herewith specimens from near Mineral Park, Mojave county, Arizona; and from a depth of twenty-one feet. The outcrop at the claim is porphyry. Are the samples decomposed turquois? B. F. A.

A.: Turquois may be found on the claim you refer to, but the samples are altered rock, kaolinized, and stained blue with azurite (copper carbonate.)

Slaty Rock.

REDLANDS, April 13.—Q.: I am sending by express to you a piece of rock from my ranch in "Venice Cone," Tulare county. The land at the foot of the hill is very rich, and the orange trees grow very rapidly, bearing large crops. I have been told that this rock is very rich in "fertilizer," and if crushed and ground would pay. Will you kindly let me know what it is? W. G. L.

A.: Just what this deposit of rock would stand for "crushed and ground up" is a problem that we are not called upon to decide. The question is what of the sample you submit. It is a slaty (silicious) rock, with an iron-manganese slickensilde on one side. Gypsum is sparingly present with approximately potash 2 per cent.

Good Polisher.

SAN BERNARDINO, April 15.—Q.: We are sending to you today by Wells, Fargo & Company, a white sack containing a substance found about twenty miles northeast of Needles. Please tell us what it is, and its value. J. B. and J. W.

A.: The samples are between "rotten stone" and Fuller's earth, with traces of potash and common salt. The material would make a very low commercial grade polishing powder, when dried in the kiln and ground to an impalpable fineness, but there are no buyers in the market at present, owing to the supply being far in excess of the demand.

Melaphyre and Monzonite.

LOS ANGELES, April 15.—Q.: Some time during 1910 you gave a short definition of monzonite and stated that "Monzonite is the most modern name for the rock until recently called augite-syenite." It seems to me that the definition is incomplete, because it is a granite rock. Please give me the definition of rock Melaphyre. "COLLEGIAN."

A.: It is self-evident that our full definition is, for unknown reasons, not given by you. When we defined monzonite, it appeared in this column as follows: "Monzonite is a recent introduction. It is granite rock which is intermediate between granites and syenites. It is thus a transitorial rock and has a wide mineralogical variety;" and you complete the definition referred to in the quoted matter of your letter. For your benefit we take pleasure in giving you further facts relating to the rock which is up to date and from that most excellent journal Mining and Scientific Press: "Monzonite is a kind of eruptive rock that displays considerable mineralogical variation, but is usually considered a variety of augite-syenite. Brogger has applied the name to a transitional group of rocks between the granite-syenite series and the diorites. The true monzonites have both alkali feldspar and lime-soda feldspar in approximately equal amounts, or at least both richly. Numerous varieties, such as quartz-monzonite, are distinguished."

We must abbreviate the definition of Melaphyre (mel-a-fir.) Originally the name was applied indiscriminately by certain Yaquis, Navajos, Mexicans, and Gringoes, to a black porphyry or any other "old" rock. "But, as now generally restricted, melaphyre is properly applicable to such basalts as have undergone considerable alteration. The melaphyres are, in point of fact, mostly of Paleozoic age, although some are Mesozoic, because the older a rock is, other things being equal, the more likely it is to have undergone chemical change."

A Family of Freaks.

[Washington Star:] A woman recently called at the hospital at Bilbao, bringing her son, who has enormous hands and twelve fingers on each. The most curious part of the case is that all her sons possess similar hands. One has twenty-one fingers, another twenty-three, and the other five children twenty-four fingers each. All are living and enjoying good health. Many doctors are studying these cases.

At Zaratano, a town in this province, a case has occurred which is probably unique of its kind. A child has just been born, while his father, grandfather, great-grandfather and great-great-grandfather are living. His name is Urriticoechea, and the family are Basque farm laborers. The great-grandfather and great-great grandfather have acted as godfathers to the latest arrival. The united family constitutes nearly a whole village.

The Politest Judge.

[Green Bag:] Occasionally there are judges on the bench so polite that their courtesy is vexatious to the recipients. Justice Graham, of England, was spoken of as the most polite judge that ever wore the ermine.

"My honest friend," he would say to some convicted criminal, "you are found guilty of a felony, for which it is my painful duty to sentence you to transportation for the term of ten years."

On one occasion he, by mistake, sentenced a man to transportation who had been convicted of a crime punishable by death. Having been set right by the clerk of the court, his lordship gravely exclaimed:

"Dear me! I beg his pardom, I am sure!" Then putting on the black cap, he courteously apologized to the prisoner for his mistake, and sentenced him to be hanged by the neck until he was dead.

Qualifications for Success.

[Christian Science Monitor:] One secret of the life successful in any quarter is perseverance. "The story of genius even, so far as it can be told, is the story of persistent industry in the face of obstacles." "Perseverance is the statesman's thought, the warrior's sword, the inventor's secret, the scholar's open sesame."

Robertson Nicoll's four qualifications for success in life are: (1) a definite object in view; (2) a determination not to be defeated; (3) the capacity for exercising continual self-denial, and (4) a certain belief in one's own powers.

George William Curtis expressed an evident truth when he said "an engine of one cat power running all the time is more effective than one of forty horse power standing still."

Sure of Part of It.

[Popular Magazine:] Ralph A. Cameron, who was defeated for election to the United States Senate from Arizona not long ago, once had an office boy whose duty it was every morning to fill with fresh water a big cooler in the ante-room. Cameron was very particular that this water should be fresh every day. One morning he took a drink from the cooler and then glared at the office boy.

"Willie," he demanded sternly, "is this water fresh?"

"Yes, sir," answered the boy without meeting Cameron's glance.

"Willie," insisted the boss, "are you sure this water is fresh?"

"Well, sir," qualified Willie, "part of it is."

London's Smoke Nuisance.

[London Graphic:] Sir William Ramsay, in a speech at the opening of the exhibition at the Agricultural Hall, said he looked forward to a day, not far distant, when coal will not be brought to the surface and burnt, but be transferred into gas within the mine itself and transformed into electricity at the least possible trouble and expense. The exhibition included a great pillar, representing the amount of soot which falls in London in a year, placed between models of St. Stephen's Tower and Cleopatra's Needle. The yearly sootfall in London is estimated at 76,000 tons. Under Sir William Ramsay's suggestion, smoke would disappear.

—close to Los Angeles Harbor

The Harbor District Is the Place of Realities

The great development work which has taken place in and around Los Angeles Harbor District during the past few years is but a forerunner of greater things to come. The eyes of the world are upon this District. Every day sees the beginning of some great undertaking which will have wonderful effect on the future importance of this Gateway to Los Angeles.

On account of the amount of space already utilized by industries, transportation companies, etc., in the Harbor District, boundary lines are gradually being extended farther and farther inward towards the city. In the path which this great growth will take is found

Harbor City—Hub of the Industrial Zone

So-called because of its strategic location.

It is a well known fact amongst posted financiers that failures in harbor investments are almost unknown, and securities issued against such works rank in the grade of the most conservative financial risks.

The onward march of profits cannot miss HARBOR CITY because of its location.

HARBOR CITY, in the past few days, since its opening, has already taken its place as one of the foremost moderate-priced investments on the market today. HARBOR CITY is the opportunity for the poor man, the man of moderate means, the rich man and the great corporations.

Primarily, HARBOR CITY will encourage building operations. HARBOR CITY today needs many dwellings; substantial store buildings are now being constructed. The crying need is for homes for those workmen and skilled mechanics who desire to live at HARBOR CITY.

There is very little of this class of property close to the Harbor District. HARBOR CITY is the cream. For this reason it is selling fast.

HARBOR CITY lies high and offers absolutely the best residential opportunities in the entire Harbor District. HARBOR CITY will be a model city. It is laid out along most advanced ideas of city construction. Large sums of money were spent to provide the best features.

Make that Visit to Harbor City Today

Say Dad!

What is this MUTUAL PROFIT-SHARING CORPORATION OF LOS ANGELES, anyway?

Why, Son, it's a corporation doing a general real estate business, buying at wholesale, selling at retail and dividing the profits with their customers.

Gee, that's great! How do they do it?

Easy enough, Son. You buy one of their GUARANTEED PROFIT-SHARING CONTRACTS—they pay you interest from the date of the contract—they invest the money in real estate and when they sell they give you HALF of the profits besides the interest. There are other advantages.

Say, Dad, I'd like to get one of them contracts!

You can, son; anybody can. They sell them from $100 up, cash or easy payments. It's a good way to "BUILD YOUR FORTUNE" and no better time to start than now. You can find out all about it at Hypocrisy.

SOCIAL BLACK SHEEP POPULAR.

Hostesses Anxious to Please Royal Blacklist.

Snail Race Decides Fate of Ancient Mansion.

Philadelphia Girl Sets Pace in Society Circles.

[Special Correspondence of The Times.]

LONDON, April 12.—Queen Mary's avowed intention of "cleansing" English society is responsible for a good deal of hypocrisy among some hostesses who, while wishing to stand well with the royal circle, do not feel inclined to offend the black-listed people, most of whom are notoriously good company.

In vain one scans the lists of guests at various functions for the names of the women who have earned Queen Mary's disapproval. Apparently they are having a very dull time indeed, and do not seem to be going anywhere.

But the social black sheep, as a matter of fact, still receive a shower of invitations, and can pick and choose as to which they will accept and which refuse.

Those who move in West End circles often enough see the faces of the women who are socially dead by royal decree. But their names are never in the list handed to the society reporters, who are given to understand that Lady So and So's dress must not be described. No one ever thinks of disobeying this request, as a refusal to fall in with this particular kind of hypocrisy would practically close most doors to the offending scribe.

Naturally, few of the women in the immediate court circle are guilty of receiving people Queen Mary would punish. In the Marchioness of Crewe, for example, she has an enthusiastic supporter of her exclusive policy, and at Crewe House one never sees shady financiers or women with a lurid past.

MANSION'S FATE DECIDED.

The arrival of the Duchess of Leeds from Bordighera, where she usually spends the months of winter and early spring, is always a sign that the season proper is not far off. While the Duchess cannot entertain in her home in Grosvenor Crescent on the scale of hospitality dispensed by the Duchess of Marlborough, invitations to her dinner parties are much sought after by members of the artistic set, and those who wish to enter the highbrow section of society.

Painting, music and literature are the Duchess of Leeds's chief interests. As befits one so interested in the romantic and pictorial side of existence, there is considerable human interest about the associations of Godolphin, a peer noted for his sportsion in the extreme west of England, which became the property of her family some long time ago. Over two hundred years ago the house and estates belonged to the Earl of Godolphin, a peer noted for his sporting proclivities, who was extremely friendly with the head of the neighboring family of St. Aubyn.

One evening these two lords, being in sporting humor, picked up two snails, and started them in a race across a table, the stake being Godolphin House. In order to quicken the snail's pace the Earl of Godolphin prodded his slimy champion with a pin, with the result that he lost his bet. St. Aubyn treated the matter as a joke, but exacted a fanciful tribute, which is still recognised and collected.

SUMPTUOUS ANNUAL EVENT.

Anyone happening to be at the Duchess of Leeds's Cornish residence on Candlemas morning before sunrise sees a representative of the St. Aubyn family drive up with a band of retainers and give three resounding knocks on the door.

"Oh, yes! Oh, yes! Oh, yes!" he cries, "here comes the Reeve of the manor of Lambourne to demand my lord's just dues, eight groats and a penny in money, a loaf, a cheese, a collar of brawn and a jack of the best beer in the house. God save the King and the Lord of the Manor."

This quaint catalogue of gifts is solemnly handed over, the money at the present calculation amounting to about three-quarters of a dollar. The annual event is then signalised by a sumptuous breakfast in a glorious old oak hall, where Charles the Second once drank copious draughts of wine while swapping hunting stories with his blue-blooded Cornish subjects.

PHILADELPHIAN ENTERTAINS.

When Miss Jane Morgan of Philadelphia, married the Hon. Cecil Vavasseur-Fisher, son of Lord Fisher, she was announced in England as one of the most retiring of the American women who had made their appearance in the ranks of the British nobility.

Lately, however, she has been showing a disposition to "comeout of her shell" and show her capacity as a manager of society functions after the style of the best of them. Her afternoon parties have become a feature of London's West End life, while at her husband's place in Norfolk a complete change has come over the scene.

What was regarded as one of the dullest places in England is now full of life and activity. When she is in residence there, distinguished people are always coming and going. Her predilection for yachting can be understood when it is remembered that she enjoys the distinction of holding a master mariner's certificate.

One of her big ambitions was to see her husband a member of the Royal Yacht Club, the most exclusive institution of its kind in the world. Peculiarly enough she does not go in for automobiling. She prefers to take her outings in Hyde Park behind a pair of high-stepping greys, which are the admiration of equine experts, while her grooms and coachmen are distinguished for their attractive uniforms.

HONOR FOR GUARDSMAN.

Another honor has come the way of Maj.-Gen. Lord Cheylesmore, whose popular American wife, formerly Miss Richardson French of New York, is a well known figure in society. He is now chairman of the largest local governing body in Great Britain, and as chief of the London County Council rules over a body almost as important as any State Legislature.

Almost immediately after his appointment, Lord Cheylesmore presided over a record allnight sitting lasting seventeen hours at a stretch. This feat of endurance was a hard tax on the strength, but Lady St. [illegible], a friend of the chairman's wife, of the two women members of the London County Council, also sat right through the deliberations.

Lord Cheylesmore, whose title is of recent creation, not only married an American wife, but also is the son of an American mother. The family name is Eaton, and incidentally he owes his ideal marriage to the fact that the regiment he once commanded, the Second Battalion of the Grenadier Guards, was banished to Bermuda for insubordination at Wellington barracks. Miss French was visiting the island at the time. The young commander of the outlawed regiment fell in love with the daughter of Columbia as soon as he saw her, and a speedy marriage was the result.

It is hard to set limits to Lord Cheylesmore's activities. A former Mayor of Westminster, he is also a famous shot and is actively concerned in the promotion of good marksmanship with the rifle. He founded the Guards' Magazine, and edited it for some time, and together with his wife is to be met with at all the chief social functions throughout the year.

LEARNING TO COOK.

Ever since his widowerhood, Lord Curzon has devoted himself principally to the welfare of his three young daughters. Periodically a rumor is circulated that the distinguished widower has chosen a successor to the stately Mary Leiter. The names of half a dozen eligible women have been mentioned as the second Lady Curzon, but it is understood that it is his settled determination to remain unmarried.

Although prospective inheritors of a brilliant position, with all the ease from arduous duties that a large fortune commands, the Curzon girls are being educated in a very practical fashion indeed. Lord Curzon is an intent upon inculcating the domestic instincts, for instance, that he has arranged for them to learn cooking and various kinds of old-fashioned needlework.

This attention to the practical details of ordinary life is in keeping with the spirit abroad in the more exalted circles of English society, and is doubtless due in some measure to Queen Mary's influence.

Several society brides of the immediate past were instructed in cooking before their marriage. The Duchess of Sutherland had Lady Rosemary Leveson-Gower taught to make Scotch cakes and biscuits, while the Duchess of Rutland's daughters know the mysteries of the kitchen as well as their own chef. Besides, many of these titled folk, including Lord Curzon himself, have a horror of the domestic-revolting suffragette English Kings and Sports.

[London Chronicle:] King George, in announcing his intention of witnessing a football match, shows himself more favorable to the game than some of his predecessors. In 1314 Edward II issued a prohibition of football. "For as much as there is great noise in the city caused by hustling over large balls, we command and forbid, on pain of imprisonment, such game to be played in the future." Richard II prohibited "all playing at football, tennis and other games called corts, dice, casting of the stone, kailes and other such importune games." The same statute was re-enacted by Henry IV, but all attempts to coerce Englishmen into giving up football were hopeless failures.

BET UPON THE PROFESSORS.

Russian College Students Gambled on the Result of Their Instructors' Race for Dinner.

[Washington Star:] A most amusing system of betting has just been discovered at the boys' college in Rostov on the Don, Russia. A race used to take place at the luncheon hour, when at the first sound of the bell, professors would dash off for their hats and coats and hurry out of the building.

They were not aware, however, that they were being backed against each other by the boys as to which of them would be the first to pass the iron gate of the college.

The result was that while some of the students feasted lavishly at the neighboring cake shop, others forfeited their modest luncheon money and remained hungry for the rest of the day.

A misdemeanor on the part of one of the youths brought the practice to the ears of the authorities. He had tried to delay one of the "runners" by removing his hat and coat from its usual peg, and was being severely chastised for the deed when the headmaster arrived on the scene and forced from him a full explanation.

of the supervising architect. If the building is for a Courthouse, a post-office, and the headquarters of a forestry agent, the plans are passed on by the Secretary of the Treasury, the Attorney-General, and the Secretary of Agriculture. That is the formal procedure. The Secretary of the Treasury, however, really decides the matter."

"Does any other country erect public buildings in such numbers as does this country?"

"Oh, no. Other countries are already built. We are building. European cities and towns are old, ours are new. Municipalities in England construct their own postoffices and then the buildings are used for various government purposes."

"Do the private buildings in the United States show the development of a strictly American type of architecture?"

"There is no distinctive American style except in the construction of skyscrapers. Such buildings are entirely American. Formerly, no style was attempted. Walls were run up into the air and then roofed over. Now, however, there is what can be called a skyscraper style of architecture. Art has come in and art means beauty. As to our houses, there are adaptations, modifications, and appropriations of the styles employed for centuries. Man has lived under cover for a long time and has evolved types which correspond and connect. "Interiorily, however, our houses are different from those in England. An Englishman likes to walk out into the hall when going from one room to another. He seeks privacy. We seek publicity and so we build with many doors that the lower floor can be thrown open and made to look like one great apartment. Then, with plenty of light and the curtains up, we are ready to receive our friends and relatives."

STORE IS ATTRACTIVE.

Business Building in Angeles Mesa Tract to Follow English Lines—To Be Finished in August.

The Angeles Mesa Land Company will next week begin the erection of an unusually attractive three-story store and apartment building, at the southwest corner of Sixth avenue and Fifty-fourth street, in the Angeles Mesa tract. The building is to be of eighty-five feet front by seventy-five feet depth, and will contain five stores on the ground floor and four two-room apartments and thirty-two single rooms, together with eight baths, on the two upper floors.

The first floor will be finished in blue brick, and the two upper stories in half timber and plaster. The building will cost approximately $15,000, and will be ready for occupancy by August 15. It will follow English lines in architecture.

The Santa Monica road race course is the fastest speedway on earth. This fact has been settled by the giant cars. There is a possibility that the big race to be held here this fall will be pulled off on another course, however.

THE ISSUES OF THE PRESIDENTIAL CAMPAIGN.

JUDGING from numerous letters of inquiry received by The Times, there are not a few of our citizens, men and women included, who are in somewhat of a maze as to the issues at stake in the Presidential campaign between the great national parties, and the factions into which these are broken at the present time.

To set the matter clearly in view, there is but one way to proceed. That is to go back to the latest enunciations of principles and policies made by the great political parties in their national conventions. To this it will be fair to add reflections on the probable modifications of these declarations to be made during the coming months when the parties shall meet again in national convention. These probabilities are clearly outlined in the discussion of the present time.

THE REPUBLICAN PLATFORM.

June 18, 1908, the Republican National Convention at Chicago, Ill., adopted a platform on which that party went before the people with William H. Taft as standard bearer. The platform and candidate appealed to the American people with the result that Mr. Taft was elected to the Presidency.

Now it will help us to understand the situation if we recall the fact that the platform presented to the convention and adopted with not important changes, was constructed by Wade Ellis, a distinguished citizen of the State of Ohio, selected by President Theodore Roosevelt and approved by him as was also the candidate who stood upon that platform, Mr. Taft.

The declaration of principles began with commendation of the Roosevelt administrations, went on to point out the great achievements accomplished by the country under Republican rule since the time when the Civil War broke out; then proceeded with a reference to the stagnation of business under Democratic rule and its revival upon the return of the Republican party to power. This was followed by an abstract of the legislation passed by the Republican Congresses from the time of Mr. McKinley's election. Then comes the setting forth of principles and policies with which we are concerned at this time.

Tariff revision was promised by the calling of a special session of Congress to do that work. This promise was kept by Mr. Taft, to the satisfaction of nearly all the Republican citizens of America, but not of the Democrats, always in favor of free trade.

Currency was the next subject of the platform, approving the action of the government in the great crisis of 1907, pointing out the need of a more careful study of the whole currency subject. This pledge was fulfilled to the letter by Mr. Taft, to the extent that the Executive could go.

Postal Savings Banks were favored, and these are now a fact in our national economy, by the direct act of the Republican Congress and the Republican President.

Trusts were treated, and the Sherman anti-trust law passed "over Democratic opposition, and enforced after Democratic dereliction." The law was approved and more vigorous enforcement of it promised, another pledge kept by Mr. Taft, who has brought more suits under the law and won more successful verdicts than can be set down to the credit of all the other Presidents from the time the law was passed.

Railroads were the next subject of inquiry, and the railroad rate law passed by a Republican Congress and enforced by a Republican administration was approved. It was expressed as the opinion of the Republican party that interstate commerce laws should be further amended. If there has been any failure to keep this pledge it has been because of Democratic opposition, not because of lack of Republican effort.

Then came the desirability of a law to control the rights of railroad and government employees. This pledge was kept in the Employers' Liability Act. Distinctly a Republican measure of the Taft type.

Wage-earners generally and their rights were considered, with a promise to establish an eight-hour day on public work, and also to enlarge the scope of preferred claims for wages under the bankruptcy laws, to enact a child labor statute, and to investigate the condition of working women.

Court procedure was dealt with in the declaration that "The Republican party will uphold at all times the authority and integrity of the courts." The American farmer and his interests were considered. The negro and what the Republican party has done to secure his rights, and what should be done to safeguard and enlarge these rights, occupy a prominent place in the platform.

Natural resources and waterways, the army and navy and their efficiency, the protection of American citizenship abroad, the extension of foreign commerce, arbitration and The Hague treaties to guard against war, the desirability of a merchant marine, encouragement to American shipping, care of the veterans of our wars, the good work done by the civil service laws, care of the public health, the establishment of a bureau of mines and mining, the interests of our island possessions and territories, all occupy prominent positions in the declaration of the principles set forth by the Republican party in their platform of four years ago.

The securing of the right to construct the Panama Canal, the necessity of carrying out the work with all vigor and dispatch, and the importance of the canal to the commerce of the world, find a place, as does the celebration of the centenary of the birth of Abraham Lincoln, on February 12, 1909.

That these pledges were carried out, and that the effects of the legislation and administration in accordance with the platform have been good in the eyes of the Republicans of the whole nation, must appear manifest to anyone who has followed the action had in Republican State conventions throughout the whole country, with scarcely an exception up to the present time. In what is called "the off year" that is, 1910, the Republican conventions in many States passed resolutions warmly commending President Taft in all his administration had done and attempted. In the two years just passed the Republican President has been opposed by a Democratic House of Representatives in many of his policies and purposes.

That the Republican party as a whole has not changed its mind radically is the manifest fact from the action of so many State conventions, and the utterances of the leaders of the party in the current campaign for the renomination of the President.

The National Republican Convention will meet in June next in Chicago. If the Taft Republicans control that meeting there will be little deviation from the principles and policies enunciated four years before and embraced in the above synopsis. The most important modification is likely to come under the head of Tariff Protection. In 1908 the desirability of revising the tariff was set forth, and a rule fixed to measure the amount of protection necessary for any American industry. It was to be the difference between the cost of a given commodity in America and in the foreign country whence a competing product might come. This declaration was regarded as the nearest to a fair and scientific rule ever set forth. It was received with commendation by very many Democrats and with acclaim by not a few. The modification we look for will be in line with an action taken by President Taft in establishing a Tariff Board to seek out definite data as to the cost of production of various commodities at home and abroad, which data were to be tabulated and laid before Congress as a guide for the framing of a Tariff Schedule. It is claimed for this policy that it is not only the most scientific, but the only scientific way of dealing with the subject ever known in this country.

This policy is bitterly opposed by the Democratic party, and not approved by Insurgent Republicans.

THE DEMOCRATIC PLATFORM.

The Democratic National Convention met in Denver, Colorado, and adopted the platform setting forth its principles and policies, July 10, 1908.

This declaration of principles almost at its beginning demands a national law for publicity of campaign contributions. The President of the United States at that time, a Republican, and the Republican candidate for the office, heartily agreed to this proposition.

The rights of the States were set forth as being jeopardized by the rule of the Republican party. This is an old Democratic cry coming up from the war times when it included the right of the Southern States to secede.

Tariff is the next subject, and while absolute free trade is not so positively demanded as in previous declarations of this party, yet naturally under the leadership of Mr. Bryan, tariff protection was vigorously attacked.

Trusts come next, and under this head there is little difference as compared with the demands of the Republican platform.

Railroad regulation is demanded, and an enlargement of the powers of the Interstate Commerce Commission, a demand found also in the Republican platform.

Banking is next, and the panic of 1907 is shouldered upon the Republican party with the usual talk about "Wall street" so familiar to those who have heard Mr. Bryan or read his declaration.

An income tax is favored, a measure which was passed by Congress and signed by Mr. Taft.

Labor and injunctions by the courts are treated of with a covert attack upon the courts and a disguised intention (poorly disguised) to fetter the hands of the courts and prevent them from issuing injunctions where there was a dispute between capital and labor accompanied by strikes. The following language under this head is very significant: "And the improvement of labor conditions to the end that such labor organizations and their members should not be regarded as illegal combinations in restraint of trade." This was inserted undoubtedly at the demand of Samuel Gompers, the head of the labor monopoly, and its purpose is to eliminate these organizations under all circumstances from the effects of the Sherman law.

The desirability of a merchant marine, the maintenance of an adequate navy protection of American citizens, civil service policy, pensions for soldiers, health bureau, are all treated with favor. In at least one of these items the Democrats are not carrying out the pledges of their party. The Democratic House of Representatives now in session at Washington has refused to support the Taft administration in the proper maintenance of an effective navy.

Popular election of Senators has been one of Mr. Bryan's policies for twenty years, and has been incorporated in the Democratic platform.

Waterways as the cheapest means of transportation are favored, a policy always favored by the Republican party since its birth and first declaration of principles in 1856, a policy then and afterwards violently opposed by the Democratic party.

Post roads by Federal aid are favored. "The arbitrary power of the Speaker of the House of Representatives" is condemned. (The House of Representatives selects its own Speaker and makes its own rules under any administration.)

Economy in the administration of the government is demanded, a most excellent idea. Office holders and their alleged increase and also the increased expense of them under the Republican administration are attacked. The conservation of natural resources is demanded, the administration of the Philippines by the Republican party is condemned, the desirability of maintaining friendly relations throughout all America is recognized. A pledge of a law to regulate the rates and services of telegraph and telephone companies is given, opposition to all Asiatic emigration is pronounced, and reference is made to the Territories, Alaska and our island possession. The Panama Canal is commended, a Republican undertaking, and the demand is made that an American citizen holding a patent in a foreign country and compelled to manufacture under that patent, that similar restrictions should be applied in this country to all citizens or subjects of such country.

It will be observed that this enunciation of principles and policies by the Democratic party is mostly negative, much of it expressing mere hostility to Republican measures and Republican administration. The only positive enunciations of importance are those demanding an income tax, the liberation of labor unions from the reach of the Sherman act and the popular election of Senators.

As pointed out above, there is little or no difference between the two great party platforms as to many more or less important subjects.

THE PARTY FACTIONS.

In the Democratic party there are at this time half a dozen warring factions, but there is little difference in the principles or policies enunciated. Gov. Wilson of New Jersey is the most radical of all the Democratic Progressives, and Gov. Harmon of Ohio is branded by these as an "undesirable reactionary." Mr. Clark of Missouri, Speaker of the House of Representatives, is rather reticent as to any definite enunciation upon any subject.

The Republican party is split into two openly hostile camps. As set out above, the regular Republican organization favoring the renomination of the President, stands for the party principles as enunciated four years ago, with, as we have said, proper modifications to bring things quite down to date.

The Insurgent Republicans, led by Col. Roosevelt, on the tariff question stand almost squarely with the Democrats of four years ago and of today. They insist that the tariff fosters trusts, raises the cost of living, and should be radically and generally lowered.

With the Democrats they favor the election of Senators by direct vote of the people, and with the Democrats they stand for a great many things not national in their scope, but local, confined at most by the boundaries of the States, and now in operation in many States, some Republican, some Democratic. For example, they stand for the initiative and referendum in nominations and legislation, and for the recall of officials, high and low, including judges, and even the recall of judicial decisions by popular vote. The President of the United States, William Howard Taft, negotiated arbitration treaties with England and France, which would have been followed by similar treaties with Germany and Russia, and finally with all the great nations of the world. The purpose of these treaties was to make for peace and to prevent war. Col. Roosevelt, the leader of the insurgents, with his usual vigor and lack of restraint, jumped on these treaties with both feet and prevented their ratification.

But in fact, to learn best what the insurgent wing of the Republican party stands for, reference would best be made to Democratic platforms of the last twenty years on the tariff, and to the Bryan platforms since 1896, with the speeches of Mr. Bryan in Congress and out of it and his editorials in the Commoner on all such subjects as primary elections, initiative, referendum, recall, popular elections and the delinquencies of the courts. And there is nothing the insurgent Republicans or their leader, Col. Roosevelt, stand for, that Mr. Bryan did not precede them in advocating.

GIFT LIBRARY STARTED.

BIDS IN FOR CONSTRUCTION.

UPLANDS, May 4.—Bids will be taken during the coming week for the construction of the attractive library received by this city as a gift from Andrew Carnegie. The structure, which will follow classic lines, will occupy a site in the block in which it is the ultimate intention to erect the new City Hall, and will thus constitute the nucleus for a permanent civic center group. Plans for the building have been completed by Architect Homer W. Glidden of Los Angeles.

The library will be 40x64 feet in size and will have a concrete basement and outside walls. The exterior will be faced with gray ruffled brick, the trim being in gray moulded brick. The columns at the entrance will be of artificial stone.

The basement of the building will contain the heating plant and storerooms, and will have a space for a future lecture-room. The main floor will have provisions for a lobby, reception-room, librarian's office, children's room, adults' reading-room and stack rooms.

SOUTHEAST ACTIVITIES.

Rio de Janeiro, a Beautiful City.

[Detroit Free Press:] "It is something to say that you live in the world's most beautiful city," remarked B. F. Tietsorf of Rio de Janeiro, at the Hotel Ste. Claire. "Even the lauded Paris does not compare with the great city of the south, and today we are more advanced than is New York, London or any of the great market places of the world. Rio de Janeiro is a beautiful city, with magnificent boulevards and driveways, sidewalks of mosaic pattern, trees to shade them, and on every side there are the most striking samples of municipal sanitation that can be found. There are 200 miles of asphalt and macadam roads inside of the city limits. The turnouts of the past were of the best horses procurable in the foreign markets and the finest carriages. Plenty of these can be found in daily use now, but the motor car has the call to a great extent. The European builders were the first to appreciate the value of the market and they sold many cars, but the people like the American models, which are doing well now."

Society Housekeepers.

[New York Tribune:] Stallkeepers in Washington market have not yet got over the visit paid them recently by a contingent of New York housewives. "They were nice, perfect ladies, all of them," one of the oldest marketmen in the building told a reporter the other day, "but what some of them knew about marketing, or rather what they didn't know, was amazing. Why, one of the ladies, pretty as a picture, came to my stand and, pointing to a smoked ham, said: 'Please let me have two veal cutlets off this.' Another of them went to Jerry's stand over there and said: 'I want a sirloin steak from that lovely piece,' motioning to a neck of beef hanging on a hook. There was another here that wanted some spare ribs from a hind quarter of lamb. Can you beat it?"

No Military Needed.

[The Green Bag:] Thomas McKean, chief justice of Pennsylvania, was a man of gigantic stature and a fiery temper.

A mob in Philadelphia defied the efforts of the Sheriff to disperse it. He so reported to Justice McKean, then sitting in full court.

"Have you read the riot act?"

"Yes, your honor. It had no effect."

McKean's eye flashed dangerously. "Have you ordered out the military?"

"Yes. Shall I fire on them?"

"No. I'll disperse them."

McKean rose and rushed out of the court in his wig and gown, his face flushed with passion, into the midst of the riotous mob.

"I am Thomas McKean, chief justice, and I command you to disperse." So saying, he seized two of the ringleaders, literally tucked them under his arms and returned to the court, while the crowd crept home, silent as frightened sheep.

The Recall of Judges.

[Pacific Coast Mechanic:] The judges sitting on our court benches, particularly of the Supreme Courts of our States and of the United Staes, are really nothing more than umpires —if by popular clamor we may reverse the opinions of the judges—recall them, what's the use of having them render judgments?

Let us suppose that the umpire at a ball game rendered a close decision and appeal was instanter made to the bleachers, what think you would happen—say, well—is the point well taken?

CORAM SMELTER WANTS TO OPEN.

Proposes to Pay Ranchers for Crop Damages.

Copper Company's Offer Is Rejected by Them.

Guggenheims May Force Opponents to Terms.

REDDING (Cal.) May 2.—The Balaklala Copper Company is making determined efforts to resume smelting at Coram. The company recently proposed to the Farmers' Protective Association that the smelter be permitted to operate, with the company compensating the farmers for any damage caused to vegetation. The company offered to set aside an indemnity fund of $250,000, to be administered by a committee of three, Judge Morrow, the eminent San Francisco smelter jurist, was named as the first member, with the other representatives to be appointed by each of the interested parties. All claims for damage were to be referred to the committee, and all losses by fumes compensated fully.

The farmers held a meeting last week at which the Balaklala's proposition was freely discussed, but no official action taken. This virtually means the rejection of the offer, and it is believed the smelter interests will take other steps for the reopening of the great Coram plant. The power of the Guggenheims and allied interests are behind the Balaklala, and with copper around 15 cents, it is practically certain the company will use every means to resume production.

Beside refusing to ratify the agreement with the Balaklala people, some of the farmers advocated steps be taken to close the Mammoth smelter at Kennett. But other grangers living nearer the smelter, including President McCoy Fitzgerald, vigorously protested, declaring the plant was not causing damage. Fitzgerald stated his farm was nearer the smelter than the lands of any other member and that the smoke was not causing any damage to his trees or grain. The grangers have got into the habit of blaming the smelters for damage caused by winds and frost, but it is apparent the plaintive ones will meet determined opposition in the their efforts to close the Mammoth, the only operating smelter on the Shasta copper belt.

CAPITAL FOR HIGH GRADE.

With the rush into the new gold camp of High Grade gathering strength as spring advances, capitalists are gathering in the best properties and arranging for comprehensive exploitation of the camp. A bond and option has been taken on the Ft. Bidwell Consolidated group for $1,000,000, according to late advices, by John Adams and Harry Millspaugh of San Francisco. The bond runs for three years, and it is reported a substantial cash payment has been made. This property is the most comprehensively developed in the district, and is equipped with a ten-stamp mill and other machinery. San Francisco and Los Angeles interests are said to be associated with Adams and Millspaugh, and arrangements are being made to place a large force at work and push developments.

The Sunset group has been acquired by William Devine and James Tallen, for a reported price of $140,000. The first payment of $7500 is claimed to have been made, and the purchasers are arranging for operations as soon as the weather allows. Engineers have carefully examined the holdings in behalf of the purchasers. The Evening Star, Tamarack and, other claims have changed hands. W. H. Sheil, formerly manager of the noted Free Coinage mine at Cripple Creek, has arrived in the district to examine and purchase meritorious properties. He represents A. M. Stevenson and associates of Denver. Fred Seibert, consulting engineer for George Wingfield, is examining claims, and it is reported the Nevada magnate plans to acquire large holdings. Several noted experts express themselves highly pleased with the ore formation and veins of High Grade, and not a few predict a great future for the camp. Los Angeles, San Francisco, Colorado and Nevada people are largely interested thus far, with capitalists from Spokane, Chicago and eastern points manifesting growing interest. Deep snow still prevails, but is melting in the lower portions of the hills. It will be about June 1 before conditions will permit the conducting of active work along broad lines.

ANGELENOS LEASE MILL.

A five years' lease has been taken on the Butte Saddle mill, by the Sierra Mining and Power Company. The plant will be used to crush quartz from the Sacred Mount Mine, near Sierra City. The company is said to have recently opened a rich shoot of ore in the Sacred Mount, with sufficient ore already exposed to justify a long lease on the plant. The Sacred Mount adjoins the Butte Saddle, one of the best known quartz properties in Sierra. Los Angeles people are largely interested.

VEIN OPENED IN TIGHTNER.

Allegheny advices report the development of a magnificent body of ore in the lower workings of the famous Tightner mine. The discovery was made about 100 feet back of the adit face, and the vein is said to range from 30 to 40 feet wide. All of the quartz carries milling ore, with about six feet running into shipping grade. A raise is being sent up on the vein and has attained a height of nearly 100 feet with ore showing all the way. The vein is said to be an entirely new ore body, and is regarded as one of the best strikes ever made on the Tightner. Since the new owners took charge, little of interest has been given out, but it is known the property is rapidly being developed into one of the greatest gold propositions in California. San Francisco, Los Angeles and Nevada county people are principally interested.

EUREKA STRIKE IMPROVES.

The intersection of a strong vein of milling ore on the 2700-foot level of the Central Eureka a few weeks ago garnered additional importance last week, when it was again encountered on the 2800-foot level and sufficiently opened to show a width of three feet. The ledge is said to carry splendid values and stockholders are jubilant. The strike is considered particularly important because of the great depth. The vein shows every indication of persisting to great depth. Thirty stamps are dropping steadily and the management expects to have the full complement of forty in action within a few months.

NEW SMELTER PROJECTED.

Otto Wheeler and associates are planning the erection of a small copper smelter near Spenceville, about fifteen miles below Grass Valley. They have opened good bodies of high-grade copper ore, and with the red metal steadily advancing, expect to commence active production before the end of the year. The Iron Blossom, the most important property thus far developed in the district, is controlled by the United States smelting interests.

BLUE LEDGE PLANS AMBITIOUS.

The owners of the Blue Ledge copper mines, in Northern Siskiyou, have announced their intention of erecting a concentration plant at the mines, and the later erection of a smelter at Joe Bar, three miles distant. This work will be undertaken as soon as a railroad is constructed from the district to Medford. It is stated financial interests have agreed to construct the road, provided local people will build a few miles. The Blue Ledge is one of the largest copper propositions in California, and is controlled by powerful eastern interests.

MANY PROSPECT FOR RICH ROCK.

NUMBER OF MINE HUNTERS IN NEVADA INCREASES.

Records of Esmeralda County Show Followers of Lonely Trails Are Being Rewarded With Strikes of Importance—Since January First 417 Locations Filed.

[Special Correspondence of The Times.]

GOLDFIELD (Nev.) May 3.—It has frequently been said in the last year or two that there are but few prospectors in the field searching for precious metals. Generally speaking, the assertion may be true but it does not hold good in Esmeralda county, and the exception to the rule can be said to apply to the entire State of Nevada.

It is safe to say that there are at present and have been for the last six months more prospectors in Nevada than there have been for five years previously, their activity being due to the highly satisfactory and encouraging results that have been attained in the older districts of the State through judicious and steady development.

The records of the office of the county recorder constitute the basis of the declaration that Esmeralda county is receiving much attention from prospectors. These records show that the prospectors have not been following lonely trails without being rewarded with finds which they consider of importance. The uninformed will be surprised to know that since January 1 certificates for the location of 417 mining claims in the various districts within the boundaries of Esmeralda county have been filed with the county recorder.

While the certificates, in many instances have been filed for re-locations of claims taken up a few years ago and permitted to lapse following the panic, which had a depressing effect upon mining generally for a time, the majority of the documents recorded are for bona-fide new locations upon mineral showings which have largely extended the ore bearing zones of the various districts. Goldfield, in consequence of the excellent production of the older and established companies, is near the head of the list with 52 locations. A table of the locations by districts follows:

Districts	No. of Claims
Goldfield	52
Columbus	13
Copper Range	1
Silver Peak	30

GO TO FORT BIDWELL.

Miners and Prospectors Await Melding of Snow Bfore Beginning Work in the Mountains.

[Special Correspondence of The Times.]

FORT BIDWELL, (Cal.) May 2.—Miners and prospectors continue to arrive here daily. At O'Connors Forks, six miles from here, there is already quite a settlement. The rise in altitude from Fort Bidwell to the Forks is 2400 feet and it is 1000 feet higher to the prospects on a level with Mount Bidwell, an altitude of 5515 feet.

There apparently is plenty of ore here because almost all of the men who have had the nerve to tackle the snow, have seen it and had it assayed.

There are said to be any number of companies incorporated all over the country, under mere options with as much as three months in which to make examination. A list of these "option promotions" is being prepared and will be turned over to the postoffice department and then made public throughout the country in order to protect the innocent investor. Mails outgoing, are heavy with samples on their way to be assayed.

Fablerz.

LOS ANGELES, April 13.—Q.: I am leaving at your office a sample of ore that was taken from a lead in the San Luis Obispo mining district, and supposed to be a form of chrome ore. Please tell me about this, and give some information. H. A.

A.: The sample is a variety of tetrahedrite, carrying sulphur, copper, antimony, zinc, iron and arsenic. Chrome iron (chromite) sparingly present. The sample represents an ore that meets with a "penalty" at the smelters, and it was not tested for gold or silver.

NEW PEOPLE BUY GREAT WESTERN

Hornsilver Mine Purchased from Locators.

Owners Will Liquidate All Debts of Company.

Strike in Midway the Talk of Tonopah.

[Special Correspondence of The Times.]

GOLDFIELD, May 2.—The Hornsilver district, located south of Goldfield, again climbed into the limelight Wednesday by the consummation of negotiations whereby S. H. Brady, at present general manager of the West End Consolidated and Halifax properties, and formerly general superintendent of the Tonopah Belmont mine in the Tonopah district, with his associates, took over the Great Western mine, securing control from James and Howard Russell, the pricipal owners, who, with William Cavanaugh, located the estate seven years ago. The company will immediately be reorganized under Nevada laws, upon a non-assessable basis and the stockholders in the old corporation, which was capitalized for 1,250,000 shares, will retain 26.6 per cent of the original stock issue, the equal of which they will receive in shares of the new company.

In acquiring control of the Great Western, Mr. Brady and associates bind themselves to liquidate all indebtedness of the old company, amounting to approximately $22,000, and to finance the new company on a scale that will permit of the thorough and systematic development of the mine. Work will be resumed shortly and it is probable that the new directors will erect a reduction plant on the ground within a short time to treat the large tonnage of ore now exposed.

By reason of its recent sensational rises in price, Midway is at present the bright particular star in the firmament of Tonopah, consequent upon a discovery of exceptional importance in the property. For several months the company has been running a crosscut on the 600-foot level north and west of the shaft, hoping that a known ledge would be cut at that depth. The vein was encountered last week, and, after crosscutting, it measured twelve feet throughout, and traversed a number of stringers of ore, varying from four to eight inches, all carrying good values. The four-inch stringer was picked up and drifted upon fifteen feet to the west, where a body of high-grade ore, two feet wide, was opened up. The same stringer was traced to the east with the result that one foot of ore, equally as rich, was broken into. Values run well into the pictures.

STRIKE HELPS TONOPAH.

The new strike means much for the Tonopah district, as the discovery was made in new territory, near the center of the Midway property, and has every indication of the opening up of another great body of ore. The formation is characteristic of the Mizpah.

The tenth annual report of the Tonopah Mining Company of Nevada, just made public, shows estimated ore reserves of 304,824 tons, of the estimated value of $17.80 a ton, making a total of $5,337,974; ore crushed, 174,685 tons of the gross value of $3,503,255; total net earnings of mine and mill $1,763,018; total net surplus $4,680,042, dividends paid, $1,600,000. Total dividends paid to date $3,500,000.

Prosperous.

GOLDFIELD CON. UP TO AVERAGE.

REPORT SHOWS HEAVY MINERAL PRODUCTION.

Over Thirty Thousand Tons Make Returns of Nearly a Half Million Dollars—Development Work at Several Mines of Aggregation Is Pushed—Combination Discovery.

[Special Correspondence of The Times.]

GOLDFIELD (Nev.) May 3.—According to the monthly report of the Goldfield Consolidated Mines Company, the total production for March amounted to 30,132 tons, containing $734,655.98, or an average of $24.38 a ton. The entire tonnage was milled with an average extraction of $22.92 a ton or 93.99 per cent. The total realization to the company was $491,337.30 or $16.31 a ton.

Development work measuring 2719 feet was performed during March. The total cost of mining, development, etc., was $6.66 a ton, distributed as follows:

Mining—
Developing	$ .80
Stoping	2.55
	$3.35
Transportation	.08
Milling	2.11
Marketing	.11
General expenses	.49
Bullion tax	.19
Construction	.32
Total cost of operation	$6.66
Miscellaneous earnings	.05
	$6.61

The development work and operations in the various mines of the company during March are briefly described as follows:

Claremont—The sill of the 428 stope between the third and fourth levels was again extended and produced fifty-three tons of ore averaging $26.45 a ton. The 604 raise from the 1000-foot level, going up to the 534 on the 900-foot level and the stope being opened from the raise, produced 916 tons averaging $56.34 a ton. The 700-M stope, being opened between the 1000-foot level and the 1200-foot level from the 700-D winze produced sixty-three tons averaging $45.47 a ton.

Mohawk—The 111-M sill produced 524 tons of an average value of $13.00 a ton. The 212-X crosscut on the 350-foot level near the 260 stope produced fifty-three tons averaging $69.53 a ton. The 205-X intermediate, being driven under the 111 sill at the south end near the old Truitt shaft, produced thirty tons averaging $48.60 a ton. The 354 sill was extended and produced 198 tons averaging $74.40 a ton. The 491 sill cut out of the 415-X between the third and fourth levels, and under the old Mohawk-Jumbo lease workings, produced 436 tons averaging $17.00 a ton.

Red Top—The 253 intermediate between the second and third levels was again extended in ore and produced 151 tons averaging $32.50 a ton. The 216-N raise from the second level, just north of the shaft, produced 130 tons of an average of $63 a ton. The vertical raise from the 750-foot level of the Hazel has holed the bottom of the Laguna shaft and is being squared out and the shaft timbered down to the bottom. The Hazel shaft surface plant will then be dismantled, and all deep development in this territory will be prosecuted through the Laguna shaft.

Combination—An important discovery has been made between the fourth and fifth levels in the Riley vein about 300 feet southeast of the shaft. The 311-P raise from the fifth to the fourth level produced 140 tons of ore averaging $86.60 a ton. The upward extension of this ore body was cut in an intermediate between the second and third levels, where two hanging wall crosscuts sixty feet apart exposed seven feet of ore which averaged $250 a ton. The 292-O sill was extended and produced sixty-nine tons averaging $25.60 a ton. The 328 sill produced forty-one tons averaging $20 a ton.

Seating Congressmen.

RECONSTRUCTION HALL OF HOUSE.

LESS SPACE AND A LARGER MEMBERSHIP.

Present Hall Has Wonderful Acoustic Properties and in Fact the Whole Capitol Building Is a Vast Sounding Board—Some Hard Problems for Commission to Solve.

WASHINGTON, May 1.—[Special to Brooklyn Eagle.] The commission on reconstruction of the Hall of the House of Representatives has been holding meetings recently, but has not yet decided how the increased membership of the lower branch of Congress will be cared for after March 4, 1913.

There are several propositions before the commission, the most elaborate of which provides for rebuilding of the entire hall. For this purpose Congress made an appropriation of $350,000 at the time the commission was created. The plan for reconstructing the hall calls for a smaller floor space and larger cloakrooms. There is a good deal of opposition to this scheme, which is felt by many to be inconsistent with the steady growth of the House in membership.

The commission consists of Speaker Clark, Representative Joseph G. Cannon, Samuel W. McCall, James R. Mann, John J. Fitzgerald, Swager Sherley and former Representative William M. Howard.

The present hall of the House covers an area of about 9400 square feet, while the reduced hall would cover only about 6000, notwithstanding the fact that seats have to be provided for forty-two additional members.

The present membership of the House is 391, and in the next Congress it will be 435, including the new members from New Mexico and Arizona. These men were provided with seats on the floor when they were Territorial delegates, but did not have a vote.

In order to seat a larger House in a smaller hall, the plan presented to the commission provides for a series of benches, instead of separate chairs. All desks are to be removed. One of the arguments in favor of a smaller hall has been that it would facilitate debate and that members could be heard more easily in all parts of the chamber.

But when the commission came to consider the acoustics of the present House it found that they were amazingly good. There is not the slightest difficulty in a member being heard from all parts of the chamber, including the galleries, if he speaks in a reasonably loud tone of voice and if the Speaker preserves order. The members of the commission themselves were unable to recall any personal difficulty they had in trying to reach the ears of their fellow-Representatives.

So excellent are the acoustics of the House chamber that for a long time it was supposed they were more of an accident than anything else. The south wing of the Capitol was begun in 1851 and the House has been occupying its present chamber since January 4, 1859. This wing was constructed under the direction of Thomas U. Walter, then the architect of the Capitol.

Some time ago Prof. Sabin made an elaborate investigation of the acoustics of the hall of the House. He used delicate instruments and conducted a part of his experiments in the middle of the night, when he could be assured of absolute cessation of other noises. He declared to Superintendent Elliott Woods that the acoustics of the House were superior to those of any similar hall in the world, so far as his knowledge went. He also was of the opinion that this must have been largely accidental, because the science of acoustics was not much developed at the middle of the last century.

Mr. Woods became curious as to this and hunted up some old notebooks of Mr. Walter. In them he found that the architect of the hall of the House had developed a great deal of thought and study to its acoustic properties and had considered various methods of preventing annoying echoes and of so arranging the ceiling and other features of the chamber that a human voice would carry into all parts of it.

The present chamber is exactly as it was originally built, save for frequent redecoration and refurnishing. For a long time it was considerably larger than the membership of the House required. Now it is comfortably filled under the present style of seating.

History points to the fact that the House of Representatives is a body of steady and rapid growth in membership. Only once has its membership been reduced. As a result of the next reapportionment it probably will be still larger. There are many students of the problem who think it would be a great mistake to reduce the size of the hall, because they say that the day will come in the near future when the House of Representatives will have 500 members.

It is much smaller today than many popular bodies in Europe. The English House of Commons has 670 members. Some prophets who look far into the future believe the day will come when the lower branch of the American Congress will have a membership of 1000.

There is a good deal of sentimental opposition also to doing away with the chamber which has been occupied by the House now for fifty-three years. An alternative plan is to retain the present hall, but rearrange the seats. A new style of desk would be provided, about a foot narrower than the present one, but equally as wide. On either side of the chamber would be larger desks for the use of the majority and minority leaders. This new seating plan would provide for wider aisles at the side and rear. Particularly in the rear is a wider aisle needed, for the present one becomes greatly congested whenever tellers are ordered in the House.

When tellers are ordered in the English House of Commons the members are counted as they pass through the lobby and there is no confusion or delay. But in our House the tellers stand at the head of the center aisle, directly in front of the Speaker's desk, and as the members pass between them they go up the aisle to the rear and disperse to their seats. The aisle in the rear of the seats, however, is so narrow that there is always a jam of members during a count by tellers, with a resultant amount of disorder.

Another problem presented by the plan of rebuilding the hall of the House is the question of time. Only during a long recess of Congress can the work be done, and even then it would be a night and day job. Superintendent Woods has estimated that two months of preliminary work will be necessary, followed by five months of actual work of reconstruction.

If the present Congress adjourns by the middle of June there will then be practically only five months' interval before it meets for the winter session in December. It is out of the question to do the work this summer, and it is not, as a matter of fact, necessary. The present Congress will expire on March 4, 1913, and there will then be a nine months' interval before the new Congress meets, providing there be no extra session. But extra sessions have been so frequent in recent years that it is taken for granted that the new President is likely to call one for some such purpose as tariff revision soon after he assumes office. So there is no guarantee that Congress will be away from the capital long enough to permit of the reconstruction of the House being completed.

To offset this difficulty it has been suggested that the House shall utilize Statuary Hall as a meeting place while the work on the chamber is being prosecuted. But the experts who have considered this idea say that it is utterly impracticable. Virtually no work could be done in the building during the hours that the House, Senate or Supreme Court are in session.

It is a rule of Superintendent Woods now that any sort of work involving such noises as hammering cannot be done while these bodies are sitting. The reason for this is that the capital is one vast sounding board. A heavy blow of a hammer may be heard distinctly from one end of the building to the other. The place is as full of echoes as a canyon. Some time ago when workmen were engaged in drilling holes in the walls down in the basement for the purpose of installing electric wiring they were compelled to desist because the noise they made could be distinctly heard in the Senate chamber while that body was in session.

Altogether the problem of what to do with the new House is rather bothersome. There is a fair likelihood that the present chamber will remain undisturbed, save for a change in the chairs and desks.

THE HEAVENS IN MAY.

A Bright New Star Discovered—Both Mercury and Venus to Be Seen in the Morning—The Moon Will Pass the Brightest Star of Scorpion May 30th.

BY PROF. ERIC DOOLITTLE of the University of Pennsylvania.

As the months of spring go by we see the brilliant winter constellations sink steadily lower in the western heavens, while in the east the interesting summer groups appear, one after another, to take their places. Already the magnificent Dog Star has wholly withdrawn from the evening sky, while of the brilliant Taurus and Orion, only the easternmost stars still linger for a brief time, almost on the western horizon, before finally leaving us to be seen no more until the approach of another winter.

THE SPRING STARS.

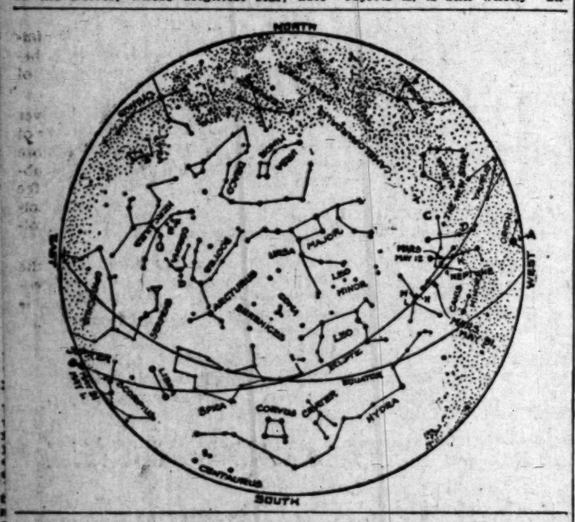
Stretching almost all the way across the heavens in the south is the long Water Snake, bearing the Cup and the Crow on its back, and above this we see the large, faint group of the Virgin, whose brightest star, Spica, is a wonderful double sun; the brightest sun, which we see as this star revolves forever about a great dark and unseen companion with a speed of more than fifty miles a second. The star at B is another kind of double-sun system, for even in a very small telescope (one of an aperture of an inch or less) we may see that there are here two bright, bluish stars, each of which is separately visible, though they appear very close together. In this system one sun requires about 180 years to complete a revolution about the other; the path is so flattened that when nearest together the two suns must, by their mutual attractions, cause enormous tidal disturbances in one another. At such times it is to be expected that great alterations may be observed in the intensity and character of their light, a matter that will doubtless be carefully studied at the time of their next nearest approach in the year 2016. In contrast with this widely separated system, the bright Spica revolves about its obscure companion in a period of only four days.

High above the Virgin there shines the constellation of Bootes, or the Driver, whose brightest star, Arcturus, is a wonderful object. A study of the light of this golden-yellow star shows us that it is a sun in very nearly the same condition as our own sun, but almost inconceivably larger and brighter. For the apparent brilliance of Arcturus does not arise from its nearness to us; in fact, this star is so very far away that its distance cannot be measured by any means which we at present possess. We know, however, that its light requires at least 100, and probably 200 or 300 years to come to us, and that it is many thousands of times brighter than our own sun. Could our sun be removed into the depths of space and placed beside Arcturus, it would appear to us as a faint tenth-magnitude star, wholly invisible, even in a small telescope.

There are no less than seven of the brightest stars of the sky which are so far away from us that their distance cannot be measured. One of these is the brightest star of Orion (at A, Figure 1,) but this, unlike Arcturus, is in a very different condition from our own sun. It has apparently proceeded much farther in its development, and is approaching the point of extinction.

To the east of Bootes is the delicate arc of stars known as the Northern Crown, or Ariadne's Crown, of which the star at D is sometimes called the Pearl of the Crown. This star is receding from us at the rate of twenty miles each second. Indeed, all of the stars of the sky are in motion in all imaginable directions, but so immensely far are they away from us that we cannot usually perceive any change in their positions until after the lapse of hundreds, or even thousands, of years. Thus, Arcturus, for example, which is moving with wonderful swiftness, requires more than 60,000 years to alter its position in the heavens an amount so great as the apparent distance across the face of the moon.

Throughout May and June occasional faint shooting stars may be seen to dart outward from Corona, but the display will at no time be a striking one, for the stream of particles from which this shower comes is a very thin and scattered one. The observer should also not fail to examine the wonderful star-cluster at E, about one-third of the way from the star F to the star G. Here there are 60,000 stars crowded together in a compact cluster, which may be seen with a small telescope, or even with the naked eye, though to bring out its full beauty a large glass is required. A wider cluster will be found in Cancer at the point H, figure 1.



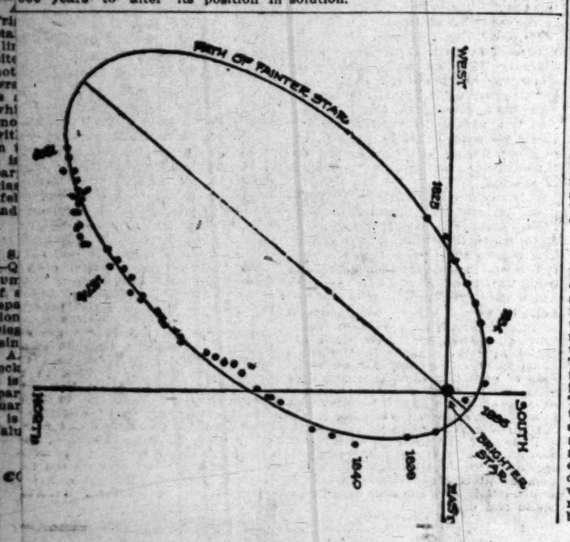
THE NEW STAR IN GEMINI.

On March 12, of this year, a bright new star was discovered in the constellation of the twins at the point shown in figure 1, almost in a direct line between the stars C and D. At this time it was nearly as bright as the star at C, and during the next few days it grew even brighter, after which it grew rapidly fainter, and in the course of a week was lost to the naked eye, though it was still easily seen in a small telescope. It has since been steadily fading away, and will soon doubtless be only visible with lenses of the largest size.

What the cause of these remarkable objects is, is still wholly unknown. They always appear suddenly, rising from invisibility to great brilliance within a few days, or even within a few hours. They may remain shining conspicuously in the sky for a few days, weeks, or even months, but soon they begin to grow rapidly fainter until finally they appear to sink into very faint.

An examination of photographs of this region of the sky made on March 10 and 11 showed that on the first date no star was in the exact position of the nova so bright as the 11.5 magnitude; on the second date the nova had appeared, and was of the fifth magnitude. On still earlier plates, however, the place of the new star was taken by a star of the fourteenth magnitude. If this faint object is the nova itself, its brightness must have increased 15,000 fold in the course of a few days.

It is possible that a sudden blazing out of a star in the heavens is caused by the meeting of an old and dark star with a meteoric cloud. The collision and friction of the meteors of the cloud may heat the cold star to incandescence, or may merely weaken its crust and enable the imprisoned gases to rush out. Some astronomers think it more probable that the outburst is caused by the near approach of two dark suns, the enormous gravitational pull which results tearing apart the crust of one of the stars and thus enabling the hot, inner material to escape as before. Still others believe that the wonderful brilliance is due to an explosive outburst in the body of a slowly-shrinking star, and that no outside influence need be imagined to account for it. What the cause of so enormous an explosion can be we do not know, and, indeed, the whole matter is one of the many problems in astronomy still awaiting solution.



THE PLANETS IN MAY.

Mercury is a morning star, reaching its greatest distance west of the sun on the afternoon of May 13. For a few days before and after this date it may be found shining brightly in the dawn, almost due east, rising about one hour and thirty minutes before sunrise.

Venus is also a morning star, but is too near the sun to be well observed. On May 1 it rises one hour and five minutes before sunrise, which time is lessened to but forty minutes by the end of the month. It will not finally pass the sun and become an evening star until July 7.

Mars moves very rapidly eastward during the month from Gemini to Cancer. It passes 2 degrees above the right star K, Figure 1, on May 5, and just below the Praesepe and between the stars L and M on June 8. In one day it moves over the sky an amount equal to the apparent distance across the moon. It is now very far away from us and appears in the telescope as only slightly more than one-half full.

Jupiter is now just entering the evening sky. It rises a few minutes after 9 o'clock on May 1, and at 7 o'clock on May 31. It is in the southeast, in excellent position for observation.

Saturn passes the sun and enters the morning sky at noon on May 14. On May 27, at 4 p.m., it passes Venus, but both bodies are then too near the sun to be well observed.

Uranus is low in the morning sky in the constellation Capricornus.

Neptune is in Gemini and is still in good position for observation with the telescope. On May 12, at 10 p.m., the planet Mars in its eastward motion passes exactly 2 degrees 9 minutes north of Neptune; by bringing the bright planet exactly in the center of the field of the telescope at this time, and then inclining the telescope southward, an amount equal to twice the diameter of the moon, Neptune will be seen in the center of the field. It has the appearance of a faint, ninth-magnitude star, but may be recognized by its more steady glow and by its greenish color.

On May 30, at 5 p.m. (eastern standard time,) the moon will pass the brightest star of the Scorpion. Observers in some of the western parts of our country will see this bright red star hidden from view by our satellite, while in other regions the two objects will merely be seen very near together, the lower edge of the moon appearing to almost graze the star.

CANNOT BE QUOTED.

Col. Jim Smuthers Praises Col. Roosevelt's Language and Its Flexibility of Construction.

[Washington Star:] "For a man who talks as well and as much, especially as much, as Col. Roosevelt does, it is unfortunate that he finds it so difficult to make himself understood," said Col. Jim Smuthers, quaffing a lingering draught from a tall glass at the Sign of the Crystal Flagon. "Col. Roosevelt is no stranger to the use of language. As adviser in chief to the United States and the world at large, he has been copious. He has employed some of the most massive, intricate and elaborate language ever required for the statement of a well known fact. There is no subject, no matter whether he has ever heard of it before or not, that the colonel cannot obscure with a wealth of language. Great crowds have cheered this language just because of the force with which it came.

"Though the colonel has written many historical works of fiction and has made one speech in so many different ways that it has sounded like several, yet it is astounding to me, his chosen representative in this convivial assembly, that he has never yet been successfully quoted. You think you've got him, and you find that he meant exactly the contrary. You make careful notes of what he said and you succeed in constructing only a 'fabrication out of whole cloth.' You get from him a statement, repeat it as it sounded to you, and you find that you got it wrong. You think you understood him, but you're a liar. Your intentions may be as amiable as love glances in a bower of springtime roses, with only silvery moonbeams peeping through, but you find in the next issue of the Outbreak, or quicker, that you were engaged in deliberate falsification or the willful misrepresentation of a man whose purity of purpose and altitude of aims have never been questioned except by those who have in their perverted opinion caught him with the goods.

"I have no fault to find with the colonel's pronunciation. He speaks loud enough and long enough. He emphasizes with great frequency. His pauses are not too far apart. He illustrates his remarks with enough gestures and with a vigor of facial expression that any other actor might envy, but you never quite get the exact meaning of what he meant to mean.

"The trouble seems to be that too many persons take words according to their general usage or their significance as set down in dictionaries, and not according to Theodoric intentions. This is an error. Col. Roosevelt's words have a peculiar, an occult, or an esoteric significance—to make myself clear to this grand assemblage of toddy-drainers—that is not susceptible of adequate translation.

"The advantage of the language the colonel uses is that it may be construed affirmatively or negatively, as needed; that the construction can be changed from time to time according to the popular call of the people, and that a fresh construction can be used wherever a previous construction gets in the way. This flexibility or pliancy of construction leads to some confusion among those who do not expect an office from Col. Roosevelt, but it never causes the colonel much disturbance. The last construction is the right one, until next time.

"There is one drawback to this language system, which is, that whenever the colonel says anything it keeps him busy for six months afterward explaining what he meant. However, whenever the colonel makes himself misunderstood he can always give himself the pleasure of denouncing the fellow who misunderstood him.

"The colonel employs most of his leisure as well as his office hours in the work of explanation. His spirit is more considerate and condescending than it once was. Explanation was not then his chief work. When he was at his best, or his worst, he never explained. He simply called the erring malefactor a liar, denounced him into insensibility and started a riot about something else. Explanation to 'my people' was beneath the dignity of a man who could do no wrong."

A Half Nickel Wanted.

[Washington Star:] From Cleveland comes an appeal for a revival of the 3-cent piece. It has been tried and found wanting, but that was before the day of 3-cent fares. But what the great shopping public most needs is a 2½-cent piece for those articles which come "two for a nickel." The thrifty soul is now vexed between throwing away a half-cent and saving it by buying something unnecessary. To foreigners from countries where the franc or the mark is the standard, our money scale seems extravagant, but few should ever turn to gant, but if we should ever turn to economy we have the basis for an excellent decimal system in the dime, which is 100 mills. Viewed as a 25-mill piece, the 2½-cent coin would be extremely worthy of respect.

Last of the Race.

TORAHUMARIS INDIAN TRIBE.

STILL LIVE IN CLIFFS OF NORTHERN MEXICO.

Remnants of the Families of Cliff Dwellers Who Once Inhabited Arizona and Colorado — Cave Dwellings Are Still Found in Oriental Countries and Africa.

[Washington Star:] The Smithsonian Institute is virtually a clearing house for the information of the world upon the subject of cliff dwellers. Dr. J. Walter Fewkes, who, perhaps, knows as much about cliff dwellers and cliff dwellings as any man in the world, has compiled a fund of interesting information upon the subject. This information shows that the cliff dweller is not a thing of the past. Today he exists in many parts of the world, and the monuments that he has left show that in times past his habitat has girdled the earth. Within the bounds of our own country and in Northern Mexico he is found still as of old, with his life, his character and ideals little different from those of his forefathers who lived thousands of years ago.

The popular mind regards the cliff dweller as an individual peculiar to this part of the world. This view is not correct, for China knows him well, as do India and Arabia. His strange habitations are found in equatorial Africa and civilized, modern Germany and France.

In Northern Mexico there is a tribe of Indians, true, primeval cliff dwellers, whose homes lie within the walls of a canyon of such dizzy heights as are customarily chosen for the nests of eagles. These people are the Tarahumaris, the cave dwellers of the Papigochoo River, in the heart of the Sierra Madre. Their village, accommodating from 9000 to 12,000 people, is absolutely out of reach of the world. The country about is so arid and mountainous that the canyon is almost inaccessible. The inclines leading to them are in many cases so precipitous that it would be a dangerous undertaking for the average man to attempt to climb them. But the Tarahumaris, with the agility of a life's training, brave them with no hesitation, and seldom come to disaster.

The canyon walls consist of a series of natural ledges of different heights and widths, and these ledges form resting places. In cases where the inclines leading to them were too steep, rude ladders have been constructed by cutting notches in logs, which form connections between them.

The caves they found as nature made them, some extending far into the side of the cliff and forming a series of rooms, each of which was appropriated by a different family. Other caves of similar size were partitioned off with the same purpose in view. These people exercise their ingenuity to the point of walling up the front of their caverns, but beyond this have done little for themselves save in the supplying of a few rude bake ovens with shelves for holding primitive cooking utensils. Light is admitted to the cave by means of an aperture at the top of the wall.

In appearance these people are tall and muscular. Their complexion is dark, even for American Indians. Their hair is long, black, straight and stringy, and is worn hanging down their backs. The children run naked and the adults make only a slight improvement upon this condition. The one most noticeable feature in connection with the character of these savages and the one which has done most to keep them in their retarded state of culture is their extreme timidity. They fear the sight of a white man and hide within their caves at his approach. They have a superstitious fear of all strangers and believe that if they keep themselves out of sight their existence will never be known.

The Tarahumaris are a branch of a large family of cliff dwellers who once inhabited the regions of Arizona, Colorado and Northern Mexico. By death and migration the family has been broken up until these few people are practically the only survivors who have retained the original type and who adhere to the old customs and traditions.

Along the boundary line of the Mexican States of Chihuahua and Sonora, in Northern Mexico, ruins of homes are found in the river valleys. These silent villages are most numerous where the soil is richest. In regions where there was not sufficient natural water supply, ditches and terraces for irrigation have been dug. On the crests of the hilltops the crumbling remnants of old fortresses are found, an evidence of the warlike disposition of its prehistoric inhabitants.

When one hunts for the weird and unusual among such scenes he is usually amply rewarded for his labor. There is always a tinge of awe connected with any relic of the past age. Such things as hatchets and cooking utensils lose their commonplaceness when one realizes that they were formed by the hands of people who lived hundreds of years ago and were used in their daily life.

At Casa Blanca, of the Canyon de Chelly, a branch of the San Juan Valley in Northeast Arizona, two skeletons were a short time ago found buried in a pentagonally-shaped cyst. They were in sitting position with knees drawn upward toward the chin, and with hands crossed on their breasts. The bodies were wrapped in coarse nets of vegetable fiber, and with the exception of a few grains of corn the graves were empty.

But the cave dweller has not confined his operations to North America. Here merely have been taken those caves found within the United States. They have been dwelt upon particularly with regard to the character and social life of the people of this section because the human element existing between them and the people of this country seems to be accentuated by their very proximity.

Caves showing evidence of habitation are widely distributed geographically. There is a belt of such dwellings extending from China across India to Asia Minor and Arabia. From here it follows both shores of the Mediterranean, continues into the Canary Islands, the West Indies, Mexico, North and South America and Alaska. Wherever rocks are found that can be readily worked into caves, ruins of dwellings within them are generally in evidence.

At King Island, in the Aleutians, those Alaskan islands that extend half way across the Pacific toward Japan, there is a settlement of forty dwellings literally lashed by cords to the side of a precipitous cliff. Each habitation consists of two chambers, an inner, partially excavated, and an outer, constructed of poles or driftwood. These two parts are connected by means of a tunnel. In the summer the family lives within the outer room, but in the winter withdraws into the cave for shelter from the cold.

In many parts of Europe inhabited caves are found in civilized communities. In France there are at the present time whole villages, including the church, to be found in the rocks, which are merely caves modified and extended and altered by the hand of man. The River Loire furnishes many examples of these modern cave dwellers in civilized countries. Many of these have in modern times had dwellings built in front of them and are now used for storage. This is by no means true of all, and many a snug cliff dwelling is today the abode of a French peasant. In the time of Caesar the caverns of Dordogne, France, were most populous and remained so throughout the middle ages. Tours, France, probably offers the best examples of modern inhabited cave dwellings in that country.

In the southern part of Germany, overlooking Lake Constance, is a series of famous and unexplained cave dwellings, known as the Heidenlocher. These caves have been excavated in a cliff which rises perpendicularly from the lake about thirty feet from the water level. A narrow path formerly skirted the shore and from it entrance was gained by means of ladders. The present approach is by stone steps along the face of the cliff, the former stairs being badly disintegrated.

There was at one time a large number of these caves, consisting of a series of rooms, chambers, cellars and niches connected with one another by hallways and stairs. Some of the rooms have arched and others flat ceilings. Some are elaborately adorned with columns, pilasters and cornices. Others are quite simple in design. Most of these contain stone benches, niches and openings for doors and windows. In parts of the cliff niches and rifts are to be seen, which are probably the remains of a former cave dwelling. At present there are only seven of these caves, a great many having recenly been destroyed by the construction of a road.

There is no historical information extant regarding the Heidenlocher. Nothing has ever been found within them which furnished a working basis for establishing the race of the people which built and lived within them, their age or the purpose of their construction.

Among the oases of the Sahara desert, in northern Africa, there are two distinctive types of dwellings whose counterparts are used extensively throughout the southwestern part of the United States. These are cliff dwellings in connection with pit rooms and underground villages. This similarity of structure is largely due to the climatic resemblance existing between the two regions. Both are extremely hot and subject to fierce rain and sand storms, which make subterranean caverns almost indispensable.

The village of Matmata, in northern Africa, is one of the most extraordinary underground settlements in the world. It consists of a series of depressions, about thirty feet in diameter, connected with one another by means of lateral passageways. All open into a sunken court which is a common gathering place for the inhabitants, in which most of the household work is performed. The excavated chambers are used as sleeping rooms, and are arranged one above another. Many of them are elaborately adorned with pictures, rugs and furniture; others are almost bare. Entrance is gained to this village by means of subterranean tunnels slanting upward, which are large enough for passage of man and beast. Villages of this type are not uncommon throughout the arid deserts of Tunis. Some of them are entirely below the earth's surface; others are partly above ground.

In volcanic regions high, sharply pointed cones sometimes result when the softer stone is rounded away from some more durable lava rock. Thus is a pillar of stone left standing high above the surrounding country. Into these, like so many woodpeckers, have the cliff dwellers drilled themselves caves. The rock of which these cones are formed is easily worked with rude implements, so that rooms may be excavated in it in a comparatively short time.

In Asia Minor the same thing has happened, and cones have been found whose interiors are honeycombed with small chambers. These are reached by means of circular stone stairs resembling round tunnels. Cases have been known where nine or ten stories were thus connected, though the average height of these ancient apartment-houses was about four or five stories. The floors separating them were usually thick enough to hold any weight that might rest upon them, though occasionally they have given away, forming a lofty chamber. Many of them have porticos which are obviously of later construction than the dwellings themselves, as indicated by Greek or Roman arches or columns.

By comparing the evidences of antiquity in connection with these habitations with certain historical records the identity of their original inhabitants has come to be associated with a certain pastoral people who lived about the time 19 B.C. These people were of a very low degree of civilization. They had formulated no language, but expressed their desires by means of signs and unearthly sounds. They went nude or dressed in skins. Their food consisted of meat of their herd, milk and blood and bones which were crushed and mixed with meat, so as to form a kind of hash, which was wrapped in raw skins and roasted. They killed only those animals which were old and sickly, as they had a reverence for their cattle and sheep which amounted to a kind of ancestor worship. They believed themselves to be the descendants of such animals, and therefore regarded butchers as unclean persons. In addition to this kind of food they ate lizards and serpents. Those of the tribe who were sickly, crippled or too old to work were either killed by their own hands or by the community at large.

These caves are today serving a variety of uses. In many parts of the world they are used for habitations or as places of shelter for livestock. Much of the champagne of France ages in these underground structures. In Spain and Germany caves are appropriated by vagabonds and roving bands of gypsies, while in the Far East they are occupied by priests and mystics. So today is the handwork of a prehistoric people being utilized to meet modern needs.

The cave dwellings found in the old world are much more ornamental and highly developed architecturally than those of the new. Many of the rock temples of Egypt, China and India are examples of great skill and expertness in rock cutting. Of these one of the most famous and most beautiful is the city of Petra of the Syrian deserts.

The Smithsonian Institution has been devoting much time of late in putting together the lore of the world with relation to cliff dwelling. J. Walter Fewkes, an authority on the American cliff dwelling, has been going farther afield, and has done much toward concentrating all the knowledge extant in the institution.

$70
Per Acre

Alfalfa Land With Free Water

We have secured one of the richest pieces of alfalfa land in California's most famous valley, at such a satisfactory figure, that we are in a position to offer it at the attractive price of $70 per acre. You can search California from end to end, and you will find no alfalfa land of this type within a good many dollars of this figure. We have secured a big, inexhaustible water supply for this land, which we offer to purchasers ABSOLUTELY FREE. Remember, there is absolutely no charge for this water—it goes with the land. This land is so rich and so well sub-irrigated that it will actually produce several crops of alfalfa WITHOUT IRRIGATION. Close to this $70 land are some of the most prosperous alfalfa and dairying ranches in California. One of the creameries close by is paying out checks to ranchers as high as $1500. When we show you the big profit-producing ranches adjoining this land you will realize the wonderful bargain we are offering.

This land is right in the heart of the natural gas belt, too. You can easily and cheaply develop a valuable supply of odorless natural gas for light, heat, fuel and power, right on your own land. This feature alone is worth the price asked for the property. The tule plants which grow in profusion all over this land prove its sedimentary origin and remarkable fertility. In fact, land experts claim that this soil is similar in composition to the overflow deposits on the banks of the Nile.

Excellent transportation facilities—best of schools, commercial and educational advantages. Land is level and ready for the plow. Close to the State's best markets. Just a short trip from Los Angeles. Special low excursion rates. Last offering of this type that will ever be made in the history of the State. Register immediately for excursion, as only a limited number of people can be accommodated. Excursion money back if everything is not exactly as represented.

The Los Angeles Times Brings the Famous Brady War Photographs to this City

A TIMELY OCCASION brings a timely announcement. These are the days when the Civil War is being commemorated throughout the land. Just fifty years ago we were in the midst of a terriffic struggle---the most momentous in our history. Each day and each week we live over again some famous battle or critical event which took place upon some unforgettable day. The semi-centennial brings to you---through a great publishing enterprise of The Times---the most timely as well as the most typical souvenir of that titanic conflict.

The Civil War Through the Camera

A NEWLY WRITTEN, IMPARTIAL STORY OF THE GREAT CONFLICT
By Professor Henry W. Elson, of Ohio University

ILLUSTRATED BY THE FAMOUS BRADY WAR PHOTOGRAPHS
Published by Authority of the United States War Department

Every American home is full of memories of the great Civil War. In some it was a father or a brother who actually served. In many the fast aging veterans still linger to bear their eloquent witness. In each and all we celebrate the red-letter dates, "just fifty years ago today," with kindling hearts. What more timely, therefore, than the publication and wide distribution of the actual photographs of that historic time? It seems too wonderful to be true—yet here they are! The famous Brady war pictures lost for many years—only recently discovered—worth a king's ransom—have been placed within reach of every patriotic man and woman, boy and girl in Los Angeles. They are yours practically for the asking!

When the "Times" heard of this magnificent undertaking, it at once determined to secure the prize for the people of Los Angeles, regardless of expense. It has entered into a great national publishing alliance, whose object is to place in every intelligent and patriotic home in this country, no matter how limited its means, this vivid memorial of National valor known as THE CIVIL WAR THROUGH THE CAMERA.

We will supply every reader of this paper who applies in time with one of the complete sections of this monumental work, at the bare cost of distribution. For ONLY TEN CENTS, when accompanied by the War Souvenir Coupon, which will be published daily in this paper, we will supply a beautiful portfolio, giving in interesting text and war-time picture the complete account of one of the most important events of the war. The series naturally begins with Bull Run, that first great encounter of armed troops of the North and South.

The contingent fee is so small that it cannot cover the cost of this distribution unless a large number of portfolios are issued. To be exact—unless more than one million copies shall be distributed to subscribers to this great organization, the nominal fee asked will fail to equal the expense incurred in collecting, identifying, and bringing this priceless collection to the American people.

But already the response in various parts of the country has been tremendous and, knowing the people of Los Angeles as we do, our only concern is that we will be able to supply the great demand.

In Sixteen Superbly Illustrated Pictorial Parts ISSUED ONE EACH WEEK—EACH PART COMPLETE

Every Important Event Depicted

The series will be completed in sixteen parts, superbly and profusely illustrated from the famous photographs. Each week The Times will issue one of these parts in its regular sequence, thus enabling you to follow the stirring events of half a century ago just as they occurred. In this way every important event and phase of the war are covered.

Another good feature—every part is complete in itself. You can obtain one or all, just as you desire. You don't have to keep in your head anything that went before. Each part tells the full, entire story of a whole battle, from the first scouting party to the last gun fired. You enter into all the hopes and fears of the grim generals lined up for the fight. You learn what forces they had, and what brought on the struggle. You watch the opposing lines gradually close in. Then comes the first screaming bullet and the dull shock of conflict.

Back and forth you see them; they surge until one side gives way. Another chapter in history has been written. And with all the thrill of an eye-witness you come to know, as you never did before, the meaning of the words, Bull Run, Shiloh, Corinth, Fredericksburg and all the rest down to Appomattox!

The History by Professor Henry W. Elson

This is far more than a collection of pictures—however unique and valuable. Not only is every picture completely described—a feature of the utmost value and true only of the present work—but there is also a clear, interesting story of the battle or events from the masterly pen of Prof. Henry W. Elson of Ohio University.

Like the photographs, the text of THE CIVIL WAR THROUGH THE CAMERA is surprising. It is absolutely different from any and all of the histories you are used to. It is the kind of history you will like—you will want your children to know—and, best of all, the sort they will read without any urging. For it is as fascinating as a fairy tale.

It is a lesson in patriotism they will never forget.

More than that—it is absolutely fair and impartial. The day has long since passed when we can afford to take sides, or tell a big story from only one point of view. This is the biggest of our stories, and it has been told from a national viewpoint. Both sides have had their say—and the facts have been allowed to speak for themselves.

The resultant work represents United America—with its pride in the valor of the Blue and the Gray alike!

CONTENTS OF PART ONE

PART ONE deals with the outbreak of hostilities and the Battle of Bull Run. Professor Elson's story gives the reader all the essential facts in a vivid way.

For illustrations, there is a beautiful colored plate, The Battle of Bull Run; and the following war-time scenes reproduced directly from the rare photographs: Views of Fort Sumter and its Commander. Fort Sumter after the Bombardment. Its appearance while in the Hands of the Confederates. A War-Time Mass-Meeting in New York Pledging Support to the Union. The Cabinet of President Jefferson Davis. General McDowell, the Defender of Washington. General P. G. T. Beauregard, the Southerner of the Hour in '61. The Minnesota Volunteer Regiment that fought at Bull Run. Mrs. Greenhow, the Confederate Spy, who sent the News of McDowell's advance to Beauregard. Union Troops from Rhode Island, New York, New Jersey, Pennsylvania and Vermont. Scenes of Bull Run Battlefield. Prisoners of the Confederacy in Castle Pinckney, Charleston Harbor.

You are accomplishing a work of inestimable value in restoring the scenes of half a century ago.
G. VON L. MEYER.

The Secretary of War
Although I have long made quite a study of the great conflict, it has never before really been brought home to me in the way in which these pictures do it.
H. L. STIMSON.

The Chief of Staff, U. S. A.
Of great value in giving to our people a better idea of the Civil War. The photographs are very good.
LEONARD WOOD.

Archbishop Ireland
Next to having taken an active part in the War—in its marches and bivouacs, its vigils and battles, its defeats and victories—I rank as a means of realization of its meaning and value the attentive inspection of those "Photographs." I should wish a place were given to them in every home, in every school-house, in every public library of America.

Theodore Roosevelt
A really noteworthy work. The photographs thus collected are not only of a permanent value, but will have a steadily increasing value for the historian as time elapses.

The Times is pleased to announce that it has secured the exclusive rights in the Southwest for these superb and only authentic series of war photographs, issued in folio form, sixteen in number, and will shortly begin distribution of them to its readers, at 10c per folio. Watch for coupons and later announcements.

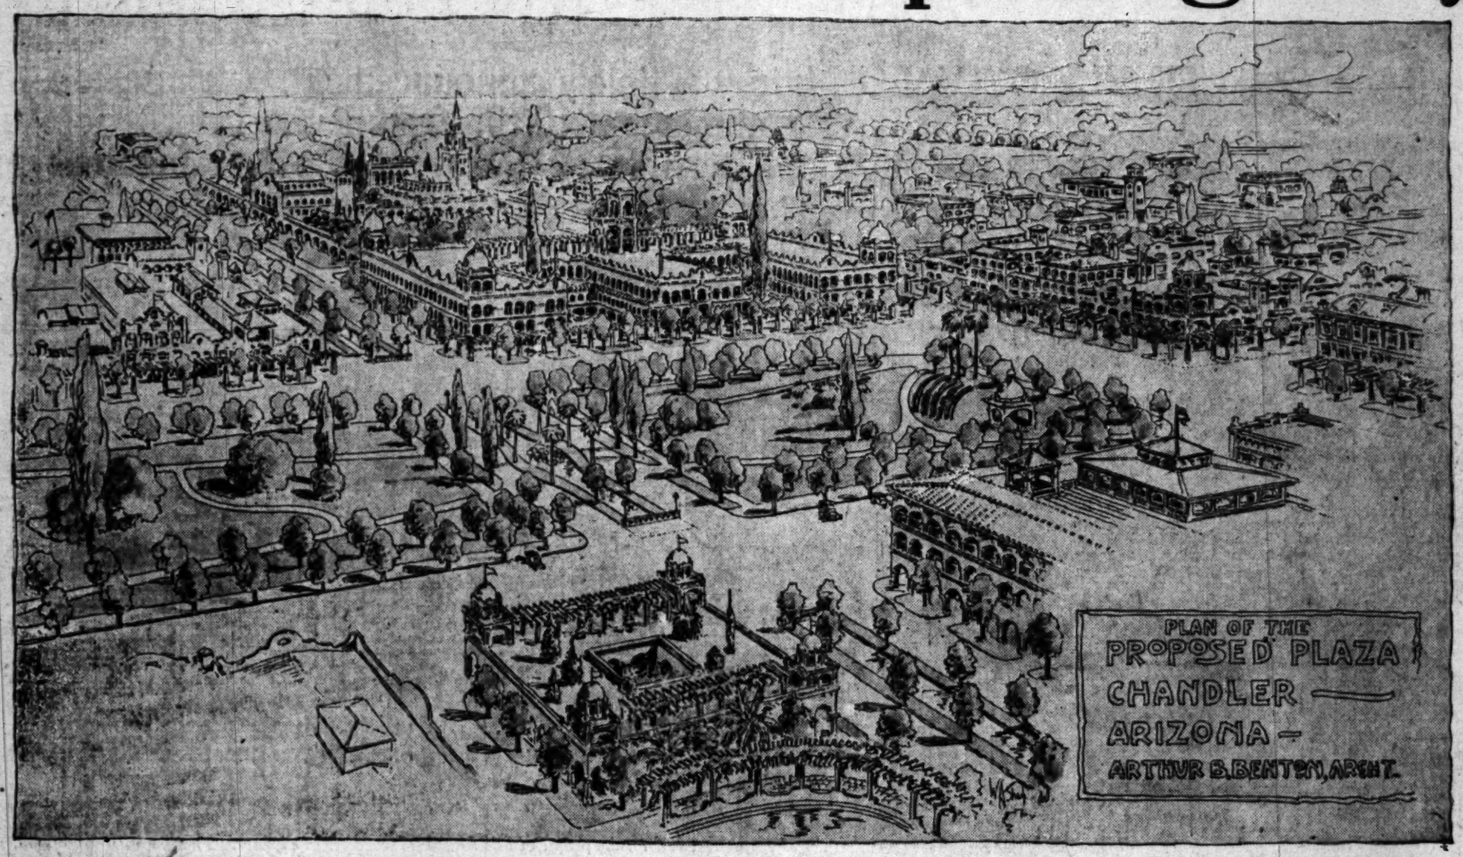
Chandler Townsite Opening May 16



Beautiful New Town Surrounded by Nearly 100,000 Acres of Rich Orange and Alfalfa Land Offers Rare Investment Opportunities

Nearly Three-Quarters of a Million Dollars' Worth of Lands on All Sides of Chandler Recently Sold to California Ranchers

You've read about the success of the great Chandler Ranch — the cream of fertile Salt River Valley, Arizona. You've read about former California ranchers and fruit growers buying three-quarters of a million dollars' worth of lands on this wonderful ranch in tracts of ten acres and upwards. You've read about the great $10,000,000 Roosevelt Irrigation System that waters these lands. The Roosevelt Dam is now world-famous. Surely you've read about all these things in the daily papers and the various magazines of the country.

Now, right in the heart of this great area of rich lands that have sold so rapidly, a townsite has been reserved—a trading point—a town that will have nearly a hundred thousand acres of income-producing land adjacent and tributary to it. The new townsite of Chandler will be open to the home-buying and investing public May 16. The opening of Chandler townsite is a proposition radically different from anything in townsite exploitation in the history of the Southwest. Here is a town with a logical, practical, consistent plan back of it WHERE A GREAT VOLUME OF BUSINESS IS AWAITING ITS ESTABLISHMENT — BEFORE A SINGLE LOT HAS BEEN OFFERED FOR SALE. Never did the demand for a full-fledged town exist more urgently than right here in the heart of the great Chandler ranch. Many townsites are opened on the possibility of business eventually coming to them. But Chandler is the logical commercial and industrial center of the big Chandler Ranch and the vast surrounding country. There is no other practical trading point for the occupants of these lands.

About 50,000 acres tributary to Chandler townsite are under the Roosevelt Irrigation System. Figuring a consistent average of $40 worth of products to the acre (which is extremely low) the gross production of this vast area would be $2,000,000 per year. In addition to this land under the Roosevelt System, nearly 50,000 additional acres will be operated by private water plants. This will eventually give a gross production of over $4,000,000 worth of products per year tributary to the town of Chandler.

The sales record of Chandler Ranch has exceeded anything in the agricultural history of the Southwest. The fact that this land has been purchased principally by former California ranchers and fruit growers is a glowing tribute to the soil, climatic and water conditions. Think of at least 2000 families producing fruit and ranch products surrounding the town of Chandler. And with no other logical trading point except this new town, the industrial possibilities of the place can be easily appreciated.

Before opening the townsite and placing the lots on sale, the Mesa Improvement Company, owners, have judiciously waited until they could perfect their plans and cause conditions to exist which would absolutely assure success to purchasers of lots. A large amount of money has been appropriated for the best class of street work, curbing, etc. The laying out of the town is in the hands of the best architects and landscape engineers in the West. Chandler will not only be one of the most busy and progressive towns in the West—but it will also be one of the most beautiful communities. There is a logical plan back of Chandler—it will be one of the few towns in the United States that was actually started right. The general scheme includes the beautiful central park or Plaza which is now being laid out under the supervision of prominent landscape engineers. Surrounding this beauty spot with its large stream of running water, central island and fountain, will be the business section.

This part of the town is being planned along harmonious lines—practical, convenient and beautiful.

Mr. Roosevelt said in his speech at the recent opening of Roosevelt Dam, "I want to see thousands of people come in here."

Beautiful Tourist Hotel

Plans have just been completed for a modern fireproof hotel, to be called the Hotel San Marcos. From the standpoint of convenience, utility and beauty, this hostelry will be unequaled in any town of similar size and importance in the Southwest. It will afford proper accommodations for the many tourists who are attracted to the Salt River Valley by its famous winter climate—acknowledged to be unsurpassed by any winter resort in the world.

Novel Natatorium

In addition to the hotel, the company is also planning a splendid natatorium or bath-house, which is to be made one of the best attractions of the Salt River Valley. A large stream of water, which comes from one of the immense irrigation wells at a temperature of 78 degrees, will run through the plunge, affording a continuous changing supply of pure, warm water and rendering bathing a pleasure in winter or summer. Sun parlors and other amusement features will be provided for.

Location of Chandler

The townsite of Chandler is located seven miles south of Mesa, in the richest part of the famous Salt River Valley, where the Government has recently completed the Roosevelt System, at a cost of about $10,000,000—a wonderful power-producing, profit-sharing co-operative irrigation system, built by the United States Government FOR THE LAND OWNERS—the finest irrigation system in America, if not in the world. Grasp the fact that no less a power than Uncle Sam is really back of this agricultural district and townsite.

The land surrounding and tributary to Chandler is unparalleled for the production of early oranges and grapefruit, alfalfa, dairying and stock raising, poultry and ostriches, cantaloupes and melons, figs and dates, peaches, pears, plums, apricots deciduous fruits, berries and vegetables.

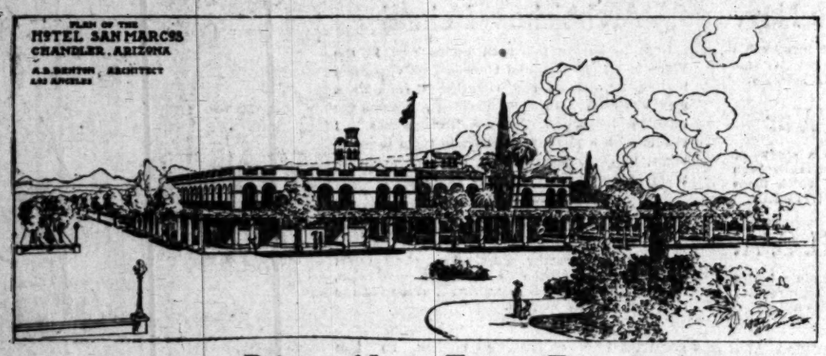
Live Investment Opportunities

No section of the West presents better real estate investment opportunities than the new townsite of Chandler. Business lots and residence property will easily increase four-fold in value in the next twenty-four months. Bear in mind that four to six million dollars' worth of products will be raised surrounding this town annually. Salt River Valley grapefruit groves produce as high as $1200 net per acre. Oranges ripen several weeks earlier than California fruit and net $300 to $600 per acre. Here is the greatest cattle country in the world. The dairying industry flourishes here because of the wealth of ever-growing alfalfa. There are fortunes in hogs in this section. Cotton grows to perfection here. Several of the biggest copper mining districts in the world are tributary to Chandler. The Ray and Miami mines are employing thousands of men—and Chandler is the closest agricultural town.

Commercial and Professional Opportunities

Splendid opportunities are open at Chandler for a fine modern grocery, hardware dealer, lumber dealer, general merchandise store, druggist, butcher, barber, dry goods store, shoe store, clothing store, confectionery and ice cream store, moving picture show, billiard and pool hall, jewelry store, doctor, lawyer, carpenters, bricklayers, masons, plasterers, plumbers, electricians, painters, paperhangers and laboring men of all kinds.

The Roosevelt Dam



What Arthur Burnett Benton, the Noted Architect, Says About the New Town of Chandler

"The town of Chandler is being laid out along distinctly modern lines. Its designers are planning to meet the modern problems of traffic — of street railways, automobiles and auto trucks, which have proven so perplexing in the old-style towns. The latter have generally 'grown' and have not been planned. They did not provide for modern traffic conditions —places in the business center where automobiles could be parked safely, without interfering with the through traffic on the streets. Open spaces are to be reserved for public buildings, schoolhouses, churches and playgrounds. Poles for wires will be placed in alleys and not on the main streets. Business blocks fronting on the Plaza are to be of fireproof construction, thus eliminating one of the chief dangers of business interests in new towns. It is proposed to warm and light and provide refrigeration for these buildings from a central plant to be installed immediately.

"The hotel building will be of reinforced concrete construction and will have all the latest improvements in hotel buildings. Many of the rooms will be provided with private sleeping balconies. The portion which is to be built at once includes thirty-five guest rooms, but plans for the entire structure of about 200 rooms are outlined, and so arranged that construction of additional wings and stories can proceed without interfering in any way with the hotel business.

"Plans are also under way for a casino, lodge room and public bath. This building will also contain a theater, bowling alleys, cafe and lunch room, dancing pavilion, sun room and an immense plunge bath, 50x120 feet, surrounded by pergolas opened to the sky. A large part of the roof of the theater will be removable for summer use. This building will also be fireproof.

"The parking and tree planting will be done immediately in conformity with the latest municipal methods. The town is to be at once utilitarian in the best sense of the word—and also beautiful."

Prices of Lots, Terms, Etc.

Prices of lots in the Chandler townsite range from $200 for residence lots to $1500 for some of the choicest corners in the business section, payable one-fourth cash, balance in three equal payments, in one, two and three years.

In making these low prices and easy terms the object of the Company is to quickly build up a modern town, as the Company owns a large area of land tributary to the town, all of which will be benefited by the growth of Chandler.

The prices and terms make it easy for the business men or home seekers to secure desirable locations, which will rapidly increase in value. The rapid growth of the town can be anticipated from what has already been done there. Not a lot has yet been sold and the new $9000 brick school building which is nearing completion has already been found inadequate, as there are more children waiting now than the building will accommodate and it has been necessary to make provisions to add another unit to the building before the first one has been completed.

The town will be built up on modern lines and restrictions have been made on various portions of the townsite for the benefit of investors. The Company offers special inducements to business men and others to build modern buildings in the business section and restrictions in the residence section are such as to add to the value of the property.

Full information regarding the townsite and also the Chandler Ranch lands can be obtained at either the Los Angeles or Mesa offices or at the townsite of Chandler.

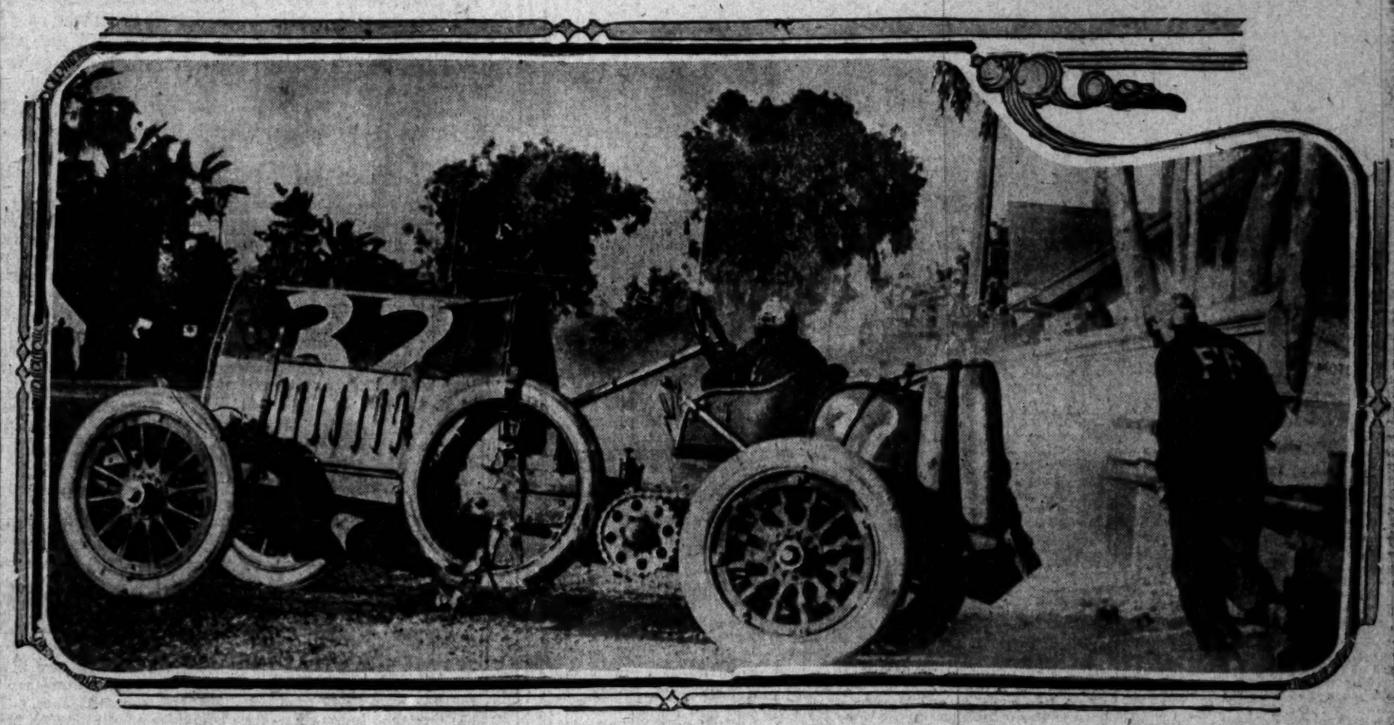
NEW WORLD MOTOR CHAMPION IS MADE IN A DAY.



Local Lad Wins.

TEDDY TETZLAFF IS NEW WORLD MOTOR CHAMPION.

Giant Fiat Driven to Victory Against Mightiest Monsters of the World in Sensational Dash at Santa Monica—Average 78.5 Miles an Hour Made by the Daring Pilot—One Hundred and Fifty Thousand Spectators.

BY BERT C. SMITH.

ONE hundred and fifty thousand spectators thronged the Santa Monica Road Race course yesterday and saw a new world record established yesterday by Teddy Tetzlaff in the 120-horse-power Fiat. An average of 78.5 miles an hour for the 303.012 miles of road, places the mark far ahead of all existing records in motor car racing.

The new world's champion swept through the lanes of excited spectators to a sensational victory. Fighting to the last ditch with David Bruce Brown on the Benz, Tetzlaff maintained his lead and won by several minutes. Caley Bragg was second and Bruce Brown was a close third.

Greater than any Vanderbilt cup race ever held, more thrilling than the most exciting Savannah grand prize speed battle, the Santa Monica road race yesterday went down to history with a new world mark. The record of the National of 74.93 miles an hour was shattered and a mark was chalked up that can probably be broken on no other course than the one over which the cars were raced yesterday.

The exodus of people to the Santa Monica road race course yesterday was the greatest ever witnessed. Thousands came from out of town cities. Other thousands came from across the continent. It was a representative throng gathered for the greatest speed battle ever held. The meet proved a fitting opening to the Shrine week.

Dave Lewis on the Stutz went away first in the big event, with Earl Cooper on the other Stutz, second. Barney Oldfield, on the big Fiat, was the third to leave, with Teddy Tetzlaff right behind him.

Caley Bragg was next and Starter Fred Wagner patted the Pasadena millionaire as he raced away with a burst of speed that brought the throng to its feet with wild applause.

David Bruce Brown left the starting line with a dash that sent him toward Dead Man's Curve at a terrific pace. He shot into the turn almost wide open. Then Bert Dingley went away with a snappy motor that sounded fine.

Never was a more spectacular start seen on any race course than was witnessed yesterday at Santa Monica. Mighty motors spat out clouds of smoke and flame.

Dave Lewis on the Stutz finished the first lap in the lead, with Barney Oldfield right behind him. Barney caught the little Stutz before Lewis reached Dead Man's Curve and Oldfield went into the lead of the big race at the end of the first lap.

Brown on the Benz held his place and came down the stretch like a whirlwind. It was nerve-thrilling to see the big boy as he raced through the lines of spectators.

Teddy Tetzlaff sprung the surprise of the great race by passing Oldfield on the Palisades and moving from fourth place into first.

Just why Oldfield dropped back no one will ever know, but Barney was driving just the race he said he would. Oldfield set a pace and held it for the opening laps.

Brown on the Benz showed his class in this race. Like a great white bird he came down the stretch trying to catch Oldfield and Tetzlaff. He drove the second lap in 6m. 2s.

Tetzlaff drove the lap in 5m 59s at a speed of 90 miles an hour for the 6.417 miles of road. Tetzlaff held his lead to the third lap.

Brown in the Benz went from sixth to third just behind Oldfield with Caley Bragg a good third and Bert Dingley a poor fourth.

The two Stutz cars were outclassed, the pace being too swift. Consistency marked the race for these cars and both Lewis and Cooper circled lap after lap without varying more than a second between each circuit.

Tetzlaff, in the fourth lap, had increased his lead by 500 yards, but his tires looked ragged. Oldfield was second with his tires in fine shape.

Bragg passed the Benz in the fourth lap and was after Oldfield like a cannon-ball. The Benz lost some time by changing a tire and took sixth place, the two Stutz cars having passed him on the Palisades.

At the finish of the fifth lap Tetzlaff still leading by a large margin, signaled for a tire change. Oldfield came ripping out of the "S" turn just as Teddy swung around Dead Man's curve. Teddy's lead measured just two miles. Brown paused a second at the end of the sixth lap and strapped another tire. Then he shot away toward the first turn like a scared "jackrabbit."

At the end of first eight laps Tetzlaff had established a new world record of 80.5 miles an hour. A new world record.

With 100 miles of the race over, Tetzlaff was in the lead by almost a lap and Bruce Brown was second, with Oldfield a close third. Bragg, on the Fiat, was fourth, running like a mill race.

On the twelfth lap Tetzlaff stopped to change a tire, losing more than half a lap. Caleb Bragg, in this lap, made 84 miles an hour, passing everybody and jumping into second place.

Oldfield drew up at the pits with a broken spring. R. W. Pierce, a spectator, was slightly injured on the back stretch when Oldfield's car threw a tire.

Bragg drew into the stretch with Brown, but dropped back with a flat tire, losing his fight for second place and being forced back to third position.

The two Stutz cars had not varied a length from the first to the fifteenth lap. Lewis and Cooper moved up to fourth and fifth places in this lap and were both running strong.

Oldfield's mishap came in the thirteenth lap. He lost thirteen minutes and seemed hopelessly out of the running. The jinx was on Barney. This put him two laps behind.

In the sixteenth lap Brown stopped for a tire at the Soldiers' Home and Bragg again jumped into second place.

At the end of the seventeenth lap Teddy Tetzlaff had averaged 79 miles

Teddy Tetzlaff, the Winner.

Above is Tetzlaff's big Fiat car just as it had bumped into the fence and the mechanician had jumped out to ascertain the extent of the damage. Below is a portrait of Tetzlaff.

WINNER NEARLY LOST NERVE.

Teddy Tetzlaff almost lost the big road race in the last lap. As he plunged into Deadman's turn and heard the thunder of Bragg's Fiat and Bruce Brown's Benz he confessed that his nerve was shattered. He tried to hold his Fiat to the course down Ocean boulevard, but the rear end of the big racer skidded into the iron railing, ripping it as though it were wood. With the rear end of his machine half demolished he limped to the finish a winner.

Danger There.

DEAD MAN'S CURVE THRILLS.

CROWD SEES BARNEY OLDFIELD SKID ON DANGEROUS TURN.

Louis Disbrow, in Speedy Case Excites Fans Who Watch David Bruce Brown and Teddy Tetzlaff Fight With Caley Bragg for the World Motor Championship.

The free-for-all race was exciting Dead Man's Curve was the point for thrills. They began with a volley of cheers for Barney Oldfield, when he swung around the corner in his green blouse and cigar in his mouth. He was given additional plaudits when he came around again, his position showing that had, in the interim, passed Cooper in his Stutz.

Barney was closely followed by Tetzlaff on the third lap, both trying to negotiate the turn without losing time or their relative position. Barney took an extra chance and did not slow down much, with the result that he skidded badly towards the fence, and it was feared he was going to strike it. Throughout the race Barney showed that he was not a road-racer, by the manner in which he attempted the curve. He skidded across the street almost every time he rounded. On the other hand, Teddy negotiated the curve without skidding by making it on a long swing.

Dingley, in his Simplex, scattered the crowd when he attempted to make the turn, saw that he couldn't, and ran past it. He was cheered as he turned, smiling a little, although he was chewing at the end of a wet cloth.

Lewis in his Stutz ran by the curve a few minutes later when he and Coop-an hour. Bragg, with his Fiat, was second and Brown and the Benz third. Tetzlaff stopped for tires and gasoline.

Barney Oldfield came back into the race after a dangerous drop into the ditch and started racing at terrific speed. His efforts to overtake the leaders won the crowd. Oldfield turned the fourteenth lap at an average of 81 miles an hour.

With the race more than half over the pace had increased to such a pace that the crowds were forced back from the sidelines. The speedsters were moving at terrific speed. Tetzlaff was making seventy-eight miles an hour, but Oldfield was hitting a speed of eighty-one miles an hour.

Dingley on the Simplex was running a consistent race, but was forced back to fourth place.

On the sixteenth lap Oldfield made the circuit in 6m. 52s., at an average speed of ninety miles an hour.

Caley Bragg sent his Fiat around in 5m. 44s., and came into the stretch with Oldfield. But the race was too swift for Barney, who let Bragg go into the turn ahead of him.

Bruce Brown turned the twenty-fourth lap in 5:34:10. He came down the stretch, passing Teddy Tetzlaff and flying to the turn like a high-powered locomotive.

This lap was the sensation of the race. Tetzlaff came to the pits and stopped, and Brown came down and changed a tire also.

Brown in the Benz turned the fastest lap of the day in the thirtieth circuit, finishing the 8.417 miles in 5m. 27 2-5s., an average of ninety-three miles an hour. It was a tire fight with honors in favor of Tetzlaff.

In the thirty-second lap Brown stopped on the back stretch for a tire change, and Bragg slipped into second place.

Tetzlaff swept across the tape in 3h. 48m. 42s., with the crowd yelling wildly. Tetzlaff had once more been proclaimed the world's motor champion.

LIGHT AND MEDIUM CARS.

Earl Devore on the Buick started first and Louis Disbrow on the Case was sent away fifteen seconds afterwards, then Frank Siefert left just as the Mercer team came to the tape.

There was a wild cheer as Ralph De Palma went away with the yellow Mercer barking spitefully. Then came Roscoe Anthony.

A. J. Charles had trouble just as he started on the Ford, but it was not the car, but the excited driver.

George Joermann was the last to leave with the Maxwell. He went away with a spirit that sounded good to J. S. Conwell, who occupied a box with his family close to the starting line.

Devore on the Buick "40" was first to complete a lap and swung over the tape with the Case and Louis Disbrow close behind.

Ralph De Palma swept over the tape a few seconds behind the Case and looked like a winner. He turned one of the fastest laps in the opening part of the medium car race.

Jack Tower on the Flanders came tearing over the tape at a clip that placed him decidedly in the running for the Chanslor & Lyon trophy.

The Reo went to the pits on the second lap and Krouse dramatically threw up his hands.

Evans on the Flanders came down the stretch close behind Tower on the other Flanders. These two made fast time.

Ralph De Palma slipped ahead of Louis Disbrow on the fourth lap and shot into first place with the Mercer.

The Case swung in and changed a tire at the pits. Then Disbrow shot away with a burst of speed that made him once more a strong contender, but the Mercer with De Palma was too speedy even for Disbrow, who shot away at a clip which won the plaudits of the throng in the grand stand.

The little Ford cars were contenders every second of the light-car race until A. J. Charles drew up at the repair pits with a sad look of disappointment.

Joermann, on the Maxwell, stopped on the back stretch in the medium-car race.

With a smile of confidence on his handsome face, Ralph de Palma finished the eighth lap in the lead and even slowed down when he came to the turns. De Palma drove a heady race and kept his car flying along the stretches.

At the end of five laps, Tower, on the Flanders, had jumped into the lead in the light-car race with an average of 58.36 miles an hour. This looked like a world record for the light cars.

Cheer after cheer swept across the grand stand as De Palma and the Mercer continued to maintain his lead. The crowd came to its feet as De Palma completed the first half of the race with a lead of more than half a lap.

One of the features of the light and medium-car race, was one Nikrent

See the Million Dollar Motor
Explained By the Factory Expert

We have this week in our showrooms a sectional Knight-type motor; the motor that's used in the Stearns-Knight car. An expert from the Stearns factory is here to explain it to all who care to call. He will go into detail. The sectional engine shows all the parts moving, the famous sleeve valves and ports. It reveals at a glance the utter simplicity of this marvelous motor. All who are interested in motor cars should see it. There is no other way to understand the Knight-type so well, to so fully realize why this is the greatest motor ever built.

The Car of Today

Makers of poppet-valve engines say, "Wait and see."

But the Knight-type is six years old. Daimler has used it since 1908.

One after another, the greatest makers in Europe have been forced to pay royalty for it. It is used now in 17 famous makes of cars.

Some $25,000,000 has been already invested in Knight-motored cars of the highest grade.

How much longer is it wise to wait? Stearns waited three years after Europe came to it. The Stearns people were not willing converts.

But they knew when progress couldn't be longer stopped. The cars of the future will be Knight-type cars.

They were compelled by the evidence—as you will be—to come to this type of car.

Let Facts Decide

Knight-type cars, in the hands of owners, have covered, in the aggregate, millions of miles of road. The owners are men who know cars—men who demand the best.

The letters we get from some of them form the highest tribute ever paid to an American car.

The facts which won them will win you when you know them.

They are irresistible to any man who wants the utmost in a car.

Learn Knight Luxury

The most apparent attraction in the Stearns-Knight is its absolute silence.

It is silent at the curb—silent at any speed — silent after years of use. Knight-type engines which have run for six years are as silent as when new.

The engine is so silent that the car must be built with marvelous care to be as quiet as the motor.

There are no valves to spring shut—no cams to get noisy—no timing gears to hum.

The car shows immense flexibility—as much as six cylinders of the old type.

There is no evidence of effort, even on a hill.

And the Stearns-Knight engine shows that persistent power for which electric motors are famous.

There is no other car so luxurious in motion, riding quality or finish.

The Coming Car

The evidence is that the leading cars of the future are bound to be Knight-motored cars. History shows that what Daimler, Mercedes and Panhard adopt will soon mark the best cars the world over. In buying a car for years to come, this fact should be well considered. You want the coming, not the passing type.

In two more years Knight-types will be common among high-grade cars—as in Europe now. Today the Knight-type, in its perfection, means in America a Stearns Knight car.

Commissioner Suggs already has project under way for building a St highway east and west through Ok homa that would intersect and tra erse portions of the historic Santa Trail, the Chisholm Trail, the Ft. S Trail and the Ft. Towson Trail. Und the scheme each county is to constru its share of the highway, securi funds by subscription or taxation a donation work. This scheme has ready been successfully operated Western Oklahoma in the constru tion of a north-south highway th may be made a part of the Pos Highway from the Great Lakes to t Gulf of Mexico.

Boards of County Commissioner and Mayors of towns and cities in th line of counties traversed have se apart holidays for roadworking an called upon all persons interested t assist in the work. Such a move i Grant county resulted in the constru tion of a greater portion of the high way in a day. A similar day was ob served in Grady county and later i Lincoln county. Hundreds of farm ers' teams and plows, wagons and scrapers were used and bankers, law yers, teachers and merchants donned overalls and set to work under the direction of captains that had been chosen and stationed along the route.

AN OLD TRAIL.

The Western Oklahoma route traverses for a great distance what is known as the old Chisholm Trail. This was the route of pioneers and cattle dealers to Wichita, Kansas, and Omaha, Nebraska, and it traverses a section of the State topographically fitted for the most easy travel. A projected north-south highway in the eastern part of the State would traverse a part of the old Ft. Towson Trail that was blazed out of Ft. Smith, Arkansas, through the mountains and timberlands of the Choctaw Nation and into Texas and Louisiana. The Santa Fe Trail that runs diagonally northwest across the western portion of the State probably will shortly come in for its share of attention.

If the Ocean-to-Ocean Highway were constructed across Oklahoma it would pass through the lands that formerly belonged to nearly fifty Indian tribes and would give the traveler a view of representatives of most of these tribes. It would pass through some sections historically interesting. For instance, if it entered the State in the northwest, coming east from Albuquerque, it could be constructed past Ft. Supply, one of the pioneer military posts of the former far west, where Gen. Custer was stationed before being transferred to the Montana and Wyoming country. The post remains intact, but is used as a State hospital for the insane.

HISTORIC ROAD.

With a slight turn to the south from Fort Supply, the road would cross the lands once occupied by the Cheyenne and Arapahoe Indians and past the battlefield of the noted Battle of Washita, which was participated in by some of Gen. Custer's men. Progressive Indians have allotments, farms and homes scattered all over this former large reservation. Their agencies and schools and trading posts frequently would come into view.

Continuing a slight turn to the south the road would pass through the Wichita Mountains, in which are located Mt. Scott and Mt. Sheridan, named after the generals of those names, who many years ago established camps on the frontier in this region. In these mountains are the allotments, schools, stores and agencies of the Kiowa, Comanche, Caddo, Wichita and Apache Indians. On one edge of the mountains is the palatial mansion of the late Quanah Parker, chief of the Comanche Indians and one of the best progressive chiefs in the United States. On the Fort Sill military reservation, where the Geronimo band of Apaches are held as prisoners of war, is the home of the late Geronimo, leader of the tribe, who was captured in Arizona by Gen. Miles. Here is the new Fort Sill, a bridage post on which the government is spending $1,000,000. Near it is the national game preserve of the Wichita Mountains and Medicine Park, one of the leading summer resorts of the Southwest. In this territory hundreds of beautiful Indian legends have been found and many of them appear in book form.

FORT RENO.

Turning eastward, the road would pass Fort Reno, now a training station for cavalry horses, on which President Taft's riding horse was broken in from the broncho stage. Eastward still, the road would pass through or near Oklahoma City, the metropolis of the State and the first town built after the historic opening of the Indian lands in 1889 when the Territory of Oklahoma was separated from Indian Territory and given a separate form of government.

Going eastward the road would cross the former reservations of the Sac and Fox, and the Panca and Pawnee Indians, sighting their schools, homes, farms and agencies. Thence with a slight turn to the northeast, the highway would enter the domain of the Osage Indians, the wealthiest tribe in the United States. On the lands of the Osages, Washington Irving obtained the material from which he wrote his "Tour of the Prairies," and near the southern boundary line of the former Osage nation the spot where Irving pitched his camp, has been marked.

Next in the eastward trend would come the lands of the Delaware Creek and Cherokee Indians, passing through the great oil and gas belt and Gibson, the most historic spot of the old Indian Territory. Here is located a cemetery in which are buried the bodies of several hundred Union soldiers, who fell in the Civil War. Here Washington Irving remained for several weeks before exploring the prairies. Here Gen. Sam Houston came from Tennessee with his Indian bride, Gen. Robert E. Lee was here for a time. A large number of military officers of more or less note were stationed there during the period of time extending from the removal of the five civilized tribes from Mississippi and Alabama to Indian Territory, until the Indians were sufficiently tamed to warrant abandonment of the military post.

By traversing the Arkansas River the highway would pass near Muskogee, the leading city of former Indian Territory, where the Daws Commission was located while making the rolls of the Five Civilized Tribes, and the present seat of the Union Indian Agency, the largest of its kind in the United States. In the Cherokee Hills the road would pass through Tahlequah, the old seat of government of the Cherokee nation, where Sequoyah, the inventor of the Cherokee alphabet, lived, and worked among his people.

This route would traverse a country of much prairie land and the timber and mountainous sections would be easily penetrated.

Nothing But Work.

WHY "RUBE" WADDELL IS REAL HERO IN KENTUCKY.

THE merry gibesters of the daily press have had a splendid time over the action of Rube Waddell in working on the levee at Hickman when the Mississippi threatened to overflow the town.

One has said that the great activity on the part of Rube was due to his natural hatred for water. Another has made the crack that Rube labored under an impression that it would be a bad thing to have water get into the town—even a drop of the distasteful stuff. They have made merry over it in many ways and satisfied themselves to the limit over their cuteness and agile wit.

Now let's have the other side of it—the better side of the Rube, writes the Dutch Uncle in the Journal.

Rube may usually display the mental processes of a child, but let it be known in quarters where the information has not permeated that with the childish brain, goes a courage that cannot but bring admiration.

A REAL WORKER.

When the levee was threatened at Hickman Rube went to the river front and without any grandstanding or showing off started to work. He worked all night side by side with the negroes who had been conscripted to the job. Other white men stood around and bossed, but Rube worked. It took two men to lift a sack of the heavy sand, but Rube grasped and tossed them as though the jute bags might be filled with feathers. All night long he worked, slept a few hours and then showed up at the ball park and spent the morning in marking the diamond for the Memphis game. Later in the afternoon he pitched three innings.

On the Monday night when the levee broke Rube was on the job again. He started working early in the afternoon and at 8 o'clock, when the waters broke through and a torrent bore inward upon the town, Rube was in the last band of laborers who attempted to even then, win a fight against stupendous and overwhelming odds.

RUNNING A LIFEBOAT.

In the darkness, dispelled only by the illumination of a terrific thunderstorm, the Rube, we all laugh at, at times picked his way back to safety along the levee. In the district rapidly submerging women and children and even men, were screaming for assistance. Rube hunted up a boat and alone and without a light spent the remainder of the night rowing about the submerged streets, helping the residents reach higher ground or save some of their belongings.

It was all done without ostentation, without loud talk or "showing off" of any description. The big fellow really felt sorry for the townspeople who were in trouble and did what he could in the only way he knew to help them.

As a result of his work, done quietly, but wonderfully effectively, Rube Waddell is the most popular man in the stricken town of Hickman today and long after he is gone they will tell the story of Rube's services when recounting the story of the great flood of 1912.

Now having all of the facts, let's all take a good long laugh at Rube and those funny cracks about his working on the levee.

LONG RECORD FOR THE ALCO.

HIGH MILEAGE MADE BY CAR WITH THESE TIRES.

Forty-Horse-power Touring Car Is Driven Ten Thousand Miles and Record Is Made for Upkeep of Tires That Surprises Some of the Most Sanguine.

The American Locomotive Company is in receipt of a letter in which a most remarkable record for mileage for a motor car is given. The communication is from Harry Vissering, president of a large railway supplies and equipment company in Chicago. Vissering owns a forty-horse-power Alco which he has been driving since 1907, and in his statement he says:

"To me it is interesting to know that I have just turned the 135,000-mile mark with the forty-horse-power car which was delivered to me in 1907. While I do not suppose the performance and mileage of this particular car are in any way unusual to you, yet to me it seems very wonderful.

"The balancing of the car and spring suspension is such that I am getting a very satisfactory mileage from my tires; in fact, I have just taken off two rear tires which have run close to 10,000 miles each. During the year 1911 I drove the car more than 10,000 miles in Europe and during that time had it up against pavement and snow on at least a dozen occasions crossing the various passes of the Alps."

"I have done practically everything with the car except to climb trees. I had the misfortune to turn it over twice in trying to cross ditches in order to pass other cars on the road, and, outside of knocking off the fender and the dash lamp, the car has never been injured. I make it a practice to give the car a good overhauling once a year and in that way keep it up to its highest point of efficiency."

The Watertown Automobile Club of South Dakota, has written to the Automobile Club of Minneapolis, to start a movement for a Watertown-Minneapolis road. There is much touring between the two cities and Watertown is on the Winnepeg-Galveston meridian road.

A rotary engine that may be operated either with steam or gasoline has been invented by A. H. Foss of Elbow Lake, Minn. It has no crankshaft nor crank of any kind, no camshaft nor rods.

Another big automobile show for Northern New York will be that at Oswego, opening April 20.

Looking Glass in Fiction.

[London Chronicle:] All nations have shown by their stories how the looking glass is regarded as ministering to vanity. The ancient Greeks depicted Venus with a mirror, and even described her chamber as lined all over with mirrors, so that whichever way her eyes turned she could behold her beautiful self. But Minerva never used a mirror. Pass to West Africa and we find a native story which begins with a magic mirror that possessed the power of speech and always said, "Mistress, there is none," when its owner, a woman called Maria, asked it, "My mirror, is there any other beautiful woman like myself?" But one day Maria's daughter entered the forbidden room where it was kept, asked a similar question, and got a similar answer. A tale of maternal jealousy and vengeance follows.

ELECTRICS ARE HERE TO STAY.

Flanders Record Looks Good to Harry Lord.

Garford Trucks Show Great Power for Pulling.

Two-passenger Roadster Is Nobby New Creation.

A large consignment of Flanders Electrics arrived in Los Angeles during the past week and were immediately delivered to waiting customers of the Lord Motor Car Company, local agents.

The record established by the Lord Motor Car Company in the sale of Flanders Electrics, is twelve sold in six days; this speaks for the way the cars are being received in this city.

The mileage which the new owners are obtaining from their Flanders Electrics seems exceptional in that some of them are making as high as eighty-five miles on the first charge. This is accounted for very largely by the fact that in the Flanders Electric friction has been reduced to the very minimum, a very good example of which is one of the Flanders Electric rear axles and operated by an operated by an electric fan running at medium speed. This well illustrates how frictionles sthe worm gear works.

TRUCKS WIN.

For endurance, stability and pulling power, the Lord Motor Car Company maintain that there is no motor truck, that surpasses the big five-ton Garford. Being free from unnecessary mechanical devices, it is unusually light in weight. It is noted for its freedom from skidding, correct distribution of weight, in securing traction and the accessibility of working parts.

The compact design of the Garford trucks has made possible a much shorter wheel base than is common in big trucks. The benefits of this short wheel base are a maximum loading space, saving of room when the truck is loaded up to the curb and a minimum turning radius.

The extreme lightness of this truck is worthy of unusual attention on the part of commercial vehicle bursers. Although rated as a 10,000-pound wagon, the weight of the chassis would class it with most three-ton trucks. This lightness of weight makes for saving of tires, elimination of undue strains, saving of fuel and general wear and tear.

The motor of the Garford five-ton truck is of the four-cylinder, four-cycle type, with cylinders cast en bloc. The bore and stroke is 4¼x5¼ inches, developing more power than is necessary to haul the heaviest loads up the stiffest grades.

NEW GARFORD.

The new Garford, one and a half-ton heavy duty chassis arrived this week from the Garford factory at Elyria, O., and is causing much favorable comment. This chassis is built for such work as ambulances, patrols, or fire department work and is similar to the one now in the service of the Santa Monica Fire Department. It has a wheel base of 145 inches, dual pneumatic tires in the rear, and a 40-h.p. motor with center control. It was one of this type of car that came across the continent with the Raymond & Whitcomb tourists last fall as baggage car.

The Garford two-passenger roadster arrived in the same carload, and it is something entirely new in the way of a two-passenger automobile. It is very seldom that a roadster rides as easy as a touring car, but the two-passenger Garford roadster is pronounced by all that have ridden in it to be the easiest riding automobile made.

One of the novel stunts in connection with the Santa Monica road race was the Lord Motor Car Company's balloon. This balloon has a capacity of 15,000 cubic feet of gas and was kept up at a height of approximately 1200 feet, with immense Flanders Electric and Garford trucks and motor car signs on it. This balloon is capable of carrying two people thousands of feet in the air and is one of the lightest balloons of its capacity in this country.

MOTORS IN JAPAN.

It is stated on the authority of the German Consul at Kobe that openings for business motor vehicles in Japan have much improved, as both state and communal authorities, as well as transport companies, intend to employ them for the carriage of passengers and goods. The vehicles should be capable of hard wear, as the roads in the mountainous districts are bad and there is a scarcity of experienced chauffeurs and mechanics. On account of the narrow streets, cars should have short and narrow bodies, easily steerable front wheels, and strong brakes.

An automobile combination fire-wagon is to be purchased by Wellesley, Mass.

SOCIABILITY AUTO RUN.

Automobile Clubs of Washington and Denver Plan Novel Tours in Which Many Cars are Entered.

A sociability run is being organized by the Automobile Club of Washington. It will be held May 18, and the indications are 300 machines will be in line. The run will start at the Capitol and the route will be through the heart of the city, out the Conduit road to the Anglers' Club, where the contestants will turn and proceed back to the city and thence to the club's country home on Georgia avenue. It is planned to have President Taft or Vice-President Sherman set the secret time.

The Denver Chamber of Commerce is also planning a sociability run from Denver to New York that is said to be the first organized tour which will take any considerable number of machines in an eastward direction. This run was planned to take place last fall, but the season was too far advanced before the arrangements were completed and it was postponed. The route from Omaha will include Chicago, Cleveland, Buffalo and Albany.

NEWS FROM HONOLULU.

Auto Salesmanager Reports Business Good in the Islands Beautiful of the Sea.

E. E. Bodge of Honolulu, sales manager for the automobile department of the Von Hamn-Young Company, is in Los Angeles as a guest of F. O. Nelson of the Diamond Rubber Company.

Mr. Bodge's company also represents Diamond tires on the island. The automobile business in Honolulu has been good and Bodge reports a steadily increasing number of motor cars.

The roads are fair and the majority of the cars are in the vicinity of Honolulu. The next best island in the point of motor cars is the Island of Hawaii, but the roads on this island are not as good. The island is covered with large plantations and the managers and owners of the plantations use motor cars very extensively.

SEARCHLIGHT GAS TANKS.

Provision Is Made for Storage and a Chance Is Given to Burn Lights Many Nights.

The Searchlight Gas Tank Company can now provide tanks with any finish desired. Complying with the late models, which have the nickel finish there is the nickel colored tank. A black-enameled tank is also furnished for owners, who wish the tank to correspond with the finish of the car.

The searchlight business has been phenomenal during the last few months, and it has been necessary to secure several additional tanks to supply the demand.

THAT CADILLAC TRIP.

Speaker Beaudette to Tell His Thrilling Experience in the Land of Manana.

The next lecture of T. J. Beaudette on his experiences in driving the Cadillac car from Los Angeles to the City of Mexico will be in Riverside, May 14. Stereopticon views will be shown and Beaudette will give his impressions of Mexico.

On May 15, he will repeat the programme in Redlands. From there he will go to San Diego, and the following week will start north, lecturing in Santa Barbara, Bakersfield, Santa Maria, Fresno, Stockton, Sacramento and other cities.

MACADAM HIGHWAY.

The Emir of Afghanistan has "ordered" the construction of a complete macadam road system for his kingdom so as to permit of his use of the motor cars which he bought a few months ago. The road system will cover the entire country and will aggregate over 10,000 miles; two of the more important highways being 300 and 400 miles in length, respectively. At the present time there is barely ten miles of road in Afghanistan suitable for automobile travel. The project will involve the construction of roads blasted along the sides of precipitous mountains, miles of which will be literally "in the clouds"—the plateau over which the roads lead being the highest in the world, reaching 20,000 feet, while some of its peaks have an altitude of 25,000 and 29,000 feet.

HERE TO SEE RACE.

D. W. McElligott, the San Francisco manager for the Halliwell Company, came down to see the Santa Monica road race. McElligott says the business for the Halliwell Company has been doubled over this time a year ago. The new piston gas saver, which is being handled by the Halliwell Company, is very popular in the North where the automobile users must get every ounce of power out of their cars.

CHARLES COLEMAN PASSES.

The death of Charles Coleman of the Coleman & Bentel Company last week caused general regret in motor circles. Coleman has been identified with the motor industry in Los Angeles for a great many years and a host of friends mourn his passing.

The Massachusetts State A.A. has appointed a committee to get in touch with automobilists throughout the State. The State association has less than 5000 members, while there are 35,000 motorists in the State.

Mr. Merchant, we have a truck adaptable to your business. Ask the California Drug Co., the Sunnyslope Dairy Co., the Whittier Auto Truck Co., Hotel Woods Transfer Co., West Jefferson Nursery Co., H. D. Wilkes Fruit Co., or any user of a Federal Truck.

This is an age of specializing. The Federal Motor Truck Company are building but one model and are concentrating their entire energies on one-ton trucks. It is a well-known fact that a plant devoted to manufacturing a single product can make a better article at a lower cost than a factory that makes a number of things. This policy makes it possible for the Federal Motor Truck Company to build at a very low price a one-ton truck guaranteed for one year.

We have incorporated in the Federal Truck the best engineering practice, simplified in every way possible. We exercise the utmost care in selecting the materials, inspecting, assembling and testing and have a truck which is worthy of your most careful consideration. GOSSIP ALONG GASOLINE ROW

BY BERT SMITH

The big road race is over, but the smoke of battle had hardly cleared away before the fans had planned to take in the Motordrome meet, this afternoon. The entry list for the pie-pan battle looks good to many.

The Motordrome management today offers a card of races that are better than any ever planned for the board course which Jack Prince built. The prospect is that the attendance there will break all records, and at least a part of the throng that visited the Santa Monica road race are expected out on the Motordrome this afternoon.

Starter Fred Wagner will remain here for the Motordrome today. He will leave about Tuesday for Indianapolis, where he will start the cars in the big Speedway battle on Decoration Day. Wagner is an ideal starter and a jolly good fellow.

W. E. McCune of the W. D. Newerf Rubber Company has just completed a successful trip to the San Joaquin Valley. He established agencies for the Newerf company in Bakersfield, Fresno, Tulare, Visalia, Hanford and Porterville. This means that Miller tires can now be secured at almost any of the valley towns. McCune reports business good throughout that district, and says all indications point to a record-breaking year.

J. L. Rettig, the solid and bicycle tire expert of the Diamond Rubber Company of San Francisco was a visitor in Los Angeles, last week. Rettig says the sale of bicycle tires was never better, and the person who thinks that the bicycle industry is only a thing of the past is badly mistaken.

W. H. Hemperley of Mesa, Ariz., was a visitor of the W. D. Newerf Rubber Company, last week. Hemperley has been using Miller tires on cars which experienced hard desert usage, and in tests during the last six months he has secured such satisfaction that he has decided to use this tire exclusively in the future. Other tires which he has used have failed to hold up more than 2500 miles, but the Miller tires, which he has on his desert car have run 6000 miles, and are still good.

WARNER MEN ON THE JOB.

W. H. Halliwell Times the Big Road Race and His Brother Officiates as Scorer.

The timing of the Santa Monica road race was done by W. H. and C. E. Halliwell with the Warner automatic electrical timer.

W. H. Halliwell operated the timing device and C. E. Halliwell was chief scorer. These men have done this work for several years and are experts. Next to Charles Warner, the inventor of the timing device, they are the most expert in the country.

Their work in the Santa Monica races has always been free of errors and no complaints have ever been heard. As a matter of fact, the Warner system is so nearly perfect and these men have such a thorough understanding that a mistake is almost an impossibility.

FAVORS AUTO DRIVERS.

Despite the fact that the New York Court of Appeals has ruled that the provision of the Cullan law compelling a driver of a motor car to testify against himself in case of a collision by forcing him to remain on the scene of the accident and to give his name and address to questioning policemen or eyewitnesses, is unconstitutional, other States continue to hold opposite views. The latest decision upholding the constitutionality of such a provision in the automobile laws of a State is reported from Missouri. The opinion was rendered by Judge Withrow, who declares that the law requires a person in an automobile not to "furnish evidence against himself," but to "furnish required identification."

NEW NATIONALS ON WAY.

Handsome Cars Leave Factory, Local Agent Pleased With Prospect of More Cars.

Two carloads of new Nationals left the factory at Indianapolis last week and Manager Earle Y. Boothe is anxiously looking for their arrival in Los Angeles.

All but two cars in this shipment have been sold, and every effort is being made to secure immediate shipments for the Coast.

The new Nationals created a decided sensation and a great many advance orders are being booked.

"The best road to Santa Ana at the present time," said Earle Y. Boothe of the National Car Company, "is to follow the Long Beach road almost into the city of Long Beach and then follow the road east to Garden Grove. With the exception of a few miles this road is almost in a perfect condition and, while it is three miles longer than the Whittier road, it is much to be preferred. The Long Beach boulevard provides thirty miles of perfect road and from there on to Garden Grove the highway is in good shape."

LAMBER TRACTOR.

Novel Demonstration Made by Motor Machine That Should Be Boon to Farmers.

John W. Lambert, treasurer of the Lambert factory at Anderson, Ind., has been in Los Angeles and vicinity for the past six weeks demonstrating the Lambert Orchard tractor. He has met with such marked success that he has decided to manufacture the tractor in California. It is a machine designed for plowing and orchard cultivating. Lambert is a pioneer in the automobile business and has an extensive plant in his home town.

The Orange Garage has taken the Southern California distribution of the Lambert pleasure cars and trucks. A full line of the 1912 models are now on their way here and will be on display in the new building which is nearing completion, on Grand avenue.

PRIZE MONEY OFFERED.

Miller Company Gives Bonus for Cars and Drivers Using Their Tires in Big Race.

Additional prize money which the drivers had a chance to win in the big race was offered by the Miller Rubber Company of Akron, O., and the Harris Oil Company.

The Miller Company, through W. D. Newerf, the Coast agent, offered $400 to the winning car equipped with Miller tires, and $200 additional if the world's record was broken.

The Harris Oil Company, through Chanslor and Lyon, offers $200 to the winner of the big car race and $50 in each of the smaller events.

P. O. Eckhardt, assistant secretary of the United States Tire Company and C. A. Gilbert, the western district manager have been making a tour of the Pacific Coast branches, and were in Los Angeles last week.

Eckhart has been working his way westward and when he returns to New York, will have visited every branch of the United States Tire Company in the country.

After inspecting the Portland and Seattle houses, he moved south to San Francisco and was accompanied south by the western district manager. While in the south the party was accompanied by J. S. Wiese the Los Angeles manager, who took a motor trip around the "Kite" and spent one day at Catalina.

This was the eastern official's first visit to the Pacific Coast and he was much impressed with the business conditions and the general beauty of the country. He found all the United States branches doing a record business and says there is every indication that the volume of business will be doubled during the next year.

Secretary Eckhardt is recognized as one of the greatest systematizers in the country and has been devoting considerable time to this end of the business in the different branches.

From Los Angeles he will go direct to Chicago, while C. A. Gilbert will go north to Seattle and Portland.

Caley Bragg and Mechanician Tony, in Fiat Cyclone,

The star racer groomed for the Motordrome. This is the world record-breaking speedster which is to appear on the Pie-pan, Sunday, May 5, the day after the grand prize race at Santa Monica, when Caley will challenge Barney Oldfield to a return match on the board course.

This Afternoon.

FAST CARS AND DRIVERS FOR MOTORDROME MEET.

ONE of the best cards ever planned for the Motordrome is promised for this afternoon. The races are to be started at 2 o'clock, and the cars are to be sent away with a bid for world records.

The giant speedsters are to be groomed for a race against Barney Oldfield's one-mile mark. The car that should turn this trick is the giant juggernaut Jay Eye See, which Lewis Disbrow is to drive. This racing monster is good for more than 100 miles an hour, it is claimed.

When the entry lists closed last night the management announced the best card ever secured for the pie-pan. Starter Fred Wagner will remain here today to send the cars away, and then will leave for Indianapolis. He says the entry list for the Motordrome makes a great race meet possible.

Cars that flashed around the Santa Monica road race course are to fight it out for world records on the fastest course on earth. The boards have been worked over carefully, and the piepan is in as good shape as it ever was in the history of motor racing.

The practice stunts the past week showed the machines to be more speedy than ever. There is a possibility that the marked placed by the Blitzen Benz may be equaled if not bettered in the races today.

Every facility for timing the cars has been made by Manager A. M. Young. The Halliwell brothers will have the electric Warner timing instrument installed, and the cars will be clocked at the end of each lap, and the time will be announced.

Time trials are to open the meet. These should be fast, as almost every man entered in the big events expects to go after the world one-mile record. It was on this course that Caley Bragg defeated Barney Oldfield in the great two-mile match.

Even more thrilling races than the Oldfield-Bragg battle are promised for this afternoon, and when the cars go humming away a race that should be worth watching is certain to be offered. This means giant cars in a fight for a world record on a course, every foot of which can be seen from the grand stands.

After the Motordrome races the big cars will be shipped back to Indianapolis for the races there on Decoration Day. This will be the last time the crowd will have a chance to watch the speed demons in action for many months.

Nothing but Class.

HOW PEERLESS CHRISTY ROSE FROM THE RANKS.

HOW "Matty" became a big league pitcher is a story of athletic romance rapid and romantic enough to heighten the wildest flight of imagination of those youngsters who dream of fame as a ball tosser. At an age when most ambitious ball players are just learning to swing a bat, "Matty" was playing real ball with a team in one of the minor leagues. And during that period he was invariably playing with and against men who were older both in years and experience.

"Matty's" soundest advice to an aspiring pitcher is that upon which his own success was founded—control of the ball. He freely admits that his early determination not to sacrifice control to any other element of the game has had an important bearing upon his career. How he practised throwing stones merely for amusement in the town of Factoryville, Pa., when he was 9 years old, how he pitched balls all day long at a companion who stood up against a barn, are incidents of his early training which he delights in relating.

He was mascot of the town team. He chased all the wild fouls that no one else was willing to run after. He practiced pitching "ins," "outs" and "drops." Three years later, when the Factoryville pitcher failed to show up for a game, he had his first opportunity to play ball.

It was not without a test, however. The team was composed of big, brawny men, who had enjoyed all the hero-worshipping that Factoryville could give them. These players acted as critics while "that Mathewson kid" pitched for two solid hours. After the best batsmen of the town had been stacked up against him, he succeeded in fanning out the captain. He also won the game for his team.

ONE DOLLAR PER GAME.

Next fall found "Matty" playing second base on the team of Keystone Academy and the following year, at the age of 14, he was captain. One thing worried him, however. He was cross-handed in hitting, even if he did have good control of his curves, and he set himself to work correcting his style. When vacation time came around, he returned to Factoryville and pitched for the team, but he was soon bought by a rival team in a nearby town, receiving exactly $1 a game and playing with the big grown-ups.

Graduating from Keystone in '98, he went to Bucknell College. While in Scranton that summer, a Y.M.C.A. game in which he struck out fifteen men did much to focus attention upon him and when he later went to Honesville, Pa., he was given $20 a month and his board to pitch for the team. Before the season ended he was offered $90 a month to pitch for the Taunton club in the New England League, but this club disbanded and he returned to Honesville, which place, "Matty" says, became an important mile-post in his career. It is here that he discovered and practiced the "fadeaway" which later became of great value to him, and he also ceased to hit cross-handed.

In the fall of the year, returning to Bucknell, he played fullback upon the college football team, as a member of which he was then more widely known than as a baseball player. This was due to his ability as a drop-kicker. In fact, during a football game with the University of Pennsylvania he scored two field goals and his work brought him to the attention of "Phenom" John Smith former manager of a New England League club. Smith signed him up in the Virginia League with the Norfolk club.

"Matty" went back to Bucknell when the football game was ended, proud of his score in collegiate football and with a contract to play baseball for Norfolk at $90 per month. His season at this club was equally brilliant. Twenty-one games out of twenty-three were placed to his credit.

DECIDES ON NEW YORK.

This was his last minor league record. "Phenom" John Smith had the opportunity to sell "Matty" to the New York Nationals or to the Philadelphia club and he gave "Matty" his choice. He decided on the Giants, because he believed there was greater opportunity and he became a big league pitcher when he was just 19 years old. The brilliant work he has done since 1900 is a matter of vivid recollection to every fan.

While "Matty" got a bad start in 1900, subsequent seasons brought his average up to a remarkable point. Out of 421 games which he has pitched in the National League fights, he scored 289 victories and 132 defeats. In twelve years his average has been 68 per cent. and when it is recalled that his first three years involved winning with a team that was then a tail-ender, his record becomes the more appreciated.

The Giant star's best season was in 1904, when he won thirty-five games and lost but eight. In eleven post-season games against the Athletics, Red Sox and Yanks in the American League, the Giant twirler permitted only seventeen runs. What is equally remarkable is that in ninety-nine innings played in post season games only thirteen developed a tally and in eighty-six innings with "Matty" in the box not a player reached home.

SERVICE FOR SPLITDORF.

Special Arrangement Made Whereby Much Expert Repair Work Can be Done in Short Time.

The C. F. Splitdorf Company, makers of the Splitdorf ignition system, have inaugurated a service system in many of the large cities of the United States. At these places users of the Splitdorf systems can secure the assistance of skilled workmen from the Splitdorf laboratories. There will also be a complete stock of repair and spare parts for the Splitdorf magnetos and the repair shop will be in charge of mechanics and electricians especially trained for this work.

The cities where these service systems have been organized are, New York, Chicago, San Francisco, Detroit, Boston, Los Angeles and Kansas City. Places will later be opened at London, Paris, Turin, Brussels, Johannesburg, and some other foreign cities. This means that expert work can be done on short notice. Perry Graves is the local agent for the Splitdorf Company.

NO GOOD ROADS.

Although the impression prevails that except within the cities of Panama and Colon, good roads in the Canal Zone are conspicuous by their absence. P. C. Avery of Milwaukee, who recently returned from a visit to the "big ditch," states that the impression is far from actual fact. The United States government has built and improved more roads on the isthmus than it has built in the United States for a considerable period, he says.

FLANDERS CARS ON MOTORDROME

Midget Motors to Vie for Honors on Pie-pan.

Manager Plans to Send Them Against Records.

Santa Monica Road Race Teaches Many Lessons.

BY PAUL HALE BRUSKE,

[Contest Manager Studebaker Corporation.]

When the varied array of the thousands settled into their places to watch the various events of the Santa Monica speed carnival, they were animated by two desires. They wanted to be thrilled.

They wanted to learn the speed and stability of the modern motor car as exemplified by the latest products of the world's foremost engineers and manufacturers.

For the thrills—the wild flights of speed, the deafening roar of the great motors, the fast work by men in the pits as they installed supplies and renewed torn tires—they looked to the contest between the big juggernauts of the road.

For the practical knowledge of automobile speed and reliability they carefully watched the races between the light cars. More particularly they followed the movements of the smallest cars on the race programme. There they found the kind of a car that four out of five motorists in the world are driving today—the cars, as well, which nine out of ten men hope to buy when they enter the ranks of active motordom themselves as car owners.

Few men can hope to invest $5000 to $7000 in a motor car, but thousands of Californians waited for the lessons of the race with from $1000, to $1400 ready to carry to a salesroom in exchange for a car.

The automobile output of the United States this year is estimated at 275,000 cars. Of this total, manufacturers represented in the Santa Monica race for the smallest cars will produce 200,000. Practically all these cars have been sold in advance in contracts with dealers. The Studebaker Corporation alone, which had two of its Flanders "20" cars in the event, will produce 50,000 cars of this type and of the equally well known E-M-F "30."

Although the conditions of the race made it distinctly a non-stock event, it is also noteworthy that special racing cars were conspicuously absent in the light car races. All the little speedsters conform closely to the regular product. So far as known, they were merely tuned for speed, as the owner of any car of the same type might tune his own car, eliminating the usual effort for silence and comfort, and sacrificing these for the one essential—speed.

Bob Evans and Jack Tower, who piloted the Flanders "20" cars at the Santa Monica and on the Motordrome, had their eyes on the world's road race for cars of the type.

Similar ambitions animated the breasts of the other pilots in the event. To achieve this speed it was necessary for the Flanders to better seventy miles an hour on some of the straight stretches of the Santa Monica course—a terrific task, but one which the cars nearly reached on the Indianapolis Speedway last fall, when they established the world's records for their class.

GOLF GOSSIP.

BY ALMA WHITAKER.

A Record Defeat.

It should bring comfort to the souls of our local golfers to learn that a whole team of crack players, ten in number, and captained by no less a person than Harold Hilton, could meet such a sweeping defeat as was dealt out to them in a recent match at Stoke Poges.

Hilton's team were all members of the British Golfers' Club and all well known players. The opposing team was put together by Mr. Lane Jackson and included several unknown men, yet the latter won every match, 10 to nil. Hilton, himself, was defeated by R. H. De Montmorency by 4 up and 3.

Then, in the foursomes afterwards, Hilton's men met the same fate, Montmorency and Lee beating Hilton and Buthr by 4 and 2, all the other victories being equally decisive for Mr. Jackson's team. Throughout the whole play the cracks never scored a point.

The Great Plus Men.

It occasionally happens that a plus man is not necessarily well known, and it certainly comes as something of a surprise to learn that Stuart Anderson of Mullion, Cornwall, England, stands on record as the man with the highest plus handicap at present with plus 3.

Harold Hilton, however, enjoys the distinction of having once won a handicap tournament against a large field of long handicap men with a plus 9. This was at Harlech some years ago, but handicaps have been brought into more reasonable focus since then.

Luck or Skill?

A Mr. Herbert Fowler stands forth as the greatest golfer in the world, if skill in golf can be measured by the number of holes one has accomplished in 1. Mr. Fowler has done no less than seven holes in 1 on various courses, all properly authenticated.

Yet Harry Vardon, the open champion of the world, has only donned a hole in 1 once in his long golfing career, and most of the best-known players have never once tasted that supreme joy.

Open and Amateur Championships.

The British open amateur championship is the next large event of international importance, and the famous Westward Ho! links are to be the scene of the great meeting on June 3. Several American competitors are going over for it, including Chick Evans, who made himself so popular last year, and Herreschoff, who nearly wrested the American event from Harold Hilton in the finals last year. Hilton is the holder of the title to be contested, so that Herreschoff will have an opportunity of again coming to grip with him.

Then comes the Scottish professional championship at Dunbar on June 13-14, and the professional international at Muirfield on June 18, to be followed immediately by the open championship on June 21 on the same links. Professionals and amateurs from all parts of the world go over for these events, and the various scenes are veritable Towers of Babel, with the many languages and dialects that are represented.

The American open championship takes place at Buffalo, N. Y., June 27-28, and the amateur event July 29 at Wheaton, Ill., for which many British players have entered since the U.S.G.A. has made this possible in such a sportsmanlike manner.

July will bring the French amateur and open championships at La Boulle during its first week, the ladies' event taking place on June 8 at Le Touquet. Belgium holds her open championship on July 5 at Knocke sur Mer, and the Scandanavian open amateur event is to take place at Gottenburg July 17-19, the ladies' event following.

The American women's championship is fixed for September 30 at the Essex Country Club, Massachusetts.

The Western Open Championship will be held at the Idlewild Country Club August 28-29, and will be open to the world, according to its bylaws. The western amateur event is set for the Denver Country Club July 15-20.

The competition for the Olympic Cup is set for August 31 at the Chicago Golf Club. This event is for teams of four and Harold Hilton is among those who are bringing teams over to endeavor to wrest the $1000 trophy from its American holders. Needless to say, the Western Golf Association team welcomes the opportunity to compete against all comers.

The Tom Morris Competition.

The simultaneous competition by the teams of all the clubs in the Western Golf Association for the Tom Morris trophy will take place on June 15, when each of the local clubs will do their share.

The Los Angeles Country Club team is by far our strongest, now that Annandale has lost two of its most reliable players, and is also an exceptionally strong team, even in comparison to the other clubs of the association, so that it is well within the running for gaining this year's honors.

The Craft Higgins Trophy.

July 1 is the date set for the women's team competitions for the Craft Higgins trophy. San Gabriel and Los Angeles will play for it, the latter being the present holder of the trophy. The Los Angeles Country Club can certainly be proud of its respective teams; both the men and the women have won distinction in the past year.

Del Monte.

Del Monte's summer tournament is to take place July 4-8, and the fall tournament at which the Pacific Coast championship is contested is set for September 7-14.

Ye Bunker, Past and Present.

That a bunker is not always safely passed when you have left it thirty yards behind was made painfully apparent to Robert Maxwell—the Mr. Robert Maxwell—when playing at Muirfield last week. He achieved the extraordinary feat of getting one of his drives into a bunker thirty yards behind the tee from which he drove! There was a high wind—one of those days when only giants should attempt to play. Mr. Maxwell is no weakling, and as a golfer he stands among the gloriously pre-eminent, but even one of his mighty and accurate drives was not proof against the elements. He finally took nine for that hole and finished in 80, and we cannot but be properly impressed with the news that this is the worst score he has made in years.

The next Vanderbilt cup race and the Grand Prize race may be held in Wisconsin. Steps already have been taken for the laying out of a suitable course near Milwaukee.

brother racing against the other. Louis Nikrent, on the Buick midget, while making a hard fight, was overtaken by his brother, Joe, drivingthe Case. The two brothers came across the tape almost together at the end of the ninth lap.

De Palma came down the stretch just behind Louis Disbrow, on the Case. Just as the two neared the tape, De Palma shot ahead of Disbrow and took an even longer lead.

Hal Shain, on the Schacht, drove a consistent race and took the turns like a veteran.

The little brown Buick came down the stretch at the end of the ninth lap close behind the Flanders. On the Nevada-avenue turn the Buick passed the Flanders and jumped into second place.

At the end of ten laps in the medium-car race the Mercer, with Ralph de Palma, was almost a lap ahead of all other contenders. De Palma looked to be an easy winner with Joe Nikrent, on the Case, in second place.

At the end of the tenth lap Tower, who was leading, stopped on the back stretch and the Buick went up into first place.

One of the peculiarities came in the tenth lap, when both the Buick, in the medium-car race, and the Flanders, in the light-car event, disappeared. The Buick came back after being out two laps.

The medium-car event after the tenth lap developed into a race between the two Case cars and the leading Mercer. De Palma proved too fast for any of the other drivers and he romped into the stretch. He set a pace that gave him an average of 70.19 miles an hour.

George Joermann in the light car race proved the wonder in the contest as he finished the tenth lap. He passed the Flanders and the Buick with a burst of speed that shot him into the lead on the eleventh lap.

When Starter Fred Wagner gave him the flag at the end of the eleventh lap the crowd, knew that Joermann was in the lead. The barefaced boy looked like a winner as the red car hummed away, into the lag lap.

With a grin on his face, Joermann came down the stretch to the finish just as the checkered flag was waved in his face, a winner.

The Flanders, with Bob Evans, was forced back into second place only a few hundred yards bick of the Maxwell.

Jack Tower on the other Flanders took third only a short distance behind his team-mate. The work of the Flanders cars was remarkable as both had been decidedly in the running until Joermann, on the Maxwell, upset the dope by winning.

The two Case cars shored strong in the medium car race, hilding second and third places through the race. Joe Nikrent drove a heady and a consistent race with his car hitting perfectly.

De Palma was given the green flag with the entire grand stand cheering the plucky Italian. He went into the last lap with a strong lead over Nikrent in the Case, who was second.

Tearing down the stretch into the finish, De Palma, with his hand raised in acknowledgment of the cheers accorded him, swept over the tape and took the checkered flag into his car, making almost eighty miles an hour. De Palma, the favorie had won.

DEAD MAN'S CURVE.

er tried to make it one behind other. Lewis lost fully three blocks to his garage mate by the incident. Brown was given a big cheer when he rushed by on the fourth lap, his position showing that he had jumped from seventh to fourth place.

On the next lap Lewis and Cooper, who fought all through the race for position, tried to make the turn side by side, and both skidded dangerously close to the iron fence, being lost for the moment in a cloud of smoke and a shower of gravel, which their cars threw into the air.

On his ninth lap Teddy passed the two Stutz cars, which were on their eighth lap. In Indian fashion they shot up the straight-away, and were soon lost to view in a cloud of smoke.

Three laps later Teddy was less than 100 feet behind Barney and Bragg, who were on their eleventh lap. The incident enthused the crowd and there was much cheering. Brown punctured his tire on the fifteen lap, but re-tired in 50 seconds, which feat elicited a cheer from the crowd.

The Stutz cars had another close call on the sixteenth lap, when each refused to give the other an inch, and tried to make the curve together. Cooper was finally forced to run by, Lewis skidding around and tearing up the straight-away amid cheers.

From that time until the twenty-eighth lap there was little to enthuse or hold the crowd. It was a foregone conclusion that Teddy would win, barring an accident. Interest then centered on Brown and Bragg for second place.

Teddy caused a cry of horror in the twenty-eighth lap when he grew a bit reckless and tried to make the curve without slowing down sufficiently. He threw a shower of gravel over the sidewalk and slid within a foot of the fence.

The next lap there was a thriller when Barney and Dingley tried for the curve one behind the other. Barney cut too short, and skidded to the fance. Bert, more careful, swung around gracefully, and passed the Fiat before Barney could recover himself.

The last incident of the day occurred when Teddy tore around the curve on his last lap. He had seemingly thrown caution to the four-winds, although he was more than a lap ahead of Bragg, and came near losing the race by it. At almost full speed he tried to make the turn. The crowd saw that he could not, and began to yell. The car began to skid, and shot sideways for the iron fence, 100 feet away. Women and men turned their faces, thinking the next moment there would be a crash and Teddy and his helper would have run their last race. But Teddy swung his car so that only the rear wheel struck the fence. There was a loud report as the tire blew up. But less than a minute later Teddy had another in place, and amid a deafening cheer, the most hearty of the afternoon, tore up the straight-away on his final lap of the most sensational race ever held at Santa Monica.

What thrills there were at Death Curve began when the first car to reach that point on the course, died before it could make the turn. It was the Schacht, driven by Hal Shain. He broke a gear shift finger but luckily had his car so under control that he brought it to a stop before any damage could be done.

Disbrow, on his second lap, lost control of his speedy Case car and skidded fully 100 feet. For an instant it looked as though the Case would turn turtle, but when the car righted and shot forward, the crowd cheered. Joermann did the same thing on his third lap.

There was an exclamation of horror from the crowd the next time Disbrow came thundering up to make the curve. He was just beginning to turn when a rear tire exploded, and the car went skidding sideways for the fence. Before it crossed the street, the tire rolled off, and in that condition, Disbrow ran a block before he could control his machine.

There was a shout when Devore in his Buick, and Krouse in his Reo, nearly collided as they attempted to make the curve almost side by side. They skidded so dangerously close to one another that the crowd held its breath until the drivers veered from each other and started up the straight-away Indian fashion.

The multitude had hardly recovered from that bit of excitement until Joermann gave another exhibition of skill when it came to handling a wheel. He tried to negotiate the curve at too great a clip, and when he found he was about to strike the fence sideways, gave his wheel an extra turn, and his machine was lost to view in dust. When it lifted, Joermann was facing up the track, his machine having turned completely around. Evans and Tower, one close behind the other in the order named, rushing their Flanders' for all there was in them, skidded around Joermann, not having time to regard the yellow flag thrown out for them.

De Palma received his first real applause on his seventh lap when his position showed that during the previous round he had passed Nikrent in his Case car. Jeffkins in his Mercer, brought a volley of cheers from the crowd when he began to skid, headed for the fence sideways, but managed to extricate himself without damage to a tire.

There was more excitement when Tower, Nikrent and Brown, in the order named, so close up that a blanket could have covered them, tried to make the curve together. Tower and Brown were on their ninth lap, and Nikrent on his tenth. Each risked life and limb to hold his respective position, much to the edification of the crowd, and succeeded.

The final feature of that race was when Brown's engine died on him at the Second-street intersection, and refused to do its duty again, for about five minutes.

Banked around the turn were 5000 people to see the most spectacular point of a great race.

Suddenly the thousands in the grand stand saw an instinctive shrinking of the crowd as they drew back from the wide road.

A great red demon flashed into sight careening on two wheels and screaming an angry protest for more gas, then righting itself, came bellowing and roaring down the home stretch of the Santa Monica Road Race and flung itself across the finish line with Teddy Tetzlaff holding both

If You Were an Expert, What Car Would You Buy?

The time has passed when automobiles can be sold to you on their appearances or claims. This is a day when you and every purchaser must be shown what the car for which you pay your money will actually perform; what it will do. Beware of an automobile salesman who attempts to beguile you with a pleasing story. Tell him to show the goods and prove to you that his cars are worth the money. Find out whether his car is a real car or only an assembled automobile built to sell.

You have a right to your money's worth, but it is up to you to see that you get it. Deeper than all appearances, there are a few expert tests which ought to be applied to every car.

Who makes the car? Is it an assembled car or made from top to bottom by one manufacturer? What kind of a guarantee is on it? Does the manufacturer respect his own product with a real guarantee, or does he want you to take the chance? What do parts cost you and how conveniently can you get them? How many cars of this make are in service and how many are giving satisfaction? Questions like these go deep into the heart of the case, and if you put them rigorously upon any car you will find out with a certainty whether or not that car is worth its price.

We are selling Studebaker E-M-F "30" and Flanders "20" cars because we know that, dollar for dollar, their equal is not sold in the market today. The records of many thousands of cars in all kinds of service have convinced us absolutely. Studebaker E-M-F "30" and Flanders "20" cars are built to run, and because they run they sell. If we cannot prove to you under the most searching test that Studebaker cars are absolutely the best automobile values in the market, we do not want your business; but we can prove it, and your neighbors who drive these cars will tell you the same thing.

Be an expert when it comes to buying a car. You can, by getting from us some further ideas on real tests of an automobile. Clip the attached coupon and send it to us now because we have something new to tell you which you ought to know, whatever car you have in mind.

PASADENA-LOS ANGELES MARATHON, MEMORIAL DAY

BY AL. G. WADDELL.

THE second annual Pasadena to Los Angeles modified Marathon to be run off on May 30 under the auspices of the Western and Pasadena Athletic clubs promises to be one of the great successes of the athletic season.

The runners will start from the quarters of the Pasadena organization and finish in front of the Western Athletic Club on Spring street. The full distance of the course is 11.2 miles, over good roads and paved streets.

Los Angeles is having more of the Marathon sport this year than ever before and a number of classy distance men have been discovered. This coming event will bring together all the Marathoners of note who have performed in the south this season and many novices, who will try the road running game for the first time.

MANY PRIZES OFFERED.

It is the intention of the management of the race to offer a long list of prizes so that those who are unable to finish near the winner will have something for which to strive even after the race is lost, so far as first place honors go.

Finishing as it does, at the door of the club, the runners will be well cared for by competent trainers and physicians. The rooms of the clubs at both ends of the course will be open to the contestants and everything possible will be done for their comfort.

As the course of this inter-city race includes parts of Pasadena there is much interest being shown by residents of the Crown City, and it is expected that a great number of entries will come in from there.

INDIAN TO TAKE PART.

Zeyouma has announced that he will run in this race, and beat them all. The little Indian is fast and now, that Paul Westerlund has returned to his home in San Francisco, the Redskin will have things all his own way.

Still, there is a possibility of Westerlund's returning for the next race as he is anxious to get away with as many prizes as possible before retiring from the racing game.

GEORGE EAGER FOR RACE.

When asked if he expected to run on May 30, Peter George, veteran L.A.A.C. Marathoner and winner of many prizes here and in the north, said: "Sure, I am willing to run every time. The more races the more fun for me."

George will figure in this race as one of the top notchers. He is a steady runner and always to be counted upon for a showing as he is always in condition. Several times in his career he has run into too much class, but he never makes excuses but takes his beating in a sportsmanlike manner which has been complimented all over the country.

HAGGART AND GREGG WILLING.

George Haggart, another wonderful road runner of the L.A.A.C., will be with Peter George in the conflict. Haggart is a class A man and is claimed by many to be developing more speed every time he runs.

The third runner of note who wears the club emblem and figures in every race is Gregg.

A great number of the unattached runners who were seen in the L.A.A.C. Marathon and in The Times event will participate and make the leaders step out, if they want to win the blue ribbon.

SOLDIER AMADORE TO ENTER.

Charles Amadore, the soldier boy runner from Co. C, who was put out of the running at the time of The Times Marathon because of an injured foot, will have a better chance this time and should take some of the high prize glory. Will Robertson will also get in this coming event and show that he is game to the core.

The reason for the scarcity of first-class Marathoners in the South is the fact that we have had so few Marathons in the past. Up until a year ago the L.A.A.C. race was the only annual event of this kind staged here and it was little wonder that our records have been poor.

RACES MAKE FAST RUNNERS.

With each race run off lately there has been a find made and it is to be hoped that more races will be run off and more Marathoners of the first-rate brand will be found. In San Francisco, where Westerlund and Lee live and were developed, there are Marathons every month for several months in the year and as a result there are many fast men to be found in the vicinity of the bay.

In New York City, where the champions of the Marathon game are developed, races from the modified type to the full distance are pulled off in rapid succession and the runners are given opportunity for great practice.

WESTERLUND ENTHUSIASTIC.

When the coming race was mentioned to Paul Westerlund, the Olympic Club champion, he said, "Good stuff; that is just what you need. There are not enough of those races pulled off out here on the Coast and the more you have the better your records will be.

"If that little Indian had never come down for The Times race, he would not be a champion now and if I had never gone in for my first long-distance road race, I would never have collected the trunkful of trophies which I now have.

"It is all in getting started and there is a fascination about the sport that holds a fellow after he is once started."

GOLF DE LUXE.

BY ALMA WHITAKER.

WE, OF course, have our Los Angeles Country Club, but we are certainly not alone in luxurious golf. We are merely in the swim.

The new eighteen-hole course at Monte Carlo was opened three weeks ago, since when stories of its magnificence swamp the press. Five of the most famous professionals, Braid, Vardon, Massy, Taylor and Sherlock, have been playing there, which has, of course, helped to hold it in the limelight. The committee has already spent over $200,000 on the links alone—the whole of them being heavily turfed and appearing as one vast velvety undulating lawn.

The description of the clubhouse is so like our own Beverly palace that we fail to be impressed with its best-in-the-worldliness claims to distinction, and while they brag of their famous chef, Angelaire, we too, can point with pride to our Harak. Both are capable of turning out a dejeuner of the utmost seduction. 'Tis true we have not the close proximity of the casino to console the foozlers—but then, again, we probably have fewer foozlers.

Their caddies are in blue-and-gold uniform and get two francs a day—about 45 cents. Ye gods! Our gentlemen of that ilk wear the golfers "misfits," and get eight francs a day as a minimum wage, the more efficient among them laying up fortunes at the rate of ten or twelve francs a day.

Golf Palaces.

And now England, which was formerly content with quite modest shelter, is blossoming forth with luxurious clubhouses and proportionately high subscriptions. It is no exaggeration to say that a modern clubhouse is far more luxuriously equipped and vastly more comfortable than were the castles and palaces of kings a century ago. There are twenty or more golf clubs within easy reach of London, which boast of fine old parks, private farms and wonderful flower gardens, in addition to their turfed links.

And Transportation.

The famous Rye links are situated far from the madding crowd, and have their own private railway. A baby railroad track carries a baby train to the links to exactly suit the golfers' convenience. Any outsiders craving a life are courteously accommodated, but it always has to be clearly understood that it is a golf train for golfers, and anyone else is politely endured.

The California Boom.

California is enjoying a most unprecedented golf boom, eight new courses having been laid out near San Francisco alone during the last six months. Several of our Los Angeles professionals have been north to advise and assist in this work.

Del Monte has also enlarged and improved its links, as also has Coronado, and no self-respecting hotel in California regards itself as complete without a golf course now.

The latest to be mooted is a great new hotel on the borders of San Gabriel and Alhambra. That the F. O. Wood property, "Woodhurst," is to form part of the scheme, with its beautiful grounds and fine old house is, I believe, substantially decided and all that land crossing the arroyo towards the old mission is to form the new golf links.

At Santa Monica, too, the old polo ground is to be transformed into a golf course and Duarte is already deep in the throes of planning for her new course. Venice, with her natural water hazards, is already busy with hers, and of course, the much-discussed links of the New Valley Club out Romona way are to be the quintessential essence of luxurious golf. The new Altadena Country Club links are also rapidly improving in condition, and, the new San Gabriel links will start showing off their sporting possibilities next week during the invitation tournament.

The Magic Brassie.

The very newest brassie invented by one Maj. A. Escourt Harrison of the British Royal Artillery, is practically a magic wand. It is claimed that it makes a bad lie an impossibility. It is a most ingenious device by which the sole of the club projects slightly in front of the face, and, always providing there is room for the club to strike the ball anywhere below its projecting center, the gallant major insists that he can get fair distance every time.

This may be an extravagant claim, but all the same the idea would seem to have a good deal to recommend it for the cuppy lie. But the feeling engendered, as one views the new club, is that it would take a regular golf genius to use it satisfactorily.

Golf in Picadilly.

A golf school has been started at Piccadilly Circus, in the very heart of fashionable London. To those of us who know our London the thing is inconceivable, but since we read it in the London Times, which never lies, it must be so.

Preserved grass, a coy bunker, a tee and a green are claimed to be all there—and really, it is worth something to be able to say you learned to play golf in Piccadilly.

Some enterprising local professional will be opening a golf course on Broadway shortly, then such lights as Joseph Sartori and Jack Jevne could fill up their lunch time profitably without any conscientious twinges regarding neglect of business.

MANAGERS BUSY.

Indians and U.S.C. Thanksgiving Day—Next Season to Be a Hummer.

Joe Shoulder, director of athletics out at Sherman Institute, has taken hold of the Rugby situation with a zest that might be credited to an Oxford graduate, and already there is much dickering going on between the big coach and the managers of college teams throughout the State.

Manager Warren Bovard of U.S.C. came to the front at the first sign of life on the part of the Indians and grabbed the Thanksgiving date. This should be one of the most interesting Rugby games ever played in America. The university will have a strong team if their pledged material turns up and the Indians will play the English game well, notwithstanding their unfamiliarity with its rulings.

Capt. "Smoke" Adamson, who will guide the efforts of the college booters next year, predicts a banner season. There will be fifty-four high schools playing the English brand and all the colleges in the State with the exception of Occidental, Pomona, Whittier and Redlands. The latter-named institution is on the fence, according to late advices, and it is possible that they will fall from the Walter Camp throne before the season opens.

The U.S.C. squad will start spring practice in a few days and the other colleges will watch with interest, the early efforts of the boys, who are to carry off honors next fall.

Sad to say, the American style of play seems doomed in this State. The influence of the northern universities has put the imported play at the top and with the teams divided, it is a hard matter to make the season's play a financial success.

"Red-Headed Woodpecker."

[Chicago Inter-Ocean:] A jury in the Grant Circuit Court held that if a man calls a woman "a red-headed woodpecker" she must not become provoked to the extent of striking him with a broomstick.

The decision was called for in the case wherein Mrs. Estella Lang of Gas City was charged with assault and battery on Harvey Buzbee. Mrs. Lang received a minimum fine of $1.

She testified that as Buzbee rode past her on a bicycle he called her a "red-headed woodpecker," referring to her auburn hair, whereupon she struck him with a broom handle.

The Six-Cylinder is the type of the present day car. This is a proven fact. The popular or moderate-priced car is no exception.

Seeing this transition period long before it came, Mitchells have met the situation in their progressive manner and through the past three years have developed the Six Cylinder automobile gas engine to a position of marvelous efficiency.

This "doing it first" is a trait of the Mitchell factory. In adoption of materials, designs, in fact, all of the refinements, they have been first.

In Six Cylinder production they are leagues ahead. Next year the Six Cylinder song will be "Everybody's doing it"—but you can be enjoying the comforts of a "Six" now.

[A 8]

These Six Cylinder models bear all the "hall marks" of royal class. In style, their lines are perfect—long, lithe and graceful. Every feature of construction, finish, upholstery, etc., to add to comfort, grace and beauty found in any car at any price is yours in a Mitchell.

Of the Six Cylinder motor, by the perfection of special batures the greatest efficiency is attained. To explain in technical terms, its advantages would be confusing, so we will depend upon showing you—a demonstration you owe yourself out of regard for present-day knowledge of motor construction.

The motor is long-stroke type, pistons have 364 cubic inches of room for gas to explode in, which is the only way of determining the power developed, regardless of what the advertised horsepower rating is.

Is This True?

REAL TROUBLE WITH ANGELS.

Oakland Players Say Local Pitchers All Alike.

If You Can Hit One Others Are Just as Easy.

One or Two Speed Artists Are Badly Needed.

BY GREY OLIVER.

"Do you know why the Los Angeles team can't win?" asked the Oakland player yesterday.

I know the same reason he knows and probably one or two others but his excuse or diagnosis will be interesting to a lot of Los Angeles fans who think they know a lot about ball players and the game generally.

"Let me tell you something," he added, "and I know it's right. The real trouble is that their pitchers are all alike. This may sound funny but it is true.

"Every one of Berry's pitchers are slow ball heavers and after a club gets used to one of them the others are just as easy. A different fellow may fool you a little every day but if you are smart you will soon realize that all of them are practically the same. If you can hit the first one you can hit all of them and even if the first one does fool you the others may not if you use your noodle and think.

"What Berry should do is to get some new pitchers who can fling the ball over like a shot out of a gun. You've got to have pitchers who can sling 'em and mix 'em up on the batter.

"If Berry had some good fast pitchers there is no reason why he should not win his share of the games. He has a good team and I will say it gave us harder battles up North than any team we have met this season. We naturally think the Oakland club is the best in the league and we prove it by showing we are in the lead.

"Still, this doesn't make the Los Angeles players a lot of bums, for they are not. A few of them like Daley and Howard seem to be playing for their own individual averages but the others do not appear to think of this so much.

"Of course, Dillon crabs a lot and probably makes some of the fellows sore, but he cannot help that for he is losing games. All managers howl when they lose. And yet, he has a fine bunch of ball players and the only excuse they have for losing is lack of good pitching material. None of them seem to have much, but may improve later on. Pitchers are funny things anyway."

Some ignorant persons will imagine that this is a roast on the Los Angeles team, but the observant fans will agree with the statements of the Oakland player who has been in many games with the Angels. He declares the local pitchers are all alike and that they do not mix the ball and have no speed.

Is it worth while to start a guessing contest on this? Every fan can judge for himself if he cares to.

LESSONS IN EARNINGS.

Men Prominent in Their Line Do Not Always Acquire a Fortune of Comparative Amount.

[Springfield Republican:] When an eminent jurist died a short time ago there was something like amazement that his estate came but to $10,000 or so. When one of the greatest American painters of his time, Winslow Homer, died last September, at the age of 80, he was spoken of as a lucky man, because of the high prices commanded by his works had enabled him to cease painting for the market. Yet his estate, it now appears, comes to $87,67. There are plenty of men whose names are household words who leave even less behind them.

It is astonishing how widely a man may be known for work supposed to be lucrative without winning any corresponding income. Poetry, of course, does not count, but novelists are supposed to earn handsome sums; in sober fact, there are few with whom a moderately successful grocer would care to trade incomes. Judges receive, and should receive, a comfortable salary, yet the higher their distinction the less do their earnings keep pace.

In all these cases there is a glaring discrepancy between the service rendered to society and its material reward, a discrepancy constantly being urged upon our attention nowadays as a reason for raising salaries or for doing this thing or that to better the condition of individuals or groups.

Judges must be paid more as compensation for not reaping the fat rewards of the corporation lawyer. Diplomats must be paid more to cut a brilliant figure in foreign courts. Universities must offer huge salaries to tempt experts in applied science and to enable professors to associate affably with the rich mercantile class.

But this discrepancy is perhaps the most valuable asset a democracy can have, and the more it is emphasized the better. Let it once be conceded that the one sine qua non for success is money, and wealth must become the paramount ambition.

So long as there are men whose names command admiration and respect the country over, and groups of men whose collective capacity and merit are recognized, who are content to work for modest returns and to leave an estate which would amount to but a year's income for a moderately well-to-do family, there is no danger that the imagination of young men of brains and ambition will be wholly engrossed by wealth. The estate of these two eminent Americans are a valuable object lesson.

TAIL LIGHTS FOR ARMY.

Hereafter the British army will carry a "tail" light, so to speak. At least that is the effect of divisional order issued at Aldershot, which requires that when the soldiers are on marche at night one of the men in the rear is to carry what is styled a "reflex" light attached to the back of his belt. The device is not a light at all, though it serves all the purpose of one. It is simply a reflector, which is designed to reflect the light from the powerful head lamps of overtaking cars and thus warn drivers of the obstruction in the road. It is claimed that the khaki-colored uniforms blend too well with the scenery at night, the order is the direct outcome of a previous unfortunate accident, in which a heavy touring car crashed into the rear of a column.

Little Johnny Evers,
One of the greatest second baseman the world has seen.

HOW EVERS STARTED.

BY KARL D. PANCAKE.

"THE CRAB" wasn't heralded into the league with a blare of trumpets.

Not he. A blatant blast from a fish trumpet would have been enough to announce the coming of "The Crab." He came into the league, the big league mind you, with a chip on his shoulder, and although "The Crab"—he nicknamed himself—was nothing more than a slender attenuated youth with a head full of baseball and a pair of hands and feet that obeyed instinctively every directing nerve of his mind, he started out with the idea that he would make way for nobody, and for a wonder he made good.

"The Crab" came to the Chicago National League Club late in the season. He looked anything but a ball player. A dozen big league scouts would have looked "The Crab" over, and called him "worthless timber." That is they would have had they had the chance. Fortunately for baseball a great player was saved to the game because the scouts didn't have a chance to slant their eyes in his direction.

To make a long story short, "The Crab" slid into Chicago one afternoon from a small town in New York. He had been hired as a baseball player by Frank Selee, then manager of the team which afterwards became the world-famous Cubs, under the leadership of Frank Chance.

As has been said before, the coming of "The Crab" was unheralded. He came out to the grounds shortly before the game started and presented himself at the little gate where the players enter the grounds.

"The Crab" knocked loudly at the gate.

A man with lettering on his cap which spelled "usher," opened the gate. He took one look at "The Crab," then he slammed the gate shut.

"The Crab's" cold gray eyes betrayed no emotion. He simply rapped harder on the gate and again the usher opened it.

"Whatcha want?" said the usher.

"I belong to this team and I want in the grounds," said "The Crab," and he put his foot in the crack left open and then squeezed his thin body inside the grounds.

The usher gasped, swallowed his Adam's apple once or twice and then gulped out:

"Who in the hotel are you anyway?"

"My name is Evers and I am coming in here to play a little ball with these big leaguers," said "The Crab."

"Good Lord, you a ball player!" gasped the usher.

"The Crab" disdained a reply. Words were scarce with him just then and he lost no time in darting up into the grand stand and from there to the playing field, where he made his way swiftly toward the clubhouse in center field.

Probably 5000 people were already in the stands when "The Crab" started across the playing field. Not one of them guessed that they were looking for the first time on Johnny Evers, "The Trojan," who was destined to make a name for himself as one of the greatest second basemen who ever played the game.

At that time Frank Chance was playing first base and was captain of the team. Evers reported to him at the clubhouse. Chance looked surprised when the slender youth told him that his name was Evers. He had good reports of the player's capability, but the boyish face and slender form fooled even Chance.

"Get into a uniform," was Chance's orders after he had looked "The Crab" over.

Evers came out on the field in a uniform about two sizes too big for him. The members of the team laughed when they saw the little fellow's spindle legs thrust down into a uniform that "Pop" Anson had discarded a year before. It was the only uniform that Evers could find and he donned it without remark.

However, the big leaguers did not laugh long. Evers took up a position on the infield and Jack Taylor and several of the pitchers began hitting grounders at him. The way he annihilated space was a caution. He went back to the bag, scooped them up with one hand and tossed them to first, seemingly without an effort. He went over toward the first bag and repeated the trick. He was all over the infield and apparently he moved without effort.

"That kid is a ball player," remarked Chance to Manager Selee while watching Evers work out around the keystone sack.

"He is fast as a streak, but he is lighter than a lunch basket after a picnic," said Selee.

Evers sat on the bench for several weeks and finally Selee received an offer from a minor league for his services. Selee went to Chance and told him that he was going to trade Evers.

"Don't do it," said Chance. "Lowe has water on his knee and it is a cinch that he won't last the season out. Let's keep the youngster for emergencies."

"Bobby" Lowe was playing second base for Chicago at that time and was slowing up. Once the greatest second baseman in the league, his legs had gone back on him until he could hardly hobble. He knew that he was "going" and had told Chance that he did not believe he could last the season out.

As events proved Lowe was right. Three weeks after Evers joined the team Lowe gave up. It was with fear and trembling that Chance called upon Evers to take up Lowes's job. Evers was undismayed.

"Guess I can hold down the job," he said to Chance. Then he spat upon his glove and walked out to the field. He looked like a pigmy among a lot of giants but before the afternoon was over he had shown every fan in Chicago that it doesn't take big limbs, thick necks and iron jaws to play baseball.

Evers has been playing second base ever since that day, except when he was out of the game with a broken ankle, sickness or some other disability.

Evers calls himself "The Crab." He has little to say off the ball field but he has plenty to say when the game is going on. His tongue is hardly still a minute, and evidently he talks himself out during the progress of the game. Although he says that he is a "crab," the other players differ with him. They admit that he is as crabbed as they make them during a game, but say that he is pleasant and affable off the field and is a jolly companion.

Evers has had a great deal to contend with during his big league career. One of the hardest blows that he bore was when George MacDonald, a sporting writer, was killed while riding home from a ball game in Evers's automobile. Evers thought the world of McDonald and the accident put him out of the game for practically one whole season.

A Physician's Artifice.

[Brooklyn Eagle:] In one of the old cities of France lived a physician who was in the habit of employing an ingenious artifice. When he came to a town where he was not known he pretended to have lost his dog, and ordered the public crier to offer, with beat of drum, a reward of 25 louis to whoever should bring it to him. The crier took care to mention all the titles and academic honors of the doctor as well as his place of residence. He soon became the talk of the town. "Do you know," says one, "that a famous physician has come here, a very clever fellow? He must be very rich, for he offers 25 louis for finding his dog." The dog was not found, but patients were."

Some Opinions.

CASEY IS BEST UMP IN LEAGUE SAYS PITCHER.

BY GREY OLIVER.

"THE UMPIRES in the Coast League are generally very good ones and I say this because I think I know. I have been in the big leagues as a ball player and I have seen the umps there work and notwithstanding this I say the Coast League umps are a very fair lot. In fact, they are good. Baseball fans, of course, never know the rules, and are poor judges of both players and umpires."

This was the declaration yesterday of one of the best-known players in the league, whose name is withheld for various reasons. If it were published the chances are that the umps would "have it in for him," and that means a lot in the baseball line.

"Casey is the best umpire in the league. Hildebrand and Finney are good. McGreevy always has a chip on his shoulder. Mertes is too quick and Wheeler seems afraid. That's the way I size 'em up quickly," says the unknown pitcher, who is not afraid to talk about umpires.

Here is what a ball player thinks about the present staff of umps in the league and three-fourths of the fans here will agree with him, although they have not seen Casey in action. Few of them like Finney, McGreevy or Wheeler.

"All of the players who have worked under Casey like him very much, because he knows the game and knows ball players. He has been playing a long time and understands first of all that ball players are only human beings. The fact that they make errors shows that they are trying for the ball and they take such an interest in the game that they cannot sometimes check themselves when they think an umpire is wrong."

"Casey is good because he has the nerve to say what he thinks, because he sees everything, watches the ball and is not a home umpire. I think he is one of the best in the country for he is fair to everyone.

"McGreevy is all right, but he always has a chip on his shoulder, and most of the players think he is looking for trouble. He is too quick to get that $5 and $10 stuff and this is the kind of business that makes the ball players sore. Mac would be all right if he was not so cocksy, and he likes to show his authority. That won't get him anything in this league or any other.

"Hildebrand don't seem to favor anyone, but gives his decisions as he sees the play. That's the only way to do, for if an ump gets to reversing himself he's in bad at once. Wheeler has not had the experience yet and Mertes is too quick, for he makes lots of rulings on outs at bases before the out is made.

"Sam is a joke at this business, but he has been very lucky to get away with that stuff for I cannot remember that I have ever seen the baseman drop the ball after one of his quick decisions."

STAR PLAYERS HARD TO GET.

Irwin Says Scouting Is Very Difficult Job.

One Really Good Star Found Satisfies Manager.

Too Many Big League Gumshoe Men on the Job.

"Digging in the minors and little jerkwater towns for future diamond stars isn't what it is cracked up to be," says Arthur Irwin, the New York Yankees' veteran scout.

"Scouting," comments Arthur, "isn't like it used to be. There was a time when a man could go through the bushes and pick up all kinds of men, but times have changed since then. The scout who is lucky to pick up one really good ball player during a season can congratulate himself and feel satisfied that he has earned his salary."

He declares that there never was such a slim market for ball players as at the present time. "Big league clubs," says Irwin, "are not in the market to sell good players naturally, and that's why it is so hard for any one club to gather a galaxy of stars.

"I remember the days when money could buy big men; but now clubs must develop them. Few of the leading batters today were purchased for large amounts, but, of course, there are exceptions. Take Detroit's case with Ty Cobb, for example. The Tigers got him from a small bush league, but they had to develop him first before he was anything. Most every headliner on the diamond today after being brought to the majors had to be sent back to the minors for seasoning.

"There's Tris Speaker of Boston, for example. The Sox sent him back to Little Rock to learn something. Jimmy Collins's case is another similar one. It took Pittsburgh two years to develop Jack Miller, but after the Pirates got through with him they made a great second baseman out of him. Devore of New York didn't amount to much when the Giants got him. McGraw, however, saw a future for him, and made him learn in the bushes. What was the result? The Giants developed a great little outfielder.

"It took the Phillies a year to make a good pitcher out of Chalmers. When we got Connell a lot of persons said he didn't amount to much, but I knew better. I watched the man, and I saw the makings of a great pitcher. You want to watch that fellow this year. The year's experience and teachings he has had in the International League is going to have its result this year. Russ Ford was a gawky fellow when we got him, but after a year's workout with Jersey City he developed. Of course, all these fellows showed signs of better playing form when they were first looked over, and all they needed to develop was someone who could teach them what to do."

No one knows the scarcity of real stars better than the scouts, declares Irwin. "Pittsburgh has spent fully $50,000 in the last five years, and as yet it hasn't secured a first baseman."

awe-inspiring. Speed of 115 miles per hour was reached, turns were made at a speed that brought the spectators to their feet in a wail of forboding.

Tetziaff was the fourth man to get away. Lewis in a beautiful, fleet Stutz and Cooper in the same make of a machine were ahead of him. Barney Oldfield, the most famous automobile driver in all history, was also ahead of Tetziaff.

The first lap saw the standing of the racers changed but little, with the exception of Oldfield in his Fiat had passed Cooper in his Stutz.

Tetziaff and his Fiat did not seem to be hitting their gait. In the second lap on the long Nevada-avenue stretch a great duel was played between Tetziaff and Oldfield, both in Fiat cars. Oldfield was leading, and his car was roaring around at the rate of ninety-five miles per hour when his mechanician called his attention to the noise of Tetziaff's machine.

He realized in a second that Tetziaff had his great monster wide open and was planning to have it out with Oldfield on the four mile straight away. Oldfield accepted the defi and leaped away with his throttle tramped down. The two big red machines split the air with their cannon-like discharge and Oldfield had his first experience of having a driver in the same make of a machine gradually

It was the finish to one of the most dramatic automobile races ever held in the world.

A new world's record was established of an average for the entire race of 202.012 miles of 78.5 miles per hour, bettering the former record by three miles per hour.

The crowd had scarcely roared its great welcome to Tetziaff as he flung his machine over the line until a second red demon leaped from the Palisades and passed down the Ocean Front boulevard over the finishing line with the speed of a bullet. Seated calmly in the driver's seat was Caley Bragg, the Pasadena youthful millionaire, who had driven his powerful Fiat into second place in the great race.

There was a second's lull as the two big motors were run to their pits, and then the crowd at the famous curve approaching the finish rushed back fully fifty feet from the road. A gray-colored object roaring out its defiance came hurling itself in the wake of the two red motor giants. In the driver's seat was David Bruce Brown, who was touted to win the Santa Monica in his Benz car. He was third.

Tetziaff had won the Santa Monica race for the second time, and had driven himself into the most enviable position of speedy auto drivers. He had won a road race which has become one of the classic events of the motor world, and has established a new world's record for road racing which will stand for several years.

It was Fred, Merkle's misfortune to been on first base at the critical . The situation which gave the incident is well known to follower of baseball. Merkle, batch hitter, had singled with t in the ninth inning and the ed, sending McCormick from to third. "Al" Bridwell up to the bat and smashed a to center field. McCormick crossed the plate, and that, according to the customs of the league, ended the game, so Merkle dug for the clubhouse. Evers and Tinker ran through the crowd which had flocked on the field and got the ball, touching second and claiming that Merkle had been forced out there.

Most of the spectators did not understand the play, as Merkle was under the shower bath when the alleged put-out was made, but they started after "Hank" O'Day, the umpire, to be on the safe side. He made a speedy departure under the grand stand and the crowd got the put-out unassisted. Finally while somewhere near Coogan's Bluff, he called Merkle out and the score a tie. When the boys heard this in the clubhouse, they laughed, for it didn't seem like a situation to be taken seriously. But it turned out to be one of those things that the further it goes the more serious it becomes.

"Connie" Mack, the manager of the Athletics, says:

"There is no luck in big league baseball. In a schedule of 154 games, the lucky and unlucky plays break about even except in the matter of injuries.

WHEN MACK'S THEORY WAS NOT GOOD.

But Mack's theory does not include a schedule of 155 games, with the whole thing hanging on the 155th. Chicago had a lot of injured athletes early in the season of 1908, and the Giants had shot out ahead in the race in grand style. In the meantime the Cubs' cripples began to recuperate and that lamentable event on September 23 seemed to be the turning point in the Giants' fortunes.

Almost within a week afterwards, Bresnahan had an attack of sciatic rheumatism and "Mike" Donlin was limping about the outfield, leading a great case of Charley horse. Tenny was bandaged from his waist down and should have been wearing crutches instead of playing first base on a big league club. Doyle was badly spiked and in the hospital. McGraw's daily greeting to his athletes when he came to the park was:

"How are the cripples? Any more to add to the list of identified dead today?"

Merkle moped. He lost flesh and time after time begged McGraw to send him to a minor league or to turn him loose altogether.

"It wasn't your fault," was the regular response of the manager who makes it a habit to stand by his men.

We played on with the cripples, many double headers costing the pitchers extra effort, and McGraw not daring to take a chance on losing a game if there was any opportunity to win it. He couldn't rest any of his men. Merkle lost weight and seldom spoke to the other players as the Cubs crept up on us day after day and more men were hurt. He felt that he was responsible for this change in the luck of the club. None of the players felt this way toward him, and many tried to cheer him up, but he was inconsolable. The team went over to Philadelphia, and Coveleski, the pitcher we later drove out of the league, beat us three times, winning the last game by the scantiest of margins. The result of that series left us three to play with Boston to tie the Cubs if they won from Pittsburgh the next day, Sunday. If the Pirates had taken that game, it would have given them the pennant. We returned to New Work on Saturday night very much downhearted.

"Lose me. I'm the jinx," Merkle begged McGraw that night.

"You stick," replied the manager.

While we had been losing the Cubs had been coming fast. It seemed as if they couldn't drop a game. At last Cincinnati beat them one, which was the only thing that made the famous season tie possible. There is an interesting anecdote connected with that Cincinnati contest which goes to prove the honesty of baseball. Two of the closest friends in the game are "Hans" Lobert, then with the Reds, and Overall, the former Chicago pitcher. It looked as if Chicago had the important game won up to the ninth inning, when Lobert came to the bat with two men out and two on the bases. Here he had a chance to overcome the lead of one run, which the Cubs had gained, and win the contest for the home club, but he would beat his best friend and maybe put the Cubs out of the running for the pennant.

Lobert had two balls and two strikes when he smashed the next pitch to center field, scoring both the base runners. The hit came near beating the Cubs out of the championship. It would have if we had taken one of those close games against Philadelphia. Lobert was brokenhearted over his hit, for he wanted the Cubs to win. On his way to the clubhouse, he walked with Overall, the two striding side by side as a couple of mourners.

"I'm sorry, 'Orvie,'" said Lobert. "I wouldn't have made that hit for my year's salary if I could have helped it."

"That's all right, 'Hans,'" returned Overall. "It's all part of the game."

AN EXCITING SUNDAY AT THE POLO GROUNDS.

Next came the famous game in Chicago on Sunday between the Cubs and the Pittsburgh Pirates, when a victory for the latter club would have meant the pennant and the big game would never have been played. Ten thousand persons crowded into the Polo Grounds that Sunday afternoon and watched a little electric score board which showed the plays as made in Chicago. For the first time in my life I heard a New York crowd cheering the Cubs with great fervor, for on their victory hung our only chances of ultimate success. The same man who was rooting himself hoarse for the Cubs that afternoon was for taking a vote on the desirability of poisoning the whole Chicago team on the following Thursday. Even the New York players were rooting for the Cubs.

The Chicago team at last won the game when Clarke was called out at third base on a close play late in the contest. With the decision the Pirates' last chance went glimmering. The Giants now had three games to win from Boston on Monday, Tuesday and Wednesday to make the deciding game on Thursday necessary. We won those, and the stage was cleared for the big number.

The National Commission gave the New York club the option of playing three games out of five for the championship or risking it all on one contest. As more than half of the club was tottering on the brink of the hospital it was decided that all hopes should be hung on one game. By this time Merkle had lost twenty pounds and his eyes were hollow and his cheeks sunken. The newspapers showed him no mercy, and the fans never failed to criticise and hiss him when he appeared on the field. He stuck to it and showed up in the ball park every day, putting on his uniform and practicing. It was a game thing to do. A lot of men, under the same fire, would have quit cold. McGraw was with him all the way.

But it was n't until after considerable discussion that it was decided to play that game. All the men felt disgruntled because they believed they would be playing for something they had already won. Even McGraw was so wrought up he said in the clubhouse the night before the game: "I don't care whether you fellows play this game or not. You can take a vote."

A vote was taken, and the players weren't unanimous, some protesting that it ought to be put up to the league directors so that, if they wanted to rob the team of a pennant, they would have to take the blame. Others insisted it would look like quitting, and it was finally decided to appoint a committee to call upon Mr. Brush, the president of the club, who was ill in bed at the Lambs Club. Devlin, Bresnahan, Donlin, Tenney, and I were on that committee.

"Mr. Brush," I said to my employer, having been appointed the spokesman, "McGraw has left it up to us to decide whether we shall meet the Chicago team for the championship of the National League tomorrow. A lot of us don't believe we ought to be forced to play over again for something we have already won, so the players have appointed this committee of five to consult with you and get your opinion on the subject. What we decide goes with them."

THE GIANTS HAVE AN ATTACK OF "NERVES."

Mr. Brush looked surprised. I was nervous, more so than when I am in the box, with three on the bases, and "Joe" Tinker at the bat. Bresnahan fumbled with his hat, and Devlin coughed. Tenney leaned more heavily on his cane, and Donlin blew his nose. We five big athletes were embarrassed in the presence of this sick man. Suddenly it struck us all at the same time that the game would have to be played to keep ourselves square with out own ideas of courage. Even if the Cubs had claimed it on a technicality, even if we had really won the pennant once, that game had to be played now. We all saw that, and it was this thin, ill man in bed who made us see it even before he had said a word. It was the exprdession on his face: it seemed to say, "And I had confidence in you, boys, to do the right thing."

"I'm going to leave it to you," he answered. "You boys can play the game or put it up to the directors of the league to decide as you want. But I shouldn't think you would stop now after making all this fight."

The committee called an executive session, and we all thought of the crowd of fans looking forward to the game and of what the newspapers would say if we refused to play it and of Mr. Brush lying there, the man who wanted us to play, and it was rapidly and unanimously decided to imitate "Steve" Brodie and take a chance.

"We'll play," I said to Mr. Brush.

"I'm glad," he answered. "And, say, boys," he added, as we started to file out, "I want to tell you something. Win or lose, I'm going to give the players a bonus of $10,000."

That night was a wild one in New York. The air crackled with excitement and baseball. I went home, but couldn't sleep, for I live near the Polo Grounds, and the crowd began to gather there early in the evening of the day before the game, to be ready for the opening of the gates the next morning. They tooted horns all night, and were never still. When I reported at the ball park the gates had been closed by order of the National Commission, but the streets for blocks around the Polo Grounds were jammed with persons fighting to get to the entrances.

The players in the clubhouse had little to say to one another, but, after the bandages were adjusted, McGraw called his men around him and said:

"Chance will probably pitch Pfiester or Brown. If Pfiester pitches there is no use trying to steal. He won't give you any lead. The right-handed batters ought to wait him out and the left-handers hit him when he gets in a hole. Matty is going to pitch for us."

Pfiester is a left-handed pitcher who watches the bases closely.

Merkle had reported at the clubhouse as usual and had put on his uniform. He hung on the edge of the group as McGraw spoke, and then all went to the field. It was hard for us to play that game with the crowd which was there, but harder for the Cubs. In one place, the fence was broken down, and some employees were playing a stream of water from a fire hose on the cavity to keep the crowd back. Many preferred a ducking to missing the game and ran through the stream to the lines around the field. A string of fans recklessly straddled the roof of the old grand stand.

Every once in a while some group would break through the restraining ropes and scurry across the diamond to what appeared to be a better point of vantage. This would let a throng loose which hurried one way and another and mixed in with the players. More police had to be summoned. As I watched that half wild multitude before the contest, I could think of three or four things I would rather do than umpire the game.

I had rested my arm four days, not having pitched in the Boston series, and I felt that it should be in pretty good condition. Before that respite, I had been in nine out of fifteen games. But as I started to warm up, the ball refused to break. I couldn't get anything on it.

WOULDN'T BREAK FOR MATTY.

"What's the matter, Rog?" I asked Bresnahan. "They won't break for me."

"It'll come as you start to work," he replied, although I could see that he, too, was worried.

I forgot the crowd, forgot the fights, and didn't hear the howling after the game started. I knew only one thing, and that was my curved ball wouldn't break for me. It surprised me that the Cubs didn't hit it far right away, but two of them fanned in the first inning and Herzog threw out Evers. Then came our first time at bat. Pfiester was plainly nervous and hit Tenney. Herzog walked, and Bresnahan fanned out. Herzog being doubled up at second base because he tried to advance on a short passed ball. "Mike" Donlin whisked a double to right field and Tenney counted.

For the first time in almost a month, Merkle smiled. He was drawn up in the corner of the bench, pulling away from us as if we had some contagious disease and was quarantined. For a minute it looked as if we had them going, Chance yanked Pfiester out of the box with him protesting that he had been robbed on the decisions on balls and strikes. Brown was brought into the game and fanned Devlin. That ended the inning.

We never had a chance against Brown. His curve was breaking sharply, and his control was microscopic. We went back to the field in the second with that one run lead. Chance made the first hit of the game off me in the second, but I caught him sleeping at first base, according to Klem's decision. There was a kick, and Hofman, joining in the chorus of protests, was sent to the clubhouse.

John M. Ward, the old ball player and now one of the owners of the Boston National League Club, has told me since that, after working almost every day as I had been doing, it does a pitcher's arm no good to lay off for three or four days. Only a week or ten days will accomplish any results. It would have been better for me to continue to work as often as I had been doing for the short rest only seemed to deaden my arm.

The crowd that day was inflammable. The players caught this incendiary spirit. McGinnity, batting out to our infield in practice, insisted on driving Chance away from the plate before the Cubs' leader thought his team had had its full share of the batting rehearsal. "Joe" shoved him a little, and in a minute fists were flying although Chance and McGinnity are very good friends off the field.

Fights immediately started all around in the stands. I remember seeing two men roll from the top to the bottom of the right field bleachers over the heads of the rest of the spectators. And they were yanked to their feet and run out of the park by the police.

"Too bad," I said to Bresnahan, nodding my head toward the departing belligerents, "they couldn't have waited until they saw the game, anyway. I'll bet they stood outside the park all night to get in only to be run out before it started."

Other Pirates of Nine Years 'Ago Are Missing.

Not One Man of Then Boston Team Is in Game.

Average Life of Good Player Is Eight Years.

Recently in the Eastman Hotel at Hot Springs, Ark., the headquarters of the Boston Red Sox, as well as of the Pittsburgh Pirates, there came to light a few facts in connection with the world's championship series of 1903 between these teams. It was commented on, during the course of conversation at the hotel between members of both teams, that not one player or member of the present Boston team who took part in the series of 1903, is in the game at present.

The average life of a ball player is about eight years, but there are always exceptions to rules. Three players who are exceptions are Fred Clarke, Tommy Leach and Honus Wagner. They all played with the Pirates in the struggle of 1903. Mr. Clarke is out of the game now, with only a slight possibility that he will ever again participate in a championship contest, but he is not out because he is no longer fit. He had few seasons better than 1911, so far as batting and fielding averages are concerned, but he has reached the point at which it is not necessary for him to play the game. He is abundantly supplied with this world's goods, and the activities of the diamond are so strenuous that they generally put him to the bad part of the time. It is not necessary for him to take any chances on permanent disability, and looking at the matter from his own point of view, he would be foolish to hazard his health unnecessarily.

SUBSTITUTES NOW.

Nevertheless, Fred could go in this spring and play up to the high standard he has maintained throughout the time he has been connected with the Pittsburgh club, while all the Boston players who opposed his team eight years ago are either on the retired list, or playing with other clubs. Hans Wagner and Tommy Leach are the other Buccaneers who were members of the club in the fall of 1903, and are still playing. Tommy will probably be out of the game most of this season, and his services to the club will be given in the capacity of assistant to Fred Clarke. Wagner is therefore the only one of the trio who may be expected to actively participate in the struggle for another world championship. That fact furnishes another evidence of the greatness of the Pirate shortstop. He has been the most perfect baseball machine the country has ever produced, and while he may slow up a bit on account of his advancing years, there is no indication that the check will come in 1912. Hans looks good for several more seasons. He promises to be particularly good this year.

The comparison of the Boston and Pittsburgh clubs, and the discussion in connection therewith, also brought to light an interesting fact of which Fred Clarke was in ignorance, until that time. It will be recalled that when the Boston rooters came to Pittsburgh during the 1903 world's series, they secured a band, and the band played "Tessie," then a very popular air. The words were printed on the back of cards, and the cards distributed among the visitors from Beanville. During the progress of the game the band played, and the rooters sang "Tessie." The Pirates lost the championship after they had it all but won, and a great deal was said and written at the time about the "Tessie" song being the "jinx" of the Buccaneers. During the 1904 season it is said that the Pittsburgh players would display anger every time they heard the air.

Clarke did not know that Dan Mirella, who was at Hot Springs with the club, was responsible for "Tessie." Dan confessed and has been forgiven. The Pittsburgh bandmaster was engaged by the Boston rooters to furnish music for them, and it was his suggestion to have cards printed with the words of "Tessie." He led the band that made melody that cheered the Red Sox to victory, and he is almost sorry for it now. Dan says, however, that if he has another opportunity this fall he will try to select a song that will have the opposite effect upon the Pittsburgh club.

SOUTHERNERS WIN STANFORD FOIL HONORS.

[Special Correspondence of The Times.]

STANFORD UNIVERSITY, May 4.—Miss Rose M. Bennett, '12, of San Diego, is the champion woman fencer at Stanford. In the finals of the foil and mask tournament Miss Bennett disposed of three rivals. The fencing title was also won last year by Miss Bennett.

"Kenny" Dole, '11, of Riverside, won the man's fencing championship, yesterday. About twenty-five men competed for the title and Dole was the lone survivor. "Kenny," who was varsity football captain in 1910, is one of the most versatile athletes who has ever attended Stanford. He is the last of the famous family of athletes that has won honors in Stanford athletics during the last fifteen years. His brother is stroke of the Cornell varsity crew this year.

the thousands of spectators when Tetzlaff roared into the second lap in the lead of the field a position which he maintained for the entire thirty-six laps.

At times the Benz car driven by Brown was a close rival but each time the wonderful daring of the "Dutchman," as Teddy is affectionately called, would hurl his machine into the turns ripping long strips of rubber from his tires but maintaining his lead.

With Tetzlaff fleeing on toward the goal at the end of 303 miles without faltering it became a fight between Brown in the Benz and Caley Bragg in his Fiat.

Barney Oldfield, who had experienced tire trouble and had also broken a spring, had dropped back to the rear and was not a factor in the race for second place.

For the first two hundred miles Bragg and Brown would alternate in being second but never for a moment coming within anything less than several miles of Tetzlaff.

Bert Dingley in his Simplex had dropped back to fourth place as his tires were breaking on the turns. The two Stutz cars were busily engaged in fighting out their own battles with each other and furnished some of the best sport of the day.

After the 200-miles mark had been passed it became a question of tires and at one time Tetzlaff, who had encountered serious tire trouble, was being pursued by Bruce Brown, and was hard pressed when Brown threw a tire and dropped back to his former respective distance from the "Flying Dutchman."

The position of the three leaders held practically the same up to the 250-mile mark, when the final burst of speed came. Men who had seen auto races for years and in all parts of the country, stated that it was the most reckless driving and most magnificent speed that has ever been produced before the public.

Brown in his Benz, opened up his throttle wider and began to make laps in the awe-inspiring time of 5:27, or at the rate of 95 miles per hour for the entire course. On Nevada avenue and on the Palisades on the rear stretch speed of 125 miles an hour was attained. The two big Fiats were sent crashing away like veritable demons and the gray Benz with Brown, at the wheel, hung onto the fleeing red cars and would not be shaken off.

At one time, Caley Bragg, in his Fiat passed the renowned Barney Oldfield, directly in front of the grand stand and forced that veteran driver to shut down before following the youthful Pasadena millionaire into the awful Dead Man's Curve.

There were motor duels galore and the tremendous throng of spectators which lined the course over every available seat was filled and there were exultant, when the end came.

The scene in the big grand stand was a typical California one. Every available seat was filled and there was splashes of color everywhere. It was a happy, enthusiastic throng who knew the drivers by their first name and who also knew the famous cars in the race and their records.

The best of order prevailed. Not an accident worthy of the name occurred. Bert Dingley threw a tire in making the turn from the Palisades into the Ocean Front and the rim and tire hurled itself over the bluff to the surf line of the Pacific. Dingley kept his car upright and brought it to the pits.

The popcorn venders were there and the lemonade booths were legion, and the holiday crowd patronized them freely, but the one big thing was the demoniacal speed that was being displayed by the greatest racing machines on earth.

A world's record was broken and a Southern California man accomplished the feat, and the crowd was tired, dusty, but happy, as it began to pour back in 10,000 automobiles toward the city.

BOXING TITLES ARE SETTLED AT STANFORD.

[Special Correspondence of The Times.]

STANFORD UNIVERSITY, May 4.—The finals in the annual boxing tourney were pulled off last night. Earl Scott, '12, of Los Angeles, carried off the honors in the middleweight division, beating G. Ashford, '13, in four rounds. Fred Watkins, '14, of Los Angeles, lost the heavyweight title to C. O. Isakson, '14, who floored the southerner three times.

In the lightweight class, R. Good, '14, was the victor. P. Ross, '14, outdid the other special weights, and C. L. Boulware, '14, won the welterweight medal.

HEAVER PIERCE FARMED.

George Pierce, the left-handed pitcher who was competing with Jack Pfiester for a place on the Cub staff, has been released to the Scranton club of the New York State League. Pierce was obtained from the New York Giants by the waiver route when McGraw decided to release him. The Giants got Pierce from the Eastern League last fall. He was too wild to be tamed by any ordinary process. That was decided when, he finished that 20 to 5 game in St. Louis a few days ago. The Cubs now are down to the twenty-five player limit.

Gold, the Oldest Metal.

[Harper's Weekly:] A recent paper presented to the Royal Institution at London, in discussing the question of the metals used by the great nations of antiquity, pointed out that gold was probably the first metal known to man, because it is generally found native. The oldest metallic objects to which we can assign a probable date are thought to be those found in a royal tomb at Nagada, in Egypt, supposed to have been that of King Menes. In one of the chambers were some bits of gold and a bead, a button and a fine wire of nearly pure copper. If the tomb has been properly identified these objects are at least 6300 years old. Nearly all the ancient gold that has been examined contains silver enough to give it a light color. It was gathered by the ancients in the bed of the Pactolus and other streams of Asia Minor of matchless beauty. His was an imagination of vivid power.

A more perfect manner in which fancy can express an idea or a picture be portrayed is in simple quotation of the late Robert Ingersoll, who, in his protest against corporal punishment of children, said: "If any one of you ever expects to whip your children again, I want you to have a photograph of yourself taken when you are in the act with your face red with vulgar anger and the face of the little child, with eyes swimming in tears, and the little chin dimpled with fear like a piece of water struck by a sudden cold wind."

How could language paint more clearly than it does in this instance, fancy wielding the brush.

Imagination is the governing motive of many minds. Without it life would be dreary indeed; with it life becomes an animated dream.

Sometimes a man's imagination extends too far. It lures men on to depths of woe. Sometimes it assumes a morbid trend, and this is a dangerous scope, for suicide usually follows.

What is more beautiful in its simplicity than the imagination of a little child. Their abiding faith in the actual presence of Santa Claus, or the rabbit who lays eggs on Easter morning is touching. The imagination becomes an actuality with the young, and it makes the best days of a child the brightest. When the weight of years is added to man's estate his imagination lightens the burden. There is always something hopeful in imagination if it is properly directed.

When we study great achievements of history, great inventions of man, great discoveries of science, we can find imagination as the foundation of them all.

If we can not make our dreams come true, we can at least imagine what would result if we could. The man without imagination lives a most unhappy life.

Cannot Beat a Holland Hotel.

[Detroit Free Press:] "There are some things about a trip through Holland that you recall when stopping at one of our modern hotels," said Albert Sampter at the Hotel Pontchartrain. "In many places the hotels are run as they have been for ages and candles still are the vogue.

"Rooms with bath are unknown. Instead they charge you about 40 cents in American money for a bath. You ask for the privilege of using the tub, and they send up a maid who brings with her towels and soap. If you have none, for you are supposed to carry both with you. She fills the tub, has it about the right degree of heat, and the faucets are locked, so that if you want more water you don't get it; also there is no chance for your traveling pal sneaking in and enjoying a bath without coming through with another 40 cents.

"You are provided with one candle a day and charged for it. The lights go out early in the night, and if you happen to get up or want to read you have to use a candle. This does not apply to Amsterdam, which is a metropolitan city.

INFLUENCE OF IMAGINATION

Is the Governing Motive of Many Minds and Is a Potent Influence in a Man's Development.

[Memphis Commercial Appeal:] All of the great men in the world have been men of imagination. In fact, man's imagination has played an important part in the events of history. Napoleon saw his matchless victories of war before he ever struck a blow. Columbus dreamed of the Eastern shore before he sailed from the old world. He saw, in his vivid imagination, new worlds of great wealth and beauty. He pictured this country long before his actual gaze was entranced with it. Doubtless Edison saw cities illuminated by his magnificent conquest over the lighting problem long before his invention had taken tangible shape. Shakespeare saw nothing singly. All things appeared to his vision through prisms

INTERVENTION WITHOUT WAR

Uncle Sam Must End Mexican Strife, Say Americans.

Border States Are Prepared to Fortify Towns.

Mexicans Here Would Stand by United States.

[Special Correspondence of The Times.]

LAREDO (Tex.) April 30.—It is not putting the matter too strong to say that nine out of every ten Americans in Mexico believe that United States intervention is certain to be the result of the present revolutionary strife in that country. This opinion has been held by many of the better informed Americans ever since Madero started his revolution against Diaz and it has become more intensified as the situation grows more critical.

If intervention means war with Mexico the Texas border will probably feel the brunt of the strife. It is known that tentative steps have already been taken by not only the State government of Texas, but of New Mexico and Arizona looking to the military protection of their respective frontiers in case of intervention.

The New Mexico Legislature has appropriated $10,000 for the specific purpose of increasing the strength of its national guard as a means of better border protection should intervention occur.

One of the first things that will be done in Texas should the order come for the movement of United States troops into Mexico will be the calling of a special session of the Legislature by Gov. Colquitt to make an appropriation to meet the military emergency that will confront the people on the Rio Grande border.

Adj.-Gen. Henry Hutchings of this State has been firmly impressed for several months that intervention is bound to come sooner or later. Acting on this belief he has devoted much attention to bringing up the standard of efficiency of the different organizations comprising the Texas National Guard.

It is expected that most of these State troops will be mustered into the United States service for duty in Mexico and this will necessitate the organization of additional State military forces to give protection to the border citizens.

The ranger branch of the State government will be immediately recruited up to a strength of several hundred men should intervention occur for service at the international gateways leading into the interior of Mexico and on the Texas border.

The railway lines that would be used by the United States troops to cross the Rio Grande lead through Brownsville, Laredo, Eagle Pass and El Paso.

With Ft. Sam Houston as the concentrating point for the proposed military invasion the troop movement could be handled with great expedition through three of the gateways, Brownsville, Laredo and Eagle Pass. From Ft. Sam Houston to El Paso is more than 600 miles and the troops destined to enter Mexico through the latter gateway would probably be concentrated at Ft. Bliss.

EARLY PREPARATION.

It is considered significant that army officers at Ft. Sam Houston and at every border post in Texas are firmly of the opinion, which they do not hesitate to express privately, that the United States government has been preparing for several months to intervene in Mexico's affairs and that the day for a big troop movement across the border is near at hand.

It is claimed by army officers who are expert in the transportation of large bodies of soldiers that if a concerted movement of troops into Mexico is ordered every large city in that country would be occupied with Uncle Sam's fighting men in less than a week after the order for the invasion is given. Such cities as Monterey, Saltillo, Chihuahua, and Hermosillo are less than a day's travel from the United States line. The capital of Mexico, barring military resistance or other delays, should be reached within three days' travel from Ft. Sam Houston.

The people on the American side of the border welcome the spectre of intervention. While it would perhaps mean more or less fighting along the border it would make good business.

TEXANS ARE FEARED.

It is probable that the masses of the people of Mexico would invite a war with the United States at this time if they did not have a holy fear of Texans. Many times have Mexicans been heard to say that if it was not for Texas it would be an easy matter for Mexico to whip the United States."

The fighting qualities of the average Texan are well known to the Mexicans. They have had several proofs of his prowess in time of war, and in incipient military forays that have occurred from time to time along the Rio Grande.

Mexicans in the border towns of Texas have no fear of serious trouble should Mexico should intervention occur. It is claimed that home guards would be able to afford these different towns ample protection from any possible attack by Mexicans.

In case of war with Mexico there are many thousands of people of the Latin race who now live in Texas, Arizona, New Mexico and California who would be loyal to the United States. Many of these Mexicans are naturalized citizens. Thousands of them are natives of the soil of Texas and the Southwest.

Almost all of the counties and towns along and adjacent to the Rio Grande have as one of the civil officers are Mexicans who know the characteristics and the worth of the Mexican-American and that they can be depended upon to display loyalty to the United States should trouble occur with Mexico.

At Laredo there is a company of the National Guards commanded by Capt. J. P. Cranke, which is composed almost exclusively of young Mexicans. It has already volunteered its services to become a part of the army of invasion to Mexico should there be intervention.

FEAR NO INVASION.

Mexicans who have had long experience on the Rio Grande border do not fear that should intervention bring about a war with Mexico the disorganized conditions that would thereby exist might cause unusual activity on the part of bands of smugglers and outlaws [illegible] certain of the [illegible] along the [illegible] armed militia [illegible] other side of [illegible] such a thing.

FEAR NO INVASION.

Those who have had long experience on the Rio Grande border say that should intervention bring about war with Mexico the disturbed conditions that would thereby exist would cause unusual activity on the part of bands of smugglers and outlaws that have long infested certain of the more remote localities along the river, but so far as an armed military invasion from the other side is concerned no fear of such a thing happening is felt.

More than 800 miles of the territory on the American side of the Rio Grande are under the jurisdiction of James L. Haynes, collector of customs, with headquarters at Laredo, and Robert W. Dowe, who occupies a similar position with the government for the middle border district with headquarters at Eagle Pass.

It is said that the War Department of the United States has probably a better and more accurate knowledge of the topography of the country lying between the Rio Grande and the City of Mexico than the Mexican government itself. It is known that a complete topographical reconnoissance has been made of that territory by representatives of the United States government during the last eighteen months and that maps showing all of the roads and trails, streams, towns, villages and every other detail that might be useful in case of an armed invasion of that country have been made and are on file in the War Department.

With warships in the harbors of Tampico and Vera Cruz and the landing of marines at those ports and a quick movement of troops southward from the northern railway gateways, of the country intervention would be accomplished quickly and, it is believed, without any great shedding of blood.

This is the view that is taken by American army officers stationed in Texas who have made it a point to study every phase of the situation.

It is conceded that there would perhaps be guerrilla warfare for a time on the part of bands of Mexicans, but, if, in its acts of intervention, the United States should be backed by such European powers as England, Germany and France, as it is deemed would be done, the thinking and influential elements of Mexico would doubtless soon realize that the United States was acting for the best interests of the strife-stricken country.

Regal Underslung

---the underslung construction is not a fad but a mechanical principle to which all motor cars must eventually come

Every time you see a Regal Underslung coming up the street, you'll say: "What a smart-looking car; what trim lines it has; how it hugs the road; how eagerly it runs." The reason why the Regal Underslung is the smartest car on the street lay in its underslung construction—a mechanical principle that is not new, because the locomotive, the heaviest thing on wheels, is built the same way.

No man is acquainted with the newest development in automobile construction until he has thoroughly investigated the Regal Underslung—and no man who gives this car painstaking investigation will fail to buy it once he understands the real meaning of the word underslung.

The REGAL UNDERSLUNG is an inexpensive car. You can buy the Model "N," 25 horse-power roadster, fully equipped for $1100, the Regal "T," 25 horse-power underslung touring car, fully equipped for $1200, the Regal "25" underslung touring car, fully equipped for $1750.

COBB IS NOT ONLY SHINER.

Fielder Jones Says There Are Many Live Ones.

Chance, Chase, Wagner and Mathewson Are Stars.

Old Time Managers Had Very Dreary Life.

Fielder Jones, president of the Northwestern League and former manager of the White Sox, says: "There is no greatest ball player. To say that Ty Cobb is the greatest baseball player of all time is not a simple assertion, and the man who makes it finds that he has started an argument which can never be satisfactorily settled. Hanus Wagner and Napoleon Lajoie are to be reckoned with, while Donovan, Mathewson, Brown, Sam Crawford, Frank Chance, Hal Chase, Bobby Wallace and others have their admirers.

"Ty Cobb has the advantage over Wagner and Lajoie in that he has an easier position to play. It is a much less difficult diamond task to play in the outfield than in the infield. To my mind Cobb's chief stock in trade is his speed, used at unexpected moments. I have never noticed that Cobb was an unusual thinker, but always attributed his success, aside from his hitting, to his speed and take a chance methods. Donovan, Mathewson and Brown are entitled to consideration among the greatest baseball players in history. True, they are pitchers, and hence not rated with the men who are in the game every day, but they have been the 'lifesavers' of their clubs."

Jones notes a big difference between the major league training camp of today and those of the period in which the White Sox were the cocks of the American League walk. "In my managerial days the manager had to direct all of the training camp work, and not only direct it, but do most of the work," Fielder Jones comments. "Now we have managers, assistant managers and bosses over various squads, with the managers the directing spirit of the camp. When I was with the White Sox the training period was the hardest of the season. I can remember when my hands would be blistered and raw from hitting fungoes, with my arm so sore from pitching to the batters that I could not sleep."

"THE TIMES" CAR IS READY TO CROSS THE COLORADO.

President Mitchell of the Ocean-to-Ocean Highway Association Outlines a Plan Whereby the Crew of the Organizing Car Will Co-operate With the Other Good Roads Workers in the States to Be Traversed.

EQUIPPED for a transcontinental journey, The Times car will be sent across the Colorado River a week from tomorrow. John S. Mitchell, president of the Ocean-to-Ocean Highway Association, will make the trip in the car and J. S. Conwell, secretary of the highway association, will be the fourth passenger.

Everything is ready for the run through the sand. This is to be no record run. No effort is to be made to "pathfind" the route across the continent. The Times car will be driven leisurely and divisions of the Ocean-to-Ocean Highway Association are to be formed in every city in Arizona and New Mexico and across the continent.

According to the plan outlined by President Mitchell, he will co-operate with all other good-roads bodies in each of the States traversed. The Santa Fe Trails Association and the Boone-Lick Trails body will be asked to help organize and The Times car will work in harmony with the road boosters all over this country.

Every city along the proposed route in Southern California has been organized. Now is the time to complete this organization and then Arizona is to be next. No effort will be made to advertise the car, the tires, the supplies or anything else. The highway is to be the theme of The Times crew.

One of the best arguments in favor of a transcontinental highway has just been advanced by prominent members of the Automobile Association of America. Figures which show the large amount of money spent in touring surprise even those who are keeping tab on the cars and owners.

That we need a highway from Los Angeles to New York every motorist who reads this article will agree. If we build a macadam highway it means money saved. Next in importance to the digging of the Panama Canal is the building of the transcontinental highway.

When The Times car resumes its transcontinental journey on Monday the data gathered by Secretary Conwell will be invaluable. When the echo of the last words of welcome for the Shriners has died away the chug of The Times motor will disturb the desert air and the car that is equipped for a journey across the United States will be headed for Yuma.

AT YUMA.

At Yuma a warm reception is promised by Dr. Vance Clymer. After leaving Yuma the men of Phoenix will welcome the car and a mass meeting will be held in the Arizona city. The Times car is prepared for a strenuous journey and John S. Mitchell, president of the Ocean-to-Ocean Highway Association, is prepared for a hard trip.

WHAT IT COSTS.

Over a million dollars will be expended this season in transcontinental touring, according to a compilation made by the American Automobile Association's touring information bureau, which has its national headquarters at No. 437 Fifth avenue, New York. The figures are surprising, especially since transcontinental touring is a comparatively recent development, though it is growing with great rapidity. It is conservatively estimated that 500 cars, with an average of four persons to a car, will go across the country by the "Trail to Sunset" this year, and their estimated expenses, based on careful investigations and past experience, will be as follows: Gasoline, $55,000; oil, $15,000; tires, $180,000; garage expense, $15,000; equipment for car, $25,000; equipment for passengers, $60,000; hotel bills, $320,000; incidentals, purchase of souvenirs, $30,000; return railroad fares, $250,000; freight on return of cars, $75,000.

This makes a total of $1,025,000, which is enough to interest even the transcontinental railways, for the fares of returning passengers and freight of their cars will amount to about $325,000. No estimate is made of the money spent by the tourists while on the Pacific Coast. Of course, there is some depreciation in cars, and many new machines are bought for the specific purpose of transcontinental trips. It is a certainty that the number of cars making this trip will increase by leaps and bounds each year, as road conditions improve. Work is being done all along the route this year to better road conditions.

Perhaps the figures quoted are not so surprising, after all, in view of the fact that Dr. F. L. Bartlett, good roads director of the Denver Chamber of Commerce, states that 6000 automobiles visited his State in 1911, and that they left no less than $2,700,000 in that Commonwealth. Verily, the slogan, "See America First," is growing to a healthy volume, and it will come to pass that Europe will feel the diminishing of the golden stream of dollars, as in course of time a citizen who goes abroad to travel, without first knowing his own country, will be counted a mighty poor American indeed.

In the growth of cross-country touring it is becoming quite common for many Californians to be seen in New England, and many New Englanders are making the journey to the Coast. New England's attention to road construction and maintenance has given it a priority over all other sections of the country, but California is making astounding progress, due to the activities of the Automobile Club of Southern California and the California State Automobile Association, which has in hand the northern section of the State.

Strangers coming to California for the first time are almost unanimous in saying that the sign-posting in California is the best in the United States, and comparable with some of the best sign-posting abroad. As a result of this, the State of California, as a whole, and especially Southern California, has received an immense number of tourists from other sections, and is now in the midst of one of the most important road-improvement plans in the country. It is estimated that for every dollar spent in this promotion of good roads, directly or indirectly, at least twenty are returned to the State, which at the same time gains a considerable number of prominent residents of the most substantial and progressive kind. It is probable that the increase in population in Los Angeles has been at least one-half greater owing to the coming of the automobile and the spreading of good-roads interests.

MATHEWSON'S STORY.

memorable triple which gave the Cubs their chance. I couldn't make my curve break. I didn't have anything on the ball.

"Rog," I said to Bresnahan, "I haven't got anything today."

"Keep at it, Matty," he replied. "We'll get them all right."

SADDEST OF ALL, "IT MIGHT HAVE BEEN."

I looked in at the bench, and McGraw signalled me to go on pitching. Kling singled and scored Tinker. Brown sacrificed sending Kling to second, and Sheckard filed out to Seymour, Kling being held on second base. I lost Evers, because I was afraid to put the ball over the plate for him, and he walked. Two were out now, and we had yet a chance to win the game as the score was only tied. But Shulte doubled, and Kling scored, leaving man on second and third bases. Still we had a Mongolian's chance with them only a run ahead of us. Frank Chance, with his under jaw set like the fender on a trolley car, caught a curved ball over the inside corner of the plate and pushed it to right field for two bases. That was the most remarkable batting performance I have ever witnessed since I have been in the big leagues. A right-handed hitter naturally slaps a ball over the outside edge of the plate to right field, but Chance pushed this one, on the inside, with the handle of his bat, just over Tenney's hands and on into the crowd. The hit scored Evers and Schulte and dissolved the game right there. It was the "break." Steinfeldt fanned.

None of the players spoke to one another as they went to the bench. Even McGraw was silent. We knew it was gone. Merkle was drawn up behind the water cooler. Once he said, "It was my fault, boys."

No one answered him. Inning after inning, our batters were mowed down by the great pitching of Brown, who was never better. His control of his curved ball was marvelous, and he had all his speed. As the innings dragged by, the spectators lost heart, and the cowbells ceased to jingle, and the cheering lost its resonant ring. It was now a surly growl.

Then the seventh! We had our one glimmer of sunshine. Devlin started with a single to center, and McCormick shoved a drive to right field. Recalling that Bridwell was more or less of a pinch hitter, Brown passed him purposely, and Doyle was sent to the bat in my place. As he hobbled to the plate on his weak foot, said McGraw, "Hit one, Larry."

The crowd broke into cheers again and was stamping its feet. The bases were full, and no one was out. Then Doyle popped up a weak foul behind the catcher. His batting eye was dim and rusty through long disuse. Kling went back for it, and some one threw a pop bottle which narrowly missed him and another scaled a cushion. But Kling kept on and got what he went after, which was the ball. He has a habit of doing that, Tenney flied to Schulte, counting Devlin on the catch, and Tinker threw out Herzog. The game was gone. Never again did we have a chance.

It was a glum lot of players in the clubhouse. Merkle came up to McGraw and said:

"Mac, I've lost you one pennant. Fire me before I can do any more harm."

"Fire you," replied McGraw. "We ran the wrong way of the track today. That's all. Next year is another season, and do you think I'm going to let you go after the gameness you've shown through all this abuse? Why you're the kind of a guy I've been lookin' for many years. I could use a carload like you. Forget this season and come around next spring. The newspapers will have forgotten it all then. Good-by, boys." And he slipped out of the clubhouse.

"He's a regular guy," said Merkle.

Merkle has lived down that failure to touch second and proved himself to be one of the gamest players that ever stood in a diamond. Many times since has he vindicated himself. He is a great first baseman now, and McGraw and he are close friends. That is the "inside" story of the most important game ever played in baseball, and Merkle's connection with it.

Lavish Waste of Money.

[Baltimore American:] Roosevelt's lavish wastefulness of funds is on a par with the lavish wastefulness of energy and wastefulness of temper. The campaign of detraction and suspicion that has been conducted thus far affords more than a glimpse of the kind of spirit that would actuate a Roosevelt administration. The third-term principle once set aside, not only would the country be in danger of the election of a violent reactionary, but one who has a peculiarity of temperament that amounts to a political infirmity.

BY OWEN R.

THIS afternoon sporting interest will center around the work of Conley and White, at their respective camps, as it will be the first time either have put on a full training card, in the work for the coming 10-round battle May 10. To the present reading of the minutes, there has been but little action and a great deal of chin music. White and Gilmore have not conceded Conley an even look-in, while Conley assumes that superior air when the name of White is mentioned and says it is all right to boost the short end, as it will help the house.

In some respects, this fight is a hard one to dope out, for the very reasons covered in the above statements. One of the men thinks it is easy, while the other can't see anybody but himself, there you have it. "Oh yes he is a good game boy," says Conley, "but show me any class that he has knocked dead! This fellow will be in that old down and out thing after next Saturday afternoon."

"Say, Conley is a pipe to wallop, they all do it and that is just what I am looking for, a chance to land one on somebody's jaw bone," said White yesterday. "And take it from me, Frankie will know he has been hit and then a little more, when I put one over on that famous iron jaw. They make me laugh when that talk about Patsy Kline is pulled. I could knock that fellow out of the ring and Conley is going to have something altogether different when he hits me. Frankie is good and I know if I win from him, it will make me in Los Angeles, where it pays to be made."

WHY IS CONLEY POPULAR?

When you get two fighters thinking alike this, there is going to be some real action in the ring when they meet. Many people have asked why Conley is so popular, when he gets on so many short end-purses. Well that is easy. In the first place, he has a heart of iron and then will not stop at any of them, fighting everybody from the 115 pounders to the 133 battlers. He has made many of the best men in the business, between these fights, sit down and that right hard. Conley is the only man that ever made Ad Wolgast hit the grit, and when we find a man who is afraid of nothing and willing to take everything in order to get one good crack at his opponent, the public is willing to throw off its hat to him and that goes to Conley.

The more they hit Frankie, the faster he comes until it would seem that the other fellow was beating himself. All these wasted energy. Gameness is Conley's greatest asset and if ever there was another like him, we want to know.

WHITE IS GAME.

As White, we have a different type of fighter. He is game, as was shown in the fight with Rivers when he took a beating of his life and looked like a pupil trying to teach the old master a few new tricks. He fought a game struggle till the last ounce of

WHAT IS CONLEY POPULAR?

When you get two fighters thinking alike this, there is going to be some excitement in the ring when they meet. Many people have asked why Conley is so popular, when he gets on so many short end-purses. Well that is easy. In the first place, he has a style of his own and then will not step out of them, fighting everybody from the 115 pounders to the 133 battlers. He has made many of the best men in the business, between these marks sit down and that right hard. Conley is the only man that ever made Ad Wolgast hit the grit, and you will find a man who is afraid of a good and willing to take everything you have to get one good crack at his chin, the public is willing to take off its hat to him and that goes double.

The more they hit Frankie, the faster he comes until it would seem that the other fellow was beating himself. All wasted energy. Gameness is Conley's greatest asset and if ever there was another like him, we want to know.

WHITE IS GAME.

As for White, we have a different type of fighter. He is game, as was shown in his fight with Rivers when he took the beating of his life and looked like a pupil trying to teach the old dog a few new tricks. He fought gallant struggle till the last ounce of vital force had been driven from his body by the punches of Joe Rivers and after it was all over, admitted that he had met a better man, and it was for his sportsman-like conduct that he was awarded another chance to make good in the same ring. As to style, White is a slashing boxer who swings from behind him and carries a sleep in either hand.

White may be a little more the finished boxer of the two, but this will be offset by his slowness, when compared with Conley's rushing tactics. They say that White once made Frankie look sick at Chicago in three rounds of milling. Well, it was like this: Conley was near the top at the time and White was getting a try-out in the same stable, where Frankie was one of the best meal tickets, and Frank let the boy come fast; therefore it has been thrown back in his face, but Conley says White will have a fight on his hands this trip and not a try-out.

CONLEY WILL TAKE CHANCE.

Frankie got to talking about the fight yesterday and told the writer that he was willing to get into the ring, with from one to five thousand joy-producers on his side, saying that White would not be there at the end of the twentieth round, and he further stated that he hoped Gilmore would see the light of reason here.

"I'll tell you why I would do this," said Frankie. "I generally don't like to make any of my money talk this way, but here I really think the fight will be over at the end of the twelfth round and so am willing to take a chance between the twelfth and the twentieth."

This is a big statement for the little man to make, but Conley always means everything he starts and one thing that he does lack is an imagination.

Oh, what will the harvest be?

BASKETBALL ON THE DECLINE.

GREAT GAME IS FAST LOSING ITS POPULARITY.

Great Drawback is Possibility of Making So Many Foul Goals. Victory Generally Rests on Ability to Shoot Such—Officials Are Held Responsible.

In declining to make more than a few, and comparatively minor, changes in the basketball rules for next year the members of the college basket ball rules committee have placed the burden of responsibility for the abuses that marred the game during the last season upon the shoulders of the official referees—where in not a few instances it belongs.

But there is something more the mater with basketball than the officials. The game has steadily lost standing at all the leading universities except Columbia, and there must be a reason. Perhaps it lies in the rules themselves; perhaps, as the committee says, the fault is partly with the players, who lay more stress upon guarding their opponents than following and passing the ball.

Whatever may be the secret, it is a fact that basketball has suffered because of the tremendous number of fouls called throughout the season and the great amount of scoring possible from fouls. When a game reaches a point where one team can and does win because of the expertness of one of its players to throw foul goals it is on the downward path. The rules committee proposes to instruct the officials to enforce holding and blocking rules more rigidly another year, and in that way the committee thinks the play will become less defensive and more offensive in character. But this is leaving a gool deal to the officials.

Basketball is a good game, and a fast one. It is altogether too good a game to lose on account of its admittedly bad features. But so long as fouling goes merrily on the sport will continue to lose followers. It was said the other day that they were about to drop basketball as a league game at Yale. It is said that Yale will remain in the league another season, during which the game will be on probation.

Africa's Great Forest.

[Youth's Companion:] One of the great natural treasures of Africa is the immense extra-tropical forest that extends almost unbroken from the extreme southern end along the eastern highlands to the equator. There are gaps in it, and the trees change in kind somewhat, with change of latitude, but upon the whole it has the same character throughout. The altitude above the sea changes regularly with decrease of latitude. Near the Cape the forest grows at sea level; in Natal and the Transvaal its altitude increases to 3000 feet, 4000 and 5000 feet; and on approaching the equator it rises to 7000 feet, and finally to 10,000 feet. In the equatorial highlands the growth is very vigorous, and the forest is enriched with the "pencil cedar of Abyssinia."

No-Rim-Cut Tires 10% Oversize

Used on 200,000 Cars

This new-type tire—the sensation of Tiredom—now far outsells every other tire.

Over one million have been tested out, on some 200,000 cars.

Some 200,000 separate users have proved them the most economical tire.

The present demand—which results from these tests—is three times larger than one year ago.

The 13-Year Tire

No-Rim-Cut tires are the final result of 13 years spent in tire making.

In formula and fabric, in materials and making, they represent the ultimate in tires.

In our opinion—based on 13 years' experience—tires can never be built much better.

The Patent Tire

These tires are made so they can't rim-cut. The method of making is controlled by the Goodyear patents.

Other devices for making tires of this type have proved unsatisfactory. That is why this flood-like demand for tires that can't rim-cut centers on Goodyear No-Rim-Cut tires.

These tires are also made 10 per cent over the rated size.

This is done to give an overtired car. It means 10 per cent more air—10 per cent added carrying capacity.

This saves the blow-outs due to overloading.

Save 48 Per Cent

Statistics show that 23 per cent of ruined old-type tires are rim-cut. This patent tire saves that 23 per cent.

Experience shows that 10 per cent oversize, under average conditions, adds 25 per cent to the tire mileage.

These two features together mean an average saving of 48 per cent.

Yet No-Rim-Cut tires now cost no more than other standard tires. They used to cost one-fifth extra.

That's why 200,000 users have come to Goodyear tires.

INDIANAPOLIS RACE ENTRIES.

Many Fast Cars to Start on Two-mile Course.

Twenty-nine Entries for Big Grand Prize Race.

No Married Men to Drive the National Cars.

[BY DIRECT WIRE TO THE TIMES.]

INDIANAPOLIS, May 4.—[Exclusive Dispatch.] The second annual sweepstakes five-mile race over the Indianapolis Motor Speedway will be run, in all probability, with twenty-nine starters. That number of entries had been received at midnight last night, the time set for the closing of the entry lists, and speedway officials announced today that under no conditions would the time for entries be extended.

There is still a possibility that other entries, mailed yesterday, may be received tomorrow, but additions at this late date will come as a surprise to the Speedway management. The companies and individuals entering the twenty-nine cars claim their racers will have no trouble in showing the required speed, seventy-five miles an hour, for a lap of two and a half miles. The field of twenty-nine will be an ideal one for fast time and there is every reason to believe that last year's record will be bettered by a wide margin.

It is probable that Bruce Brown will be one of the drivers in the National team, although definite arrangements have not yet been made. George C. Dickson, general manager of the National company, admitted that negotiations had been going on between the company and Brown and that the company is now awaiting word from Brown, who drove a Benz in the Santa Monica Road Race.

Several of the best-known drivers in the country have been after National mounts, but the company declined their services because they were married men. George C. Dickson says it was a rule of the company this year not to employ married men as racing drivers. Teddy Tetzlaff and Caleb Bragg, who are to be at the wheel of the Fiat entry, have agreed to each drive 250 miles in the big race.

A report was started today that Barney Oldfield would be seen at the wheel of the Opal car entered by the Opal Auto Import Company of New York. No information on the subject was received, however, from the New York company.

The entries are as follows:

LAJOIE ONCE ASKED FOR SIXTY-FIVE PER.

Prosperity was not always Nap Lajoie's portion of things handed out in this world.

There was a time in the long ago when the great Frenchman was willing to work for an entire year for about half what he receives for a month now.

Mique Finn, noted minor league manager, scout for the New York Giants last year and now engaged to manage the Mobile club, told the story which he claims has never been published.

Mique was manager of the Waltham club back in the '90s. With the close of the season of 1895 the Waltham team was switched to Newport, R. I. In the spring of 1896 Mique received a lengthy letter from Larry, asking for a job as catcher, mentioning a party named Costello, baseball writer of Newport, as reference, and stating that he would work for $65 a month.

Tommy Connolly, who was then umpiring in the New England League, advised Finn to look into the matter. A letter to Costello brought back the brief answer, "He won't do." Finn didn't answer Larry's letter.

Early in the spring Providence was scheduled to play the Fall River club. Connolly, who had been on the scene for three or four days, awaited the arrival of Finn with glowing tales of Larry's prowess. Finn was on hand the day of the game. Larry was at second.

"Never saw any hitting like his before or since then," declared Finn in relating the story.

Along about July 4 of that year Larry went to the Philadelphia club. Finn's treasury would have been vastly increased if he had listened to Larry's plea.

requires some little time to percolate through the various restricted passages in the cooling system, and a little "shaking down" results in a falling of the level.

About $9,000,000 will be spent in roadway construction in Pennsylvania this summer. About one-third of this has been received from automobile owners through license fees.

The Rauch & Lang is Better Built Than Any Other Car

No OTHER Electric Builder makes as many of his own parts.

Most builders buy their axles. But the R. & L. axle costs twice as much as any other electric axle used.

As a result, R. & L. axles stand up better, wear better and are generally more desirable.

As To Batteries

Eliminate the battery from comparison, because ALL Electrics use the SAME battery. Either Exide, Ironclad or Edison are furnished in ALL cars.

But don't buy a SMALL batteried car. R. & L. cars are equipped with 40 CELLS. Less number will not give the satisfaction.

Buying an Electric is like buying dress goods. They all LOOK well at first. But SOME contain shoddy. Hence the DIFFERENCE in PRICE. And the SHODDY SHOWS UP IN USE!

Remember, LESS than $3000 NEVER bought $3000 worth of car. The R. & L. is several hundred dollars HIGHER than most Electrics, but the VALUE is there. Don't take ANY salesman's word. Examine them yourself.

THE EARTH'S POLES.

The North Is in Center of a Basin of the Sea While the South is on a High Plateau.

[Omaha Bee:] It is a curious fact, which may possibly have something to do with the slight unsteadiness of the earth on its axis, that while the south pole lies in the midst of a plateau of land nearly two miles high, the north pole is situated in the center of the basin of a sea, which is, in places at least, about two miles deep. Why this precisely opposite state of things exists it is impossible to say. One result of it, however, is that although it will be possible to erect at the south pole a monument pole, because there the actual pole is at the bottom of the sea, and the explorer stands on a roof of floating ice which is continually in slow movement, and gradually traveling away, while new ice takes its place.

One of the most significant things of all is the fact that round the south pole, just as around the north one, wherever the naked rock can be reached, vestiges are found of a former age, when plants and animals in abundance flourished close about the ends of the earth's axis.

Aunt Virginia Says:

[Woman's World:] Don't tell a man with a grouch to think of his blessings. If he wanted to think of his blessings he wouldn't have a grouch.

The person who "told you so" is a mighty irritating specimen, but he isn't a patch on the wise guy who knew all the time you were going wrong, but was too considerate to tell you of it.

There is a curent superstition that stupid women are good natured, but don't you believe it. I never saw a stupid woman yet who wasn't spiteful and "catty."

Men who borrow money from their women relatives are usually very strong advocates of the theory of masculine superiority.

Did you ever notice that a man very seldom sentimentalizes about his "dear old mother" until after he has disgraced her and broken her heart.

THE JUMP-UPS

VERSES BY PAUL WEST
DRAWINGS BY WM. H. LOOMIS

1.—One day Jim Jump-Up's wife observed:—"Dear Jim, I tell you what!
To clinch our social standing now we ought to buy a yacht.
All millionnaires have steam affairs, so we shall have one, too!"
And Jim? Well, Jim agreed at once. He'd nothing else to do!

2.—A few days passed; then Genevieve said:—"Jim, I wish you'd call
And have your yachting outfit made—coat, cap, white ducks and all.
I've bought the yacht, and in a week, unless they should refuse,
We're going to take our swagg'rest friends upon a little cruise."

3.—Jim did as he was ordered, and each evening for a week
They both read up on yachting till the "lingo" they could speak,
And when Jim learned to say "Avast," "Lay to" and "Starboard side,"
She made him join the Yacht Club and assume a rolling stride.

4.—The cruising day dawned bright and clear, and Genevieve was gay.
The yachting crowd was there in force—not one had stayed away!
And Genevieve just burbled on. "Oh, yes, indeed," said she;
"Both I and Mr. Jump-Up fairly dote upon the sea!

5.—"Rough weather? Why, we love it!" she exclaimed when, by and by,
The yacht began to roll because the waves were pitching high;
But bit by bit she silent grew, for Oh, to her distress,
She felt a sinking feeling and a vague unhappiness!

6.—She battled with it boldly, and she thought:—"I won't tell Jim!"
But finally she went below, and there fell over—him!
"Oh, stop the ship!" moaned hapless Jim. "Whatever shall I do?"
"We're both disgraced!" sobbed Genevieve. "I'm just as ill as you!"

7.—For hours they heard their thoughtless guests enjoying life on deck.
"I wish the blamed old yacht would sink!" cried Jim, "and be a wreck!"
"The heartless things!" moaned Genevieve. "A lot for us they care!
Dear Jim, I'm Oh, so sorry that I thought up this affair!"

8.—At last the yacht steamed home again. The heartless guests departed.
The Jump-Ups taxied home alone, downcast and broken-hearted.
"Oh, Gen!" begged Jim, "I ask you, won't you quit this social game?"
"Not I!" she cried. "Though laughed at now, I'll show 'em just the same."

PRACTICAL STYLES FOR LITTLE DAUGHTER

Plaid Gingham with Plain Bands

ONE of the noticeable and commendable features of the American child's dress is the elegant simplicity that characterizes its line. The well-dressed child reflects the good taste of its mother; and it is worth noting that, in this field of fashion, other countries are emulating the example of our little girls' styles. We discountenance the fluffy ruffles, the frills and furbelows that undoubtedly destroy the idea of sweet simplicity that should be associated with childhood. We are emphasizing a practical style for our little ones that is convincingly exploited in the group of models before you.

Which mother cannot duplicate the dark linen model embroidered in blue in scalloped lines? The skirt shows deep pleats and the bodice has short kimono sleeves and a low neck. Over the shoulders are straps, scalloped and embroidered. Cuffs and belt straps are similarly treated, while the wide patent leather belt defines the low waist line.

The pink model of the little flower-girl is of light-weight linen. A round collar edges the top, and the slightly full sleeves have turned-back cuffs. Two broad box-pleats are used on the sides. Just a touch of handwork is given in a line of eyelets and scallops on the collar and cuffs and in a double row down the front of the bodice.

A surplice style is shown, with its bodice crossed over a vest of embroidery and percale. There are pleats in the skirt, and the gathered bodice is attached under a broad belt. A sailor collar with embroidery inset is the simple finish of the inexpensive little frock.

Dimity in cool pink is given an original trimming by a collar and cuffs of pique, embroidered in coinspots. The elbow sleeves show gathers; the belt is of dimity and trimmed with cluny lace. Tucks are used above the hem. A pearl buckle on the belt matches the pearl buttons at the back of the dress. Any voile, lawn or thin material can be made up in this way.

Always attractive is the middy or sailor style for little daughter. Here we have a white linen trimmed with light blue in collar and cuffs. The blouse is three-quarter length, over a pleated skirt. A broad black belt passes through straps and a silk tie completes the becoming style.

What is a little girl's wardrobe without a plaid gingham frock? When combined with a plain color that repeats the main shade in the plaid the effect is always distinctive. In the model shown a broad band of turkish red is used on one side of the crossed blouse. It again appears in narrow cuffs on the set-in sleeves. Cotton soutache trims these bands, and at the top of the little vest is a row of pearl buttons on a narrow red strip.

There is no excuse for a scanty supply of summer frocks for little girls. Styles are copyable, remnants available and the ability of the average mother too great for her daughter to lack many comfortable, inexpensive changes.

COMMON SENSE in the HOME

EDITED by MARION HARLAND

THE HOUSEHOLD LINENS.

Is there a housekeeper anywhere who doesn't take pride in her linens? If there is, she has my sympathy, for she has lost one of the greatest pleasures of the mistress of a home.

One of the delightful features of a real love for the home and for home things is that they do not have to be either rich or rare to win and hold our affections. You who have a simple little dwelling love it just as dearly as your wealthy neighbor around the corner does her superb mansion; in fact, I am not sure but what it means more to you. When you have planned and worked for some addition to this room or that, when nearly every piece of plenishing is marked to you with the thought and economy its purchase represented you value your belongings far more than if you had only to go out and order anything which took your fancy.

To my mind this principle applies with especial force to household linens. They may be picked up one by one, they require care and pains for their preservation, and each piece seems almost to have an individuality of its own, and when it finally goes you have a genuine sense of loss.

When you went to housekeeping you started, I hope, with a fair stock of sheets, pillow slips, towels, tablecloths, napkins, doilies, centerpieces, and the like. Now that it is possible to buy everything ready made we have fallen out of the way of providing everything for a bride in dozens, but it is still wise to have a goodly number of staples to begin with. The "frills" may be picked up later on as they are needed or as you have opportunity to get them.

Give Linen Personal Care.

When your store is once laid in your work has only just begun. Your linen closet—I hope you have a linen closet!—cannot run itself automatically. Neither can it safely be left to the care of any servant. Only the owner of the linens will cherish them as they require.

To begin at the beginning, what is your plan for using your linens? There are two ways of doing this. One is to select a certain proportion of the articles and give them constant use, leaving the others untouched until the first lot wears out, thus rendering it sure that you will always have some perfect articles in hand. When the first supply begins to show signs of hard usage new ones can be taken into service.

The other plan, which I myself pursue, is to use your linens evenly, keeping them all in service, and employing them in rotation. In order to do this with the least trouble you may either put the fresh linen which comes from the wash at the bottom of the pile or you may each week take the articles you need from the lowermost layer, placing the clean pieces on the top. This insures even wear for the whole stock. If you take your towels, for instance, from the bottom of the heap, you are sure to get those which were not last used, and each towel has its share of service.

When I speak of keeping all my linens in service I do not mean that I put all qualities into one general stock. Every housekeeper has certain pieces devoted to service on special occasions, and these go into piles by themselves. In my own linen closet the various articles are sorted and labels are typewritten and pasted to the shelves under them. The tags may be read at a glance: "Cotton sheets, single," "cotton sheets, double," "linen pillow slips," "cotton pillow slips," "fine towels," "plain towels," "rough towels," "washcloths," etc.

Arrangement of the Supplies.

The pieces in most constant use, like the cotton sheets, the plain towels, and the wash cloths are the nearest at hand; the linen sheets are on a lower shelf, to be kept there until warm weather brings them into service; the fine towels are with the best bureau scarfs and spreads on a higher shelf, but still within easy reach. The system which planned their arrangement also directs the order of their employment, and I am able at a glance to tell the state of any set of supplies.

But it is not enough to keep your linen in shape where it will be used evenly. Much more vigilance is demanded than that. Some of my most cherished pieces have come to grief because illness or a press of other calls upon my time forced me to leave to a maid the inspection of my linen before it went to the wash and on its return.

If you mean to save your sheets and pillow slips, and towels, you must give them a glance before they go into the laundress' hands. Often a stitch set then will heal a little break that washing would develop into a gaping hole. The hemstitching of your towels which has begun to break may be caught up in two minutes now. If you wait until it comes home you will find the hem hanging in a strip which will require half an hour's work if it is to be repaired properly.

One Inspection Not Enough.

Even the preliminary inspection of the linen does not do all for it that is needed. The fierce winds which fall to our lot at almost any season of the year try the endurance of our household linen as well as of our body clothing, and you will find a sheet or pillow slip that went out in apparently perfect integrity come in with the hem whipped away from its moorings or a slit in the body of the piece. If it is put into use without repairing the hole will grow to formidable dimensions and possibly the whole piece go to wreck. Look over all the linen as it comes in from the wash and before it goes on the shelves.

If this be true of bed and body linen, it is even more the case with table linen, for this is usually of a more fragile nature. Cotton, heavy linen, and "huck" will stand a strain which would be fatal to delicate damask. The lace trimming on a center piece will wear away at the edges, the hemstitching of a doiley will break, a frayed spot will come in a fine tablecloth. This is the beginning of the end for that piece, but its life may be well prolonged by care. Mend any spot of this sort before the linen is washed, and if the stitches are carefully set, the darning delicately done, you will have weeks of good yet from the mended article. I have tablecloths in service now which have been darned in a dozen places and are still good for family use when the mats and doilies can be placed to shelter the traces of economy.

Is it necessary to say a word of caution here about the washing of damask and linen? You who do your own work or who stand over the laundress while she does it may be able to avoid deteratives which damage, but the average washwoman does not think it possible to get things clean without the use of soap powder or fluid.

* *

"Harmless" Sort of Washing Fluid.

"I don't wish to have any kind of powder or liquid used with my clothes except a little ammonia or borax," I told a new laundress a few weeks ago.

"I don't use nothin' 'cept a kind of washin' fluid that don't do no harm, but makes de clothes white," she informed me.

"Don't use it on my clothes!" I cautioned. "I am afraid of all those things."

Two weeks later I held up a bureau scarf to the light after it came home from the wash. As it lay flat on the table no breaks were visible, but when the strong light was on the other side of it I could see that it was peppered with thin places, none of them bigger than the head of a pin, and I knew at a glance that my warning had not been obeyed and that this was the "kind of washin' fluid to make de clothes white" against which I had warned the laundress. She knew it made the washing easier and so she had calmly disregarded my prohibition and the damask told the tale.

In connection with this let me say that there is no need for such deteratives except in rare cases. A towel or a napkin should not be permitted to get so dirty that it takes hard scrubbing to get it clean. Such scrubbing may safely be said to injure the fabric as much as the deterative. Many housekeepers complain they cannot afford frequent changes of linen at table or of towels, but in the end it turns out to be the poorest sort of economy to change so seldom that the article is stiff with dirt. Washing costs less than new supplies, and the sooner this is learned the better for the purse.

But with the utmost care new supplies must be purchased now and then, and the best way to replenish the stock is by degrees. Don't wait until everything is worn out before you begin to lay in more, but buy as you have opportunity. Except to a rather prosperous housekeeper the pull of buying a dozen or two of new towels is pretty severe, and it is as hard to get a whole round of new sheets or pillow slips.

Watch for "White Sales."

Keep a lookout for the announcement of "white sales," and when one of these is advertised pick up a few bargains. No matter if you cannot buy more than a pair of sheets or pillow slips at a time or a couple of towels. Do this as you have the chance. You won't feel it if you get a couple of towels a month, a pair of sheets every other month. A dozen napkins or even a tablecloth is more of a tug—I have never seen the time when good damask did not make a strain on the purse—but even that is easier than finding all the table linen gone in holes at once and the necessity of getting a fresh stock all over the establishment upon you at one time. And if you watch for the bargain sales aforesaid there is always a chance that you will find articles at a good deal less than they would be as a general thing.

Practice linen economies when you can. Don't give the small boys the finest quality of towels to dry their hands on. Don't you know how the little chaps use water and soap just to loosen the dirt, and then employ the towels to remove it? Can't you think of the amount of rubbing which will be needed to cleanse that towel later and the wear it will mean on the fabric? So get a good cotton towel for coarse wear and save the huck and damask for older persons who will be more careful in their service of the fine goods.

Never throw away a bit of household linen. When your sheets wear thin in the middle turn them; when your tablecloths give out, cut them over for fish and potato cloths and the like; convert your worn-out towels into washcloths, and save all small fragments for sickness and wounds. Old linen is always in demand and gratefully received. No scrap is too small to be "not worth while."

"Look Over All the Linen as It Comes in from the Wash and Before It Goes on the Shelves."

MARION HARLAND'S HELPING HAND

IMPORTANT NOTICE

BECAUSE of the enormous number of letters sent to the department I must ask contributors to limit their communications to 100 words, except in cases of formulas or recipes which require greater space. I want all my correspondents to have a showing in the Corner, and if my request in this respect is complied with it will be possible to print many more letters.

Attention is called to the fact that Marion Harland cannot receive money for patterns, as she has no connection with any department that sells them. Marion Harland.

"As the warm weather approaches I am more and more strongly tempted to say a word to my sister housemothers with regard to the wonderful advantages of the fireless cooker. If you can make a place for it I think what I have to record will be of help to many a weary and wayworn worker.

"For a year and more I used a cooker that only boiled and stewed. It was certainly a great convenience, and saved much time, labor, and fuel. Last Christmas my John, instead of giving me jewelry and bric-a-brac, knowing my desire to have a newer patent of which I had heard, surprised me with this treasure.

"I won't take your time while I describe it. I am told there are others that do as great things. I do not know if any of the owners of these have found out for themselves, as I have, that it is not necessary to cook food from fifteen to twenty minutes before putting it into the cooker. I supposed this must be done. I always did it with my former cooker. So I went on in the same way with this one. Then one day I heated the upper and lower plates or radiators hot, according to directions, and put my ingredients in raw! They came out perfectly cooked!

"I am not advertising any patent, so I don't go into particulars.

"But just let me tell you what happened yesterday (Sunday). I cooked my soup on Saturday (in the cooker). So it was all ready for warming over yesterday, and as you know it would be the better for the second cooking.

"I put it into the proper vessel; in another potatoes, in a third carrots, in a fourth a tough rooster, trussed and stuffed; in another compartment an apple pudding. Then we shut up everything and went to church. This was done at 9 o'clock in the morning. At half past 1 dinner was served.

"Everything was perfect in its way, and, strangest of all, nothing was overdone. Perhaps I ought to say that the rooster was the greatest surprise. He was tender, savory, and—browned! We left the pudding in until we were ready for the dessert. It was as good as the rest.

Angel Cake Baked in Cooker.

"Last week I baked angel cake and gingerbread in the cooker. And a neighbor who is more daring than I actually made ice cream in her 'Fireless!'

"Does all this seem incredible? I vouch for the truth of every word. I have broiled chops and steaks and fish in the cooker, and had them come out brown and juicy, retaining all the flavor and not losing a drop of gravy.

"I am reveling in the anticipation of a cool kitchen this summer. We burn coal in winter. In summer I purpose to have a wood fire kindled in the morning; prepare all the materials for dinner and commit them to the tender mercies of the 'Fireless,' then let the fire go out. You can get a three or four course dinner with no other fuel than a handful of charcoal in a portable furnace. If you are so lucky as to have gas in your kitchen, fifteen minutes will suffice to do all the heating required.

"It is hard to get at the full blessedness of the comfort that lies in that thought for the housemother who does her own work, summer and winter. I am fairly wild with delight in anticipating it.

"Talk of your paper bag cookery! This beats it all hollow, or—as my John said yesterday, after eating his share of that Sunday dinner—'out of sight.'

"This letter is too long, I am sure. But I am too full of the idea of emancipating my fellow housemothers from the slavery of kitchen work in hot weather to shorten the story. EMMA G. L."

By one of the so-called "coincidences," nobody has ever yet been able to classify or account for, there came to my table simultaneously with the arrival of this lovely letter a section of the birthday cake of a friend with a note telling me that it was "baked in the fireless cooker." I can testify to the excellence of the product of the wonder working machine, and add, likewise, that at a visit to a cooking school connected with one of our women's colleges I recently saw roast chicken, Boston brown bread, two vegetables, and a beautiful pie drawn from the roomy recesses of a "fireless cooker" of a different patent from that eulogised by our Missouri correspondent.

She does not exaggerate the advantages and immunities of the use of this invention in the summer kitchen. Especially where the kitchen is small and where coal must be burned in a range all out of proportion to the cramped dimensions of the room.

In camp life it will prove invaluable.

Instead of grudging the space devoted to this communication, I invite the attention of the practical housewife to her sprightly narrative.

How to Make Apple Salad.

"I inclose a recipe for apple and onion salad which we think delicious. Also a recipe for salad dressing.

"APPLE SALAD.—Cut four or five nice, firm, tart apples into dice and grate a medium sized onion fine. Cut into dice one large or two small stalks of tender celery and chop somewhat coarsely a handful of English walnut meats.

"Mix and toss these together with a silver fork; sprinkle with salt and pepper to taste, and pour over all a nice salad dressing blended with a few spoonfuls of cream (half as much as you have dressing) and sweetened to your liking.

"Set in ice until you are ready to serve.

"BOILED SALAD DRESSING.—One cup of vinegar, half a cup of sugar, half a cup of cold water, yolks of two eggs, butter the size of a walnut, half a teaspoonful of salt, a level teaspoonful of made mustard, a pinch of cayenne pepper, and two tablespoonfuls of cornstarch wet up with a little milk.

"Heat vinegar and water to boiling. Beat the eggs light and mix with the other ingredients, pouring the hot vinegar and water slowly over them. Stir until they are all cooked and blended well. Add cornstarch if the dressing be not of the consistency of thick 'double cream.' When it is done, pour into a fruit jar and set in a cool place. When you wish to use a little of it, beat in a little more cream. This dressing keeps long and well and is handy to have in the house when one would make a salad in a hurry.

"N. B.—I hope this is the recipe 'G. O. N.' is looking for.

"I tried the salt rising bread, the recipe for which appeared in the Helping Hand a while ago, and had beautiful 'luck.' I owe many thanks to the Corner and th contributor for a long desired recipe.

"Have any of the members tried boiling potatoes partly before baking them? They are then easily peeled without waste of the best part of the potato, which, as we all know, lies close to the skin.

"Mrs. B. E. P."

A new correspondent who is heartily welcomed to our family circle and congratulated upon the quality of her contribution.

Of course the parboiled potatoes must be set immediately in the oven when withdrawn from the boiling water. Otherwise they will not be mealy.

A contributor advised us lately to grease the skins of potatoes before baking them. Holding, as I do, that a really fine, well roasted potato is better than the vegetable cooked in any other way, I am interested in any hint that makes a good thing the best of its kind.

Recipe for Soap Wanted.

"Can you give me a recipe for making soap at home from cottonseed oil? It would be helpful to us in the south, where the oil is cheap. It is so much like olive oil that I should expect the soap to be very nice. Of course, the recipe must be for a small quantity, requiring, I should say, from two quarts to a gallon of oil. F. D. L."

Use exactly the same recipe as for a soap containing clarified drippings—otherwise "soap grease."

At least, this is what I should do had I no better guide in the manufacture. Perhaps some other southern house mother may have a specific and trustworthy formula which she will kindly lend to us?

You are right in likening cottonseed oil to that expressed from the olive. I suspect that if the truth were known we should find a large admixture of it in bottles bearing the stamp of "Bordeaux" and "Lucca."

Anent Raising of Children.

"I was greatly interested in the talks about bringing up children published some weeks back in the Helping Hand.

"Suffer a mother to whom the matter is of almost supreme importance to tell other mothers how to manage growing boys.

"Keep them near you and at home. It should be the sweetest memory of the men in after days. If there be no other outdoor range for them where you can watch them, let them play in the yard. They may trample the turf and now and then break a flower. They are worth all the grass and flowers in the world. Play with them when you can take time, and let them always be sure that you are interested in what they are about.

"Let your boy bring his tools into the kitchen, or into whatever place is your workroom. If you cannot let him have a regular nursery or workshop let him hammer and saw where you are. When ... has finished his job make him comprehend that it is as much a part of his trade to sweep the floor and put away his tools as it is yours to straighten up the room when your sewing or cutting out or cooking is done. Don't let him think it a hardship, but a part of the game, as it were. Praise his workmanship and tell him what a fine fellow he will be when he grows up if he keeps on as he has begun.

"This policy is not always easy to carry out. When you are tired and 'nervous' a noisy, restless boy is not a sedative. Bear in mind that it is better to bear a little noise and endure the sight of a littered floor than to have the boy upon the street to learn evil of speech and action and get into no end of scrapes.

"Take care of your boy! He is the man of the future—the crown of creation. What are we women worth, anyhow? We could not build a shed to shelter ourselves in from the weather and to live in.

"My boy is making something from your Sunday paper. Some time I will tell you what it is and how I manage him.

"Mrs. A. H."

Another wise mother said of her unassuming upon finding that her boy did not keep his room in the neat comeliness that characterized his sister's: "It was a grievous trial to see his books and papers and bits strewing table and chairs and bed and bureau. Sometimes I was disposed to scold when telling him that he must put each article where it belonged and watch to see that it was done. Then I bethought myself that the boy was worth more than the room, and held myself steadily to the rule of gentle precept upon precept and lovingly words embodying rule upon rule."

Mothers who are neat and systematic housekeepers are especially tempted to be intolerant with active growing boys. One correspondent advises these wisely to keep the restless, disorderly, wide-awake lads near to them and to compel themselves to become interested in pursuits foreign to their own tastes and fancies.

Hind Quarter of Mutton.

"WHAT MAY BE DONE WITH THE HIND QUARTER OF MUTTON.—Buy a small hind quarter of mutton and have the loin chops for dinner. Tell your butcher to put the rest of the leg in corn for you for three days—no longer! (Always buy for it before it is corned!) When it is sent home soak in cold water all night. Next day put it into cold water and boil for dinner. It will require three hours or more. It will be delicious. Save the water for soup stock. These cuts may be bought for from 10 to 14 cents a pound.

"A CHEAP AND GOOD SALAD.—Cut up a firm head of cabbage into quarters. Set aside all but just enough for your salad, and boil upon another day. Cut that reserved for salad quite fine. It is more digestible than when cut coarsely. Put into the salad bowl and season with mayonnaise, or a good French dressing. You may vary this salad by chopping an apple with the cabbage.

"Now as to vegetables: Five cents worth of carrots will do for two dinners. Cut them into cubes and boil with a slice of pork or bacon. Or you may make a dish of creamed carrots. MARY L."

We have here a letter that is practical and commonsensical from beginning to end. It might seem ungracious or officious to add a single recipe to those that are so good and sufficient in themselves. But having studied out what possibilities of palatableness lie in a leg of cold boiled mutton, I venture to suggest that it be accompanied by caper sauce, and that the second appearance of the mutton be in the form of nice thick slices, heated in the caper white sauce. Leave them over the fire just long enough to bring the sauce to a boil, turn dish, and set over boiling water—covering the dish for five minutes, to let the meat soak into the slices, softening and flavoring them.

Excellent Scotch broth for two days may be made from the liquor in which the meat is boiled.

Petticoats

THE underskirt for summer often presents a problem difficult to solve. Shall we have it washable, of fine embroidery or plain lawn? Shall we include a silk one in our list, or must our undergarments be more substantial and less expensive? Let us always consider the use of any garment that we are selecting. If the all-important petticoat is to be used continually in business, it must be decidedly different from the fine one worn under a transparent dress.

For business the silk underskirt seems to be practical if made of soft, durable material that will not split or wear in holes, of which so many of us are complaining. It should be made to fit well around the hips, with no unlovely bunches of gathers. The band is far better than a drawing-string for this purpose. Do not forget the dust ruffle of a good quality of sateen. Do not neglect to place hooks and eyes or patent fasteners at the vent. For the present style of dress a petticoat must be cut on comparatively straight lines, and the ruffle must not be too deep, for we are not yet allowing bulk or fullness at the knees. Tucks or rows of shirring give a good disposition of the widths.

Jersey silk is excellent for a fitted top. Many new petticoats have the jersey top, with two or three detachable ruffles that can be buttoned on the lower edge and made to match the gown.

The silk petticoat is decidedly practical, if, as I have said, you can make it of durable goods.

Have you tried percale for petticoats that are worn alone under summer dresses? It is comfortably heavy, preventing any unpleasant display of the figure in a summer light, and its possibilities in the laundering have been proved by all of us. The percale should be cut on a gored pattern and finished with a circular ruffle.

For a woman who expects to spend the summer at a resort where the laundry bills equal the charges at a hotel, an excellent idea for this summer dresses is the white silk petticoat. It is not expensive and does not soil any more quickly than a white silk dress which we expect to last a season. Choose soft messeline of good quality and make on a slightly full-gored pattern. Give a firmness to the back panel by stitching on the under side a piece of muslin or thick lawn to match the gores. Make the ruffle fifteen inches wide and place tucks horizontally to give a certain firmness. If you wish, instead of gathering at the top, groups of pinch tucks can be run in and the ruffle applied in this way. A stitched band of silk should head the ruffle. If pieces of silk be left, make a little corset cover to match. This latter can be washed.

The lingerie petticoat made of fine embroidered flouncing is always good. It pays to buy fine material, for this lasts many seasons and has a charm all its own in the field of underclothes.

Above all, do not deck out white underskirts with bright ribbons that are conspicuous and draw attention to garments that in reality should not be noticed. If ribbons be required, adhere to the white or to the palest of colors.

Buttons of Soutache

BUTTONS in all varieties are extremely popular trimming this season. Scarcely a frock appears unadorned by buttons.

Very attractive buttons may be fashioned of narrow soutache braid.

Purchase a piece of the desired color and tie knots through the entire length one inch apart.

Sew these together, gradually turning the button around to shape it. When the required size is made, cut the braid and fasten the end.

These buttons are a most successful trimming for any fabric. Silk, linen, serim or wash materials of any variety afford backgrounds on which soutache buttons can be placed with great effect.

Three strands of soutache can be braided and formed into balls that have a very loose effect, yet are solid. The braid can be wound into flat circular

A ROSE COLLAR

FOR those who wish a separate collar with a round deep back I have had designed a pretty shape that is simple in design, yet effective when treated in any of the ways that I am going to suggest.

First let me say that a white collar done on either heavy or handkerchief linen is practical, because it can be worn with any dress, blouse or coat suit. The all-white idea will ever be received enthusiastically by women who cannot have many collars or accessories. If, however, you have your quota of white neckpieces, make this for a linen or lawn dress and work it in colors. Can you imagine a pink linen frock made on simple lines trimmed with this in white linen worked in a pale pink? Just a hint as to its possibilities.

Select a soft mercerized cotton or silk, if you wish, and work the turned-over edges of the roses solid. This can be done after slight padding, or the padding may be omitted if your stitches are close and firm.

Fill in the remainder of each petal with the seed stitches that you will find in all French work. These are merely small back stitches in parallel lines.

Outline the stems and whip over the outline stitches so as to give a cord-like appearance to the work. The wider parts of the stems should be done in stem stitch. Work the leaves, which are quite small, in solid stitch slanting down toward the central rib, as in most leaf work. If you wish to give variety, do half of a leaf in solid stitch and the other half in seed stitch, outlining the edge to complete the shape.

The buds are to be worked solid.

Pad the scallops and work in buttonhole stitch. Attach a straight band of lawn or linen to the upper edge of the collar, basting first and fitting before the final sewing. Be sure to have no puckering.

This design has been worked up on silk with silk thread to decorate the stunning little taffeta jackets that are being made for summer dresses of linen or voile. It is beautiful in colors. Gray embroidered in pale greens, or buff in yellows, is a color suggestion worth considering. Let me lead you to any hand-worked collar of this type in the large stores. Ask the price and—make one yourself!

If you have a piece of Irish lace edging, add it to the scalloped border. It will make an exquisite finish for an exquisite collar.

Any clever woman can cut out a cuff and apply the rose motif to the upper side. The scallops can be traced also on the edge. This will complete as pretty a set as your embroider's heart could wish. If you do not wear collars, some dear friend does. So take the opportunity while it is here and work among the roses in May.

THE OLD-FASHIONED QUILLINGS

MOTHER had them on her wedding dress, and grandmother revived in the triple and quadruple ruchings that were everywhere in the realm of dress. And now, here they are, back in full force. But they must be made.

Cut your silk the required width and with your pinking knife or iron cut the folded silk with the pretty curved scallops. By hammering through the folds this can be done.

Now begin to fold in your silk in as many layers as you wish; the more the fuller will be your ruche. Wide silk requires more pleats. Balance the first group by another folded toward it. Repeat the process. A line of stitches must be made as each group of pleats is finished. If you wish a rose quilling, bring the upper and lower edges toward the center and sew together.

These quillings can be used to edge the top of a bodice, the sleeves, and if very narrow can be applied in an irregular running pattern over chiffon, mousseline, etc.

Sashes are edged with narrow ruchings and scallops are suggested by curved lines of the new-old trimming.

In millinery especially is the quilling idea very noticeable. Brims of hats, either lingerie or straw, are edged with fine ruchings of ribbon or taffeta. Bows of ribbon are trimmed with ruchings of contrasting color. Ribbon velvet is used in pleated form on tailored hats, while wide white and black grosgrain ribbon is very much favored in the ruche for sailors or modified derbies.

Large chip hats show full taffeta ruches, and changeable silks are just as prominent in this new form as in the entire gown. Indeed, the quilling of silk affords an excellent means of using a yard or two left from the spring dress.

UNUSUAL BUCKLES

IN THIS season of simply trimmed hats, it behooves us to apply our cleverness to fashioning the ornaments that hold our headgear in undisputed command.

Buckles have gained much favor as ornaments for spring and summer hats.

There's the large square buckle made over buckram or milliner's scrim. It can be covered with linen and embroidered in the many border designs that any needlewoman can pick up after looking in the shops. French knots, chain stitch, seed stitches that fill in geometrical forms and solid work are resorted to in decorating the linen buckle.

Suede is excellent to cover buckles that finish the chamois or suede hat scarfs, that should be adjustable. It is not difficult to embroider on chamois or a soft leather. Beads in brilliant wooden form can be massed on a buckle of soft leather with very little difficulty.

The heavy lace buckle is a carrying out of the heavy lace idea. White or ecru lace is placed over black or colored silk. The pattern shows off to great advantage, and frequently this simple ornament is sufficient for a hat that can be used for afternoon wear. A certain dash and piquancy are given to a low, flat hat with a lace facing and silk top by adding a lace buckle. Try it.

Buckles of tiny flowers are easily fashioned at home. First detach the blossoms from the bunch in which you have bought them. Cover the buckram frame with soft silk or net. Add the flowers, placing them as close to each other as possible. Forget-me-nots, tiny roses, mignonette, asters, lilies, etc., are effective in buckle form.

The rafia buckle can be fashioned by braiding strands of rafia and winding the braid around the square, round or oval buckle in lines until the whole foundation is covered.

Soutache braid is one more suggestion that should be followed by the woman who prefers to make her own hat ornaments. Simple lines of the braid can be sewn on the foundation. Knotted soutache gives an unusual effect. The knotting must be done before sewing. Braiding the strands and applying is a very quick method of covering a surface.

Oh, the buckles are convincing in their beauty and their simplicity of construction! There is no excuse for a hat without a buckle with countless opportunities at your needle's end.

Petticoats

THE underskirt for summer often presents a problem difficult to solve. Shall we have it washable, of fine embroidery or plain linen? Shall we include a silk one in our list, or must our undergarments be more substantial and less expensive? Let us always consider the use of any garment that we are selecting. For the present style of dress a petticoat must be cut on comparatively straight lines, and the ruffle must not be too deep, for we are not yet allowing walk or fullness at the knees. Tucks or rows of shirring give a good disposition of the widths.

Jersey silk is excellent by a fitted top. Many new petticoats have the jersey top, with two or three detachable ruffles that can be buttoned on the lower edge and made to match the gown.

The percale should be cut on a gored pattern and finished with a circular ruffle.

For a woman who expects to spend the summer at a resort where the laundry bills equal the charges at a hotel, an excellent idea for thin summer dresses is the white silk petticoat. It is not expensive and does not soil any more quickly than a white silk dress which we expect to last a season. Choose soft messaline of good quality and make on a slightly full-gored pattern. These buttons are a most successful trimming for any fabric. Silk, linen, serge or wash materials of any variety afford backgrounds on which soutache buttons can be placed with great effect.

Three strands of soutache can be braided and formed into balls that have very large effect, yet are solid. The braid can be wound into flat circular or oval disks for ornaments. These can be made buckles for girdles, belts and bows.

Large single buttons of soutache can be made over buckram disks by winding the braid or soutache in concentric circles around a cluster of beads or mock jewels. If coarse silk is used to attach the braid to the scrim by the "ladder stitch," much can be added to the decorative effect.

Dotted Stockings

THE latest novelty in silk hosiery bearing the approval of Paris is stockings embroidered with dots.

These may easily be done at home, and many who cannot afford to pay the exorbitant price asked for a pair of these pretty stockings may enjoy the luxury of owning several pairs.

Embroider the dots in a triangular shape upon the instep, placing them a uniform distance apart, carefully following the outside line of the triangle which you have basted on the stocking.

Black stockings are often dotted with white. The pale tints are embroidered with the black and white silk.

These would make a lovely gift for the graduate. Any girl would appreciate such thoughtfulness on your part.

Small flowers arranged in artistic designs are very pretty, but they require more time.

Facing a Straw Hat

GIVE a hat a bad facing and the same result will be noticeable as in the case of the bad name bestowed on the poor dog of the proverb. Let us turn the hat of a good milliner upside down and investigate.

It is lined with velvet and the workmanship is exquisite. Yet a young girl probably put on that velvet facing, so why cannot you learn how it is done?

First of all, the velvet must be as wide as the greatest width across the hat's brim. If a circular piece cannot be cut from velvet this large, you will have to piece one side of the circle, and be sure to put the pieced edge where it will show the least. Do not place it on an upturned part of the brim; usually it will be at the back of a hat.

By cutting out a tissue paper circle first, you will make no mistake. Be very careful about the first cutting. The size will depend on the distance that you wish your facing to come in from the edge.

With the first step accomplished, place the facing over the hat, covering the opening left for the head. Pin the velvet or silk in four places and then stretch the material and pin at the ends of imaginary diameters of your circle. Do not stint in this stage. Pin closely together and stretch as tightly as you can across the hole.

When this is done, baste on the outer edge after trimming and turning in about one-half inch. Slipstitch the edge down on the straw and remove the bastings.

As yet there is no opening for the crown, is there? With your scissors feel the edge of the crown and mark by pressing the blade over the velvet. Baste in a circular line around the hole and then, beginning at the very center, cut in lines toward the crown, quite as if you were portioning out a cake in sections.

Pull the points that will result down over the edge and on the inside of the crown. Sew in place.

A perfectly fitted facing will be the result.

How to Transfer

HERE are suggestions for transferring the pattern before you to any material before working.

Perhaps the easiest way is the "window-pane" method. This is successful when the material is thin, like linen, batiste, etc. Pin the sheet of paper and the material together and hold them up against the glass of a window. With a sharp pencil draw on the material the design, which can be easily seen through the goods. If one-half of the design only be given, unpin the paper and turn the other side to the fabric. The strong light behind will make it plain.

If you have carbon paper, you should place the sheet between your fabric and the newspaper. This latter is on top. With a sharp pencil go over the outline of the design. The impression will be left in fine lines and will last until worked. This method is successful on heavy material.

The last way is also easy. On wax paper or ordinary tissue paper trace the pattern before you. When the design is completed, turn over the paper and outline the pattern with a heavy lead pencil. Then place the design down on the fabric and redraw the outline, pressing hard, with the pencil. The pattern will be transferred without difficulty.

Surely the way is easy.

Flat Hats

FROM Paul Poiret, over in Paris, have come examples of beautiful millinery that bear the stamp of an artist and of the approval of the best-dressed women. Poiret, you know, is famous for his new styles or revival of old ones, and principally does he shine for originality.

The "plateau" is his offering; and as about one in ten of us can afford to buy the real model, let us look at it and duplicate it.

The brim is broad and the crown a round one, rather low. Buy this shape in buckram or scrim. The rest of the trimming is for the most part covering the shape.

Changeable taffeta can be used. Linen, satin, chiffon over silk and heavy lace over color are the coverings most in vogue.

The round crown is covered by stretching the fabric over it. A cording can be used to define the line at the base of the crown. The brim, which, of course, has been detached, is covered; and great care in attaining a perfectly smooth surface will result in beauty, so expend your care on this part of the work.

The under side of the brim can be faced with shirred net, lace or soft mousseline.

After attaching the crown, add a line of small roses underneath, to rest on the hair as a flower bandeau. The hat is complete. The result is exquisitely simple.

One model was covered with fine figured batiste. The under surface was of blue silk. A ring of forget-me-nots was placed on the under brim, and one on the upper part, directly over it.

A second beauty was of heavy twine lace over tan. On the top of the crown was a flat bow made of inch-wide grosgrain ribbon, gathered on both edges and applied to resemble the empty bowknots. Blue and pink were used for this.

A buckle of pale yellow roses trimmed another silver and gold changeable silk hat that had its under surface made of pleatings of frayed silk.

The main point is the fabric-covered flat with a contrasting under surface and the simplest ornament, if any, on the top. And, best of all, these flats are appropriate for the young girl or her well-dressed mother.

Button Making

THIS season is surely a button season, and if you care not to give your order at any large store for molds to be covered, you can make your own quite easily.

Do not make the mistake of cutting the circular piece to cover the wooden form too large. This makes a needless bulk on the under side of the button and prevents a flat, well-adjusted mold in trimming.

Cut the pieces from a pasteboard pattern all at one snip of the scissors. Then begin with a wooden form. After gathering the circular piece, slip it over the button, draw up the thread and sew across with a few stitches. If possible, attach immediately to the dress with the same thread.

Satin buttons, velvet, linen, lace over silk and embroidered buttons are easily fashioned.

Have you priced hand-embroidered buttons? Well, sit right down, clear and make your own. After covering with silk, take coarse silk and cross in either two or three diagonals. Knot at the center, and then from this point weave over and under the radiating lines until a spider-web effect is obtained. The stitch is quite like that which we used in our renaissance lace work years ago.

Gold and colored net over silk gives a very good imitation of embroidery. Lace with a flower pattern can be applied with the blossom in the center of the button. A touch of colored thread over white appliqued lace adds wonderfully.

Cretonne-covered buttons are good; Irish lace roses sewed on linen-covered buttons can be easily made. Indeed, the story of the button has no end when a quick eye can grasp the little touches that are apparent on expensive gowns, and the clever hand can apply the hints in one's own sewing room.

THE SMARTEST FASHIONS of WELL-DRESSED FOLK

IN THE ORCHARD

MY DEAR MADGE:

As I sit here at my desk the perfume of the apple-blossoms drifts in from the orchard and the music of girlish voices makes the day more sweet. I am entertaining a cousin of my better half and, believe me, she is a wonder for making friends. I have no need to fear about her having a dull time.

She has a pretty little gingham dress today. It is pink-and-blue plaid trimmed with plain pink. The bodice has a square pink collar edged with white batiste. Long sleeves are edged with a frill, and a girdle of pink encircles the waist. The skirt has an applied hem that extends up one side in a large square piece outlined with linen-covered buttons. A batiste chemisette is worn with this frock.

Adele Thomas came over to join the blossom-gatherers. She is wearing a lavender linen dress with heavy string lace revers and collar. Lace tabs are inset at the side seams and fabric buttons and simulated buttonholes trim the bodice, sleeves and skirt. A collarless guimpe is tucked and trimmed with a black satin tie.

Little Anne La Farge adds the golden note to my color symphony. She has a buff-colored lawn, with a figured yellow bodice. This has a peplum and gives the coatee effect so popular in the new styles. White embroidery edges the crossed line and forms a frill around the top of the bodice. Insertion edges the peplum.

They are doing more chattering than gathering, and I hear phrases of "only 8 cents a yard" and "made it myself." These put the pretty creatures quite in my "set."

Farewell, sister mine; I shall expect some help from you about kiddies' styles next week.

With love, ELEANOR.

[BY DIRECT WIRE TO THE TIMES.]

HALIFAX (N. S.) May 5.—[Exclusive Dispatch.] Another transatlantic liner has been damaged in the ice fields which crowd the entrance to the Gulf of St. Lawrence. The Cunard liner Ultonia, from Southampton bound to Montreal, arrived here tonight in a disabled condition, and reported the loss of one propeller. The Ultonia has twin screws but Capt. Prothero decided not to risk further ice perils of the Gulf and proceeded to Halifax, the nearest port.

This is the Ultonia's first trip to Canadian ports this season. She has 1200 nadian ports this season. She has 1200 disembarked tomorrow and forwarded to their destinations in Canada and the United States.

Phenomenal ice conditions are reported in the track of transatlantic liners, extending far south of the Grand Banks. Navigators have to exercise great caution in approaching the Gulf of St. Lawrence, where the field ice is closely packed and in some cases reaches for many miles.

Capt. Prothero did not make formal report tonight, but it is believed that

THE CITY. The Imperial Potentate of the Shriners arrived yesterday and was accorded due homage at the Alexandria. Twenty thousand Shriners and friends visited the beaches during the day, and 5000 registered at the official booths. Temple after temple arrived yesterday and last night.

Five hundred automobiles carried Shriners to all interesting points of the city yesterday, and many others were offered invitations to the beaches and mountains.

A fuss over a fox started a deadly quarrel early yesterday morning and as a result a man lies in the hospital at the point of death and detectives are seeking eight other men in the party when the fight began.

Masked bandits held up a car crew on the East First-street line early yesterday morning and the police are looking for two young men who did the job.

SOUTHERN CALIFORNIA. A negro shot by a Long Beach policeman is lying in a hospital and is probably a hopeless cripple from the wound received. The negro was innocent of any crime and was shot because he refused to halt when ordered to do so by the officer. Now the duty of the city in the matter has been raised and the Council will wrestle with the problem at its next meeting.

South Pasadena wants children's playgrounds, and the civic bodies of the city are circulating petitions asking the Trustees to provide them. The petitions recite that the city which does not provide them is remiss in its duty to the young.

H. C. Loufler, an American who has large interests in Mexico, is visiting in Anaheim and says the reports of the trouble in Mexico are greatly exaggerated. He believes that peace will be gained in a few weeks by the Madero government.

An engineering crew has arrived at Delano to do a little preliminary work in the matter of locating a line for the new State highway. The town is so elated over its prospects in the matter that realty has taken a decided spurt.

A lanky Virginian who was arrested in San Bernardino a few days ago leaped from the window of a rapidly moving Santa Fe train while being returned to that State by a Virginia officer. He was handcuffed when he escaped and it is feared he may have broken one of his arms. He is suspected of being a member of the Allen gang.

The head of the Standard Oil Company on the Pacific Coast announces that El Segundo is to be one of that concern's chief shipping points on the western slope. An additional supply of men has been secured to push the work of pier building.

The La Follette forces at Santa Monica are not on terms of cordiality with the Roosevelt men. A challenge by the former for a debate was rather curtly declined by the latter. Hence a chilliness.

PACIFIC SLOPE. A thrilling rescue of the officers and crew of the steam schooner Fortuna, stranded on a spit at the mouth of the Nehalem River on the Oregon coast, was reported from Bay City, Or., yesterday.

Rescued from her hotel by a message supposing her boy was dying, a woman was reportedly seriously stabbed by her husband at Portland, Or.
